Vitamins Are Important Part of Diet Today

DON'T GET UPSET

Do little Bobbie's tantrums and other happengs of the day leave you limp and exhausted. If so you're probably not getting enough vitamins in your diet.

Don't think you can get your vitamins entirely from capsules and then go ahead and eat unbalanced meals. This is wrong. The proper foods with high vitamin content are important. So when doing your market shopping, be sure to buy the correct vegetables and fruits.

Our 32-page booklet tells you how to get the maximum vitamin values from the food you eat every day. It will answer all your questions about vitamins and will describe which vitamins are in certain foods. You may wonder what vitamins are, what they can do, and especially what is the meaning of all this enthusiasm for them. After reading our booklet, you'll no longer wonder.

Foods that are rich in vitamins are not necessarily more expensive than those low in vitamins.

For your copy of VITAMINS TO KEEP YOU FIT send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Servcie. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Overseas Boxes Sent To 8 Boys

HASTINGS, Oct. 9 (ENS).—The Cobourg Road held their regular Red Cross meeting this week at the home of Mrs. Gordon Dickey.

The president, Miss Clara Williamson, presided. During the afternoon they quilted 2 large quilts. Mrs. Eric Pulfer gave the treasurer's report and Mrs. Cecil Oliver gave the sewing report, stating they had made 100 khaki handkerchiefs and 8 operating sheets. Mrs. Arthur Beamish gave the knitting report showing they had completed 8 helmets, 4 pair socks, 3 pair gloves, 1 long sleeved sweater for the month of September, and 1 long sleeved turtle neck airforce sweater, 3 pair socks and 1 pair gloves for October.

They decided to pack the Christmas parcels for the boys overseas at Mrs. Virgil Oliver's home on October 13. The president urged that any donations would be gladly accepted and please be handed in by this date.

The ladies have received word that Lieut. Dennis Ward had been killed in Sicily. He had been employed at William Whitred's and at other farmers in that district. Sgt. Observer Charlie Fitzpatrick, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. Fitzpatrick, is reported missing in a recent air-raid. This leaves only 8 boys overseas to receive Christmas boxes.

They decided to start a travelling apron, for which Mrs. Gordon Dickey is responsible. A ditty bag is also being filled for the Hastings Red Cross. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Eric Pulfer's home.

GO IN FOR PSYCHOLOGY

NO WONDER the Marines are such terrific fighters—on the land, at sea, in the air If you have ever watched a foursome of their best bridge players having at each other, you could easily realize what their enemies are up against. They go in for psychology in a big way. They never give an inch when there is the slightest chance to strike a blow. They co-operate with each other to the limit. And nobody can scare them out of doing what they decide they should do.

That great big fellow sitting up in the North was Lieut. Frank Sinkler, who starred as an All-American tackle at Northwestern in the twenties, and in the South was Lieut. Albert E. Haeussler, formerly a duplicate addict of New York and Brooklyn. They surely had typical Marines' bidding technique, starting so mildly and winding up under full headway just as it seemed as if the bidding was about to drop.

It was that which proved so deceptive to the opponents that they seemed to have less strength than was the case. Largely on that basis, East, Lieut. Joe Patton, from New York, read his partner as having some defensive values, and his double was to conceal their location and help make them score tricks. Reporting the hand, Lieut. Haeussler says: "Note my Barclay redouble." By that we hope he means a "percentage" redouble, because what he stood to gain by it was so much more than any loss it might cause.

Lieut. Henry C. (Hank) Ripley in the West led his club K, but this was one of the times when Al Haeussler got maximum results from his cards, as he generally does. He scored an overtrick, raking in all 13 in a row.

Easily Made Gifts for Young and Old

Toy Chest Delights Children

It's never too soon to start thinking about Christmas gifts. The earlier the better! So start making your gifts now.

Given such a jolly toy chest for Christmas, your youngsters find it's fun to put toys away! No one can resist those plump little yellow ducks!

Any sizable wooden box you have will do for the chest or you can make one easily.

Nail boards together with 6-penny nails, countersink them and cover heads with putty.

After sandpapering the wood you may start painting; let the background be a turquoise sky, paint the waves a deep blue.

You might draw the ducks right on the box, sketching first two "eggs," then adding neck and so on, as in our diagram.

Then what about a bookrack table for dad, a fluffy-ruffle vanity table for big sister? Made from boxes, o...

Our 32-page booklet has instructions and diagrams for these and many charming gifts — including knitting bag, pillows, pot-holders, sewing stand.

For your copy of HAND-MADE GIFT NOVELTIES send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

8 Collectors Fined For Digging Salvage

PICTON, Oct. 9—(CP)—The fact that eight residents of Athol township were extremely "salvage" conscious got them into trouble with R.A.F. officially, and incidentally with the law.

Evidence in Picton police court showed that the eight people in question had dug up practice bombs which had fallen on the bombing range at Point Petre and sold them as salvage, the lead and iron in them being useful for future manufacture.

All accused pleaded guilty and paid fines and costs amounting to $8.25 each.

Three charges of receiving stolen goods against three additional men are scheduled to be heard next week.

County Constable James Lovelace was in charge of the case, with Magistrate A. B. Collins officiating.

Air Freedom Talk

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

ARGUMENTS TWO-SIDED

PRACTICALLY any argument at the bridge table seems sound until you hear the other side of it. That applies emphatically to whether to jump a major suit bid all the way to game, when you have enough playing tricks for the purpose, or merely to give a jump to three. The latter has the advantage of allowing leeway for a mild slam invitation by means of a cue bid of a side suit, without forcing the pair above game. Usually the deciding factor is whether the response to the opener is based largely on high card strength, when three may be the best bid, or on great distribution without many high cards, when the long jump has the advantage of shutting out opponents who probably have fair strength.

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

That closed out the bidding, as West would not dare stick his neck out at the level of five, without knowing which of his suits his partner might fit. But after North made an unbid small slam, with the loss of only a heart trick, he hopped all over South for his high jump.

"If you had forced with only 3-Spades," said North, "I then could have cue bid the diamonds and you clubs to show first-round control. That would have enabled me to bid six without any worries. But, with your jump to 4-Spades, I could not venture into the level of five, since as near as I could tell, we might have had three club losers."

South was meekly defending his long jump as being due to weakness in high cards, when West came to his defense, saying: "If you had bid only 3-Spades, I would have cut in with 4-Diamonds, prepared to show my clubs next if necessary to find a fit with my partner. After that, you fellows would never have had a chance to play the hand profitably, as my partner would have taken us to 7-Diamonds, which would have been set only two tricks. Of course, if you had wanted to bid 7-Spades and get set, then okeh."

"I guess you're right," subsided North. "We really got the best result we could."

Faster Planes Needed To Fight Subs

By JAMES J. STREBIG
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Increasing tendency of Nazi submarines to stay up and fight is making coastal patrol work more and more a job for fast, heavily-armed land planes.

United States Navy officials said today that flying boats, long considered ideal for patrol, are being shifted gradually to jobs where their rugged bulk, relative slowness and great range are more advantageous, such as the Pacific, which has too few landing fields but plenty of water.

Bulk and slowness appear certain to give the blimp a changed role in the anti-submarine war, although the United States Navy still boasts that no ship ever was lost in a blimp-escorted convoy.

The new U-boat tactics, build around more and heavier deck guns, are being met by changes in offshore patrol equipment.

Now the main burden is being given to four-engined aircraft like the ones being used over Europe which can strike more swiftly, hit harder and get away quicker than the boats. these planes are specially adapted versions.

The story of submarine resistance to air attacks is not yet ready for full disclosure, but announcements of plane losses in such jousts indicate the seriousness of the problem. At least one heavy bomber and a couple of smaller planes have been shot down by German undersea craft.

The funeral was held today at 2 p.m. from the funeral home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street, with service conducted by the Rev. Clayton Kidd of Nazarene Gospel Tabernacle. Interment was made in Little Lake Cemetery.

Business Booms On The Alaska Highway

Supply trucks and tank trucks, loaded to capacity, roll in endless convoys along the Alaska highway, going north with the sinews of war. Completed in record time, the Alaska Highway is still unpaved and pretty tough in spots, but there are some stretches where trucks can speed up to 40 m.p.h. The ride is called the "world's toughest grind."

the Dnieper and said Red Army spearheads were probing for more crossings at other strategic points.

(Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press correspondent Moscow, said in a dispatch that the Red Army positions on the west bank now were regarded as secure.

(Cassidy added nobody was more surprised by the Red Army's new offensive than the Russian people themselves, and that its initial successes, coupled with its strategic possibilities, stimulated the hope the end of the war might soon be in sight.)

The Moscow war bulletin also reported major battles far to the north where it claimed 3,400 Nazi troops wree killed in Soviet drives aimed at Vitebsk and the Latvian frontier.

West and south of captured Nevel, 70 miles from the Latvian border and 60 miles north of Vitebsk, the Russians were fanning out in ever-widening circles. Here, in two days, they killed 3,600 Germans, took 600 prisoners and scooped up huge stores of enemy war gear.

A DNB German news agency dispatch, broadcast by Berlin, admitted today that Nazi forces had abandoned the railway junction at Kirishi, on the Volkhov front below Leningrad, after completely demolishing the town. A Rusian communique several days ago claimed the capture of Kirishi.

The Germans attributed great importance to the fighting in the Nevel sector. Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Nazi commentator called it a "major operation," and said the Germans were throwing fresh reserves into this zone, "which has become the focal point of the battle."

"The biggest killing occurred the night of Oct. 1 when our destroyers got 20 Japanese barges," he said. On that occasion, an estimated 4,000 Japanese were trying to escape and more than half of the enemy craft sighted were wiped out.

After Oct. 3, the barge traffic ceased. Allied sources then concluded it would be only a matter of time until the long secluded Japanese navy would come out to try to save its troops on Vella Lavella, and Choiseul.

The scene of the battle northwest of Vella Lavella is bounded by that island, Choiseul and Bougainville.

INDIAN RIVER
Fire Destroys Farmer's Crop

INDIAN RIVER, Oct. 9—(ENS)—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the barn, henhouse and implement shed of Thomas J. O'Brien of Indian River early Saturday morning.

The car was driven into the garage late Friday night after the family had been away for the evening. The blaze aroused them about 3 a.m. this morning when the whole neighbourhood was summoned to help fight the fire. A bucket brigade was formed but water was scarce, the cistern being the only available source. A truck driver from Warsaw drew water from the river and gave valuable aid in saving the rest of the buildings.

The loss to Mr. O'Brien was considerable as his entire crop was destroyed as well as about 200 hens, a young colt and two horses.

The automobile was also lost in the blaze. The farm is located two miles north of Indian River village in Douro township.

assaults with a large-scale aerial attack on German installations at Brest, France, important submarine base and port on the western tip of Brittany. R.C.A.F. Spitfires provided part of the fighter escort force.

Other R.C.A.F. planes destroyed a three-engined flying boat off the Netherlands coast. There were no Canadian losses during the day.

The American pilots said that flak over the target at Bremen and Vegesack, where 30 bombers were lost, was particularly intense.

London Has Alert

For half the trip to the target the big bombers had the advantage of fighter cover. When the Nazi planes rose to the attack they bored in, attempting to penetrate the screen. If they failed, the pilots said, they launched the small rocket-propelled planes bearing bombs.

There was no indication in the preliminary reports of the raid as to what portion of the heavy American losses were the result of the new German techniques or how many were the victims of flak flak ground batteries or fighter fire.

London had an alert for the fourth successive night but the all clear was sounded shortly afterwards. Bombs were dropped at scattered points it was announced, and a small number of casualties resulted.

The Air Ministry meanwhile that aerial reconnaisance over the industrial city of Frankfurt yesterday showed that fires started by R.A.F. and Canadian bombers in their raid four days before were still raging.

Sulphadiazini By Mouth Cures Meningitis

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 (AP).— Four army medical officers said yesterday administration of sulfadiazine by mouth appears to be a safe, effective method of preventing the spread of epidemics of meningococcic meningitis among troops.

Col. Dwight M. Kuhns and Capts. Carl T. Nelson and Harry A. Feldman of the medical corps, and Capt. L. Roland Kuhn of the sanitary corps, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, said:

"This method of prophylaxis might also prove to be of value in terminating outbreaks of this disease in other situations, for example, on troop transports at sea or in schools, orphanages and other institutions.

"Sulfadiazine was administered prophylactically to more than 15,000 troops in residence at two posts where meningococcic meningitis was particularly prevalent during the spring of 1943. . . .

"Following the institution of prophylactic therapy the incidence of cerebrospinal fever among the treated individuals dropped abruptly.

"Only two cases of the disease occurred during a subsequent period of eight weeks of observation. At the same time 40 cases were found among 18,800 untreated controls."

The officers related that "no serious toxic reactions resulted from the large-scale administration of the drug. The treated men continued their usual daily activities without interruption."

An official Allied communique yesterday said that the 8th Army had taken the offensive and had occupied an importnat high area above Termoli.

Meanwhile, the London Radio reported that "Allied and German guns are hammering each other across the 150 yards of the Volturno River, above Naples.

Reports yesterday said the Nazi defence line there, weakened by the withdrawal of the 16th armored division taken out to oppose the surge of the 8th Army, crumpled to allow the Allies to reach the south bank of that river.

MORE HOWLERS

LONDON — (CP). — Mishearing of certain words has caused children to pull "howlers" during church services. A 10-year-old girl was heard to give this rendering of the Third Collect at Evensong: ". . . by Thy great mercy defend us from all parents and dangers of this night," because she had not properly heard the word "perils." An evacuee from London who went to Devon had this version of the Lord's Prayer "Thy will be done on earth as it is in Devon."

To you, Little Boy in a Sailor Suit
They're your whole lifetime
All the Thanksgivings since your Daddy went away
All the Thanksgivings since you were born.

Since the first of those Thanksgivings—
Thousands of homes have been saddened and broken
A world has been torn apart
And still we call it Thanksgiving.

Funny, you think? But perhaps not so funny.
To you, Little Boy in a Sailor Suit
It's Thanksgiving for a carefree place to play
And a safe bed when it's dark at night.

These things were yours your first Thanksgiving
When Poland was laid waste
And on your second too when London stood the Blitz
And on your third when Russia fought and bled.

In spite of that we called those all Thanksgivings
When we gave thanks for freedom still held high
For men who fought on sea and land and air
For faith there'd someday be a better world.

We know where that faith has led us—
To this the fifth Thanksgiving.
The brightest of them yet since you were born,
Clear-eyed Boy in a Sailor Suit.

It shines, this fifth Thanksgiving, like a star
A star that points to Victory and Peace,
To lives re-born, to homes re-made, to loves re-found
And the beginning of a brave new world.

WORK HOURS spell "Victory"

TO supply our men on the fighting fronts, to assist the United Nations and to maintain essential services on the home front, requires every ounce of energy of the Canadian public.

This is total war, with liberty the prize. Canadians realize we can not win that prize without hard, steady work.

Under a recent order, issued in pursuance of National Selective Service Civilian Regulations, thousands of Canadians—employers and employees—are expected to forego some part of their peacetime liberty in regard to employment matters, in order that the Nation's war machine may increase its pace—rather than operate at less than capacity.

In order to conserve the working forces in war industries and essential services, this order requires that no male employee be released, nor may he separate, from a job in either of the two top labour priorities—"A" and "B"—without first securing special permission from a National Selective Service Officer.

The order bears equally on employer and employee: both are restrained from any wastage of man hours through needless labour turnover.

An employer is obligated to post a notice in the form prescribed, where his plant or undertaking is covered by the order, so that his employees will be informed of the regulations as applying to them.

All are urged to comply in the national interest. Penalties are provided for failure to comply.

Anyone wishing information is requested to enquire at the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office.

Employers and employees alike are urged to strike a blow for freedom! Keep production at full capacity!

PORTUGAL GIVES BRITAIN NEW BASES

Reds Reach Gomel; Isolate Kiev

London Reports Kiev Defences Now Penetrated

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Oct. 12—(AP)—The Red Army fought its way through the suburbs of Gomel, the first major objective in White Russia, today and neared the upper Dnieper River in that sector to bring further support to the salients on the west bank of the middle Dnieper.

Russian forces were lined up along the entire 100-mile east bank of the Sozh River for an assault across the stream which runs south through Gomel to its junction with the Dnieper. Some suburbs of Gomel, including Nova Belitsa on the east bank of the Sozh, have been taken and bridgeheads have been established on the west bank.

The main part of Gomel lies west of the Sozh about 25 miles from the Dnieper. The elimination of the Germans from the Sozh-Dnieper triangle would expose the Germans' Dnieper line, which is broken north of Kiev, to new attacks.

The Germans left more than 5,300 dead on yesterday's battlefields, the Russian war bulletin said. Fifty-eight enemy planes were shot down by Red Army airmen, while scores of tanks and guns were destroyed or captured, together with stockpiles of other war material.

Casualties Heavy

The enemy battled desperately to stem the Russian advance, especially at the Dnieper bridgeheads. Moscow

Nazis Threaten Wipe Out Slavs

LONDON, Oct. 12—(AP).—Germany has threatened to destroy every city, town and village in Yugoslavia and to shoot an unspecified number of hostages in an effort to force partisans now waging war against the Reich to lay down their arms, a communique of the Yugoslav liberation army, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, declared today.

The communique said German planes were dropping leaflets over Yugoslav cities "in which they threaten the towns with complete destruction and the shooting of hostages." It was issued after the Yugoslavs had announced the capture of the important island of Cherso, commanding the entrance to the Gulf of Fiume, and added:

"The German Luftwaffe is continuing its ruthless attacks on unprotected towns and villages.

"The town of Nova-Meste has been completely destroyed. Not a living soul remains."

The German threat of extermination came as the patriots listed a series of victories which included the capture of Slankamen, a town on the Danube near the city of Nivisad and approximately 50 miles northwest of Belgrade.

"The Dalmatian coast south of Split is firmly held by the Partisans," said the war bulletin.

"In the sectors of Susak, Otocac, Duga-Resa, Karlovac, Zara and Sinj (all north of Split) bitter fighting continues."

37-Pound Muskie

GANANOQUE, Oct. 12—(CP)—Thrice did Herbert L. Judson of Charlotte, N.Y., put a new hook and fresh bait on his line, dangling, lure-like, in Charleston Lake. And thrice did bait, hook and part of the line disappear after a lightning strike. Fourth try proved that persistence wins, and after a 20-minute battle, up came a 37-pound lunge, sporting one of the missing hooks in his horny jaw.

5 Hun Prisoners Escape From Peat Job

TORONTO, Oct. 12—(CP).—Officials of Military District No 2 today said they have been notified that five prisoners of war have escaped from the Erie Peat Company at Port Colborne, Ont., where they have been working.

Officials said they did not know when the men escaped. An official left Toronto to investigate.

Officers said the men are believed to have been wearing prison garb but may have changed their clothes.

The five are: J. Gerrard, 22-year-old German sailor; A. Kaehler, 22, described as a German seaman; G. Krause, 21; H. Hoffman, and W. Sehlueter.

Speak English.

Descriptions and pictures of the five men have been given to Royal Canadian Mounted Police and other police authorities.

Military officials said the five men failed to return to their quarters after a day's work.

The prisoners are among a number taken from a New Toronto prisoner-of-war camp about two months ago to work at the Port Colborne Company.

Gerrard was described as weighing 159 pounds. He stands 5 feet 9¾ inches, has brown hair, fair complexion, blue eyes and speaks a little English.

Kaehler, 22, weights 147 pounds, has a fair complexion, black hair parted in the middle, large teeth, quiet manner and speaks English.

Krause weighs 138 pounds, stands 5 feet 9 inches, has light brown hair, blue eyes, a lady's head tattooed on his left arm, a skull on his right arm, and speaks poor English.

Descriptions of the other two men were not available immediately.

Super-Fortresses Newest Nazi Howl

LONDON, Oct. 12—(AP). — The German radio has reported that Allied "super-fortresses" which carry no bombs but which are armed with a number of extra guns are accompanying American bombers as "fighter escorts" on raids over Europe, the London Evening Standard says.

About a dozen of the especially-equipped planes fly ahead of the regular Fortress bomber formations in echelon as a protective screen to ward off German fighters.

Air experts were skeptical and observed that the regular Fortresses which shot down more than 300 German fighters in the last three raids are doing all right by themselves.

Mud Delays Battle On Volturno

Africa-Based Planes Smash Airfields At Corfu And Rhodes

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 12 — (AP). — Northwest African Air Force bombers, pursuing their attacks on the Germans in the Balkans and in the eastern Mediterranean for the seventh successive day, struck a smashing blow yesterday at the Nazi airfield on Corfu, strategic Greek island dominating the entrance to the Adriatic, Allied headquarters announced today.

On the rain-bogged Italian battlefront, only artillery and patrol actions were reported as the 5th Army troops along the swollen Volturno River front prepared for an assault on powerful German positions.

U.S. medium bombers sweeping from Italian bases and escorted by fighters struck at Corfu, bombing the Garitza airfield, and the fighters scored two direct hits on a merchant vessel in Corfu Harbor.

No Planes Lost.

New raids on Calato airfield in Rhodes and Herakleton airdrome in Crete also were announced. These missions were undertaken by heavy bombers that poured bombs among parked aircraft and buildings near the airfields.

Bomb-carrying fighters made their first raid on the Antimachia landing ground on the Island of Kos in the Dodecanese. This airfield has twice changed hands in fighting there.

Artillery duels rumbled along on both the 5th and the 8th Army fronts, and 8th Army patrols were aggressive, a dispatch from Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's headquarters said.

These advance units encountered German tanks in one foray west of Termoli.

River Overflows

Enemy opposition was increasingly stiff, but the 8th Army forces gained ground in some places, it was announced. British artillery shelled enemy positions heavily southwest of Colletorto, hitting vehicles on the roads.

The Volturno River has overflowed its banks in some places, covering the nearby fields with water and making fighting there virtually impossible. The 5th Army continued to consolidate its positions for an eventual big drive to crack the Volturno line.

The 5th Army and the Germans face each other across the narrow twisting river awaiting the signal that will touch off one of the biggest battles of the war, a front-line dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Relman Morin said.

Artillery blasted continually at Nazi positions on the north bank of the river, Morin said, adding:

"The site of the coming battle is a cup-shaped valley almost completely ringed with hills. We hold the southern and southeastern slopes. The Germans are entrenched solidly in the north. They probably are relying upon defence in depth, having sunk tanks for use as artillery and covered large areas with barbed wire and concrete pillboxes."

Makes Money Fast

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 12—(AP).—A Lajolla woman rented eight rooms in her home, rented her garage for living quarters, built a new garage and rented that for living quarters, then pitched a tent in the yard and rented it. She even set up a bed under a canopy in the back yard and rented that. The U.S. office of price administration commended the woman—then ordered her to cut rental charges 50 per cent.

Long, Hard Days Ahead Minister Warns

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (CP)—Navy Minister Macdonald today urged support of the forthcoming Victory Loan and warned there will be "long and hard days" to come before victory is won.

Addressing the Canadian Club here, Mr. Macdonald expressed fear some Canadians have reached the stage where "the first enthusiasm begins to lag and the early vigor to fail," and said:—

"It is no time for complacency or over-confidence. The enemy still has power to strike back. He proved that in the Atlantic a few weeks ago, and his bombs fell on London within the past few days.

"Much blood, I fear, must be shed, and certainly much treasure spent before victory complete and decisive will rest in our banners."

Reviewing the growth of Allied might since the dark days of 1940, Mr. Macdonald said the accomplishments of recent months "must not blind us to the greatness and the difficulty of what we still have to do. Our enemies have not been pushed back as they must be pushed back and beaten on their own soil."

U-Boat Defeat in Spring

Mr. Macdonald turned to the anti-submarine war and attributed the disappearance of U-boat attacks in the North Atlantic this summer to the breaking of submarine offensive last spring, a defeat administered with "very heavy losses indeed" to the Nazi U-boat fleets.

He attributed to that beating, too, the absence of submarine attacks this summer in Canada's coastal waters.

Emphasizing that the spring U-boat offensive was beaten hundreds and thousands of miles from Canadian shores, Mr. Macdonald continued:—

"Last year there were some who said to us: Why send warships to the broader reaches of the Atlantic if there are submarines in our waters? Draw back the Canadian Navy to guard our own shores.

"I shall admit readily that the defence of our own coasts is a prime function of our navy, but the question that arises here is: Where can this defence be best carried on?

"The events of the year have proved again the soundness of the old naval advice—seek out and engage the enemy."

Jews To Visit Russia

Opens Azores Islands Ports For Anti-submarine Patrols

By E. C. DANIEL—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 12 — (AP). — Portugal, Great Britain's oldest ally, has granted Britain anti-submarine bases in the Azores Islands—the crossroads of the Atlantic—Prime Minister Churchill announced today, but will remain neutral in the war. Mr. Churchill announced this step, vastly strengthening Allied ability to combat resurgent Nazi U-boats warfare, in the House of Commons.

The Azores lie 1,000 miles west of Lisbon on the airways and sea lanes from Portugal to North America.

Granting of such bases would mean the Allies could use the Azores as bases both for naval vessels and aircraft to hunt down submarines, and as refuelling and repair centres, it was understood. Observers said that the effects of such a strategic, central series of bases on the anti-submarine war could hardly be overestimated."

Portugal is Britains' oldest ally.

Mr. Churchill told Commons that all British forces would be withdrawn from the Azores at the end of hostilities. The Portuguese themselves have been constantly reinforcing the Azores garrison to the extent of their limited facilities since the beginning of the war.

Comprise 9 Islands.

The Azores, 1,000 miles southeast of Newfoundalnd, consist of nine islands, the most important of which is Fayal. The chief city, Horta, is a trans-oceanic communications centre and a stopping point for trans-atlantic aircraft. The islands, with a total population of about 255,000, are an integral part of the Portuguese republic and not a colony.

The immediate effect of Portugal's action was the subject of hot speculation in London. The first and most important result for the Allies will be to give them one more valuable base from which to combat the Nazi submarine warfare which abated this summer but which is expected to be resumed in full scale to beat off the coming Allied invasion of the Continent.

The Azores will afford added protection for one of the most vital sea lanes from North America to the future fighting on the continent.

Lying at a crossroads of Atlantic shipping, the Azores can be used to complete the air umbrella which was raised over the Atlantic and drove the U-boats to desperate new tactics.

Mr. Churchill disclosed that the Portuguese neutrality was adopted at the beginning of the war with the full agreement of the British government "with a view to preventing the war from spreading into the Ibedian Peninsula."

But, the Prime Minister added, "the Portuguese government, however, frequently stated . . . that the above policy is no way inconsistent with the Anglo-Portuguese alliance," and on the basis of this alliance, Britain requested facilities in Azores

Arrangements for these facilities "enter into force immediately," he said, in return for which Britain will give "assistance in furnishing essential material for the Portuguese armed forces and for maintenance of Portugal's national economy."

Million Dollar Loss Results From Fire At New Naval Base Near Sydney, Nova Scotia

SYDNEY, N.S., Oct. 12—((12)—Damage unofficially estimated at more than $1,000,000 was caused here today when a half-mile long jetty at the new naval base at nearby Point Edward was almost completely destroyed by fire.

Two large buildings, the boiler shop and another workshop, were destroyed in the blaze which lasted about 10 hours. Unconfirmed reports today said that one boat was lost and two others were badly burned. They had been moored alongside the jetty at the time of the fire.

Men from the new naval base, crews from the Sydney dockyard, fire fighting forces from Sydney, nearby Glace Bay and north Sydney, along with soldiers from barracks in this area fought the flames all night last night to prevent them from spreading to the remainder of the recently-constructed $12,000,000 naval base.

Fire fighting equipment was rushed here by plane from Halifax shortly after the fire started at about eight o'clock last night.

Cause of the blaze has not yet been determined, but a spark from a welder's torch was reported to have ignited some oil on the wharf, where repair work was underway.

Tanks Batter Each Other Plow Through Sea Of Mud

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 7 (Delayed) — (CP Cable). — British tank formations in their most successful action since their arrival in Italy destroyed 10 German tanks Wednesday and foiled a determined attempt to recapture the Adriatic coast town of Termoli which now is firmly in Allied hands.

Fighting as bitter as any since the invasion of the Italian mainland went on at point-blank range, unusual in tank battles. The German counter-attack which saw infantry penetrate the outskirts of the town yesterday morning (October 6) was repulsed handily by tank and infantry assault which pushed the Nazis out of a strongly-held cemetery in the flat land beyond the town, and off ated the ground between it and the town.

Wreckage Everywhere

Wreckage of destroyed tanks and numerous anti-tank guns was strewn over a wide area of the muddy, rain-drenched battlefront. German casualties were heavy. Usually the Germans take away their dead before they can be counted by the enemy but this time they withdrew so fast they had to leave a number of bodies behind and with the few British tommies who fell they were buried at the side of the road by padres who stood ankle-deep in mud.

a ridge from which they domin-

We lost only two tanks and tank casualties in men were four killed and two wounded.

The Germans now are well outside Termoli, just beyond a village which Allied infantry entered to find the Germans had left. Fighting bogged down in the rain to-day (October 7) but there was patrol activity and artillery fire on both sides.

The tank battle was an affair fought strictly according to the text book. Tanks went in first and eased the way for the infantry which followed. The officer commanding Allied forces as extremely pleased with the work of the tanks which he described as a "good party."

I saw five of the tanks destroyed. Two were within 100 yards of each other in plowed field. The body of the driver of one, killed by the blast of a shell which ripped into the tank, was in an upright position with the head just outside the opening over his seat. The rest of the crew of other tanks escaped. Wreckage of the tanks and personal belongings of the crews were scattered all over the place

One Blown to Bits.

One tank was in good enough condition to be used again. Another was literally blown to pieces.

The British tanks reached the area after a 40-mile forced drive across country and went into action immediately, almost without enough petrol to last through the fight.

The lieutenant-colonel commanding the tanks, a short-dark-haired 35-year-old veteran of Tunisia, said: "It was the best tank fight we have had in one chunk." He added, "It will put the boys on top."

Our tanks faced about 30 German tanks, all Mark IV. Specials with long 75-millimetre guns. British Shermans were outnumbered about two to one.

The tanks slugged away at each other in small areas often less than 100 yards apart.

Must Empty All Wallets Ilsley Says

Over Optimism Slowing March To Victory

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (CP) — Finance Minister Ilsley said today in his first major speech of the Fifth Victory Loan campaign that until the Loan's objective of $1,200,000,000 is exceeded Canadians will experience a "saturation campaign" aimed at stripping their pocketbooks of all but essential finances.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club, he warned against home-front complacency because of recent successes, against believing Hitlerite propaganda which is trying to drive a wedge between Russia and the Western Democracies and against relaxation of the determination that has speeded Canada from an uncertain standing start in 1939 to her present strong position among the world's military power.

"Possibly victory in Europe is in sight, but between us and victory lies much the hardest part of our Canadian struggle—both overseas in the battles themselves and here at home in our efforts to provide our forces and our Allies with their vital requirement," he said. "If we let our attention wander from the work in hand, if we slacken our efforts, and particularly if we begin looking to individual advantage rather than national interest, then we shall do less than our part, others more exposed than ourselves will suffer, and victory will be delayed."

He said he had felt during much of the war that Canadians have bee nover-confident, "first of the certainty of complete victory and more latterly of the time which it will take to achieve it." He traced the steady improvement in the war situation during the last year, but said that our "over-enthusiastic optimism" has been slammed back recently by revival of submarine warfare on the North Atlantic with U-boat wolf packs using "new, secret and terrible instruments of sea attack."

Long Way To Go.

New 2-Man Subs Lauded By Knox

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Frank Knox, United States Navy Secretary, said today that the British submarines which have immobilized the German battleship Tirpitz operated 1,000 miles from home with two-man crews.

The submarines slipped through mine field and mazes of submarine nets to launch their torpedoes against the mighty Nazi battleship in a Norwegian hideout.

Knox said the attack on the Tirpitz was carried out while he was in Britain and was "characterized by a high spirit of daring and courage that is amazing."

He added that the little two-man submersibles not only made their way through submarine nets guarding the harbor, but also penetrated nets hung about the big ship itself.

It was one of "the most difficult things ever attempted and was a success," he said.

Questioned about reappearance of the U-boats after the late summer lull, as evidenced by a recent attack on an Allied convoy in which several ships were sunk, Knox stated:

"It is very serious. Let's not make a mistake about it. Submarine warfare will be serious to the end of the war."

Women Enter Navy Sanctum

Wren Dietitians Selected As Advisors

OTTAWA, Oct. 12. — (CP).—A new influence, at once scientific and feminine, is about to reach out into Canada's fighting ships and make itself felt in the palates and fitness of seamen.

The Royal Canadian Navy today announced appointment of five Wren dietitians to act in an advisory capacity in the preparation of food for all naval ships and establishments. All trained and experienced dietitians before entering the Navy, the job of these officers will be to see that the men get a balanced and varied diet.

The step is unprecedented so far as either Canadian or the British Navy is concerned for hitherto women have never had anything to do with what happens aboard naval ships.

Paymaster Lt.-Cmdr. Doris Taylor, of Winnipeg, will be stationed at Ottawa as chief dietitian. Paymaster Sub.-Lt. Ruth Sinclair of Clarkson, Ont., will be on the west coast. She is a graduate of MacDonald Institute Guelph, Ont. Another such graduates is Paymaster Sub-Lt. Helen McKercher of Dublin, Ont., who will be diet adviser a Deep Rock, N.S.

The big job for the east coast where most sea-going ships get their victuals goes to Paymaster Sub-Lt. Elizabeth Crozier of Port Perry, Ont. a past president of the Toronto Dietic Association and formerly dietitian and assistant manager of the restaurant division of a large Toronto Department store.

De Gaulle Shows Friendship To Russia

Political Picture Improves As Tri-Power Conference Nears

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Gen. Charles de Gaulle's sudden move in orienting French policy in the direction of close friendship with Russia has given the Allied wheel of fortune a lusty spin.

It is significant of the fact that some of the biggest battles of this war are political. We shouldn't forget that for a minute, especially as we are on the eve of the Moscow meeting of the foreign ministers of the Big Three— Britain, the United States and Russia—to iron out differences between the Soviet Union on the one hand and the Anglo-American allies on the other.

Undoubtedly this conference and the other projected between Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin, will rank among the momentous parleys of history. We can say this because it's clear that agreement now among the Big Three on the military and political issues is essential if another world war isn't to grow out of the "peace" of the present conflict.

The gesture by de Gaulle, as co-president of the French Committee of National Liberation in Algiers, cannot but strengthen Moscow's position. The General announced this policy with the unequivocal comment that the Mediterranean "is a pathway for "a natural alliance with dear, powerful Russia." You don't need a diagram to explain that. The Soviet is reciprocating this sentiment by intense cultivation of the present French leadership, which de Gaulle shares with Gen. Henri Giraud.

Vital Questions

France's position in post-war Europe and her alliances naturally are questions of the utmost concern to all members of the Big Three. It mustn't be overlooked that while France is down now, she was and will be again one of the paramount powers of Europe. Her affiliations and the complexion of her government looms large.

However, other delicate questions will come before the conference, and the Communist party organ Pravda of Moscow calls attention to one of the warmest by what appears to be another oblique reference to the lack of the "second front" which the Russians have been urging. Pravda says early crushing of the Germans is an actual possibility and should be carried out in short order. The article gave indications of impatience over the extent of the Western allies' war effort.

Secondary Parley. N

The political-military commission set up to deal with war-born problems in the Mediterranean area may be the forerunner of a whole series of Allied commissions assigned to different world regions and tasks.

That was the belief expressed in some quarters to-day as United States State Department officials displayed confidence that a broad, basic pattern for other regional groups may be worked out at the forthcoming Moscow conference.

Deer Hunters Warned Sections Closed

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (CP) — Fire hazard in various sections of Northern Ontario remains high with a total of 66 forest fires burning, the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests reported today. In the Port Arthur district 32 fires were burning, 11 started yesterday, and four settlers have been burned out.

In Scobie and Blake townships, Port Arthur district, four large fires are burning out of control, covering an area of about 4,000 acres each and are continuing to spread. The 11 fires starting yesterday are in partially settled areas in the south part of the district. Conditions are reported acute in this district.

In other areas of Fort Francis, Sault St. Marie and Parry Sound, fires are also reported. At the Soo, eight fires are burning, one covering 500 acres and spreading out of control. Others are held or under control but the hazard is reported high.

Indications for scattered showers are reported in Northern Ontario but no rain has fallen and hot dry weather is expected for the next few days, continuing the hazards.

The high hazard has necessitated closing the Mississaugi areas and the Spanish river country to travel. Hunters planning to go north are warned these areas are closed until the weather changes.

GERMAN BATTLESHIP GETS TWO TORPEDOES BELOW WATERLINE

Midget Subs Cripple Huge Tirpitz

British Craft Stage Daring Sortie

LONDON, Oct. 12 — (CP). — Midget submarines—a new British secret weapon — have penetrated the German fleet anchorage in Northern Norway and crippled the powerful battleship Tirpitz, leaving her apparently immobilized, the Admiralty announced yesterday.

The daring action, from which three of the little craft are missing, occurred on September 22. A group of the submersibles, 1,000 miles from the nearest British base, braved minefields and other defences to work their way some 50 miles into the Alten Fjord and attack the Tirpitz beneath her waterline.

The Admiralty said reconnaissance photographs, taken some three weeks later, showed the 35,000-ton Tirpitz had not moved from her anchorage, oil had spread for two miles, and the big battleship was surrounded by auxiliary craft, either repair ships or feeders of light and power.

In its communique the Admiralty departed from its usual conservative language to describe the operation. It used such terms as "hazards of the first order," "magnitude of the difficulties" and "highest qualities of courage, enterprise and skill."

No details on the size of the midget submarines were issued.

Towers Warns Money Needed

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12—(CP)—Canada's Fifth Victory Loan gives Canadians "an opportunity to show that they can speed the victory as well as they backed the attack," Graham Ford Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada and chairman of the National War Finance Committee, told an audience here today.

He said the victory is "not yet won, not even around the corner but on the way."

"I think myself that the tests we face now are, in their way, infinitely more difficult than any we have faced and overcome in the past."

Mr. Towers spoke in the interests of the $1,200,000,000 Fifth Victory Loan, for which a three-week campaign opens Oct. 18, before a noon meeting of the Canadian Club and Winnipeg Board of Trade.

Nazi Factions Show Enmity

BERNE, Oct. 12—(AP)—Antagonism between two Nazi groups, one headed by Interior Minister Heinrich Himmler and Propaganda Minister Goebbels and the other by Reichsmarshal Goering, marked the Oct. 6 gathering of party leaders in Berlin, a Budapest dispatch to La Suisie said yesterday.

The first faction was said to favor a finish fight with Russia, while at the same time striving for a comprimise with Britain and the United States. The Goering group, backed by the army, was said to desire an accord with Moscow which would assure the preservation of German military power.

The dispatch said Hitler told the party leaders that before deciding on any political action they must be certain that German military power remained intact which "is the principal reason for the German withdrawal on the eastern front."

Agreements reached at the meeting of British, American and Russian forces ministers will be forwarded to the Mediterranean Commission — British-American-Russian-French—at Algiers.

Following up objectives thus outlined at Moscow, the Commission will investigate problems in the Mediterranean, particularly the administration of Italy, and make recommendations to the four governments concerned.

3 Main Points.

Diplomatic sources disclosed that the American attitude on Italy to be presented by Edwin C. Wilson, the American representative on the Commission, advocates:

1. Including in the Badgolio government as many Italian political groups as possible.

2. Encouraging the Italian government to take over local administration and relieve occupation troops for combat duty.

3. Reorganizing Italian armed forces to serve behind the lines and release Allied soldiers for the front.

Any plan must be agreed to by the four governments before it is carried out, the diplomatic emphasized.

This pattern of organization may be followed in similar commissions to deal with Germany, the Balkans, and economic problems generally.

Canadian Troops Take Hill In Heavy Raid

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Oct. 10 (Delayed) (CP Cable). — The Canadian regiment that staged one of the most difficult treks of the Italian advance drew many of its men from Eastern Canada.

The regiment started out over the hills of the wild Italian countryside for some high ground east of a valley after taking a town when the Canadian forces swept into the Abruzze Mountains.

(In a dispatch yesterday, dated October 11, Stewart reported that French- Canadian troops, flanked by a regiment from Eastern Canada, were driving through the Abruzze Mountains, apparently referring to the mountains of Abruzze Emolisse, a group of provinces in Eastern Italy containing some of the wildest and the loftiest parts of the Apennines.)

They formed up for this attack east of a ridge that rises from the valley and set out for that preliminary objective under a heavy artillery barrage laid down by 25-pounders and medium guns. On the right was a company commanded by Major A. S. S. Galloway of Aylmer, Ont., and on the left was a company commanded by Captain R. A. Couche of Toronto.

Heavy fire drove the Germans into the ground, but as the Canadians set out for the ridge machine guns opened up on them.

The ground was wet from the rain and mud clung to the men's boots, impeding their advance. In some places the slopes were so steep they practically had to crawl.

(In the October 11 dispatch, written a day after this one, Stewart said the rain, which had plagued the Canadians during their entire advance up the Italian peninsula, had stopped and the mud was drying up, allowing for freer movement of troops.)

Galloway's men were well forward, and supporting them with steady fire from Bren guns were companies commanded by Couche and Maj. H. E. C. Price of Quebec and Capt. R. M. Dillon of London, Ont.

This advance continued at a slow pace until dark when the troops dug in for the main part, with only scattered patrols creeping out on reconnaissance through the blackness. A fresh artillery barrage crashed down on the enemy, and when the patrols returned they reported no trace of the Germans.

Then, at the first light, the Canadians swept up and occupied the ridge, while Price's company penetrated further and entered the town commanding it.

Runaway Team Kills I. Gardner

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 12 —(ENS)— Ira L. Gardner, died in Nicholls Hospital from a fractured skull, internal injuries and shock early Monday morning following an accident Saturday afternoon when the team of horses he was using to rake up hay, ran away, threw him under the rake and trailed him 125 yards before breaking clear.

Roy Slater, a neighbor working in a nearby field and Mrs. Gardner from the house, saw the horses running and went to investigate, finding Mr. Gardner seriously injured in the field. This was at 3.10 Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Slater went to the village and brought out Dr. Alex Fraser who rushed Mr. Gardner by ambulance to Nicholls Hospital where he died Monday morning without regaining consciousness.

Only son of Mrs. Margaret Jackson Garner and the late Joseph Gardner, he was born in Mount Pleasant 58 years ago. He farmed in Omemee for a number of years and moved to the farm on the Lakefield highway about 20 years ago.

He is survived by his wife Hannah O'Brien and his mother, Mrs. Margaret Gardner. Of sterling character and a good neighbour he was highly respected. The funeral will be conducted by the Rev. George Kelly from the residence on Wednesday afternoon. Interment will take place at Emily Cemetery.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE, TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY
If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.
For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.
If you try Hem-roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

French Sabotage Annoys Nazis

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Oct. 12 — (AP). — The rising tide of sabotage in France has driven the Germans and their Vichy colaborators to the sternest repressive measures, including new attacks on Jews and a decree giving mobile guards permission to shoot on sight.

The situation the Vichy Government is struggling to control was bluntly described by Jacques Barteaud over the Paris radio and recorded in London by Reuters News Agency. Barteaud said the "harvests are burning, railway lines are being blown sky-high, and trains are derailed."

"Everywhere French National Socialists are falling under tommy-gun bullets while the army of terrorists is moving about freely almost under the protection of the robes of judges who are only too ready to acquit criminals," he added.

Pierre Laval, Chief of Government, the Vichy radio disclosed, is attempting to discourage the patriots by giving the mobile guards permission to use their arms whenever they considered it necessary—authority already vested in the gendarmerie. Radio France in Algiers, in a broadcast heard by the Associated Press, said that persons reported assisting Allied airmen shot down in France now risk the death penalty.

eral attempts to penetrate our fighter screen, but not one Japanese plane squeezed through.

At Wake approximately 830 bombloads were rained on the enemy.

Cruisers accompanied by destroyers steamed within binocular sight of Wake the first afternoon and for two hours pumped 454 tons of high explosives into the quaking atoll.

Oil stores were set afire. Sections of warehouse districts were destroyed. A large barracks or administration building burned to the ground. Three power plants and two water distillation plants were damaged. And the Japanese radio at Wake went off the air.

Typical of the destruction is this: In one area containing six warehouses, only two were left standing; of several coastal batteries, only one attempted to fire at the cruisers and it was silenced in short order.

The flotilla consisted of several hundred thousand tons of ships.

After the surface ships completed their bombardment, land-based navy four-engined bombers came over and dropped their destructive loads on an already bleeding, burning and shell-shocked Wake. Although combat losses among all American forces involved were 13 planes, seven of their crew members were rescued.

Farmers Fight Bush Fires For Three Days

HAVELOCK, Oct. 12.—(ENS). — Bush fires which spread over nine acres on the farm property of George McGowan, five miles east of here, were finally extinguished Monday afternoon after burning for more than three days.

The fires started Friday morning, and though the exact cause was not ascertained, it was considered likely that burning matches or cigarettes gave rise to the blaze, as a number of men were in the area at the time cutting fuel wood. Fanned by a strong east wind, the fire grew in intensity Saturday, and nearly 150 farmers of the district and other volunteers from nearly towns helped to suppress the blaze, throwing dirt on the flames and stamping them out with evergreen boughs.

A call was sent in to the Peterborough fire department Saturday afternoon by the Havelock operator when it appeared that the spreading fires might get out of control. With no water within a mile of the scene, it was useless for the department to turn out and send assistance to the volunteer fire-fighters.

Late Saturday the spreading fire drew near the C.P.R. right-of-way, and railroad sectionmen joined in fighting the flames throughout Saturday night and all of Sunday.

For a time on Sunday an airplane hovered over the scene, and it was believed to have been dispatched in order to report the spread of the fires and to observe if they had gotten out of control.

Some fuel wood which had been cut in the area covered by the fire was lost as a result of the bush fires, t many cutters succeeded in removing wood they had cut when the outbreak was first discovered.

A fire has also been raging near Marmora since Friday noon, close to Crowe Lake, about two miles west of the village. No timber has been affected thus far, though grass undergrowth and fallen limbs of trees have been burnt over a fair sized area.

Fire-fighters, assisted by Constable W. D. Lavender, have been fighting it with the slim resources available and a back-fire policy carried out has checked its spread.

Swift Conquest In Solomons Bewilders Japs

By BOB EUNSON
Associated Press War Correspondent

With Australians in the Ramu Valley, New Guinea, Oct. 10—(delayed)—(AP) — The Australian 7th Division has thrown the calendar away and is far ahead of schedule as it moves up the Ramu Valley within 45 miles of the Japanese base at Madang.

This shrinkage of the enemy's New Guinea holdings since the fall of Salamaua Sept. 12 has occurred so rapidly—Lae was captured Sept. 16, Finschafen Oct. 2 — that no one knew from day to day where the Australians would strike next.

The swift conquest of the Markham Valley, leading northwest from Lae, out of which the Aussies drove into the Ramu, was an example of co-ordination of Australian infantry, American troop carrier planes and American airborne engineers.

Rare Antiques On Display At Haas Home

COBOURG, Oct. 12 — (ENS) — Hundreds of visitors from Cobourg and out-of-town visited the Stephen Haas residence Monday to view the fine collectors' items and rare antiques which will go on sale later in the week. The house was thrown open to the public for a preview of the contents. Some of the items will be taken to Toronto and sold, while others will be sold at public auction.

Built by the late Charles Donnelly of Pittsburgh, Pa., it is a 27-room colonial-style house and matches in splendor the luxurious homes built by American summer visitors to Cobourg in the east end. The palatial home was later purchased from Charles Donnelly by Mr. Stephen Haas.

One of the outstanding suites in the house is a room which is completely done in drawing room furniture of Louis Sixteenth period. Beautiful Persian rugs, Oriental teakwood, silk hangings and tapestries were on view, including a rug 18 x 24 feet which is believed to have cost $8,000 when new.

One bedroom suite is a four-piece white painted group with gold leaf decorations in American Empire period, such as used by the wealthy classes of the middle nineteenth century.

There was also displayed a large collection of fine steel engravings, including pictures of George Washington, Theodore Roosevelt, General Grant and other notables, bearing their signatures.

"We should not forget the greatness of our heritage or its cost, the padre said. The physical heritage of forest, mine and field is great but greater still is the moral and the spiritual heritage. We should not only accept our heritage but assume the responsibilities which it entails. He asserted that Thanksgiving could only have value and joy or happiness in so far as the recipient accepted the little gifts with complete thankfulness. Then he is in position to enjoy the great gifts which God in His mercy has provided.

"Thanksgiving is not something you can produce at will. We are selfish enough to be elated with the fact that we have so much thus impeding the spirit of thankfulness which ought to be prevalent in our midst. We take too much for granted neglecting the consecration of our gifts. God is the great word for this generation. Just as long as civilization leans on God will we hold to the notion of sacrifice. We must bring God down from heaven and associate Him with the common experiences of every day living. The only practical way to show gratitude is by "thanks living," that is deeds of sacricial love," Capt. Profitt declared.

COBOURG

Chief D. Turpin Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

COBOURG, Oct. 12 (ENS)—Fire Chief "Dick" Turpin died suddenly on Sunday morning after a heart attack. Highly regarded by the citizens of the town he was well known, having lived here all his life. For some time past he had not been in good health and more recently he became worse. He will be buried tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. in Cobourg Union cemetery. Rev. E. McKay of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Cobourg, will conduct the funeral service.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Turpin, he was a life-long resident of the town. He was caretaker of the Armouries before the Great War and after enlistng rose to the rank of Captain and was a member of Sir Sam Hughes staff.

Prior to the Great War he served in the Boer War.

Dick was an outstanding baseball player and older ball fans who recall readily the days of the old Central Ontario League, will remember Dick and his home runs. When the games were played in Victoria Park, where the lake is more adjacent than Horse Show Park, Dick was wont to hoist the ball along the left field line into the lake. Every time Dick came to bat, some fan would shout "hit 'er in the lake Dick"; and Dick very frequently did. He was a very heavy man in those days, even as he was in later years, and it was a characteristic picture to see Dick ambling happily along the bases, knowing that the ball was in the lake and he could take his time. He was also a stellar performer in hockey.

Made Fire Chief

Dick Turpin was a member of the fire department before war broke out in 1914 and some time after the close of the war, to took over the duties of fire chief and has been chief since that date. He took a keen interest in keeping the equipment up to date and was also active on committee work at the various fire chief conventions.

He is survived by his widow, who was Ethel Forbes, and by three sons, James and Jack, overseas, and Gerald at home. He is also survived by three brothers, Charles of Cobourg, William and Fred of Toronto, and two sisters, Mrs. Wilfred Plunket and Mrs. H. Hawkey, both of Toronto.

BETHANY

Minister Outlines Thanksgiving Topic

BETHANY, Oct. 12—(ENS)—The monthly meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church was held with Mrs. H. Ryley and Mrs. A. B. Ryley as joint hostesses. There were twenty members attended.

Mrs. Driver read the scripture lesson from 111th Psalm and thoughts for the lesson were taken by Mrs. Monk, the president, leading in prayer. The president explained that the fee of membership to the district convention had been raised from 25 cents to $1.25 a year and this was paid out of the October collection.

A motion was passed that cards be secured from Mrs. Porteous to send to the sick and to send flowers in case of bereavement only. Two letters were read of appreciation for gifts sent during illness from Mrs. Weatherilt and Miss Ella Jackson.

The program was taken by Mrs. Waddell, convener of Group 3. Mrs. Waddell gave a fine reading on Thanksgiving. Mrs. Harding reported on the district convention. Mrs. Thorndyke gave a reading entitled "No Weed of Creeds.."

Rev. Mr. Harding gave an address on the history of Thanksgiving, tracing the public thanksgiving as far back as the Pilgrim Fathers. He said a public thanksgiving was proclaimed in America by William Bradford, one year after the arrival of the Pilgrim Fathers.

The collection was $4 and Mrs. J. McKinnon invited the Society to meet at her home for the November meeting.

A Revised Labour Code

An announcement has been made in Ottawa that a new labour code upon which the Cabinet has been working is now in its final draft stage and may soon be completed. This is good news. Canada needs the revised code badly and the quicker we can get it, the better.

It would be wise, however, not to expect wonders from the new code, for it is being framed under difficult conditions. The essential thing in framing the code is that it must not violate the present system of price controls in any way which will upset our carefully balanced economy. We are not convinced that the majority of Canadians know how essential the price control system is to our well-being, and how advantageous it has been to us in the past. In many quarters there is impatience with the system and an inability to see its real value; but the fact remains that the system — irksome as it is — is the one thing which can keep us from inflation and all the disaster and confusion that inflation means.

The code will be some sort of compromise, based on the McTague report, considered with the minority report of Mr. Cohen, who has now left the Labour Board. The code will attempt to show some way of giving a better deal to the low-wage worker without injuring the price-ceiling irreparably. We should realize now that the new code is not going to be a treat for anybody, but that it will be an honest effort to adjust some of the existing inequities.

But we may entertain modest hopes about the effectiveness of the new code. It may have something important to say about the cost-of-living bonus, which has proved to be a bone of contention ever since it was put into effect. It has not been satisfactory to labour, and as a means of helping management to work under the price levels it has not worked well either. It has been one of those devices which seem possible in theory but which do not work in fact. Precisely what can be done to adjust the situation we do not know, but we have hopes that the new code will give at least a partial solution.

The Lesson Of Corsica

In the excitement of larger events we have overlooked the advantage which the fall of Corsica and Sardinia gives to our forces in the Mediterranean. Those important islands are now ours, and we gained them with very little effort; when our armies invaded Italy the islands fell into our laps. The rising of the inhabitants was so quick and so ferocious that the Germans decided to get out at once. Their flight from Sardinia was comparatively successful, but the fight on Corsica was a bloody business. German propaganda has called the evacuation of Corsica "an operative masterpiece" but we know better; the French troops came from their hiding-places in the mountains, and the Allied planes soared overhead, and the Germans withdrew after heavy losses.

Nor were those losses attributable in the main to conventional military action. The Germans found themselves in a land where every inhabitant had mysteriously possessed himself of a weapon; ambushes were frequent and deadly. French forces from Africa and Allied planes did much to drive the Germans from Corsica, but the element in the fight which turned the evacuation into a rout was the ferocity of the civilian population.

If the Germans are as intelligent as we think they are they will see the future course of the war in miniature in the Corsican campaign—if it can be called a campaign. Allied military might will dislodge them in the occupied countries, and they will fight with all their force and skill; they are good soldiers, and know how to defend themselves. But the fury of the civil populations whom they have bulldozed, despoiled and hoodwinked will be the factor which will assure their downfall. Is there a man or a woman in all Occupied Europe who has not some score to settle with the Germans? Will they not seize the first chance to revenge themselves on the oppressors? The blood which marked their retreat from Corsica will swell to a flood when they begin to withdraw from the lands in which they have domineered for the past three years.

Hitler's Concern For The Pope

Hitler has expressed his concern for the safety of the Pope, and has offered to remove the Pontiff from Rome to a safe place in Northern Italy, according to news from Switzerland, the Pontiff is not interested in this proposal.

The position of the Pope at present is unenviable, to say the least, but it is far better than it would be if he were to accept any offer of assistance from Hitler. The Pope, in addition to his office as Supreme Pontiff of the Catholic Church, is also a temporal ruler, and if he accepted the protection of the Nazis his position would be ambiguous, to say the least. And, as the head of a great part of the Christian Church, he could not put himself in the hands of a power which is clearly opposed to everything which he symbolizes.

Modern history contains examples of Popes who have allowed themselves to be "protected" by tyrants, and who have suffered bitterly in consequence. The only safe policy for a Pope is one of the strictest independence. The influence wielded by that one man is so great that neither the Allies nor the Axis dare place him in any real danger, and if he remains in Rome he has done much to guarantee the safety of a part of Rome, at least. And there is always the danger that the Nazis might attempt to gain quarter by holding the Pope as a hostage, if once he placed himself in their power.

If the Pope were to leave Rome the Germans would feel quite at ease about defending that city—as they defended Naples. That is to say, they would loot it thoroughly, blow up anything which might be useful to the invaders and such monuments of art and antiquity as their spite dictated, and would then withdraw, satisfied that they had avenged themselves on their defaulting Italian ally. The Pope shows the greatest wisdom in rejecting their specious offers of assistance.

Ocean Voyage Or Ocean Flight

The president of the United Air Lines, Mr. W. A. Patterson, says that the money which is spent in building a single ocean liner of the type of the Queen Elizabeth would be sufficient to pay for the building of enough airplanes to fly the Atlantic—both ways—on an hourly schedule from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day; and the seaplanes would carry two-thirds of all the mail and passenger traffic plying the Atlantic before the war.

Doubtless this is so, and doubtless we shall see it come to pass. There would be enormous advantage for business in being able to fly to Europe in a few hours, and the advantages which are popularly supposed to come from travel in foreign lands would be even more accessible than they were before this war. The tourist traffic to Europe each year would be beyond the wildest dreams of the pre-war hotel-keeper. In short, people would be able to go everywhere much faster, see things in less time, and hurry home without a pause.

Perhaps that is progress. Certainly it will be welcomed by a great many people who have no real need to hurry but who like to travel as fast as they can, on principle. The more rapidly they move, the less time they have to think, and freedom from the fatigue of thought is a condition of their happiness. They will be able to whiz about the globe like may-flies, darting hither and thither in the attempt to escape the boredom of their own society.

But a sea-voyage will always have its charms. In pre-war days one of the best parts of a trip to Europe was the week of quiet rest which intervened between embarking at Montreal and debarking at Liverpool or Cherbourg. Freedom from care, a bracing and clean atmosphere, excellent food and plenty of sleep made those voyages extremely attractive. It was possible to be busy on a boat, but it was also possible to be completely idle. The attraction of the sea-voyage as a recuperative jaunt will not, we feel, be eclipsed entirely by the new air travel.

Farming News and Views

By HON DUNCAN MARSHALL

THE problem of hog production in Ontario during the next twelve months is one of great importance and is due for a good deal of discussion. The newly appointed Agricultural Committee, set up for the purpose of advising the Provincial Department of Agriculture begins by offering its advice to Ottawa and asks for a price of $20 per cwt. on dressed hogs. We have in Canada a Bacon Board which makes its bargain each year, in October, to sell certain quantities of bacon to the British Ministry of Food. We also have a Wartime Prices and Trade Board which fixes prices at which different foods may be sold. It is all very well to suggest a price for hogs but the Price Board will have something to say about that.

At that present time the price for dressed hogs runs about $16.75 per cwt. and to this can be added $1 per hog for selects, while the Ontario Government gives an added $1 per hog for selects and 50c per hog for grade B1. This will bring the price up to about $17.50 per cwt. in Ontario, depending upon quality.

In the Province of Alberta the top price in Edmonton is $15.90 and in Calgary $15.40 with the packers $1 per hog for selects but no provincial bonus. Ontario has thus some advantage in price over the Prairie Provinces though the production of hogs on the Prairies is going up while it is not making the same advance in this province.

This has been a very bad crop year in Ontario and many farmers have had a complete failure. The Federal Government has done a good deal to help out this situation. Freight is being paid on feed grain from the West also elevator storage unloading and loading-out of terminal elevators have been paid on feed grain brought east for storage to be fed later on. Added to this has been a bonus of 3c per bushel paid by the Federal Government for feed grain bought in July, 2½ if bought in August, 2c in September, 1½ in October, 1c in November and ½c in December. The grading down of this bonus was to encourage early purchases. The Ontario Government added the same amount to these figures thus doubling these bonuses.

THIS was all to the good, but in an emergency such as this it was decisive action that was needed and as farmers were busy in the summer the Ontario Department of Agriculture should have moved at once. This was an Ontario problem and feed grain should have been bought at once and shipments made east immediately. We all know how busy the railways were and still are. The lakes freeze up making a lake and rail shipment impossible, but nothing was done. This could have been made a war effort worth while. A new government came in about the middle of August, two months ago, and have done nothing but ask for advice. If the Department of Agriculture had been on the job, in either case before or after the change in Government, there would have been feed grain enough to supply Ontario in sight now. In many cases the farmers made purchases themselves and so are guarded against lack of feed, but on the other hand we are told many farmers have been marketing their breeding stock, and the Ontario Government with an announced surplus running into very substantial millions stands by and waits. This is something which could have been done without any loss, and only small expense, having already an organization in the Department of Agriculture to handle it. The prices for feed in Ontario are approximately about 55 or 56c per bushel for oats and 75 or 76c per bushel for barley. These prices could have been substantially reduced by 5 or 6c through early purchasing.

Each year since I began writing these notes I have urged farmers to lay up a supply of sods for their pigs during winter. There does not seem to be any satisfactory substitute for grass and grass roots as found in sods. These sods will be eagerly devoured by pigs whenever offered to them and the earth they get with the roots seems to satisfy a craving that pigs have in winter, but can satisfy in summer on pasture. In this connection I always remember the late James Gardhouse, great grandfather of the Gardhouse young men now handling Shorthorns. He always laid up a supply of sods for his Shire stallions and fed them during winter. A sod a foot square would be torn up and devoured by a big Shire in short order. Mr. Gardhouse had great faith in sods as a conditioner for good health in horses, and he proved it abundantly.

PLANS have been made for the transfer of large numbers of breeding cattle from Eastern Russia to restock the devastated area, during the month of September. No time is being lost in Russia in the rehabilitation of agriculture as the Germans are driven out. Russia astonished the world with her farming accomplishments after the 1914-18 war, and they now have the experience and organization to do a remarkable work in the production of food equal, in its way, to the defeating of the invading German army.

Three Blackfaced shearling rams were sold for $300 each at the Lanark ram sale in Scotland. One breeder offered 10 rams in the auction and they averaged £80. These look like useful prices, but top rams always sell in these Scottish sales. Sheep breeders there know the value of good blood. A Cheviot ram at Lockerbie sold for £400.

WE are informed that the Argentine Republic has authorized the burning of 73,000,000 bushels of wheat for fuel. This is not because of a surplus but because there is such a shortage of shipping as to make it impossible to ship fuel into a coal-less country. The people must not be allowed to suffer from the lack of heat for warmth and cooking.

It is interesting to note that wheat on the Prairies only provides 30 per cent of the cash farm income now, while in 1926 it provided 72 per cent. In hogs and dairy products the west has forged ahead greatly in the last half dozen years.

FALL wheat in many parts of Ontario falls far short of having top enough. Dry weather has prevented growth and a good deal of the wheat will go into the winter with very little protection.

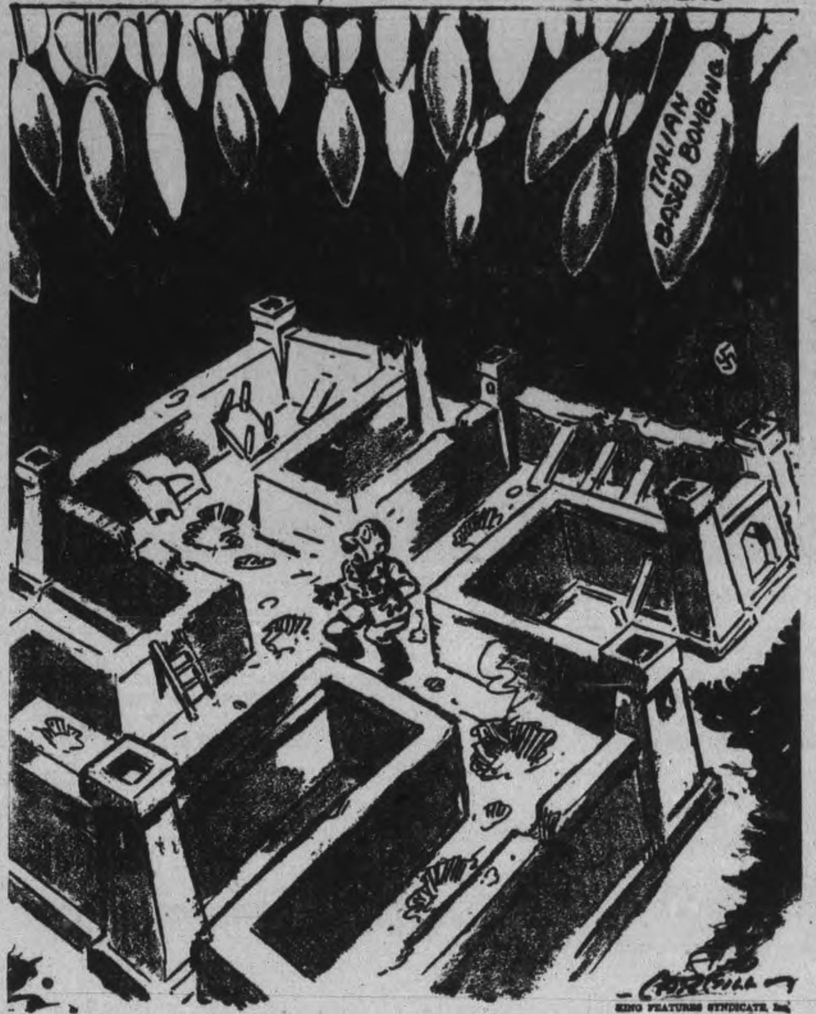
The Shorthorn sale of W. J. Russell, Jas. Douglas and Sons and K. C. Gray brought good prices. Two bulls and one heifer sold for $2,500 each, and all were bought by Ontario buyers. Forty-seven head of cattle made an average of $840, which will give good returns to the breeders and they should give satisfaction to the purchasers.

Mr. Gray, who is a new breeders, made the record average on heifers of $1,525 on six head, selling the top one at $2,500. W. J. Russell sold 8 bulls at an average of $1,113, and 13 heifers at an average of $996. Two of his bulls brought $2,500 each, and his top heifer $1,600.

WEATHER: FOGGIA, WITH HEAVY SHOWERS



How Not To Give Opera

IT was during my second year in London that one day I heard of a new opera company that was about to go on tour in the suburbs, with a cast of artists nearly all well known to me. I had resolved to try my luck with the management, and with a full score under my arm marched down to its offices, where I found a score of other persons in waiting. Hours went by and I was beginning to think I should never obtain even a glimpse of the great man, when suddenly the attention of us all was drawn to signs of what was unmistakably some sort of a scene going on in the inner room, accompanied by a very ineffective improvisation on a piano, conspicuously out of tune. Presently the door was flung open and a portly . . . individual appeared and called out, "Is there any one here who can play the piano?" Several of those present at once answered in the affirmative. 'But do any of you know Faust without the music?" continued the apparition and to this there was no reply. It dawned upon me that here might be an opportunity of penetrating the stronghold; so I meekly raised my voice and said, "I think I know the opera."

"What part of it?" sternly demanded my questioner.

"Any part of it." He gazed at me incredulously and then said, "Come in," and in I went.

It appeared that a singer who had been sent there with a recommendation for the part of Marguerite had neglected to bring a copy of the piece with her, and this oversight had kindled the official wrath. I played through those portions which were required for the trial and was about to take my leave when the now partly pacified impressario said: "Wait a bit. I want a word with you, besides there may be others out there who have forgotten their music"; and so it proved to be. After the singers had left he turned to me and said, "Why did you come here?"

"I have an opera with me which I hoped you might hear with a view to performance," said I. . . .

His astonishment seemed so profound that I hardly knew how to continue the conversation and was thinking of a fresh opening when he went on. "How many of the pieces I am giving do you know?" handing me at the same time a prospectus of his season. I looked at it, informed him that I was familiar with all of them, and he asked me if I had ever conducted. I told him exactly what I had done, and he asked me whether I would like to try my hand at opera. Naturally I jumped at the idea, still nourishing the hope that it might lead to the production of one of my works. As it was now about lunch time, he invited me to come back in the afternoon and talk it over with him, and when I returned I found him quite alone. He explained that he had given orders that no one should be admitted as he wanted to have a little private singing, declaring himself to be the possessor of the finest tenor voice in England. I was made to sit at the piano and accompany him for the rest of the day in long extracts from operas that contained his favorite roles, and every time there was a brief pause, he asked for my opinion as to his performance. Naturally I allowed my enthusiasm to grow with each effort, and the result was that before I left I had been offered and had accepted the post of one of the two conductors of the new company, with instructions to start at once on the rehearsals which were taking place at the "Old Vic," and about two weeks later the company started on its tour.

It lasted about two months, visiting such outlying places as Clapham, Brixton, and Stratford, and I enjoyed myself hugely, conducting in addition to Carmen and Pagliacci that trilogy of popular Saturday-nighters dubbed facetiously "The English Ring"—The Bohemian Girl, Maritana, and The Lily of Killarney But all the fun and excitement I extracted from the experience (that inveterate old joker, G. H. Snazelle, who was playing Devilshoof, succeeded in setting fire to the stage as a farewell gesture on the last night) could not blind my soberer perception to the truth that if there was one especial way in which opera should not be given, then here it was in all its rounded perfection. — From "A Mingled Chime," by Sir Thomas Beecham. (New York: Putnam.)

The Sweet Smell Of The Land

EVEN this little trip of ninety hours, though, had grown long, and we were glad to be getting to the end of it. The dry hills were red gold that afternoon and in the night no one left the top of the deckhouse. The Southern Cross was well above the horizon, and the air was warm and pleasant. Tony spent a long time in the galley going over the charts. He had been to Cape San Lucas once before. Around ten o'clock we saw the lighthouse on the false cape. The night was extremely dark when we rounded the end; the great tall rocks called 'The Friars' were blackly visible. The Coast Pilot spoke of a light on the end of San Lucas pier, but we could see no light. Tony edged the boat slowly into the dark harbor. Once a flashlight showed for a moment on the shore and then went out. It was after midnight, and of course there would be no light in a Mexican town at such a time. The searchlight on our deckhouse seemed to be sucked up by the darkness. Sparky on the bow with the leadline found deep water, and we moved slowly in, stepping and drifting and sounding. And then suddenly there was the beach, thirty feet away, with little waves breaking on it, and still we had eight fathoms on the lead. We backed away a little and dropped the anchor and waited until it took a firm grip. Then the engine stopped, and we sat for a long time on the deckhouse. The sweet smell of the land blew out to us on a warm wind, a smell of sand verbena and grass and mangrove. It is so quickly forgotten, this land smell. We know it so well on shore that the nose forgets it, but after a few days at sea the odor memory pattern is lost so that the first land smell strikes a powerful emotional nostalgia, very sharp and strangely dear.—From "Sea of Cortez," by John Steinbeck and Edward F. Ricketts. (New York: The Viking Press.)

That Humble Topic, The Weather

I must write no more of the weather, for it is everywhere considered the dullest of topics, and is of little interest to people who live in towns, which is, after all, where most men live. And yet in the open country the weather is a beautiful thing, and is constantly changing and is of the greatest importance to all whose living is made in the fields. . . And there it is in sky, to be seen by everybody, like a series of vast pictures, replaced every few minutes; and beyond this visible scene are the omens and portents, foretelling storms or sunshine or snow.

By the brightness of the sword of Orion, by the flight of a flock of geese, or by the reddening of the berries, these things may be reckoned, so that one concerned with that humble topic, the weather, has interests neither narrow nor far aloof from our lot; they embrace fields and hedge-rows, and one of their boundaries is the Milky-Way. . . .

Did I say I would write no more of the weather? I am not sure that it is possible to write of Ireland and to fulfil this promise: all countries and all peoples are made what they are by the weather, but in Ireland you almost see these things in the making, so strong is the southwest wind, so full of damp, so indolent its mood, and so much its strength seems to be used to impose its moods upon earth and buildings and men.

Thousands of suns have shone upon millions of buds of heather, thousands of winds have beaten the blossoms down, and long grey rains have patted them into place: and so were made the Irish bogs, and the peat that we called turf. And I sit now by a fire of the turf that was made by the ages of weather, and care no more for any weather outside.—Lord Dunsany, in "My Ireland." (New York: Funk and Wagnalls.)

A Bible Message

Awake, awake; put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city: for henceforth there shall no more come into thee the uncircumcised and the unclean. Shake thyself from the dust; arise, and sit down, O Jerusalem: loose thyself from the bands of thy neck, O captive daughter of Zion. For thus saith the Lord, Ye have sold yourselves for nought; and ye shall be redeemed without money. . . .

How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth! Thy watchmen shall lift up the voice; with the voice together shall they sing: for they shall see eye to eye, when the Lord shall bring again Zion.

Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem: for the Lord hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem. The Lord hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God. (Isa. 52: 1-3, 7-10.)

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world might through him might be saved. (John 3: 16, 17.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The Houston (Texas) Press style-book admonishes reporters against the uses of cliches and bromides. Among the examples is the word "bailiff."

"Don't write 'bailiff of the court.' What else can there be a bailiff of?"

"Hay," an office wag scrawled in with pencil.

The class of would-be army officers were going through a general knowledge test.

"Now," said the instructor, "imagine you have a sergeant and 14 men on the R.E. How would you set about re-erecting a 60-foot pole blown down in a gale?"

The cadets got busy, drawing diagrams and making calculations, with one exception. He wrote a few words only and then sat back. Interested to see what he had written, the instructor picked up the sheet of paper. On it was the brief comment:

"Tell the sergeant to carry on."

Yipee! Soldiers always yell when closing in for hand-to-hand combat. And make no mistake about it, it relieves tension. We asked a Marine lieutenant, who was in several Pacific engagements, what the men usually yell. Here's what he told us:

"A lot of the men just shout simple things like 'Let's get them, boys,' or 'Here we come,' or 'One side, Tojo.'

"One ex-college professor always yelled, 'I shall now dissect you, species Tokyo.' A former detective story writer shouted, 'Prepare to become a cadaver.' An ex-dentist cried, 'I shall open you wider, please.' And a former actor yelled, 'Here comes the curtain, Jap.'"

The Congressman John K. Henrick, of Kentucky, possessed an accommodating nature. He was sitting in a courtroom one day, when a not overbright young attorney undertook to read a petition in a divorce suit, but soon got himself badly tangled up in a maze of legal phrases. The judge sought to straighten him out, but he was soon more deeply ensnared than ever. Again the judge interposed, and again the young lawyer fell into confusion.

Observing that the judge was about to boil over with rage, Henrick arose and said, "I hope your Honor, that you will hear patiently with our young friend here. He's doing his best."

"I know that," replied the judge rather testily, "and I intend to bear with him patiently. I am merely trying to give him an idea."

"Don't do it," hastily interposed the Colonel. "He's got no place to put it."

"I want him home"

"WHEN I read the war news my heart keeps saying: 'Hurry! Hurry!' They can't finish it up fast enough for me.

"Some of our boys have been over there nearly four years, I know, and Jim has been gone only eighteen months. But I want him home—soon, soon!

"I just can't sit still and wait. So I've got myself a war job. And when I'm not working, I'm planning, and that keeps my mind busy all the time.

"When the war loans come along I buy all I can, and every month I figure out how much we have cashed away between us, and I write to Jim and tell him how much it is, and how we'll start out all over again after the war.

"I tell him about the little house we'll have—the shiny kitchen—the living room with a great big cosy chair—and the garden—I want hollyhocks all along the back fence—oh, I dream up the whole thing—

"I live on as little as I can, now, to help hurry things up, and so we'll have more money than we ever thought of having when he comes home. The way I feel these days I believe I could sell a lot of Victory Bonds. All I would say would be, 'I've got a husband overseas, and I want him home . . . soon.' Surely people would understand that."

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP). — One hard-to-understand point about the world series is why there isn't more showmanship in the world's greatest sports show....Not more than half the spectators, especially in New York, are real baseball fans....Yet little effort is made to tell the customers about the players other than giving their names over the P.A. system when they come to bat....Why not give them individual introductions and have each one take a bow when the line-ups are being read off?"

Yankee Pitcher Marius Russo, who startled St. Louis fans with his two hits Sunday, started out as a first baseman and a pretty fair hitter but was converted into a flinger when Brooklyn College was suffering from a manpower shortage in that department.

Second Thoughts.

Lt.-Cmdr. Mal Stevens, former Yale and New York University coach, remarked: "I think coaches are vastly overrated" in explaining that he set up the wrong defence for his Sampson naval training station team to use against Villanova but it worked anyway....And Colgate's Andy Kerr came up with the same general idea recently in telling how little time coaches have these days for detailed instruction ...."It may be a good thing for football," said Andy. "Perhaps the game had become over-specialized."

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The tussle between Earl McCready and Palermo John Katan at Brock Street Rink tonight should be one of the toughest arguments of the entire season for it brings together two of the most powerful grapplers in the mat game today. Both are big, strong and experienced and the result should be a memorable battle in which some of the best real wrestling dished out in many a moon will be shown. McCready is said to be an expert in about every hold known to modern wrestlers and he of course has the size and the strength to cash in on his knowledge while the Killer who has wrestled all over the globe is about as well equipped in wrestling lore as his opponent. In temperament however the two men are as far apart as the poles. McCready is placid and good-natured while Katan is an explosive individual who loses his temper easily and goes berserk in the ring. If he tries that kind of stuff tonight the bout is liable to turn into a riot for the Moose can hand it out too, if his opponent persists in being dirty. Either way the bout looks about the most even proposition of the season. The supporting tilts are on a par with the main event. The unusual spectacle of two bad men meeting each other will be provided by the semi-tinal which has the Yugo Slav rowdy Doc Felice matched with Al Bunny Dunlop. That contest is likely to hit a new high for rough stuff with the fans completely stymied. They won't have a hero for whom to cheer. "Slats" Christie seen in action here several weeks ago clashes with a newcomer Jan Gotch in the opener. Gotch comes highly recommended as a competent mat artist and there will be curiosity as to how he shapes up.

For the second time in succession the J. E. Girven trophy, emblematic of the city golf championship has been won by a member of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. Yesterday Fraser Dunfield, who won the Kawartha title after a thrilling battle with the defending champion Charlie Low who was beaten by one shot on the 36th hole; met Stan Payne who won the championship of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club after an epic struggle with the veteran Bob Abbott who was not beaten until the 72nd hole. Payne who was defeated in the match for the Girven trophy by Charlie Low a year ago had to accept defeat for the second year. The first eighteen holes were played Sunday morning on the Peterborough course and Dunfield playing steady golf was five up when the round was completed. The match was resumed in the afternoon on the Kawartha links and ended at the 28th hole with Dunfield nine up. He continued his effective shot-making in the afternoon round and soon brought the game to a close.

O.K.—We We're Wrong

This column has been busy since late yesterday afternoon trying to dodge the ribbing of the Yank supporters in town for having called the Cards to take the series again this year. We went right out on the end of the limb; and the Yanks cut it off between us and the tree by winning the annual classic four games to one, making both us and the Cardinals look rather bad. It all proves that baseball is a decidedly uncertain game. We had thought we were doping it out on sound lines and the only thing that came right in our calculations was that the Yanks scored about as many runs as we figured they would. In other words we never pictured the men of McCarthy, 1943 edition, as looking anything like the Yankee power clubs of earlier years. What did trip us up was that we didn't count on the Cards making more errors in the series than they did runs. But that was exactly what happened. The National Leaguers' defence was wobbly enough to help the Yanks materially in their first two wins of the series and the Cards' offsensive weak enough to let the American League champs breeze through to their last two victories on the strength of exactly two runs per game.

* * * * * *

Here is something that will amaze most folk who haven't troubled to add up the totals. The Yanks have taken the 1943 series four games to one by scoring one run less than their total for 1942 when they lost four out of five. In their series victory this season they amassed exactly 17 runs in the five games played. A year ago in the same number of games they scored 18 while they were beaten four times as against one win. The difference between the two series is to be found when the Cards run-making efforts are compared. In the 1942 classic the National Leaguers put together a total of 23 runs; in the series that just closed all they could chase across the plate in five games was nine—a remarkable falling-off. To make it more noteworthy the Cards with the greater part of last year's world champion team still in action were facing the same pitching as in 1942 with the one exception that Red Ruffing the only Yank pitcher to beat them a year ago was missing. How come that the Yanks with a weaker club than last year (Joe McCarthy wouldn't have traded Joe DiMaggio for Metheny, Stainback and Lindell combined and Crosetti would have sat this series out if Phil Rizzuto hadn't gone into the Navy) were able to so completely reverse the results?

* * * * * *

This May Be It

To our way of thinking the explanation lies in something outside of the series altogether. In the 1942 campaign the Cards had to battle all the way down the stretch to win the National League; in fact they did not have a clear deed to the title until the final game of the season. The result was that they went into the annual classic a red-hot ball club, full of fire and fight. They ran out from under their caps on the bases, treated New York pitching with contempt and rode rough-shod over the much-touted Yanks as if they were a bunch of fellows named Joe and not the mighty American League winner. This year it was different. The St. Louis gang won their loop, weeks before the end of the campaign and just coasted in. They have been sitting around, getting chesty and spending the winners' share of the world series swag in anticipation and the consequence was that they had no drive and punch when they found themselves in action against the Yanks. Southworth saw it coming in the last week of the campaign and tried to put some fight in his cocky Cards but the series results show that he failed. Throughout the series the St. Louis outfit couldn't have punched their way out of a paper bag. Lanier on Sunday and Mort Cooper pitched good enough ball to have won any ordinary ball game but in those two games before the home fans the Cards could score only one run and that was handed to them on two juicy Yanks errors. The fact that 11 men were left on the sacks yesterday tells its own story.

* * * * * *

There was one upset in the holiday week-end rugby schedule but so far as the leaders were concerned the program was run off about as expected. Both Hamilton Wildcats and the R.C.A.F. Hurricanes smeared a defeat on the Ottawa Combines who have not won a game in four starts. The Hamilton gang smothered them 29 to 3 on Saturday and the Fliers hadn't much trouble licking the Ottawa boys 15 to 3 on the holiday. The result is Wildcats and Hurricanes are all tied up with four wins and no losses. Surprise game on the Thanksgiving card was the 14-13 victory of the Toronto Indians over the Navy. The Sailors led most of the way and when they scored a touchdown early in the final period looked to have the situation well in hand. However with three minutes to play Owen registered a try for the Indians and Selkirk converted for the extra point that meant a win.

* * * * * *

Sporting Chili Con Carne: At least the 1943 classic should go down into history as one of the best pitched series on record. There wasn't a poorly tossed game on either side....Bill Dickey who hasn't been hitting for the fences as he used to and had had only four homers all season picked the right spot to belt out his fifth circuit clout with Keller on the sacks yesterday was more than enough to give the Yanks a win....It was Mister Dickey, too, who drove in one of the two New York runs on Sunday....If you are picking heroes just give all the medals Sunday however to Marius

Kawartha Golfer Wins Girven Trophy

Fraser Dunfield, champion of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, defeated Stan Payne, Peterborough Club title holder, 9 up and 8 to go, Sunday, in the J. E. Girven trophy, 36 hole match.

With the trophy goes the title of city golf champion. The trophy was donated for competition between the champions of the two city clubs, last year, by J. E. Girven, assistant works manager of the C.G.E. and was won the first year by Charlie Low. This year Dunfield defeated Low for the Kawartha title, while Payne again defeated Bob Abbott for the Peterborough Club championship.

This competition, a 36-hole affair is played on the two courses, 18 holes at Peterborough and 18 at Kawartha. Sunday morning Payne and Dunfield teed off on the first 18 at the Peterborough Club.

Leads At 7th

The first hole, a par four, 435-yarder, was taken by Payne. The next three holes were halved and Dunfield evened the match on the fifth. The sixth hole was halved with three's, and Dunfield went one up on the seventh. From there on he was never head, and the way he was playing his shots, and the tough luck Payne was having with his putts, meant that it was just a matter of time, to the small gallery who were following the match. Dunfield took the ninth hole, after they halved the eighth, to end the first nine, two up. Payne won the tenth, cutting Dunfield's lead to one hole, and on the eleventh Dunfield had some assistance from a Sunday morning hiker and his dog, who were taking their constitutional along the canal bank. The dog, an overly friendly fellow, came on the fairway to see what was going on. His owner is apparently particular about the company his dog keeps, and just

A Cool-burning CIGARETTE

With Canadians from coast to coast, Ontario smokers are loyal to the cigarette that offers more lasting pleasure, more satisfaction than any other cigarette you can buy. They know that a Buckingham, specially blended from an exclusive combination of ripe, mature, cool-burning tobaccos is the mildest cigarette you can smoke; mild where mildness counts most—definitely Throat Easy.

World famous for its mines which lead the world in the production of nickel and copper, Ontario with its forests and lakes, its farmlands and its busy manufacturing towns, is proudly true to British traditions and to the principles of true democracy.

CROSETTI AND DICKEY SPARK YANKEES TO WORLD SERIES HONORS

Chandler Wins 5th Game By 2-0 Count

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12—(AP)— The scattered pieces of the busted St. Louis Cardinal bubble were being swept up today as Frankie Crosetti was handed the bouquets and half a dozen Red Birds tried on sets of goat horns from the late lamented World Series.

One and all agreed no blockbuster ever went off any louder than the explosion of the Cardinal myth in this year's fall classic. When New York Yankees wound it up on Bill Dickey's homer to win four games to one for the 10th world championship in their history, the Cards were as well beaten as the parlor rug in Spring housecleaning.

Beat Themselves

If ever a club beat itself, this year's Cardinals fit the picture. After the second game, last Wednesday, they folded up like a straw hat that's been sat on. As running specialists they were practically stationary. And in yesterday's convincer they had Spud Chandler on the ropes in six of nine innings, yet failed to throw a big punch and were put on ice for keeps.

And while the Cards were collapsing all over the place the Yankees reminded the folks that when you're talking about teams that don't beat themselves, the Bombers are better than green hands.

Dickey was right up there in the voting for the series hero's spot, because in addition to catching five tough games, he got four of his five hits with men on bases and three of the four brought ducks home off the pond.

But the majority of the boys and girls pointed to the old guy at short, Frank Crosetti, as the top hero. He's 33 and before the series one fellow said he was so banged up they had to tie him together with strips of tape and little pieces of wire. In fact, he wasn't supposed to be a Yankee regular at all this year, but Joe McCarthy finally had to send out the alarm for him to take over.

Brilliant Record

Frankie's base running was the big factor in the first game win. He scored the only run in the losing game. He was one of the key men in the big five-run eighth inning that won the third game.

His stop back of second on Walker Cooper's hit in the eighth inning of the fourth game, and the way he held Stan Musial at second on the play, was the big break of the tilt. And yesterday he came up with three chances he had absolutely no right to get to haul Chandler out of the stew.

He told a couple of pals before the Series that he expected this was going to be his last Fall classic. Well, he bowed out with the bells ringing.

The Series set a new attendance record for a five-game fuss by drawing 277,312 through the turnstiles, including the all-time one-game high of 69,000 who saw last Thursday's scramble in New York. And it paid off the players on a record pool of $488,005.74, from which each Yankee received $6,123.20 and each Cardinals $4,321.99.

As Yanks Edged Cards, 2-1, In St. Louis Opener

These pictures were taken at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, as the Yankees beat the Cardinals, 2-1, in the fourth game of the World Series. Joe Gordon, Yank second sacker, is seen scoring the first run of the game. Walker Cooper is Card catcher at LEFT. Man in CENTRE is Nick Etten, Yank first sacker.

World Series Highlights

Associated Press Sports Writer.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12 — (AP). — Well, it's all over....The New York Yankees are in as world champions—and the 1943 Series just goes to show there is no stable measure for comparing seasonal records before the classic starts.

The St Louis Cardinals topped the Yankees during the season in just about every department—except home runs— which leads to pushing across those pay-off counters. They led by some 24 points in team batting, held a .976 to .974 advantage in team fielding.

And yet what happened in this Series?

The blasting bombers backed up splendid hurling by both outhitting and outfielding the impotent Red Birds.

The National League Club just couldn't get the extra base blows when needed, but look what well-placed hits meant to the bombers:

The deciding punch in the third game was a trigle by Bill Johnson with the bases loaded. In the fourth contest, a double by Joe Gordon followed by Bill Dickey's single gave the Yanks a leading run.

And later in the game Marius Russo's double placed him in position to score a sacriifce and long fly.

Everyone knows the championship was won in the fifth meeting by Dickey's two-run circuit smash.

37 Stranded.

The Cardinals left 37 men stranded on base for lack of power at the plate, only five short of the record set in a five-game series by the Yankees in 1941.

The Cardinals were so helpless when scoring opportunities presented themselves in the first innings of the final contest that one Yankee follower volunteered the suggestion, "Maybe somebody should try for a field goal."

You can't stop the Army Department: When Murray Dickson relieved Max Lanier, it was the first time, so far as is known, that a soldier flashed his stuff in a World Series. Uncle Sam gave the slender hurler a special leave to be with the Cards during the World Series. If he had just brought along some heavy artillery....

Dickey Liked It.

Said Mort Cooper: "That home run pitch to Dickey was a fast inside ball acro s his chest. It was just what I meant to throw except I intended it around his hips."

Dickey exulted: "The pitch was perfect. Just where I wanted it."

Cardinal centrefielder Harry Walker and Rookie Pitcher Alpha (Bet) Brazle undoubtedly wish the Series was still going on, but they would have been otherwise engaged to-day anyway. They reported for induction at Jefferson Barracks this morning.

The Red Bird management is letting a lot of dough slip through its fingers — but of necessity.... Refunds to holders of tickets marked Game No. 6 will be started on Saturday morning.

And there is all that mazoola gone to waste on tickets already prepared for sale for the seventh game.....Optimism is a wonderful thing.

Fliers Defeat Ottawa; Cats Trim Navy

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If the Canadian gridiron has a counterpart for the comic strip character known as Available Jones, the gentleman in question must be Coach Ross Trimble of Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricances. Sho nuff.

There is no physical resemblance, of course. Trimble is big and genial, Jones is short, sharp-featured, and a trifle crusty. But when it comes to picking football players out of the air, Ross knows where they're available, Available.

Last Wednesday, for instance, Trimble managed to strengthen the Airmen with two army men seeking air force transfers — Sgt. Murray Griffin and Lieut. Orville Burke. Using Burke's smooth passing as a principal weapon, Hurricanes promptly flattened the Toronto Indians 19-0.

Bill Stukus Back

The army men vanished from the lineup yesterday when Hurricanes faced Ottawa Combines in the second half of an Ontario Rugby Football Union doubleheader at University Stadium, but Trimble had a new find. This time it was PO. Bill Stukus, home on leave from the east coast and uncertain how long his services will be available to Hurricanes. Although he failed to score, the lithe little quarterback who led the airmen to a Dominion championship last season worked on jittery Ottawa nerves with sharp, accurate forward passing. The result was a 15-3 triumph which enabled Fliers to reserve front-row elbow room in the O.R.F.U. standings with Hamilton Wildcats.

In the opening half of the bargain bill, Indians squeaked through to a 14-13 verdict over Toronto Navy on a converted touchdown in the last three minutes of play. The two-point dividened moved Indians into a fourth place deadlock with Navy, who dropped a 9-1 decision to Toronto Balmy Beach at Toronto Saturday while Wildcats walloped Combines 29-3 at Hamilton for their fourth straight victory.

Lusty Booting

Combines, as usual, went well for two quarters yesterday. George Fraser's second - quarter placement gave them a 3-0 edge at the intermission, but Flyers found their stride in the third quarter and netted 14 of their 15 points on touchdowns by LAC. Bob Cosgrove and AC.2. Doug Smylie, two converts by FO. Jack Alexander and two singles by Sgt. Fred Kijeck. Another single by Kijek in the fourth quarter ended the scoring and sealed Ottawa's fifth defeat in as many starts.

Navy likewise had early foot against Indians, erecting a 7 to 2 half-time lead on Stoker Doug. Maitland's touchdown, OS. Sandy Millen's convert and a kick to the deadline by OS. Steve Karrys against two singles by Earl Selkirk.

In the third the Sailors yielded a touchdown scored by Doug. Brennen and converted by Selkirk and though Maitland tallied his second major score in the fourth panel, Indians still had the victory formula.

A crossfield run by Selkirk brought Indians to the Navy doorstep and Harper Owen hurtled round left and four yards for the touchdown. With the score knotted 13-13, Selkirk cooly kicked the convert to obtain the winning margin with less than three minutes to play.

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—(CP).—Toronto Maple Leafs figure on losing Turk Broda to the armed forces. To fill the goal job they're dickering for Mike Karakas, former Chicago goalie, now property of Providence Reds...Kenny Kilrea, has been discharged from the Army because of a bad eye and will return to Detroit Red Wings if Jack Adams wants him....Ernie Francis, North Battleford, Sask., junior, will try for the Red Wing's goal job...Normie Smith, who preceded Johnny Mowers in the Detroit nets, has been workin gout with wings. Smith's war job would prevent him making road trips with the Wings but he says he's willing to play in home games....Former Michigan-Ontario League players trying out with the Wings include Rudy Zunich, Joe Elenich and Bob Stoddart...Three Albertans getting tryouts with Eddie Shore's Buffalo Bisons at Hamilton are Carl Sorokoski and Eddie Speaker, former Lethbridge and Red Deer players, and Bill Gauf, Edmonton defenseman who had minor professional experience with Dallas and Spokane.

The Senior Circle.

Jack Park of the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder comes out in favor of the split-gate pay-off in amateur hockey leagues. Under this arrangement the home team would pay the visiting club a flat guarantee of perhaps $100. The visitors would also collect 10 cents on each ticket sold over 2,500 paid admissions. In this way the smaller centres, with their smaller rinks, would still be able to finance good teams which would draw good crowds in the big cities ....Eddie Wiseman, former Boston Bruins forward who coached Saskatoon R.C.A.F. team last season, is reported in line for coach of the Vancouver Air Force club....Toronto Navy has only two hold-overs from last winter—Sandy Milne and Sctty Mair. But it has some useful recruits in Red Garrett, New York Rangers defenceman. Joe Klukay, Toronto Leafs rookie, Hugh Barlow, Hamilton amateur star, Normie Mann, veteran professional, and George Gee, with Kansas City in 1941.

Incidentally:

FO. Lew Hayman, the R.C.A.F.'s travelling sports ambassador, is getting a few sales licks on his western tour to promote the idea of an east-west football league after the war....Windsor is aiming to regain the Canadian senior men's basketball championship with club called "Varsity" coached by Jimmy Stewart, long-time forward star. The club plans to develop players uner a long-term program which will put Windsor back on the cage-map.

C.C.F. Leader Urges Support For New Loan

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 (CP).—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader, said last night that differences of opinion regarding methods employed by the Government in conducting the war and in organizing Canada's economic and financial effort "provide no excuse for any of us in not doing all we can to make the new (Victory Loan) appeal even more successful than similar appeals in the past."

In an address over the national network of the CBC in support of the Fifth Victory Loan, Mr. Coldwell said that as a nation Canada has suffered little from the effects of the war, and her citizens have much for which they can be truly thankful.

"Personally, as a critic — and sometimes a severe critic— of the policies of the Government, I nevertheless urge you to make your personal contribution to the new loan the largest you can undertake by way of cash and deferred payments.

"Apart altogether from the fact that there is no safer or more useful place to put your savings, it is important that any surplus dollars shall not be in a position to demand goods which we could do without until a later date or until the war ends."

Should Oversubscribe

The Fifth Victory Loan, which opens October 18 with a minimum objective of $1,200,000,000 should be oversubscribed by those who remain at home as an expression of the determination of Canadians "to carry the world-wide struggle to a successful conclusion."

Canada is regarded to-day as the third nation among the democratic powers, and holds a position which brings with it great responsibilities.

"Canada then must not fall short of this new effort," Mr. Coldwell said.

"We are a part of that association of free self-governing nations which we call the British Commonwealth. Let us make that association a real factor for the peace and prosperity of all mankind . . . thus at last, as equal partners in a great world cause, we may co-operate with all men of good-will everywhere for mutual welfare and universal peace."

Calamitous to Stop Now

The war is not won. The Allies have only begun to "drive the Nazi-Fascist aggressor out of small areas of Southern Europe." It would be calamitous to diminish the nation's industrial efforts now, as Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt have already warned.

"With their warnings before us, there is surely no excuse for a relaxation of our efforts. Our lands must be made to produce more food, our shipyards must not be permitted to slacken the tempo of production and our munitions factories must be kept running full speed.

"If Canada is to achieve all that she must do, none of us must use our earnings to demand consumer goods that we could do without. The money thus saved should be placed behind the war effort in the new Victory Loan. If you have war savings certificates or bonds already, keep them in safety and add to them now."

MORE ABOUT—

Canadian Troops

Moved At Night

The battalion held the ridge while other troops pushed up the valley. They moved down the next valley by night, across humps which they named "Shoulder," "Elbow" and "Knee," intending to mount a ridge overlooking the valley at dawn. The going was so difficult because of the nature of the ground and rain that the battalion commander, a lieutenant-colonel from Halifax, decided to swing his men onto the valley road, though it was heavily mined and the Germans had mortars trained on it.

Pioneers were out in front of the battalion seeking out mines as the troops moved in single file down the road. The coloned studied the interval between mortar volleys falling on one stretch of it, then decided the regiment could get safely through.

Whistled Signals

The troops travelled that stretch of road practically on tiptoe. Not a mortar bomb fell while they walked over it, but as soon as the end of the battalion file got past clusters of bombs whistled over and exploded. They marched off the road for a fresh climb up to their objective on a ridge above a river. They explored the ridge in thick fog, guided by whistled signals, and before the mist lifted they were firmly dug in.

Capt. Couche's company which had remained in a defensive position made a two-mile march across country to join the rest of the battalion. The enemy occupying positions overlooking them from three sides spotted them and turned on mortar and shell fire from all three directions. While the colonel peered through binoculars at enemy territory from the top of the ridge a shell exploded directly in front of him.

Narrow Escape

A forward artillery observation officer was thrice driven from his hilltop position by shellfire but returned each time. On one occasion the colonel's adjutant, Capt. J. B. Hunt of London, Ont., and an artillery officer crouched behind a rock ledge while shells whistled a few feet over their heads and exploded behind them. The troops lay in their slit trenches while bombs and shells poured down. Many of them watched the antics of one soldier who kept popping up and down in his private trench calling "One up, two down," his "downs" coinciding with the explosions.

A mortar bomb exploded on the corner of a trench occupied by Lieut. A. B. Pettem of Prescott, Ont., but did not injure him.

Until the valley road was opened to a point near their position the battalion had to be supplied by pack mules borrowed from Italian civilians.

The civilians caused considerable communications trouble because they cut long sections out of the regiment's signal lines and used them as rope. The signals section was able to keep up with line cutting only by acquiring a little donkey named "Jackson" on which signallers rode up and down the slopes on trouble-shooting patrol.

borne Australian forces of Kalapit on the Markham Valley 60 miles from Lae. From there, the drive over the divide into Ramu has proceeded for approximately 30 miles.).

Troop carrying transports took the bulk of the infantry on each advance, then brought up engineers to build or improve airstrips.

The big transports then used three strips for the landing of supplies.

When main units of the division reached Dumpu, a village about 50 miles from Madang, Australian forward patrols already were scouting toward tthe Bogadjim road.

Used Bayonets.

The road runs inland up the steep-sided valley from Bogadjim, defence outpost 20 miles south of Madang.

When one platoon ran out of ammunition in the Kalapit action, it charged the enemy and finished the job with bayonets. Use of the bayonet by Australians at Finchhaffen and in the Markham Valley is believed by many to be the reason for the enemy's withdrawal. Members of the 7th say the Japanese soldiers are dangerous in pillboxes but "they panic when we get on top of them."

The Tuesday communique from Allied Headquarters reported that advance patrols in the Ramu Valley had caught up with Japanese rearguards, engaged them and forced them back.

The communique also reported a 25-ton bombing attack on the Japanese at Makassar, by heavy bombers which made the 2,400 mile round trip from Australia without loss; also the firing of one enemy cargo ship and possible sinking of another in the vicinity of New Ireland.

said that more than 1,000 Nazi troops were slain on these salients alone in "fruitless" counter-attacks. And the Red Army vanguards fought their way forward "step by step." Overhead, Soviet planes were supporting the swelling ground offensives beyond the bridgheads, knocking down at least 19 enemy planes and obliterating Nazi gun emplacements.

(CBS in New York recorded a London broadcast which said that Soviet forces already had "penetrated the outer defences of Kiev.".

Announcement of the capture of Novo-Belitza, rail junction suburb of Gomel on the east bank of the Sozh, threatened the early flanking of the 200-mile German line in White Russia and the capture of the already weakened connections with the enemy forces further south.

Gomel's main rail arteries radiate to Vitebsk, Minsk and Warsaw, capital of Poland. Its fall would pave the way for Soviet columns to thrust at Minsk and west to the frontier of old Poland, a flanking movement that would, if successful, make the whole German defence system to the north untenable.

On top of this threat Soviet columns battling their way toward Vitebsk routed enemy detachments as they raced through 40 towns, the Russians said. Here 1,300 German dead were counted and more stores of bandoned war gear were added to the Russian bag. Here, too, the Moscow war bulletin declared, the Red Army rescued 40,000 Russian civilians "whom the Germans were forcibly driving to slave labor in Germany." Soviet spearheads were within 20 miles of Vitebsk last night, the bulletin added.

Far to the south, Black Sea fleet warplanes struck "a blow at an enemy port," possibly in the Crimea, and sank a 2,000-ton German transport and 11 barges and cutters," the communique said, adding that "many other ships standing in the port were seriously damaged."

YOUR BANKS are more extensively regulated than any other Canadian business.

Canada's ten Chartered Banks are subject, under the Bank Act, to the most thorough-going regulation. For instance:

The annual audit—conducted by Chartered Accountants appointed by the banks' shareholders—is submitted to the Department of Finance. The Department may call for further special audits, and in addition maintains regular inspections of the banks' affairs through the Inspector-General of Banks, who is obliged by law to examine the banks' books at least once each year.

Then there are monthly returns to both the Department of Finance and to the Bank of Canada. The Minister may also call for special returns at any time.

All this in addition to the Bank Act's extensive regulations covering such phases of banking operation as reserve requirements, types of transactions permitted, interest rates and note issue.

These regulations are for the purpose of safeguarding your savings and guiding the operations of the banks as an essential element of our national life.

TAKE TEN DAYS

"I'll take the ten days," said Edward Harron in police court this morning after Magistrate O. A. Langley had fined him $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days on a charge of having been drunk on Water street on Saturday. Harron pleaded guilty. So did Thomas Gorman to a charge of having been drunk on Aylmer street. He elected to take ten days instead of paying his fine.

ARRIVES OVERSEAS

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kidd of the Peterborough - Lindsay Highway, Smith township, received word on Friday night last of the safe arrival overseas of their son Gunner Ivan Kidd who enlisted in the R. C.A. in September of 1942.

JUST ONE BOTTLE

Charged with having liquor in a place other than a residence Gordon Smith was granted a week's adjournment this morning in police court. Inspector J. F. Reid informed the court that the case was built around one bottle of beer.

NOTE OF GRATITUDE

Orchids to the weather man for that Thanksgiving Day warmth and sunshine, blue sky and gentle breeze. It was a perfect setting for an autumnal outing, but farmers say the lack of moisture is holding up their plowing. One man said he had to dig carrots with a pick to break the ground. Apart from that the W.M. did a swell job, as they say in industrial circles.

ON TWO CHARGES

Edwin Quinlan entered a plea of guilty in police court today to a charge of having created a disturbance on New Chamberlain street, North Monaghan, and also of having wilfully damaged the property of Henry Sararas to the extent of $15. Quinlan aked for a week's adjournment to give him a chance to get his money together and the request was granted. He admitted that the damage done to Sararas' furniture amounted to $15.

ENLIST IN C.W.A.C.

SEE V IN HEAVEN

Mrs. K. Griffin, 746 New Romaine street and a friend, Mrs. Long, were walking home from church Monday evening about 7:30, when they looked up in the sky and saw the northern lights shining brightly, forming a perfect V for victory.

SUCCESS IN SALVAGE

The Swedish submarine "Ulven" which foundered in the Kattegat in April was recently towed to drydock in Goteborg after three and a half months of salvage work.

OCTOBER ROSES

Roses in the garden of Mrs. W. H. Ashby 558 Water street are blooming with floral disregard of the middle week of Otober. One of them is the comparatively recent hybrid tea "Crimson Glory" and another Mrs. Ashby calls "mystery" because she lost the tag.

SOME POULTRY UNSOLD

Farmers probably over-estimated the demand of poultry for the holiday market. The supply of chickens carried over into the afternoon, some of them selling down to 35 cents a pound around one o'clock, with the prospect that at least a few would be unsold. The morning price of 38 cents a pound contrasted with corresponding price of 60 cents a pair of chickens in the fall of 1911. In fact, the basis of comparison was 35 cents a chicken then and 35 cents a pound now. Turkeys and geese were then $1.75 and $1.25 each, respectively, and on Saturday the price was 40 to 45 cents a pound for turkeys and 35 to 37 cents a pound for geese.

LOOKS LIKE FROG

A White Star potato that grew with odd resemblance of a frog was shown to The Examiner today by R. L. Orde, 8 McClennan street.

SERIOUSLY WOUNDED.

Mrs. William Maudsley, 489 Park Street North, has been advised by Ottawa that her son Albert Maudsley recently reported wounded in Sicily, suffered multiple wounds and that his condition was serious. Maudsley was serving with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

FIRE REPORT.

Smoldering piles of autumn's dead leaves caused the majority of alarms answered by the Fire Department over the holiday week-end. It was a case of leaves when firemen were called out at three in the afternoon Sunday to the corner of Brock and Aylmer Streets; it was the same problem again at 10.25 a.m. Monday at 80 Lake Street; and once more two hours later near where the C.N.R. tracks cross Sherbrooke Street. A chimney fire at 10.45 a.m. Sunday occurred at the residence of M. J. Scott, 1 Bruce Street, and another fire of the same sort happened this morning at 10.30 at 49 Lafayette, home of P. R. Johnston. In none of these alarms was there any damage incurred.

DINNER MEETING.

The Peterborough Kinsmen are changing their regular dinner meeting from Thursday evening to a luncheon at noon, and this week the speaker is to be Leonard Milton Reilly, general manager of the Reilly Lock Company of Toronto, whose subject will be "Speech is Power."

BOTH WERE FOUND

Two missing persons reported to the police department Monday night were located shortly after. A twelve-year-old boy who ran away from his foster home early in the evening was reported by a North Monaghan woman, living on Highway 28, as having turned up at her place, seeking shelter for the night. An elderly East City woman who had left her home was located by Sergt. John Thompson and Officer John Naples near the filtration plant.

TWO CARS DAMAGED

Cars driven by Theodore Courneya, 266 Aylmer street and Alfred Jennings, Charlotte street, were damaged to the extent of approximately $40 in a traffic accident at Charlotte and Water streets Monday night. Courneya was driving south on Water street and Jennings east on Charlotte street when the two vehicles came into contact. The left front fender, front door, runningboard and left rear fender of the Jennings car were damaged to the extent of $25 while the damage to the front bumper and fenders of the other machine was estimated at $15.

Truck Knocks Woman Down

Mrs. Ray Bennett, 163 Princess street, had her left leg bruised when she was struck and knocked down by a dump truck on the Park street extension into the Wartime Housing division on Thanksgiving afternoon.

Mrs. Bennett and her husband were walking north on the side of the road, they told police, when the truck came along, swerved as it passed them, struck Mrs. Bennett and knocked her to the road, and then was driven off without stopping.

Later police arrested George Meharry, 42 Victoria avenue, as the alleged driver of the hit-and-run truck.

Meharry was charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning with failing to remain at the scene of an accident, and at his request the case was adjourned for a week.

South End Group Makes $25 For War Victims

In groups by themselves, political associations have so far not taken a prominent part in the raising of funds for war charities. and as in all things there would have to be a beginning, which as far as the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund is concerned has now actually taken place, with the credit for this going to the South-end Ladies' Conservative group, who held a Bingo in the Orange Hall on Thursday, September 30, resulting in the sum of $25 being raised and this is credited in today's list of receipts.

The local Conservative Association has supported the fund on a previous occasion out of its treasury, but this is the first instance where such a group has gone to work for the definite purpose of raising money for this one particular object of extending a helping hand through the fund to those who have suffered from air raid attacks over Britain.

This effort was headed by Mrs. W. E. Fisher of Dalhousie street, who is the president of this particular group, and in conjunction with it, they held a sale of tickets for a draw on a four-piece set of hand-crocheted table mats donated for that purpose, the draw for this being made by Harold R. Scott, M.P.P., which resulted in the prize being won by Mrs. Little of this city.

In Memory of Mother

There is a wealth of sentiment attached to the donation appearing under the name of "In memory of mother on her birthday, October 12," for not even the secretary of the fund knows who it came from, since it was handed in without any donor's name other than the information just given. This daughter or son has many poignant memories of days gone by, knowing in their own minds just what it has and does mean to them, and to her or him it must mean a great deal to do some good in the loved ones name, and no finer medium for this can be found than through the humanitarian work which this fund tries to carry on.

Naturally this comes within the realm of personal giving, to which comes another personal gift for $5 from J. H. Carter, who in this manner will also be represented in a personal way in the next contribution cabled over to Britain when it has been fully subscribed for.

V. Caban, Sr., Helps Again

Following up a preliminary notice which appeared in this column a few days ago, it can now be said that tickets are on sale for seven prizes donated by Victor Caban, Sr., of Park street, who has given help in a similar manner to the fund on previous occasions.

A large part of these prizes are war savings certificates, for the most part given from money saved for Victor Caban, Jr., who laid down his life recently on the battle fields of Sicily, so that further help may come to the Empire's cause in the name of this patriot who paid the supreme sacrifice to help his native land in the hour of her need.

The father and sponsor of this effort himself served during the last Great War, and a second son is also at this moment on active service abroad for this same purpose, a truly patriotic family who with none too affluent means are giving their utmost in service for the cause.

Former Soldier Given 1 Month

Harold Brooks, who pleaded guilty a week ago to begging, was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to a month in jail, after the magistrate had read the man's record.

"Why did you come back from Rochester?" asked His Worship, after glancing at the accused's record.

"I came back to join the army," Brooks explained, adding that he had been discharged from the armed forces last May.

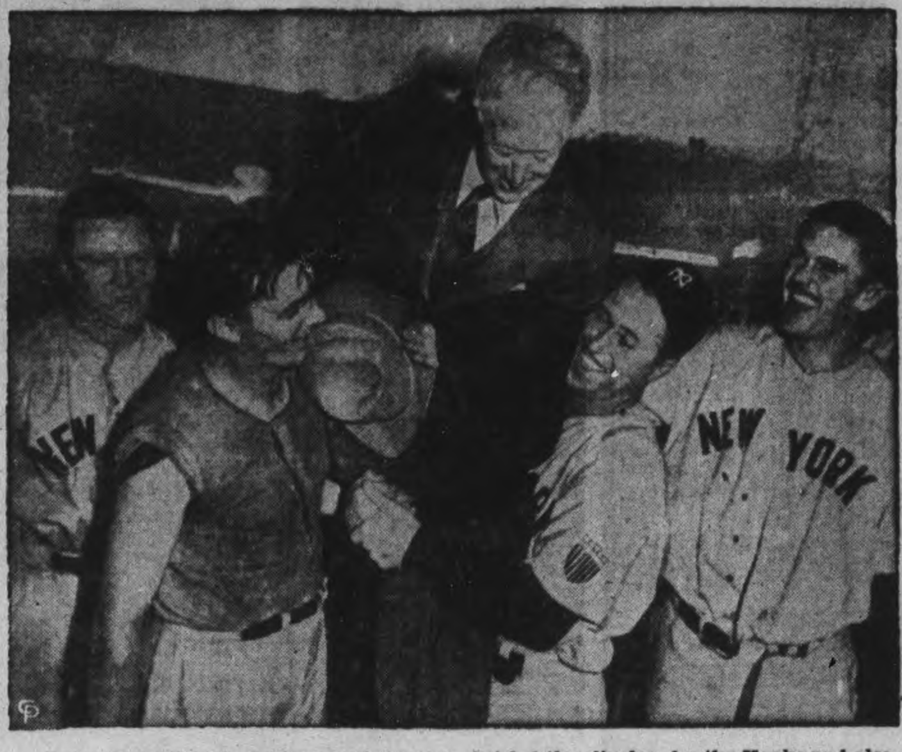
"You haven't been in trouble for some time," said Magistrate Langley, as he sentenced Brooks to a month and dated the sentence back to October 5.

Brooks also pleaded guilty to an old charge, dating from July, of illegal consumption of liquor, and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs, or ten days, to run concurrently with the other sentence.

HIT BY PELLET

Nine-year-old Jimmie Sargent, 205 Aylmer street, had a narrow escape from having his eyes injured when a pellet from an air-gun fired by another boy struck him in the face. The shot did not penetrate the skin but left a red mark on the boy's cheek.

Yanks Celebrate Another World's Championship



Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, is hoisted in the air by happy Yankees in their clubhouse after the Yanks had defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 2-0, in the fifth and deciding game of the World Series in St. Louis. Spud Chandler, who twirled the clincher for the Yanks and also won the opener for them, is at LEFT. Nick Etten, first baseman, and Jim Turner, relief pitcher, hold Judge Landis. Johnny Lindell, Yank outfielder, is at RIGHT. It was the Yanks' 10th World Series triumph in the last 20 years. (International)

Island Of Cos, Home Of Hippocrates, 460 B.C. Father Of Medicine, Emerges In War News

Recent mention in war despatches of the island of Cos in the Aegean Sea turns briefly the spot light of swiftly moving events of the present upon an ancient seat of learning and culture made famous for all time as the birthplace of Hippocrates whom the history of mankind has enshrined as the Father of Medicine.

The Hippocratic oath has come down through the centuries as the physician's pledge of confidence to his patients. It is a credential of his profession, a passport into the private home and to the bedside of the sick, an undertaking which every reputable doctor holds sacred as an inviolable trust.

Part of that oath which it is understood every doctor takes upon his receiving his right and authority to begin the practice of medicine may be quoted as follows and also as first enunciated by Hippocrates: — "Whatsoever things I see or hear concerning the life of men, in my attendance on the sick or even apart therefrom, which ought not to be noised abroad, I will keep silence thereon, counting such things to be sacred secrets."

Cos is one of the Dodecanese (twelve) Islands off the coast of Asia Minor. Its first settlers were believed to have been Dorians, a Hellenic people from a comparatively small area of Greece whose historic landmark was nearby Mount Parnassus. An ancient school of medicine had been established there some centuries before the birth of Hippocrates, approximately in the year 460 B.C., and part of the island was widely known throughout the Aegean and on the Asiatic mainland as a health resort, probably associating its salubrious climate and its sanative mineral springs and baths with its first advancement in the scientific medicine.

So, the glories of Cos were a long time ago, roughly twenty-five centuries. Hippocrates was a practicing physician nearly tweny-four hundred years ago, a transcendently romantic figure in the progress of mankind and exemplar of the great profession which is represented by the Peterborough docter whom you call into your own home. Hippocrates is also credited with the aphorism of experience and human endeavor 'art is long but life is short.'

The history of Cos is too long for a passing reference amidst the sweep of war over so many of the ancient places of the world. Effects of maritime travel and the shift of knowledge from Egypt and Mespotamia probably helped shape the contribution of the island to the civilized world's early knowledge of medicine. At that those Dorians seem to have been an unusually energetic and capable people, and they could claim more than Hippocrates in the enduring roll of famous names.

When Cos emerged in the news the other day as the scene of the Allied landing operations and of German resistance, its background in the long ago was another reminder of the historic culture of Greece, it must have appealed especially to the sympathetic interest of the medical profession throughout the world. In its long story it has known many forms of government, including its ancient years as a democracy, and as a little spot in the sea has been under the sovereignty of ancient Greece and Rome, centuries under Ottoman rule and finally in 1924 was ceded to Italy.

Killed In Action

Mr. and Mrs. George Bitten of Norwood received official word this week, that their son, Sergeant Fred Bitten, who was reported "missing" after the Lorient raid of February 7th, is now presumed dead. Fred was born and raised in Norwood and received his training in the Montreal wireless and Mountain View Gunnery Schools. He had been on operational duty in England for seven months when reported "missing."

Minor Break-ins Believed Solved

With the arrest on Thanksgiving Day by Officer Archie Menzies of two young boys, one a thirteen-year-old lad from Collingwood, the other a fifteen-year-old Peterborough boy, police believe that a recent series of minor break-ins has been cleared up.

The Collingwood boy was charged in juvenile court this morning with breaking and entering the C.P.R. freight sheds, a C.P.R. refrigerator car, the premises of National Grocers, the Johnson Motors quarters in the Duffus building and the property of the Weston Bread Company.

Police intimate that the boy has been in the city for some days, sleeping in barns and stables at night. Foods, including bread and cakes, was the principal commodity reported stolen, but some money was taken from the Duffus building and a bicycle from the Weston Bread Company.

According to the police he hooked up with the local boy on Saturday and the latter is charged with only one offence. The two were remanded until next week for trial.

Ice Covered Streams Mar Hunter's Holiday

Hunters down the river over the week-end say they had to break ice to get out to the channels Monday morning. One of the men who "fired a few shots but hit nothing" was shivering today as he recalled the cold douche of stepping out of their warm cabin into the fog and chill.

"We were in the creek above Hales Bridge, (Baxters), and the only water that wasn't frozen was out quite a piece from the shore where there is a channel through the marsh. Wooh, was it cold."

Pte. M. Stuppiello Non-Swimmer Saves Child, 4

Forgetting that he couldn't swim, Pte. Matt Stuppiello, C.A.(B.)T.C. No. 32, Peterborough, jumped into the Trent Canal Monday to save a 4-year-old girl, Mary Booth, 385 Mark street, from drowning.

"It just didn't enter my head that I couldn't swim," the soldier stated after it was over. "But I certainly was scared as soon as I got back on land again. I couldn't tell you how I stayed on top."

Pte. Stuppiello was walking along the Trent Canal near the Lift Lock when he saw Mary lean over the bank too far and fall into the water. Without hesitation he jumped into the canal fully clothed, grabbed the child and held her near the canal side so that another man could pull her out. He then managed to pull himself up on the pier, where he sat looking at the water, hardly believing he had been the one to jump in.

The water at this point is over 8 feet deep, even along the bank which has cement sides. The soldier said that he had always been afraid of water and so had never learned to swim.

The little girl was carried home by her mother, Mrs. Richard Booth, none the worse for the episode.

All members of Plant Committees and salesmen for the Fifth Savings Sections will be attending a dinner in the Genelco Cafeteria on Friday night at 6:15.

This gathering of all actively engaged in the forthcoming loan activities in these two sections is to give all an appreciation of the big job which is to be performed when the Payroll Section must raise $950, 000 and the Group Payroll Section $150,000. Summer Homes Broken Into On Stoney Lake

At least four summer cottages in the Crowe's Landing section of Stoney Lake were broken into during the Thanksgiving week-end. The extent of the booty secured by the thieves will not be known until there is a check-up by the owners of the cottages.

The places entered were the cottage of "Bud" Fisher, Barrie, situated on the Dummer shore; the summer home of Harry Sutherland, Toronto, on Piney Island; the boys' camp of Donald Fitzgerald, Toronto, on the Burleigh shore, and the Dawson cottage at the mouth of Eel's Creek.

A canoe was stolen from the Fisher place and it is thought that it was used by the thieves in reaching the other cottages.

Provincial Constable Price Morris is at Stoney Lake today investigating the break-ins.

The Fisher cottage, the old Hawthorne summer home, is located close to the cottage of Herb. Poynton of Toronto, former manager of the Toronto Argonauts football squad. Mr. Boynton was at his summer home for the week-end but heard nothing of the intruders.

The break-ins were not discovered until Monday afternoon.

REDUCED RATE ON PERSONAL LOANS

Household Finance cuts charges on loans over $300—New rate 2% per month on that part of a loan balance not exceeding $300 and 1% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $300—Read how you can borrow quickly, privately and without endorsers.

NOW you can get a Household Finance loan of $350, $400 or $500 at lower cost. Household's rate on that part of any loan balance in excess of $300 has been cut from 2% to 1% monthly. Canadians and Americans Join Forces to Push Pipeline Through Rugged North

Geo. Morse, Calvin, Okla., veteran pipeline worker.

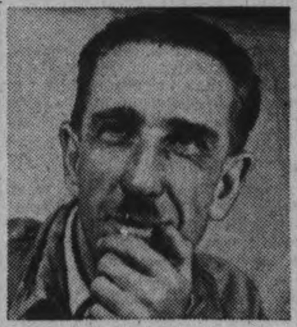
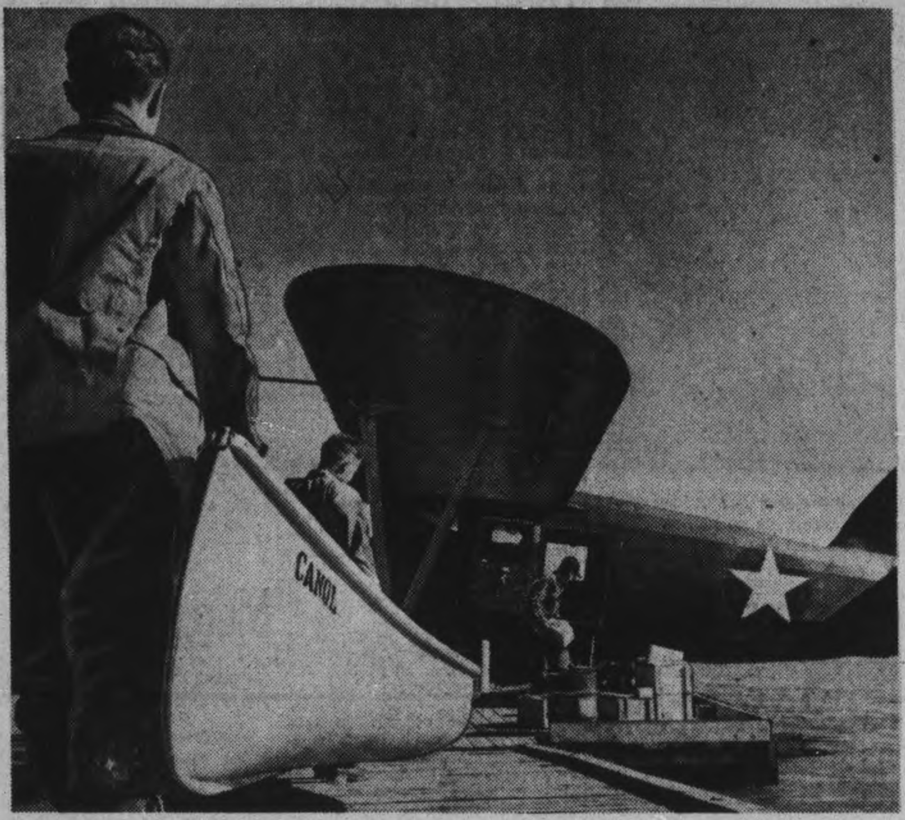
S. Busacca, U.S. Italian First aid man, Canol camp.

F. Parosa, Seattle welder, smokes through fly net.

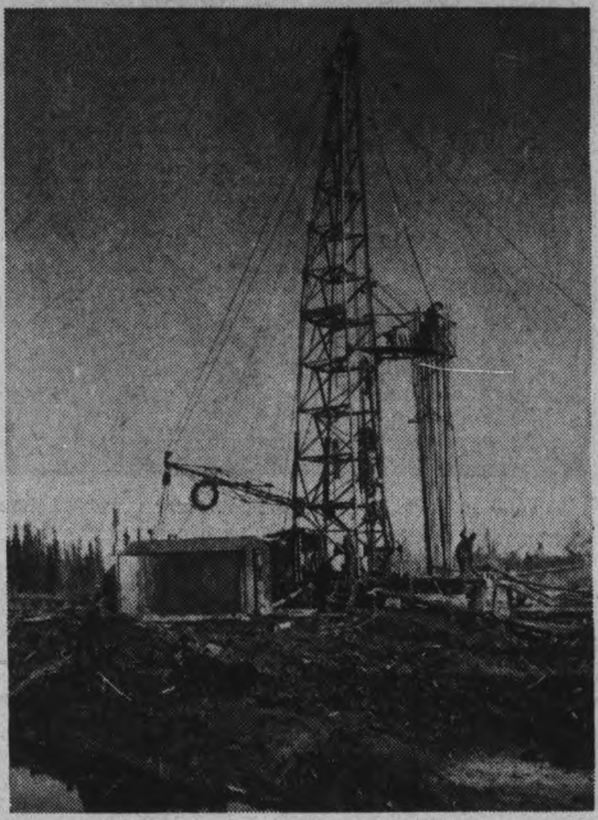


Dr. Link discovered first well at Norman in 1919.

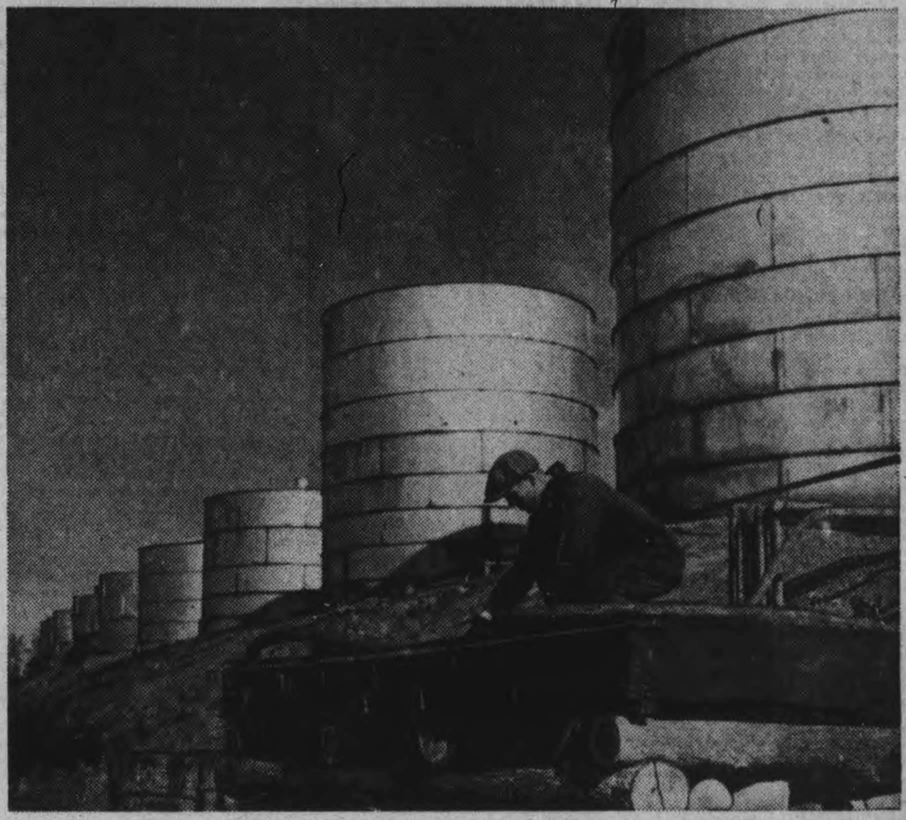
"Ted" Rick, oil driller from Turner Valley, Alta.



Canadian and American geologists prepare to lash canoe to pontoon of plane on Mackenzie River. Canadian-built airplanes (as above) and many larger transports played vital role in building of pipeline from Norman to Alcan.



Canadian drilling crew operates derrick in middle of swamp in Norman oil fields near Arctic circle. These wells will feed oil to Alaska via pipeline.



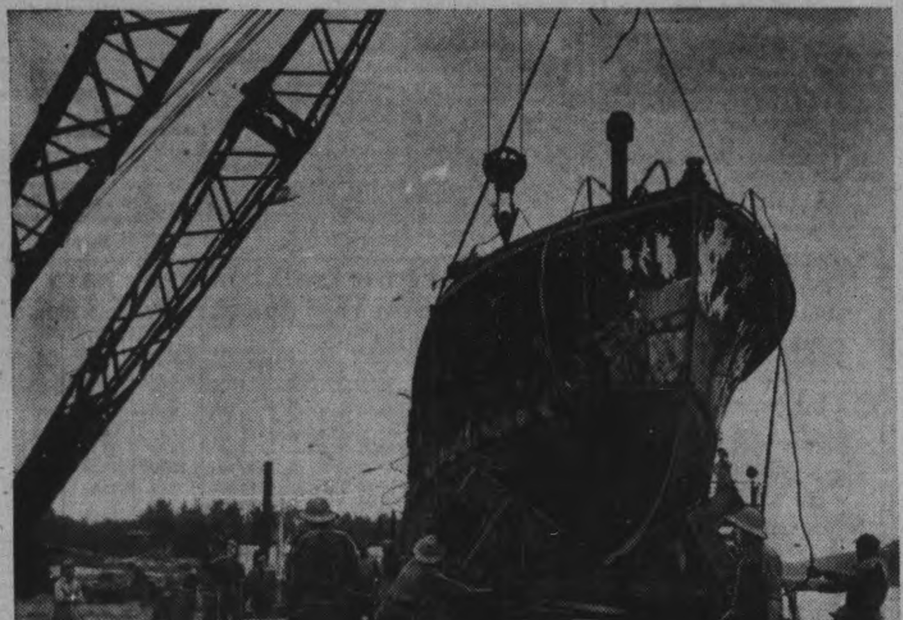
Tanks at Norman refinery which supplies fuel to trucks, caterpillars working on Canol and to boats on Mackenzie River. Canol's 500-mile pipeline will carry crude oil across Northwest Territories to Alaska Highway and beyond.

Construction of the oil conduit has been largely a problem of transportation. Women, too, play a part in river shipping. This is Mrs. Macniski at tug's helm.

Toughest hurdle in the 1,000-mile haul from railhead at Ft. MacMurray to Norman down Athabaska, Slave and Mackenzie Rivers is 16-mile Pelican Rapids portage.

From spot shown above tugs, barges and their loads were pulled from water, towed by caterpillars to Ft. Smith and launched for final leg of trip to Norman.

At booming Whitehorse, Western end of pipe, women have invaded this town of gold rush era. Sarrette Neidlinger and LAC Arvisais, Ottawa, go fishing.



To carry vast amount of equipment and supplies needed at Norman to build pipeline and road which follows it, ships were constructed overnight at MacMurray. Here completed tug is loaded on barge for shipment to Norman.

Scores of welders from every corner in America are welding joints of pipe in Canadian north. Red Funk of Los Angeles and Will Knight, Minneapolis, at work.

This is what the completed pipeline looks like. A section of the conduit winding through wilderness in the Whitehorse area in Yukon receives minute inspection of Texas oilman. Many pumps along line will boost oil pressure.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

In the absence of Mr. Groombridge will all leaders phone or send their reports and news for this column to Mrs. Langhorne, 272 Lansdowne street, telephone 3896.

At the recent opening ceremonies of the new hut several camera enthusiasts were present and pictures or the negatives are wanted so that an album can be started and a pictorial record kept of the activities at Nassau.

Camp Site Name

A prize to the Scout, and one to the Cub who submits the best name for our grounds, has been announced by Mr. B. Ottewell, the president of the local association. Entries should be submitted to the Scouter without delay.

Honour Roll

Commissioner Ernie Wolff has suggested that an honor roll of all our Scouters and Scouts who are on active service be prepared. Their names and full details as to Scouting service at the time of enlistment should be sent to Mrs. Langhorne.

The Wheeler Trophy

Scout leaders are looking for information about this trophy. It was last heard of about 1926. Any information should be sent to Mr. Wolff, 452 Donegal street or telephone 9044.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting will be held on Wednesday, October 27. A full attendance of all leaders is desired together with a yearly report of all troop or pack progress. Representatives should be on hand with a written report so that the local association may know of all activities.

Apple Day

Saturday, October 16 is the great day. The Hut, nice as it is, needs more money spent on it yet, and Apple Day is the only means the Scouts have of raising funds.

2nd Armour

The moon shone brightly at the Council Rock and Bobby Harvey led the Pack in the grand howl. A game of motoring was played led by Baloo instruction on tenderpad, 1st star and signalling was given.

Three new Chums received their white neckerchiefs, Billie Minnie Norman Thomas, Douglas Baptie.

Visitors to the Pack were Mrs. Langhorne and Mr. Gordon Lacheur, a former Cub leader of London, Ont., and now in the forces. Every Cub is asked to be present for final instruction for Apple Day, at next Tuesday's meeting. Those Cubs who have not brought baskets for decoration will do so then. A "cheer-up" basket has been sent to Harold Burns.

5th Pack

The meeting commenced with the grand howl, after which inspection was taken by Baboo and Kim. The marks were as follows: Red Six, 8; Blue Six, 9; White Six, 6; Brown Six, 8; Yellow Six, 9; Black Six, 8.

During inspection Mr. Hope gave the Pack details of Apple Day. After that star work was proceeded with, Scouter Ingham taking the semaphore class comprised of Gerald Excell, Bryan Young, Bobby Webb and Walter Downes. New Chums were taught their tenderpad tests by Akela and Kim and Baloo took the rest of the boys in their knots. There were several promotions as follows:

Senior Sixer, Gerald Excell; Sixers, Floyd Roberts, Spencer Hope, Bryan Young, Walter Downes; Seconds, Marvin Buchan, Douglas Leach, Freddy Jay.

St. John's

The evening was divided into game, instruction and redflower. Mr. Clegg, who visited the Pack again this week, helped with the knot tieing and Scout Jim Collis helped with signalling. Larry Cunningham was promoted to seconder of the Green Six. Albert Buckton was awarded the Jungle name of Wontella.

The Pack was asked to bring their fat collection to Raksha's home, 243 McDonnel street during Akela's absence.

Mr. Hope paid a short visit to the Pack and presented Baloo and Raksha with their Canadian Akela badge (part 2) certificates.

Many of Peterborough's well dressed men have their suits made here. Individuality, best of materials, expert workmanship at prices that invite comparison.

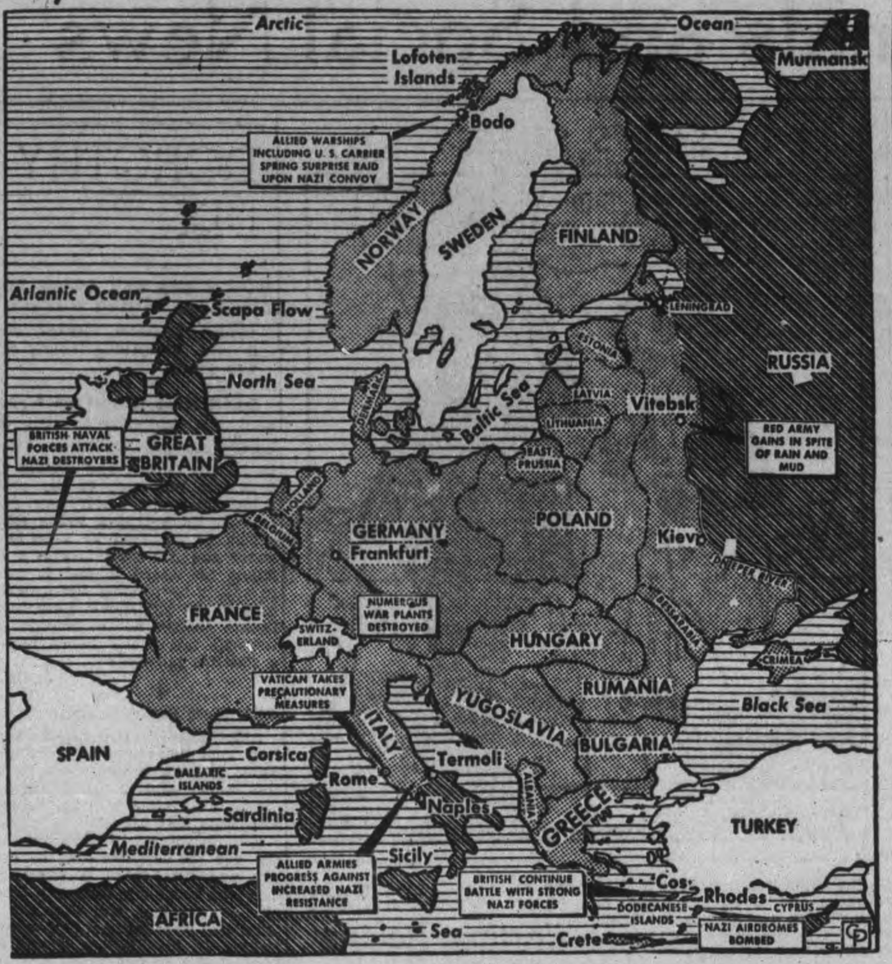
Where Allies Are Breaking Down Nazi Resistance



In spite of stiffening Nazi resistance along the whole Italian front, Allied armies are making slow but steady progress toward Rome. On the Dodecanese Island of Cos in the eastern Mediterranean British troops are still battling strong German forces. Nazi air bases on the islands of Rhodes and Crete are also under bombardment by Allied planes, and German naval and shipping power has suffered heavy blows off the coasts of Norway and northwest France.

Russo who pitched and hit the Yanks to a win....Dickey and Chandler deserve the applause for yesterday....Chandler allowed ten hits but closed up tight in the jams....If the Cards had managed to pull yesterday's game out of the fire, they would have been weakened for the best of the series by the loss of Walker Cooper who had a finger broken by a foul ball.....Mort Cooper in striking out the first five Yanks to face him equalled a record set by Carl Hubbell. Hod Eller of the Cincinnati Reds struck out six Chicago White Sox in 1919 but that was the year of the phoney series....Southworth pulled out Walker and Litwhiler for Garms and Hopp to get more hitting power and the two did not get a hit while Walker and Litwhiler were used as pinch-hitters and both came through with a blow. Who'd be a manager?

Kawartha Golfer

as Payne was executing a difficult shot out of the rough, called, "Come Pat, get away from there, come here, sir." The dog could have heard him, if he had been on Armour Hill. In any case Payne lost the hole and went two down. Payne won the twelfth, and then lost three in a row. The sixteenth was halved, Dunfield won the seventeenth, the eighteenth was halved and Dunfield carried a five hole lead to the Kawartha course, where the match was resumed in the afternoon.

Poor Putting

In the afternoon round, Payne's putter, again proved to be the poorest club in his bag, and if this club had been working for him, the match would have been pro-longed. Neither of these golfers were scoring well, as their individual score indicates. Nevertheless, Dunfield took the first three holes. The fourth was halved, Dunfield took the fifth, they halved the next three and Payne won the ninth, the only hole he won in the afternoon round. It looked very much as if Payne was going to win another on the tenth. Dunfield's drive was bad, and his second shot was topped. Payne's third shot was in the bunker on the left of the green, and when he came out he rolled over the green. Dunfield's third shot was to the right of the green, but he came up to within six feet of the pin with his fourth. Payne left himself a long putt for a six which he missed, and Dunfield played it safe for a sure six, the match, and the Girven Trophy.

Both Payne and Dunfield are fine golfers and fine sportsmen. It was a good match to watch, but it seems a shame that these club championships cannot be decided earlier, so the title-holders won't have to play in weather as cold as it was today. During the morning round, when one of the caddies wanted to wash a ball, they first had to break the ice on top of the water pails. Both players were literally, under wraps".

It isn't any fun to play in weather like that, and it isn't fair to two good golfers.

The scores.

Salmonbellies Tie Lacrosse

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Oct. 12—(CP)—The Canadian championship lacrosse best-of-five series between New Westminster Salmonbellies and Mimico-Brampton combines was deadlocked today, each with a victory.

A LITTLE CARE MEANS LONGER WEAR for Tires

Despite any optimistic reports you may hear about the tire situation in Canada, the plain fact is that the next six months are going to be the most critical of the war.

For that reason it is the patriotic duty of every Canadian car and truck owner to redouble his efforts to conserve rubber and make his tires last as long as possible.

Careful driving, regular inspection and preventative service are the secrets of long tire life. None of them cost much, but if properly used your tires will give you thousands of extra miles of service.

No matter what brand your tires may be, put them in the care of your nearest Firestone Dealer today. He has the skill, experience and equipment to be of definite help to you and will do everything in his power to prolong the life of your tires.

Need New Tires?
If you are eligible to replace tires, your nearby Firestone Dealer has the necessary application forms, will furnish the required Inspection Report and do everything he can in assisting you to obtain a Tire Ration Permit.

1. Check Inflation Each Week
Underinflation is the greatest enemy of tire life—have your tires checked every week, regularly.
2. Drive Slowly
High speeds use an excess amount of gasoline and greatly reduce tire mileage.
3. Stop and Start Slowly
Quick stops and starts tear off tread rubber and wear off miles of normal tread wear.
4. Take Curves Carefully
Rounding curves at high speeds can double the weight on the outside tire!
5. Avoid Rough Roads
The constant pounding on the tires on rough roads causes fast tread wear.
6. Check Alignment
Misaligned wheels cause tire to be dragged sideways and tread rubber is literally scraped off the tread at every revolution of the wheel.
7. Adjust Wheel Brakes
Have your brakes checked regularly to avoid grabby brakes which result in spotty and excessive tire wear.
8. Straighten Wheel Rims
Bent rims are often the cause of blowouts.
9. Don't Ride Car Rails
Streetcar rails help cars to ride more smoothly but create excess tire wear on the outer shoulders of the tire.
10. Rotate Tires Regularly
Rotating tires every 2500 miles in the manner illustrated at the right—using the spare—can increase tire mileage 25%.
11. Don't Bump Curbs
Running into curbs usually results in a bad break or ruined tire.
12. Have Tires Inspected Regularly
Besides spotting minor cuts and breaks, your Firestone Dealer can tell if your tires are receiving abnormal wear and advise you how to correct it.

The Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's church met in the Guild Room last week. Miss Cullen sang a solo, "One is Kind Above All Others." Much of the country is marsh or swamp land and one of the obstacles to the progress of missionary work is the difficulty of finding missionaries who can withstand the climate, she said. There are now 30 primary schools and two secondary schools for the education of the children. Missionaries who formerly worked in Formosa are now working there and there are 14 students at Bethel College. Mrs. Howson voiced the thanks of the meeting to the speaker and soloist of the afternoon.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Dear Mary Moore: Some friends of mine have moved to just south of the Canadian border from southern Missouri. The mother makes tamales, they are a cornmeal and meat mixture wrapped in corn husks. I don't like it that way but they also bake this mixture in a casserole and call it Baked Tamale. It is unusually cheap to make and very good to eat.

Baked Tamale

One and one-half cups cornmeal, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 cups chopped cold cooked meat, any kind is good but pork is best I think, 1 teaspoon chili powder, 1 cup stock—if none on hand use hot water. Boil 2 cups water and salt. Stir in cornmeal until mixture resembles a mush. Season meat with chili powder. Put layer cornmeal in baking dish. Add meat. Cover with balance of corn meal. Pour in beef stock or water. Bake in moderate oven of 350 deg. Fahr. until nicely browned. These amounts will serve six.—Melanie Brown.

Thanks, Mrs. Brown. This mixture is good wrapped in parboiled cabbage leaves, and placed on baking dish and covered with either sour cream or tomato juice and baked. The cornmeal may be substituted with rice. A nice dish to experiment with if you are a venturesome cook.

WISE GIRLS CAN ASSAY LOVE DEPTHS IN "SWEET NOTHINGS"

Vanity, However, Makes Many Believe Everything Young Men Tell Them.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young man just beginning to step out among the girls. Of course, I take in all the parties and dances and I find it very easy to say pretty things to every pretty new jane. Do you think that a young fellow should be governed by a sense of honor and not make love to a girl unless he means it and is going to end it by popping the question, or that the girl should have intelligence enough not to consider all the soft talk a boy hands her as a bonafide proposal?

JOHN.

Girls Must Recognize Salve

ANSWER—I think any girl should have gumption enough to be able to assay a boy's conversation at its true worth, and to distinguish between a flirtation and the sort of attentions that are with intentions.

When a youth tells a maiden that she has the loveliest eyes he ever saw and that there is something different about her from any other girl he ever met, and that she is the dream girl for whom he has been seeking all his life, she should let these dulcet sounds caress one ear and go out of the other. Thereby a pleasant time is had by one and all, for there is no woman who does not enjoy being flattered, and there is no man who has a nifty line with women who does not like to exhibit it.

The trouble is that many girls have so much vanity that they believe everything of a complimentary nature that a man says to them. Particularly they believe that every man they encounter falls for their charms, and this makes it dangerous to jolly a girl who may think that you are asking her to marry you, when you are merely attempting to make light and pleasant conversation.

Many a man has found himself engaged to a young woman who put her own interpretation upon his words. So this makes it inadvisable for you to go around making indiscriminate love. This is a pity because it cramps the style of many an amateur Romeo and prevents many a girl from having even one hour of love-making in the moonlight to remember.

The pretty things that men say to women are like the flowers that spring up along the arid pathway of life and that they like to gather up in their memory and make into nosegays and preserve among their treasures. The world be a poorer place if we had to dig down and grub these up to see if they had any roots.

So go along and scatter your compliments broadcast, and may Heaven protect you from a breach of promise suit.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a schoolgirl of 18 desperately in need of good advice, for I have no mother. Here is my problem: My father's friend, who is a married man, started a flirtation with me some time ago and I hate and loathe him, but I do not know how to rid myself of him. My father is a widower and I keep house for him. He goes out every Friday night and I am left alone, and this man takes advantage of knowing that to come to the house, pretending that he wants something. He seizes me in his arms and kisses me, no matter how I struggle and protest.

I told him that he had no right to treat me that way and that I was going to tell his wife, but it did not scare him off. I have threatened him so many times that it does not bother him now, but I am scared. What can I do about it? Shall I tell my father, although this man is his friend? Or shall I tell his wife about the affair?

TERRY.

Father's Friend Dangerous to Girl

ANSWER—Tell your father about it, and if he is anything of a man, to say nothing of being a father, he will see that this loathesome old Lothario keeps his hands off of you and comes no more to the house.

You are in terrible danger, so act at once. If there is no other way of avoiding this man, go out yourself the night your father is not at home. An old man who has set his filthy eyes upon a young girl is far more dangerous and merciless than any young man. So beware of him.

There is no use in your going to his wife, because he would lie out of it and probably accuse you of pursuing him. It is your father who should protect you.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—What do you think of soldiers' brides who continue to have boy friends with whom they go out on necking parties, yet say they are being true to their husbands? What do men and boys think of a girl who will allow such familarities while her soldier husband is off fighting for his country?

A DAILY READER.

Necking Not for Soldiers' Brides

ANSWER—It is too much to expect of a young girl that she should be cut off from all the pleasures of her age all the time that her husband is in the army, and do nothing but sit at home and knit sweaters and worry over her Tom, Dick or Harry. Hence I can see no objection to her going around a bit with the crowd of boys and girls she has been accustomed going with, provided that they d[o] go in crowds and not in pairs.

But it is a very different thin[g] when she resumes the petting part with some draft dodger that sh[e] called off when she married he[r] soldier. That made all kissing an[d] caressing and love-making taboo and she is breaking her marriag[e] vows when she does it.

Certainly any wife who had

WEEKLY WARTIME FOOD HINTS

Martha Logan, Swift's famed Home Economist, whose weekly cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints every Monday

by Martha Logan

Simmering's the Secret

You get the most from meats in groups C and D by slow, moist cooking

The bones in meats give extra value in meat stews. These extend the appetizing meat flavour and make the most of its nutritional essentials by combining with other foods.

Meat stew is a time saver, too. It is as good, or better, served the second day—may be cooked at any time and reheated at the dinner hour. Wide variation can be obtained by different seasonings and different combinations of vegetables.

SEVEN TIPS FOR STEWS

1. Cut meat into uniform pieces.
2. Coat with well seasoned flour.
3. Brown meat in fat.
4. Add just enough liquid (water, vegetable stock, tomato juice) to cover meat.
5. Cover closely and cook at simmering temperature. Never boil.
6. Add vegetables just long enough before serving to cook.
7. Arrange attractively on platter or in casserole.

For instance, try
SAVOURY STEW WITH VEGETABLES:—

2 lbs. stew meat (Beef, Veal or Lamb)

Flour	2 bay leaves
1½ tsp. salt	4 stalks celery cut in 1" pieces
¼ tsp. pepper	1 green pepper diced
2 tbsps. dripping	4 carrots sliced
2 onions chopped	Potatoes quartered as required.
2 cups tomatoes
3 cups boiling water

Cut meat in small cubes, roll in flour seasoned with salt and pepper, brown in hot fat with the chopped onions. Add bay leaves, tomatoes and boiling water. Simmer with bones if they came with the meat for 1 to 2 hours. Remove bones, and add celery, green pepper and carrots, and potatoes. Simmer till vegetables are done.- Serves 6 to 8.

Start Survey To Register Ball Players

TORONTO, Oct. 12—(CP)—A continent-wide registration of sandlot baseball players had been set for March 25, 1944, the National Baseball Congress announced today.

Under the plan, any male from 15 to 50 years of age who wants to play baseball may register at one of the 8,500 sporting goods stores throughout Canada and the United States. Special blanks will be provided on which the player is to state his age, address, playing position and previous baseball experience.

"From an estimated 1,500,000 persons who will register, movemements will follow to organize them into teams in each section," said the announcement, made by Canadian Commissioner Lloyd Douglas with approval of President Ray Dumont.

The Congress also announced that more than 250,000 official playing rules books will be distributed in Canada and the United States starting March 1 in an effort to stimulate interest in the registration plan. It was previously announced by the Congress that a sandlot "World Series" will be held starting Aug. 29, 1944, between the Canadian and United States sandlot champions.

Must Be Released

CALGARY — (CP). — At its annual meeting yesterday, the Alberta Amateur Hockey Association ruled that Eddie Kutts, Edmonton defenceman who has already toured to Montreal to play with Royals, will have to apply for a release from the Edmonton club. Jack Moss was re-elected president of the provincial body.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

With Winnipeg United Services winning its first game of the Western Football Conference yesterday 12-0 against Regina Rough Riders, the standing of the league began to jell in indication of championship prospects and the right to travel to meet the eastern defenders of the Grey trophy.

Following yesterday's encounter in the Manitoba capital, the Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers stood out in front with three wins against no losses for six points while Regina's record was one victory to three defeats and Winnipeg United Services had one win and two losses. In individual scoring roles, Chester McCance, Bomber backfielder, holds leadership with 22 points on four touchdowns and two converts. Ontario fans remember big Ches with Blue Bombers when they captured the Dominion honors in 1939 and 1941.

Playing the whole game without substitutions, Ridley College came from behind to trounce London Central College 23-6 at St. Catharines on the holiday. Half-time score stood 6-0 for the visitors and it was a tie 6-all at the end of the third period but Ridley counted three majors in the last quarter, two being converted.

Wins Road Race.

Product of Watertown High school Wilmer (Whitey) Sheridan yesterday ran brilliantly to capture the annual five-mile road race of the Guelph Athletic Association in 27:41, finishing 120 yards ahead of LAC. Ab Morton of Toronto, with Bernard Westley of St. Catharines third; Milt Wallace of Simcoe fourth and Mike Valeriote of Guelph fifth.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs charged through Hamilton Navy 23-0 in a scrappy grid fixture Saturday which opened the new sports field of the Advanced Driving and Maintenance school at Woodstock.

After much pre-game arguing by Regina Rough Riders as to whether they would or would not play the scheduled football game at Winnipeg Saturday night, the match was staged under the floodlights and the R.C.A.F. Bombers romped away with a 29-0 verdict before 2,000 fans. Ches McCance and LAC. Johnny Lake scored 19 points between them.

The 10-round scrap scheduled for Monday night at New Orleans between Jackie Callura of Hamilton and Juan Villabra of Cuba was postponed until Wednesday, Oct. 20 because the Canadian boxer advised the promoter Dominion government officials could not issue his passport until probably Tuesday.

Clock Stopped

The unusual happened in the college football game at Ann Arbor Saturday when Notre Dame and Michigan played for 23 minutes in the third quarter instead of the usual 15 because the official clock stopped. The officials cut the fourth period to seven minutes. The Irish bowled over Michigan 35-12.

The Duke University and North Carolina Navy pre-flight teams made football history Saturday when they flew by three transport-glider trains to Camp Mackall, N.C., for their scheduled match arriving at the camp airfield without incident. Navy then beat Duke 14-13.

4-Hit Job

Sport history was made at Ingersoll Saturday when a lady battery, Mrs. Pete Williams pitching and Sadie Watson catching, performed for Ingersoll Combines in a softball exhibition against Oxford Rifles, all other players being of the male sex. Combines won 14-2, with Mrs. Williams being credited with four-hit twirling for the nine innings.

Preston Rivulettes are no longer the queens of provincial softball, having dropped the second straight game of the championship series 14-5 to Stratford Kroehlers Saturday, the classic city crew winning the match of the previous week, 7-6.

Manager Jewel Ens of the Syracuse Chiefs has come out strongly for a standardized baseball for the minor leagues, following defeat of his team by Columbus in the Little World Series. The lively ball in the American and Southern Associations permits players to run up high batting averages, he argued, while pitchers are the whole show in the International League with a "dead ball."

Need 30 Players

WINNIPEG — (CP). — Arriving in Winnipeg for the opening of New York Rangers' training camp, Manager Lester Patrick declared the N.H.L. club and New York Rovers needed about 30 players. Only two Ranger regulars, Defenceman Ott Heller and forward Grant Warwick, would be back, he declared. Training will start on Thursday.

Army Meet Drew Noted Athletes

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Somewhere in England, Oct. 12—(CP)—The hardest-working man at the Canadian army track and field championships was Brig. P. C. Teese, former Vancouver maths and physics teacher. The brigadier was referee-in-chief and kept up a terrific pace throughout the morning eliminations and afternoon finals.

Some of the Dominion's best-known athletes in peacetime helped him as officials including Lieut. Hawley (Huck) Welch, the star Hamilton, Ont., footballer; Maj. Joe Lamb and Capt. Stu Evans, former National League hockeyists, and Capt. Don Grant, a lot heftier than when he was pole-vaulting at Upper Canada College.

If the war hadn't come along, Sgt. Gordon Bortolussi of Powel River, B.C. probably would have come overseas anyway — but to an Olympics instead of the battle arena. The wire-legged sprint star has been knocking off the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds and less regularly. His 10.2 for the 100 and 22.8 for the 220 at the army meet were made against a strong wind.

The Gore brothers from St. Johns, Antigua, B.W.I., Sgt. L. E. and Sigmn C.W., both broke the army record in finishing one-two in the 16-pound shot put. The sergeant put the shot 42 feet, 4⅝ inches to win. The old mark was 40 feet, 2⅛ inches, set by Pte. N. MacRitchie, Aug. 1, 1942 at Halifax.

The only American in the meet, Pte. W. L. St. John of Pomona, Calif., won the high jump with a leap of 5 feet 10¼ inches, a quarter-inch better than the old record. Capt. Earl Anderson of Digby, N.S. was second and those who knew him at McGill University were surprised to see him jumping. He was a shot-putter at McGill.

The three-mile race provided one of the strangest events of the championships. The race was won by Cpl. A. T. McLean of Athens, Ont., with Cpl. G. Elliott of Hamilton second. With two laps to go Elliott crossed the finish line ahead of McLean thinking he had won and by the time he started out after McLean again when the officials told him he had another lap, it was too late.

New Badman Gotch Here Tonight

Jan Gotch, the rough tough namesake of the great former champion has been added to tonight's wrestling card at the Brock Arena. Gotch a burly two hundred and thirty pounder with a reputation for harsh treatment of his opponents, meets Skyscraper Joe Christie. Tony Doc. Felice has been "getting away with murder" in his bouts here lately and that is the reason he has been matched with the reputation-wrecker Al Bunny Dunlop. The veteran Felice is a tricky customer who does not hesitate to resort to the most illegal mat stuff if he can get away with it, but in the two hundred and forty pound Dunlop he will likely meet more than his match. Dunlop is the strongman of the game in this section at least and he packs an awful wallop.

These two bouts should do more than warm the audience up tonight while waiting for the important main battle between Earl McCready and John Katan. With only one or two possible exceptions, Katan and McCready must be considered two of the greatest wrestlers the British Empire has produced. Each is a regular library of wrestling holds and locks and each is big and strong. Where McCready may have a slight edge in the science end, Katan probably balances that up with his rough work. The fans who have seen both in action rather favor Earl as the ultimate winner but not before a good deal of smashing action has taken place.

2-Hit Job

CHATHAM — (CP). — Baseball competition came to a finish yesterday in the Western Counties Association when a holiday crowd witnessed a two-hit performance by Bill Wagner, moundsman for No. 12 Basic Training Centre, which enabled the Soldiers to cop the Senior A title from London Iroquois, the score being 8-0. Chatham had previously won the first tilt in London 12-2.

Golf Pro Dies

Di Mag In Trouble

LOS ANGELES — (AP).— Former actress Dorothy Arnold filed suit for divorce on Monday against her husband, Sgt. Joe DiMaggio of the U.S. Army, late star outfielder of the New York Yankees, charging mental cruelty.

LAWN BOWLING

Commencing on Monday, May 24, and bowling almost continually up to and including Monday, October 11; the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club closed out its 1943 season with fourteen mixed rinks yesterday afternoon; and off-hand we would say that the attendance on the closing day was well above the average. We could relate at great length a lot of outstanding events that have taken place during the four and one-half months of bowling. We could recall many interesting conversations; we could draw the attention of our bowlers how they with hteir last bowl won that particular game, or lost it; we could also bring to the bowlers' attention the time they scored a big seven end or maybe an eight-end; but time and particularly space will not permit us to do so; perhaps at some other time we will. However, we hope our boys and girls have had a good season. We hope they have enjoyed themselves; and while we know everybody cannot always win, we know their day will come.

And as our closing contribution of bowling news for this season we would like to quote a few lines we read the other day, author anonymous:

Never mind yesterday, life is to-day;
Never mind yesterday, lay it away;
Never mind anything over and done,
Here is a new moment, lit with new sun,
Never mind that which was once on a time,
To-morrow rings in with its new sheaf of rhyme;
Yesterday's shadow scarce drags down the lane
Ere silver-shod morning comes dancing again.

The winning rinks yesterday were skipped by J. Cullen, R. Burns, B. Chesler, and G. Coleman, Jr.

Wins "B" Title

MAIDSTONE — (CP). — The last of the O.B.A. provincial titles for the season were decided when Maidstone Shamrocks took Camp Borden into camp 3-3 in the third and deciding game on Sunday for the Intermediate B championship.

Jack has...
Jack is Sector Warden in the A.R.P., has five wardens under him. That means he's responsible for homes, stores and a large factory in his Sector. He's caretaker of a downtown building, lives with his wife and daughter in the penthouse apartment. Veteran of two wars, Jack tried to enlist in this war, too. "They said I was too old, but there's plenty of life in the old dog yet," he says. "I've got more energy than a lot of these young fellows. Two or three nights a week on A.R.P. besides my job means I have to keep fit."

So I'm careful about my habits. I never take harsh cathartics. Instead, I make sure I get plenty of 'bulk' in my diet. It's easy! I just have a big bowl of Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning. They help keep me fit to do my work and extra things too . . . and I certainly go for their flavour!"
If you want to keep fit for extra things; take these two steps to health: 1. To get well, see your doctor; 2. to keep well, watch your habits. Avoid incomplete elimination. Gently laxative, Kellogg's Bran Flakes With Other Parts Of Wheat help supply valuable minerals and proteins too. And they're so crisp and appetizing, you'll want to eat them every morning. Service Is Held Thanksgiving Day

A Thanksgiving Day service was held by First Church of Christ, Scientist here, in the church edifice, 183 Charlotte street, at 11 o'clock on the morning of Thanksgiving Day.

The service opened with the congregation singing the hymn, "In Mercy, in Goodness, How Great Is Our King, Our Tribute, Thanksgiving, With Glad Hearts We Bring."

The Thanksgiving Proclamation by the Governor-General of Canada was read by Mrs. Mabel L. Louden, the First Reader.

The Scriptural selections were Psalms 100-5107-95 (1-3) and were read by the First Reader.

The Lesson-Sermon for Thanksgiving Day given in the Christian Science Quarterly and read in all Christian Science churches in Canada and many other parts of the world, followed. The subject of this Lesson-Sermon was "Thanksgiving" and had for the Golden Text: "What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me? I will offer to thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and will call upon the name of the Lord." (Psalms 116:12, 17).

After the responsive reading of Bible passages, Miss Lillian Elliott, the Second Reader, read the citations from the Bible, while Mrs. Mabel L. Louden, the First Reader, read the correlative passages.

Among the Scriptural verses was included: "I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men; For kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty." (1 Timothy 2:1, 2).

A solo, "Grateful, O Lord, Am I" by Caro Roma, was sung by Mrs. Wm. Hepburn, the soloist, after the Lesson-Sermon had been concluded.

Testimonials appropriate to the occasion were then given by Christian Scientists in the congregation. This period was completely filled by expressions of gratitude for healings and other help received during the past year.

The closing hymn was, "Now Thank We All Our God, With Grateful Hearts and Voices," and was followed by the Scientific Statement of Being and the correlative passage from 1 John 3:1-3 read by the First Reader.

The meeting was concluded with the benediction.

Gossamer Covers October Land

The countryside and even the city lawns and gardens were spun with gossamer, and airy symbol of the season. These exceedingly fine and delicate filaments seem to be created spontaneously in the air, but naturalists long ago decided that gossamer is an autumnal product of small spiders.

It was laid upon the clods of earth recently plowed, upon the fields of stubble and in the city on the grassy and faded flower beds. They say gossamer is not exclusively a sign of the fall, but these calm October mornings and afternoons seem to be favorable to its magic appearance.

Gossamer seems to suggest the presence of obscure attendants of the season, binding up the land and the fields after the summer of fruitfulness with the fine filmy handicraft of fairies or Lilliputs.

As to the derivation of the word a legend suggests that it might have been a corruption of a French phrase "gaze a Marie" (gauze of Mary) from the fancy that Gossamer was originally the threads which fell from the shroud of the Virgin Mary at her assumption.

particle of affection for her husband, or a spark of patriotism in her, would not wish to add to the hardships that he is undergoing on some battle front by keeping him tormented with jealousy by picturing her in the arms of another man. It is because so many soldiers have their morale shot to pieces by their anxiety about what their wives are doing while they are away from them that makes the high commands in the army frown on war marriages.

DEAR MISS DIX—In our office we have been arguing about the type of clothes a "flapper" wears. One party thinks that the term is applied to the type of girl who wears flashy clothes and spike-heeled shoes. The other party says it is used to describe a girl who flaps, wears loose clothes, tweeds, low-heeled shoes and has a generally don't-care attitude. Which of us is right?

ANSWER — Neither. The term "flapper" originated in England where it applied to a very young gawky girl, and it has no reference whatever to her clothes. Over here we used to call adolescent girls "flappers" for want of a better name, but the term is becoming obsolete. Hep-cat is the word now.

Writing from Whitehorse, Yukon, to his parents, Stroyan Leith tells of meeting the first Peterborough man he greeted in the ten months he has been in the far north on special radio work with the Canadian Department of Transport. Going out at 5:30 a.m. recently to meet the incoming plane that had been delayed by bad weather, Mr. Leith met John T. Hornsby, Peterborough civil engineer, who has been employed with the Departement of Transport for nearly a year.

Are You Sure of Your Table Etiquette?

The "Plate-Passer" Annoys

Ah, such refinement — she thinks! But passing plates on and on only annoys other guests who wonder, "Who invited HER?"

It's correct to be guided by the host, who indicates which plate is whose. Usually the woman on his right is served first. If you are helping yourself to a dish near you, you might offer it to the person next you—but no elaborate passing!

Sure of such points—which are so easily learned—you can make such a charming impression. At the start of the meal, you let your partner pull out your chair for you. At the end, you leave your chair as it is—not awkwardly pushing it back in place.

You don't leave unpleasant pictures in people's minds—biting into a whole piece of bread, eating sticky iced cake with your fingers. You break the bread as you eat it, use a fork with iced cake. And chicken bones? How to eat asparagus, canapes?

Our 32-page booklet tells how to eat these and other foods. Describes correct use of silver, when to use fingers; gives dinner etiquette for hostess and guest—course by course. Explains what to do at teas, buffet parties, restaurants, clubs.

For your copy of GOOD TABLE MANNERS send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

ONE SUIT DECISIVE

ULTIMATE scores made at a No Trump game contract usually depend upon what is done in some crucial suit—either some long suit on the declarer's side or one led by the defenders. Usually it is the latter, with the fate of the contract depending on how many tricks are taken in it by the defense. That, in turn, depends on hold-up plays, overtaking of secondary honors and similar devices by the two sides.

North: ♠Q 9 6 5 ♥A J 9 8 ♦8 5 ♣K Q 4

West: ♠4 3 ♥6 5 3 ♦A J 9 3 2 ♣J 8 7

East: ♠K 8 7 2 ♥Q 4 2 ♦Q 10 ♣10 9 3 2

South: ♠A J 10 ♥K 10 7 ♦K 7 6 4 ♣A 6 5

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1-NT	Pass	2♠
Pass	3 NT

At some tables of the duplicate where this deal developed, North did not show his suits, but the same contract eventuated, and the same opening lead was made, the diamond 3, East, of course, putting in the Q.

Three declarers ducked that. When the 10 was returned, one foolishly put on the K to be killed by the A, and the rest of the diamonds were run, setting him. The other two held up the K when the 10 was fed back. In one of these cases, West overtook with his J and cashed the A, returned a fourth diamond to South's K in preference to helping the declarer with a lead of a new suit. Later that declarer, finessing hearts toward East for safety, lost a trick to the Q, but made his contract since to get nine tricks he was now compelled to play spades the risky way, counting East for the K, which worked.

Where South ducked the diamond 10 return lead at the third table, West did not overtake it. Hence the defenders got only two diamond tricks. The safe way then to play the major suits was toward West, who could not lead through the diamond K, and so that declarer scored a total of 11 tricks

One "shoot-the-works" declarer at a fourth table made 12 tricks by taking the diamond Q with his K and then guessing East for both outstanding major suits honors, which gave him four tricks in each of those suits, plus three clubs and a diamond.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠A 7 5 ♥Q 10 7 ♦K J 6 4 ♣K J 4

West: ♠K Q 6 ♥K J 8 ♦Q 9 8 ♣A Q 9 2

East: ♠9 4 3 2 ♥6 4 3 2 ♦5 ♣8 7 6 5

South: ♠J 10 8 ♥A 9 5 ♦A 10 7 3 2 ♣10 3

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

After West bids 1-No Trump and North doubles, what is the ablest ensuing action by all concerned on this deal?

Ralston Lauded By Buddy Of World War 1

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., Oct. 12— (CP)—In the last three years of the first Great War a colonel and a rifleman of the famous 85th Nova Scotia Highlanders built up a remarkable trust in each other. They were together in the first waves of assault troops plunging out of muddy trenches into black, death-filled nights, and when the colonel wanted someone to accompany him on special missions he would choose the rifleman.

Now, 25 years later, the colonel, still a colonel but now also Canada's defence minister, says that rifleman was "one of the best soldiers I've ever known." And the rifleman, now a major, says "I have never known a better leader.

They met again Saturday, Col. J. L. Ralston, the defence minister, and Maj. C. H. Harvey of Halifax, commanding the Canadian Armored Corps Guard of Honor when Col. Ralston officially opened the armored fighting vehicle cannon range on northernmost tip of Camp Borden's operational territory, near Meaford, Ont.

Flesh From Past

It was an undramatic moment, noticed by few. But in addressing the guard briefly after his inspection, Col. Ralston told them he knew they could have no better leader than "my old comrade," and explaining later, Maj. Harvey told how they were together from 1915 to 1919, how Col. Ralston was "the bravest man in our outfit."

In a day dominated by the modernities of this second Great War, it was a flash from the past. It soon was gone in the aircraft-like roar of the Ram tanks rumbling with training crews over this vital new training grounds, in the surprise of onlookers at the excellent marksmanship (three hits out of 10) showed by the Defence Minister firing the six-pounder turret gun from one of the Rams at stationary and moving targets.

During his inspection of the guard, after his brief conversation with Maj. Harvey, Col. Ralston spoke briefly to Trs. W. C. Porter of Gore Bay, Ont., and Raymond Swain and Leo Boudreau of Vancouver. Then, fingering the dust from his brown fedora and scuffing his well-worn black shoes in the red dust ground up by long processions of armored vehicles since the A.F.V. range opened unofficially last November, Col. Ralston told men who crowded informally around him that they held before them one of the greatest traditions in Canadian arms, and cautioned against feeling that there wouldn't be much fighting left for them in this war.

Mess Room Chatter

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Oct. 12 — (CP). — The boys in Canadian Bomber Group vouch for this one:

A squadron had orders to go to North Africa from the Canadian Group in Bomber Command. Five minutes after the boys landed a dog which enjoys the name of Wimpy was seen hanging around the new base. It aroused interest because the gunner had said goodbye to this dog of his back in the Bomber Command.

The skipper sent for the gunner and wanted to know how the dog got there.

Wings Abroad, official R.C.A.F. publication, in telling this story, reports that the gunner said he didn't know how Wimpy came to be down there in Africa.

"Did he walk?" said the skipper.

Still puzzled, the gunner said he didn't know.

"Well, did he fly?" queried the skipper.

Again the gunner reckoned he didn't know.

"Come on," said the skipper, "you must have some idea how Wimpy got here."

"Feel his fur," suggested the gunner. "It may still be wet."

With that the matter ended and Wimpy stayed on in Africa.

You'll maybe remember Chuck McDonald, the pilot from Toronto who brought his flaming Lancaster down in Swedish waters and saved himself and his crew, was interned and later released to fly again. He showed up in London with promotion from pilot officer to acting flight lieutenant and wearing the D.F.C. and Bar and the D.F.M. Now he's one of the happiest gents flying because he's been posted back to his old Lancaster squadron to finish out his second tour of operations as a pilot and has undertaken to do a third tour.

FO. Thomas Oscar Finnbogason, Winnipeg, Sgt. Joe Baker, Ottawa, and FO. Robert Lemon, St. Thomas, Ont., were flying on coastal patrol out of Iceland. Suddenly they spotted what they thought were three ships. Then just as suddenly, they discovered the ships were really submarines and attacked with depth charges. The subs replied with flak, but one was forced to submerge before the attack was broken off.

PO. Hank Marcotte, D.F.C., of Montreal is flying now on his third tour of bomber operations. He's in Wellingtons and already has flown one tour in the Middle East and one from the British bases. He says Naples has been the toughest target in the Mediterranean theatre for flak, but at that it's not anything like the Ruhr towns — more like the flak over Rotterdam or one of the Channel ports.

Young Man's War

It's a young man's war at the Flying Fortress bomber base in England that is called the "kindergarten" base, because of the age of its officers. Capt. Ivan Kiche of San Francisco, for instance, has just turned 20, and is believed to be the youngest fortress leader in the European theatre.

Potato Yield Shows Slight Gain

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 (CP). — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports a slight increase in 1943 potato crops as compared with 1942, but said the commercial sugar beets, peas and beans showed sizeable drops.

In its first estimate of 1943 production of late crops, the bureau set potato production at 43,041,000 hundredweight, compared with 42,882,000 hundredweight last year.

Only New Brunswick in the Maritimes showed increased production with a crop estimated at 9,648,000 hundredweight, compared with 6,818,000. The Ontario crop showed a slight increase.

Production of commercial sugar beet crops was estimated at 526,500 tons, compared with 716,600 a year ago. The acreage planted in 1943 was considerably smaller, most of the reduction taking place in Ontario.

Production of turnips, mangolds, etc., was estimated at 31,848,000 hundredweight from 162,600 acres, compared with 32,866,000 hundredweight from 157,800 acres in 1942.

Fodder corn was estimated to have yielded 4,021,000 tons from 474,800 acres, compared with 4,401,000 tons from 484,800 acres.

All cuttings of alfalfa amounted to 3,934,000 tons from 1,544,000 acres compared with 3,731,000 tons from 1,439,800 acres in 1942.

ITALY DECLARES WAR ON GERMANY

Plane Losses Cripple Nazi Force

Russians Launch New Push Against Kiev

LONDON, Oct. 13 — (CP). — With the German air force reported definitely on the defensive over the vast Russian front, Soviet armies were steadily developing their ever-widening bridgeheads on the west banks of the Dnieper River today, and have, according to Berlin, launched a new power drive north of the key city of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

Russian army newspaper Red Star reported the abandonment of aerial offensive tactics by the Nazis. The newspaper said the initiative has passed to the Soviet airmen and described the situation as a radical change from the earlier days of the campaign when the Germans were blockading Russian frontline airdromes, bombing air bases and sweeping the skies over the Russian front with huge formations of fighter planes.

Terrific bomber losses suffered by the Germans in air battles over Orel, Belgorod and Kharkov and the steady deterioration of enemy fighter strength combined to wipe out Nazi air superiority, according to Red Star, and today the Germans have turned from the mass operations to patrolling sorties, with only restricted bombing missions being carried out.

Making Good Progress

Berlin did not expand on its report of the new Russian drive "north of Kiev" but said strong Soviet attacks have been taking place since Monday and that

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 — (CP). — Consideration now is being given contracts under which Canada will supply the United Kingdom with vital food supplies in 1944, with the certainty the Dominion will continue a major factor in maintaining British rations, it was learned to-day.

One of the first contracts to be decided will be that for bacon. This year Canada is seeking to supply 75,000,000 pounds and officials said it was believed this objective would be attained because of a tremendous gain in hog production.

"There is a limit to production, and while it may not have been reached even yet, the prospects are that Canada will not undertake to provide the United Kingdom with any large additional quantity in 1944," said one authority.

"Canadian contracts usually are worded in such a way that the Dominion agrees to supply the United Kingdom with 'not less than' the amount announced."

Bacon Needs.

On this basis, Canada might undertake to provide bacon to the quantity of 675,000,000 pounds in 1944, plus whatever could be produced in addition.

Besides bacon, Canada is making an all-out effort this year to provide the United Kingdom with 150,000,000 pounds of cheese and 63,000,000 dozen eggs. There is little prospect that these contracts will be met in full, but alternative shipments, such as butter, mean that the total Canadian contribution in food will not be far short of what the British expected.

Officials said that reduced crops this year may have their effect on the amount of food Canada can export next year, but the major feed reserves in the West are a guarantee there will be no catastrophic reduction from this cause.

Labor and prices are important factors which cause some anxiety to the authorities.

With labor shortages, difficulties in obtaining machinery replacements and high wages in other industries, some farmers have indicated their desire for further price adjustments.

Army Leaves Reviewed; Plan Changes

More Generous Treatment Likely To Come

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 (CP).— More generous leave for army personnel serving in Canada is coming up, even though a recently-announced order increasing time-off for soldiers had to be cancelled, it was learned to-day.

The whole question of leaves, it is understood, is under review in joint discussions between the Army and the Air Force with a view to arriving at a system which will be about the same for both services.

Under the system now in effect soldiers are entitled to 14 days' furlough each year, with one 48-hour leave each month. Travelling time—extra days allowed to men who have to go long distances to get to their homes—depends largely on tthe exigencies of the service and the attitude of the officer commanding.

In an order announced October 5, the total amount of leave, exclusive of monthly "48's" was doubled. Seven days' leave every three months was authorized. There was to be no accumulation of leave except that men who, for any reason, did not get a seven-day leave could put two together and take a 14-day leave.

Travelling Time

In addition, specific provision was made for travelling time up to seven days on one leave each year. The time granted for the travelling was to be 24 hours less than the actual time to be spent, the first 24 hours' travelling time being absorbed in the ordinary leave.

Thus, a man going from Eastern Canada to British Columbia on a 14-day leave could be sure of having 13 days at home once a year, where as formerly—and under the still-existing arrangement — he might have to spend half of his leave travelling.

Air Force leaves are on a 14-day, once- a-year basis with 48's normally once a month but strictly in the discretion of the commanding officer and regarded as a privilege, not a right. In addition, however, certain personnel—notably aircrew in training — usually receive leaves at the time of shifts from one stage of their training to another.

Police Arrest Neighbor In Murder Case

HAMILTON, Oct. 13 — (CP). — A charge of vagrancy was laid today against Joseph Kennedy, neighbour of 24-year-old Mrs. Betty Edwards who died Monday night en route to hospital after she had been rescued with head battered from her blazing home.

Kennedy, who is about 55 years old, was arrested last night for questioning in connection with Mrs. Edward's death when he returned to his home after an absence of 24 hours. In Magistrate's Court today his hearing was adjourned eight days without plea.

Police officers announced last night that it had been established definitely that Mrs. Edwards, mother of two children and wife of LAC John Burton Edwards had been murdered. Her husband was stationed with the R.C.A.F. at Guelph, Ont.

Mrs. Edwards was found in the cellar of her home by firemen called to fight a fire there. Police said the case mainly hinged on what happened in the 20-minute interval between a telephone call she made to a cousin, Walter Ashworth, asking him to come to her house because she was lonely and frightened, and the time she was discovered in her burning home.

Frank Kennedy and his brother, Pte. J. A. Kennedy, sons of Joseph Kennedy, rescued the two Edwards children, Geraldine, five, and Robert, two, from the front bedroom of the apartment occupied by the Edwards. Kennedy's sons were visiting their parents' home next door when smoke was noticed filtering from a front room, the alarm was given and the children carried to safety.

Hun Booby Traps Show Ingenuity

By RELMAN MORIN

WITH THE 5th ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 9—(Delayed)—(AP)— The Germans have reached a new peak of ingenuity in laying mines and setting booby traps in the path of the advancing 5th Army.

Even veteran engineers who went through campaigns in North Africa and Sicily were surprised by what they are finding in Italy.

They said that new equipment as well as thousands of new methods of concealing their presence have been discovered in this campaign. The volume of mines and the size

Badoglio Issues Declaration To Fight Former Axis Partner

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 —(AP).—President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin announced to-day that Italy had declared war against Germany. The White House said Marshal Badoglio had communicated Italy's declaration against her former Axis partner to General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in the Mediterranean theatre. In his message to the general, Badoglio said that "by this act all ties with the dreadful past are broken and my government will be proud to be able to march with you on to the inevitable victory."

In a joint statement released by the White House, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Churchill and Stalin accepted "the active co-operation of the Italian nation and armed forces as a co-belligerent in the war against Germany."

Armistice Month Old.

Italy thus turned against her former partner a little more than a month after her armistice with the Allied Powers.

In a proclamation to the White House, Badoglia said that "shoulder to shoulder, we must march forward with our friends of the United States, of Great Britain, of Russia, and of all the other United Nations."

Badoglia said an Italian Government headed by himself would be completed shortly and that representatives of every political party would be invited to participate so that it may constitute a true expression of democratic government.

"The present arrangement will in no way impair the untrammelled right of the people of Italy to choose their own form of democratic government when peace is restored," the Marshal said.

"Italians! I inform you that His Majesty the King has given me the task of announcing today, the 13th day of October, the declaration of war against Germany."

In his proclamation to all Italians, Badoglio recalled that when the armistice was signed, his government ordered Italian troops to remain with their arms at rest but prepared to repel any act of violence from any source.

Resent Arrogance.

"With a synchronized action, which clearly reversed an order previously given by some high authority," Badoglio said, "German troops compelled some of our units to disarm, while, in most cases, they proceeded to a decisive attack against our troops. But German arrogance and ferocity did not stop here.

"We had already seen some examples of their behavior in the abuses of power, robbery and violence of all kinds perpetrated in Catania while they were still our allies. Even more savage incidents against our unarmed populations took place in Calabria, in the Puglie and in the area of Salerno.

"But where the ferocity of the enemy surpassed every limit of the human imagination was at Naples. The heroic population of that city,

Pravda Says Defeat Of Hitler Main Item When Tri-Power Parley Starts In Moscow

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Oct. 13 — (AP).—In the first announcement here that the tri-power conference would be held in Moscow, the Communist party organ Pravda let the world know today the Soviets do not intend to discuss frontiers or the status of the Baltics, declaring firmly that the second front and complete defeat of Hitler is the question before the meeting.

(It was believed in London, in Washington and elsewhere that State Secretary Cordell Hull would be the United States representative at the conference. London has announced that Foregin Secretary Eden would head the British delegation.)

In an editorial, Pravda commented on some conjectures appearing in the foreign press which stated that political questions would be uppermost on the agenda when the foreign secretaries shortly sit down across the conference table in Moscow.

"The New York Times and many other American papers say political and not military questions will be the main item before the conference, particularly questions regarding the post-war organization of Europe,' said the editorial. "These papers forget at the present moment the main task of the United Nations is to hasten the advent of the post - war period more rapidly."

Eastern Canadian Regiment Slogs Through Italy's Mud

By WILLIAM STEWART—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 8—(Delayed) — (CP Cable). — Infantry from Canada's Maritime Provinces, marching through mud in the worst weather of the Italian campaign, have broken out of the western end of a valley held by the enemy. The troops are continuing their advance in the direction of a hill town, next Canadian objective, as part of the British 8th Army's push up the Adriatic coast of Italy.

Meanwhile troops from an eastern Canada regiment moved across soggy ground on either side of the valley in driving rain, avoiding a road on which German artillery was moved.

The advance was made despite drenching weather. Low-hanging clouds concealed the mountain tops and the entire sector was shrouded with a cold mist.

The Maritime soldiers took over the lead from French-speaking troops who were pinned down Wednesday (October 6) at a river crossing by heavy mortar and shellfire with which the Germans swept the valley.

The Canadian forces brought up more and more artillery to the forward troops and sought out the German guns with high explosive.

On the Canadian northeast flank reconnaissance forces are still bumping into strong German positions while on the left flank western Canadian troops sent out patrols, one of which engaged a strong enemy outpost and fought a sharp engagement in which the patrol occupied a town.

The rain turned the Canadian sector into a great slippery expanse which slowed transport made river beds more difficult to negotiate and handicapped the fighting men who pushed on despite difficulties. Armored vehicles came to the rescue of some transport and, acting as tractors, dragged trucks through mud to road running with water.

Drivers had to proceed with great care, peering through dripping windshields.

Gunners stood by their Bofors and Oerlinkons although enemy air operations seemed out of the question because of zero visibility.

Engineers were hard at work keeping traffic going through detours. Supply columns kept steadily on the move.

While the rainy weather was hard on the Canadians it was just as hard on the enemy. Some prisoners say the German formations are low in strength, short of food and lightly clad.

Pope To Remain In Vatican City

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 13 —(AP)— Pope Pius apparently intends to remain in Vatican City even if Rome becomes a battleground, reports from Italy indicated today.

The Pope has been continuing his usual activities, these unconfirmed advices continued, and, although the papal guard of the Holy See has been increased, the Vatican's defence remains purely symbolical as the Swiss Guards are ordered never to use their rifles.

The Germans with three divisions in Rome have taken the Vatican "under protection," but German soldiers have not stepped inside the Roman Catholic religious centre nor has any move been taken to interfere with the Pope, dispatches from Rome said.

Fifth Army Advances Nine Miles

8th Army Troops Seize Riccia Gain Six Miles

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 13—(AP). — Battering down powerful enemy positions in central Italy, Allied troops have punched nine miles northeast of Pontelandolfo to seize San Croce, while the British 8th Army advancing along its entire front captured Riccia and Bonefro, official frontline dispatches announced today.

The plunge to San Croce sent deeper northward the spearhead outflanking the strong German Volturno River line.

Riccia, seized by the 8th Army, is eight miles northeast of San Croce.

Along the Adriatic coastal flank, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's troops smashed four miles ahead beyond Termoli against strong German resistance.

Bomb Gun Posts.

In air actions over Italy, American fighters wrecked one train and destroyed eight additional railway cars in an attack on the coastal railway northwest of Termoli. Direct hits were scored on cars loaded with motor transport and other equipment.

Enemy gun positions at Cercemaggiore, midway along the Allied line across Italy, were heavily pounded. These guns had been slowing the Allied infantry advances.

San Croce is 20 miles north of Benevento.

Bonefro, 20 miles southwest of Termoli and five miles northwest of British-held Colletorto, was captured after exceptionally sharp fighting.

People Dying In Thousands

NEW DELHI, Oct. 13 (CP)—The Central Indian Government decided today to take control over the food situation. The export of food grains was stopped to relieve the prevailing acute shortage.

The national food department announced provincial governments would be overridden if necessary.

(On Oct. 7 the mayor of Calcutta asked the mayors of London and New York to send food to Bengal province where "people are dying in thousands" of hunger.)

The announcement that food grain exports had been stopped was made at the opening of the fourth All-Indian Food Conference by Sir J. P. Srivastava, head of the Indian Government food department.

He said the government is making every effort to obtain more shipping for food imports, adding, "I have said the vastness of our problem cannot in existing condition be solved by importation alone."

"I am deeply grateful to His Majesty's Government (in the United Kingdom) and the Allied Nations for what they have already done to place shipping at our disposal," he said. "I appeal to them not to relax their efforts...."

Meanwhile the Delhi edition of the Statesman, India's largest English-language daily, said: "Health in Calcutta continues to deteriorate under the stress of famine. Recorded deaths in the empire's second city during the week ended Oct. 2 were 1,636 compared with 1,492 in the preceding week and 572 in the corresponding week of last year."

Churchill Deplores Political Battles

LONDON, Oct. 13 —(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill observed in Commons today:—

"As soon as the war is over the soldiers will leave off fighting and the politicians will begin."

"Perhaps that is rather a pity," he added, speaking of Great Britain, "but at any rate it is not so bad as the example of some other countries which I would not venture to name where the soldiers are fighting abroad and the politicians are fighting at home with equal vigor and ferocity."

Cabinet Shake-up Likely In Argentine

There had been many rumors of an impending cabinet shakeup in the last 10 days.

Portugal Flouts Nazis' Upraised Club

Action Proves Huns' Power To Frighten Nations Now Waning

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst.

Portugal's sturdy move in permitting Britain to use the Azores as a base has given us a powerful new weapon with which to combat the U-boat menace, but one of the most impressive aspects of the concession is the fact that this small country is the first of the little European neutrals to look Hitler squarely in the eye and say "Who's afraid of the big, bad wolf?"

The British press to-day is speculating hopefully whether Portugal may be the spearhead to open the way for other neutrals and nonbeligerents. So far as Europe is concerned, Sweden and Turkey are possibilities. And we shouldn't overlook the small Axis satellites—Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary—which are eagerly trying to find an escape from Hitler's clutch.

Plugs Blind Spot.

Some observers also seem to feel that Portugal's action in granting a base in the Azores, while still maintaining neutrality on the Continent, establishes a precedent under which Russia might lease the Allies air bases in Siberia, thereby immeasurably shortening the war against Japan. Certainly the precedent is interesting and perhaps useful, but I think we may take it for granted that any such move by Russia would be premised on a mutually satisfactory understanding on all disputed points at the coming Moscow conference among representatives of the Big Three—Russia, Britain and America.

From the military standpoint the Azores are a godsend to the Allies. There has been a "blind spot" in the Atlantic submarine warfare which land-based aircraft could not reach because of the great distance. Airraft based on the Azores can reach this area, and the protection will be particularly useful for our convoys going through the Mediterranean—a vastly important feature.

It's a matter of extreme satisfaction that we have this development just as Navy Secretary Frank Knox returns to his desk in Washington after his war-zone tour to warn that the renewed warfare of the German submarines in the North Atlantic is "very serious."

A Listening Post

It cannot but have a dampening effect on the Germans to see this further demonstration that the little countries are rapidly losing their fear of the great military machine which long terrified them. This will be driven home by recognition of the fact that, while Hitler might take revenge by some such move as the bombing of Lisbon, there is no way in which he can get at Portugal with advantage to himself, since Spain lies between him and his little tormentor. In short if the Fuehrer is smart he will hold his nose and swallow the medicine.

Actually, a "neutral" Portugal has been and may continue to be mighty useful both to the Germans and the Allies. Lisbon is one of the grandest listening posts in the world.

Thugs Beat Up Police Chief

Ingersoll's Chief Wounded in Battle With Prisoners

INGERSOLL, Ont., Oct. 13 — (CP). — Chief Constable Alexander Callander received a superficial bullet wound in the left groin, cuts on his head, face and one hand when attacked by two of three men whom he was guarding at police headquarters early to-day after they had been brought in by Constable John Holmes.

The weapon with which the officer was wounded had evidently been dropped from the automobile in which they were taken to police headquarters. It was later picked up by Constable Holmes and returned to the police office and placed on a table near which Chief Callander was seated, along with an iron wrecking bar that had been taken from the car.

The men aroused suspicion on the part of Constable Holmes when he first saw them on Thames Street shortly after 2 a.m. Some time later he saw them enter a car in front of the Cole Furniture Factory. As the car was pulling away the officer signalled them with his flashlight to stop. When they refused he threatened to shoot. On entering the car the officer commanded the driver to proceed to the police station, when Chief Constable Callander was called.

The Chief was attacked soon after Constable Holmes had left the office to investigate as to whether any burglaries had been committed. Two of the three men escaped during the melee and an intensive search now is in progress.

Police Capture Two Nazis

City Council Protests Lax Supervision

TORONTO, Oct. 13. — (CP).— Military District No. 2 Headquarters to-day announced that two of the five German seamen who escaped from an internment camp near Port Colborne over the week-end have been captured.

The men, G. Krause, 21, and H. Hoffman were picked up in Dunnville, Ont., by Dunnville town police headed by Constable Austin Hamilton. They are in Cayuga jail waiting for guards to escort them back to the internment camp.

Krause and Hoffman were among the five prisoners who escaped Monday from the Erie Peat Company workings, four miles northwest of Port Colborne, where they were working in the Wainfleet marsh as members of a "trusty" gang.

The remaining three—J. Gerrard, A. Kuehler and W. Schlueter—are being sought over a wide area by Ontario provincial and Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Port Colborne city council has decided to protest to the Dominion government the sending of prisoners-of-war into this area to work —a development following the escape of five German merchant seaman prisoners from peat beds near here during the week-end.

At the council meeting last night Mayor H. H. Knoll said that he had seen several of the prisoners wandering around in this area without guards, a statement supported by Councillor Ellery Neff.

FULL SCALE CAMPAIGN RAGES IN YUGOSLAVIA AGAINST PATRIOTS

Huns Moving More Troops Into Balkans

Yugoslavs Claim Partisans Hold Offensive

LONDON, Oct. 13—(CP).—Germany has discovered that she has insufficient soldiers in Yugoslavia to hold the Patriot armies at bay and has been forced to send in large reinforcements, a Yugoslav liberations army communique said today.

Troops that are badly needed along the Mediterranean front have been ordered by the German High Command to all sectors of Yugoslavia, particularly around Susak, Karlovac, Zagreb and Doboj, declared a war bulletin broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio.

The communique said that around these cities the Germans have concentrated sufficient strength to open an offensive against the Patriots.

The Swiss radio, broadcasting reports from Yugoslavia, said that Patriot forces had battled their way into the outskirts of the important city of Zagreb. The Yugoslav communique, however, made no mention of fighting in the Zagreb environs.

Repeated attempts by German troops to recapture Tuzla, agricultural centre 100 miles southwest of Belgrade, have been beaten off, the communique said.

In Slovenia, fierce fighting for possession of strategic railway lines continues, with the Partisans everywhere offering "stiff resistance" to well-equipped German forces.

Premier Chides Britons For Optimism

LONDON, Oct. 13—(CP).—Prime Minister Churchill, entering the House of Commons debate on coal, today said the British people would be "absolute fools" to count on "an altogether unexpected collapse" of the enemy.

"The worst fighing of the war so far as the British people are concerned lies ahead," the Prime Minister said.

For this reason, he told the House on the second day of the two-day coal debate, the Government will not at present attempt any "far-reaching changes of a controversial character," such as the labor proposal for nationalization of mines, because controversy might seriously impede the war effort.

Serving as leader of the House in Foreign Secretary Eden's absence, the Prime Minister took the unusual action of intervening in a purely domestic debate to redefine the national coalition under which all major parties co-operate in the Government.

The principle of this coalition, he said, is "everything for the war whether controversial or not, and nothing controversial that is not bonafide needed for the war."

War needs, he said, must not be used as a mere pretext for "far-reaching social or political changes."

The principle of nationalization of mines "is accepted by all provided compensation is paid," Mr. Churchill declared, but such a measure could not be taken without a general election which would be "difficult" under war conditions.

Therefore, he said, he would resist nationalization.

Mr. Churchill said the Government would not weaken the field forces to obtain more miners.

The coal debate was opened yesterday by Maj. Gwilym Lloyd George who announced men would be conscripted for the mines as for

Hogle Nursery Barn Destroyed

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13 (ENS)—A fire which did damage estimated at close to $3,000 completely destroyed a large storage barn and much irreplaceable equipment on the Hogle Nursery southeast of town yesterday afternoon. The outbreak occurred about 3.15 in the afternoon shortly after W. A. Hogle and an employee, Marm Maguire, had completed the installation of a new roof on the building. A large St. Bernard dog which had been securely tied with a horse fork rope to a stair case inside the barn escaped the flames by breaking loose, and the local fire department which was summoned to the scene could do little more than direct their efforts in preventing the spread of the fire to the nearby house as the barn was already a raging inferno and flames were shooting forty feet in the air.

According to Mr. Hogle, he and Mr. Maguire had just completed the installation of a new steel roof on the building and had walked across the field to another small storage barn a distance of three-eights of a mile. He had just put a key in the padlock when he happened to slip and as he did so looked in the direction of the house to see flames and smoke shooting into the air. "I ran the whole distance back", said Mr. Hogle "and by the time I got there the barn was a mass of flames and the heat was so intense I had to go around to the front door of the house. The first thing I thought of was the dog but when I got inside he was under the table." Mr. Hogle summoned the fire department, a task which was something of an effort after sprinting the distance he had come and they were soon on the scene fighting the flames with chemicals. Fire Chief C. B. Williams directed the work of the Department.

It was the careful use of their supply of chemical equipment (the nearest hydrant was beyond the reach of hose) and a change in the direction of wind which prevented the spread of flames to the house. The barn itself was a two storey frame building with basement where supplies were kept as well as on the ground and second floors. Included in the loss were five lawn mowers, two of which were used in connection with Nursery Golf Course and one of these a Fairway mower valued at $500.00. Others items destroyed were 800 tree guards, valuable parts of a sprayer which had been dismantled on the preceeding day and placed in the buildng for winter storage; two truck tires complete with rims;one-half ton of spaghmum moss; two tons of peat humus; 800 burlap bags; planters shovels and miscellaneous nursery equipment. Though Mr. Hogle is protected from loss by insurance much of the equipment destroyed will be impossible to replace until the war is over. The cause of the blaze is not known.

Merchant Sailor Tells Of Finding 27 Evacuee Children Dead In Boat

Some of the most thrilling stories yet gruesome in their reality were heard Tuesday evening when Frank Laskier, merchant seaman, addressed a meeting of the bank managers of the Peterborough district. Mr Laskier was brought to Peterborough by the National War Finance committee and was introduced by Charles L. McCutcheon, divisional organizer of the National War Finance Committee.

Mr. Laskier comes from a family of sea-faring warriors; he pointed out that sailors are not made—they are born. He has five brothers serving in the various branches of the Navy. Mr. Laskier first joined the Merchant Marine when only fifteen years of age. He saw service in the Spanish Civil War. Five days after the present World War broke out his ship was torpedoed without warning and very few survived. The Germans, not content with the destruction of the ship then trained their guns on the few survivors.

Mr. Laskier, evidently being born under a lucky star. survived this episode and again shipped on another boat in the Merchant Marine. This ship, too, was torpedoed and out of a compliment of eighty men, sixteen managed to get on a raft. It seems to be the code of the Germans to strike when a man is down and these survivors were shelled and six more were killed.

A story that will make the blood of every human being curdle was that told by Mr. Laskier when he related the extreme dread of sighting a floating lifeboat while he was on another ship. His ship managed to pull up to the floating lifeboat and to their horror they discovered that twenty-seven children ranging in years from 5 to 11, were on board. These children were survivors of a torpedoed ship, British evacuee children who had died from wounds and exposure. Mr. Laskier points out that if the war was raging in Canada, these could have been our children; the war is raging in countries over the seas, our Allies, and it is is up to us who still have safety to help protect the future of to-morrow.

A final experience told by Mr. Laskier, concerns the time his ship was torpedoed by the Von Sheer. He was on a thirty-five year old merchant marine vessel and only five escaped this disaster. Mr. Laskier lost a foot at this time.

Mr. Laskier was very strong in expressing the thoughts of the fifty-five thousand seamen for whom he spoke. He said they would never cease their efforts until Nazism is destroyed, and any German will be ashamed to be called as such. We, here in Canada have the opportunity to suppress this race by lending, not givin of ourselves, but lending our money during the Fifth Victory Loan Drive which begins October 18th.

of the minefields has increased also, experts said.

Delayed action charges—not with a time fuse but with a small trigger—are found in large numbers. These lie dead although passed over by 10 vehicles. The 11th goes up in pieces. Each time the lever clicks from pressure it operates like an ordinary jack for lifting an automobile. When the limit is reached the mine explodes.

Devilish Tricks

But it has been in accurately gauging psychology of the average soldier and trapping him in his most automatic actions that the Germans have surpassed themselves. Apple trees in the Italian orchards are heavy with fruit now. The most natural thing in the world for an infantryman passing the orchards is to drop out of the line of march long enough to pick apples.

Frequently that's sudden death. Over and over again the German have attached trip wires to branches hanging near the road. They have even hung what appears to be a cluster of apples to a branch hanging nearest the road and placed mines in the ground directly beneath.

It's not so far to Berlin now. But the Germans have taken all the pleasure out of walking.

Southwest of Colletorto, patrols of Gen. Montgomery's British, Canadian and Indian troops penetrated six miles to the village of Santa Elia.

Along the Volturno River line, a tremendous artillery duel raged, with British and American artillery of the 5th Army hurling hundreds of shells across the flooded stream.

The Nazis are reported to have brought up strong artillery units also, and front dispatches indicated their lines on the river's north bank are being strengthened against expected assault.

Armies Stalled.

There was no report of any fresh gains anywhere along the Volturno front, and nothing to indicate whether Allied patrols were succeeding in penetrating to the north bank to test the enemy's strength.

The break-through on the central front, which brought new threats of eventual flanking movements from the east against the Volturno line, also resulted in capture of the towns of Cercello, Colle and Celtelpagano.

On the 8th Army front from the Adriatic to the mountainous backbone of central Italy, Allied gains were general, while enemy opposition was uneven. At some points, patrols forged ahead against mild resistance, but the Germans fought back desperately elsewhere.

Possibility that the Germans are rushing heavy reinforcements to the Adriatic battlefront was seen in an Air Force announcement that Allied fighter-bombers had scored many hits on a train loaded with motor transports on the rail line between Pescara and Termoli.

which for weeks suffered every form of torment, strongly co-operated with the Anglo-American troops in putting the hated Germans to flight.

"Italians! There will not be peace in Italy as long as a single German remains upon our soil."

Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Churchill and Stalin also spoke of "brutal maltreatment by the Germans of the Italian population," which, coupled with military events since September 8, culminated in Italy's declaration of war.

Later in a press conference Badoglio hinted that Italian troops might be placed in the field with Allied armies. The Allies were openly hopeful that the declaration of war would stiffen Italian resistance in Nazi-occupied areas.

Badoglio in his statement declared that Italy could be freed now from the Germans only "by a united military effort in which we shall work in the closest possible manner with the British and American forces."

He said that Italians must fight against Germans in the Balkans, Yugoslavia, and Albania "to the last man."

Whether Italy's declaration of war on her onetime ally would result in the release of hundreds of thousands of Italian prisoners in Allied hands was not clear immediately.

Merge Committees On Post-War Work

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 — (CP). — A press release from the office of Prime Minister Mackenzie King to-day announced that the Government has accepted the recommendation of the James Advisory Committee on Reconstruction to merge that body with permanent Advisory Committee on Economic Policy, so that "detailed responsibility" for reconstruction planning may be undertaken by full-time Government officials.

The report also recommended that certain sub-committees of the Advisory Committee continue to exist to complete current investigations, and this also has been accepted, the statement said.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 13 — (CP). — Rye futures were stronger on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, and at the close of a moderately active session values were ¼ to ¾ cent a bushel higher. They reflected the previous day's gain at Chicago.

Stimulated by some local and commission house buying, coupled with light offerings, October rye climbed to a new seasonal high of $1.08⅜ in early trading. Small losses were recorded near the close, however, with the future dropping to $1.07⅝.

Cash coarse grain trading was on a small scale, with only odd cars of barley purchased for Eastern feed requirements.

Approximately 300,000 bushels of No. 3 Northern wheat were reported taken by the United States Commodity Credit Corporation over the Thanksgiving holiday.

Fifth Army Masses For Attack

8th Army Advance From Termoli Over Rough Ground

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 13 —(AP)—British 8th Army troops have advanced in the Termoli area in Italy, Allied Headquarters announced today, while in the central sector "our forces are moving steadily over difficult country."

"Fifth Army patrols again have been active and positions gained have been consolidated," the war bulletin added.

British patrols in the Termoli sector along the Adriatic "have pushed westwards vigorously."

Night bombers hammered road junctions around Vasto, 18 miles above Termoli, yesterday, and fighter-bombers struck at enemy gun positions and trains in the Termoli area.

Night-flying fleets also blasted at railroad bridges and yards at Civitavecchia, 40 miles northwest of Rome.

No Allied planes were lost.

The extent of new advances aground on the bitter Italian battlefront was not disclosed by the communique.

"Our business is to look after those who are often overlooked in social planning —the widows and orphans of men who had the courage to save for their own and their families' sake. Higher taxation and lower interest rates mean smaller returns from savings. Necessary in wartime, these hit hard the inarticulate people—widows and orphans; they have no union to protect them and no voice to speak for them. The Trust Company spends its time and performs its services to help them live."

CAMPBELLFORD

Cost-of-Living Bonus Given Hydro Workers

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13 (ENS) The Water and Light Commission was confronted with its second wartime request for a wage increase when they met for their October meeting. A deputation of employees waited on the Board asking for a $10.00 a month increase pointing out that employees of the Highway doing similar work with more modern equipment were drawing higher pay. Line foreman James McMullen was first to voice the employee's viewpoint and he was followed by Joseph Thain one of the operators who expressed similar views. The Board's positon in the matter was explained by Chairman J. O. Benor who approved of a suggestion that the $10.00 per month raise granted in October 1941 be cancelled and that in place of this a cost of livng bonus be granted to the employess. It was felt such a policy would be more practical since it would obviate and dissatisfaction usually attendant with lowering salaries as might be necessary at some time in the future. A motion authorizing the payment of a full cost of living bonus was passed on motion of Mayor F. F. Long and the Chairman.

The annual check-up of first aid kits in the three schools annually provided for by the Branch had been made and authorization for the replenishment of necessary supplies was made. Mrs. Ernest Irwin was named as branch delegate to the Belleville convention on October 28 and 29, and it was announced that as a special feature of their November meeting Miss J. B. Neighbouring Towns Plan Loan Competition

COBOURG, Oct. 13.— (ENS).— Port Hope and Cobourg have always been rivals—in a friendly way. Baseball, hockey, any competition in which the two towns have figured, all have been marked by keen rivalry between the two municipalities. Keeping the competitive spirit going, the mayor of Port Hope has issued a challenge to the mayor of Cobourg, the challenge being that Port Hope will see if it can exceed its objective in the coming Victory Loan campaign by a higher percentage than Cobourg. The mayor of Cobourg wrote in reply that the challenge was accepted.

He was to have been married next January to Helen Porter of Windsor who is overseas doing hospital work.

Overseas, as at home, it's the little things that make friends for our Canadian soldier. He shares his home-ways with those he meets. Coca-Cola, for instance. The Three-Power Conference

There has been a good deal of uneasy speculation about the effectiveness of a three-power conference of representatives of the U.S., Great Britain and Russia, to discuss some aspects of the war, and possibly also some aspects of the peace. The majority of this pessimistic thinking has had its origin in the U.S., and there has been some in Britain also. In Russia we cannot say what is thought, for that country does not express itself so freely as the western democracies.

Why the outlook should be pessimistic we cannot say, nor have the pessimistic writers done much to enlighten us. The U.S. has a tradition of isolationism which is hard to shake, and so has Russia. Britain will be the only power represented which is used to conferences of this nature, and the British representatives will have their work cut out to make the machinery of the conference work smoothly. But no other reason has yet been brought forward as to why the conference should not be a success. All three parties are intent on winning the war and the peace. That is the main thing, and every other consideration is subordinate to it. If that idea is kept in view—as we feel that it will be—all should be well.

There are plenty of reasons why all three parties to the conference should suspect one another, if they want to. Russia has not yet had the Second Front which she wants. Russia remembers the days when Britain tried to short-circuit the revolution which brought the U.S.S.R. to birth. The U.S. and Britain remember the Comintern and the Russo-German pact. Ample grounds, these, for mistrust. But there are grounds for mutual trust, too, if the representatives care to accept them, and we think that they will.

Meanwhile, we do not think that pessimism at home is helpful or intelligent. Reasons may be found why the conference should be a failure. Reasons may be found why we should still lose the war. Reasons may be found why, after the war, we should drift into suspicion, jealousy and fear of our former allies. But of course we do not intend to let these things happen. There is no first-rate reason to be despondent about the conference, and every reason to hope for its success; the latter is the healthier attitude.

The Supposed Riches Of Authors

The theatrical trade paper, Variety, tells us that Hollywood has paid out four and a quarter million dollars during the past year for the screen rights to 100 books. John Steinbeck's The Moon Is Down cost $300,000; Rose Franken's Claudia cost $200,000; Thirty Seconds Over Tokio and The Seventh Cross cost $175,000 and $100,000 respectively, and Ambassador Davies' Mission To Moscow cost $100,000. The heading which Variety expressively puts on this news is "Authors Ride Gravy Train".

But do they? These sums are very large, but how much has the author left when he has deducted the cost of making the transaction, feeing agents, and paying the immense income tax levied on money earned in this way? One of the books sold to Hollywood last year was The Song of Bernadette, by Franz Werfel, for which a good round sum was paid. It took Werfel three years to write the book. When his gains from it are reckoned up, will they amount to more than the yearly income of thousands of workers in responsible positions?

All that an author has to sell is his particular ability to write. The rarer that ability, the better the price he is able to demand. But it is doubtful if he could ever be said to be riding on a gravy train.

Rhodes Scholars As Fifth Columnists

Representative J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas has introduced a resolution into the U.S. House of Representatives that his country shall take part in a post-war organization for enforcement of peace among nations, and the House has passed it. Now to most of us this seems to be an excellent thing, and an indication that the U.S. has realised that it exists on a sadly troubled Earth, and not on Mars. But to Col. McCormick, the publisher of the Chicago Tribune, it is treachery of the deepest dye. What is more, he knows how the treachery was inspired. Representative Fulbright is a former Rhodes Scholar!

In Col. McCormick's opinion, the Rhodes Scholarships were set up by the late Cecil Rhodes in order to lure promising young Americans to Oxford or Cambridge, and there infect them with internationalism. Rhodes Scholars, he thinks, are Fifth Columnists, and should be locked up.

The Colonel has had many bees in his bonnet, and this one is no more remarkable than some of his others. No one will ever convince him that he is wrong. Having had some opportunity to observe Rhodes Scholars in Britain, we feel that we know better than many people how wrong he is, however. The Rhodes Scholarships have not always worked out well; the selection committees have sent many a lemon to the ancient halls of learning. But upon the whole the selections are sound, and some of them are excellent. The advantages of spending a period of time at an educational institution outside one's own country are obvious enough, and we do not think that the Colonel's blast against Rhodes Scholars will carry much weight, even among his own following.

You Take Your Chance

A correspondent has written to us, taking some exception to a recent editorial on the subject of national lotteries; we did not recommend a national lottery for Canada—such a lottery would be impractical and injudicious—but we did take the opportunity to probe the very strong prejudice which exists against lotteries of all kinds.

Our correspondent says: "In all worthy and necessary aims and achievements in life every effort is made to reduce the element of chance to a minimum. Failure is usually an error in judgement". This is contrary to fact. What says the Preacher? "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favour to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all". The most important single event in a man's life is his birth, in which he is a hapless participator; he cannot choose his parents, his station in life, or his nationality; he cannot choose his sex or the sort of body with which he is endowed. The circumstances in which he is born will influence the whole of his future life; the child of the millionaire has no more say in this matter than the child of the unemployed day-labourer. As with birth, so death is often a matter of chance; how many men choose the time and manner of their departure? A man's marriage is a chance, and a big one, for who can tell before marriage what his bride will be after ten years? His children come by chance, and it is a matter of chance whether they will bring joy or sorrow into his life. All through his life a man is subject to tricks of chance called accidents. In fact, no man has a choice in this life as to whether he will "take a chance" or not; every day that choice is made for him by a power greater than himself.

Recognition of these facts does not imply fatalism; it does not induce inertia and lack of ambition. But it does teach humility. However carefully a man may guide his life he can never hope to escape tricks of chance, and those who call such tricks "errors of judgement" merely show a lack of charity and a lack of understanding.

When life is full of great chances, lotteries cannot be regarded as so very heinous. They flourish chiefly among those who have little money; and those who imply that their bad fortune is due to lack of judgement are unkind, to say the least. And these people who have often been born poor and have had no opportunity to better their lot buy lottery chances to see if the fate which gave them a bad start will not relent and give them a prize. Perhaps this is inexcusable, but it is very human.

Two Views Of The People's War

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

J. B. PRIESTLEY has been one of the most popular of English writers for a decade, and since the outbreak of war he has gained a reputation as a prophet as well. In his talks over the B.B.C. and in his recent writings he has adopted a decidedly prophetic tone, and he has been widely honoured in his own country—a sign that his prophecies may not be entirely valid. He has concerned himself deeply with the subject of post-war Britain, and he has made it amply clear that he is on the side of the Plain People; if he were a democrat of the American stamp he would doubtless call them the Little People, or the Common Man, but in England such terms would give offence, so he calls them the Plain People instead. They must rule the roost after the war, Mr. Priestley says; a lot of things, and a lot of people, will Have To Go. It is all very ominous, and sounds good, but when you examine it carefully, its meaning is rather obscure.

TAKE, for instance, his latest novel, "Daylight On Saturday," which Macmillans have just published; as a story it is excellent, for Priestley is a first-rate story-teller, but its social philosophy is obscure in the main, and what is not obscure is foolish. A Canadian reader who knew nothing about England, and who depended on Priestley for information, would get the idea that all Englishmen who had been brought up in easy circumstances and educated at the best schools were supercilious snobs, incipient Fascists and devoid of ordinary human feeling, whereas anyone who was born poor, worked with his hands and preferred beer to brandy was therefore a fine upright fellow, and extremely sagacious on all political questions. The idea that every man should be judged on his own merits does not appeal to Priestley, nor, we assume, to his devoted public; the result is that "Daylight On Saturday" is a diverting story, handicapped by a background of half-baked, grossly inaccurate and unfair social philosophy.

PRIESTLEY knows that he is loading the dice in his recent books, but as long as it goes down well with a large section of the public he does not seem to care. But many people who used to admire him care very much. A man of his talent has a responsibility to use it honestly, and to pursue truth instead of popularity. It is not edifying to see a man of his great abilities dealing in flapdoodle: in "Johnson Over Jordan" he gave us a picture of the life after death which, in the words of one London critic "did not contain an idea which would not have disgraced an intelligent child of ten"; in his "time-plays" he fiddled about with another imperfectly digested idea; since the war he has given us an over-simplified social philosophy. This is not what the public has a right to expect from him. In his early work he showed a perception, a sympathy with humanity and a breadth of scope which made us hope for great things; what right has he to disappoint us with his second-best?

IN SPITE of all this, "Daylight On Saturday" should be read for its story and its humour. It tells of life in a large aircraft factory in the days of 1942, when the war seemed to be at a standstill. Conflict in the management, between an Old School Tie man who is also an efficient engineer, and a Plain Person who is a boozer and a woman-chaser, gives the book a plot. But the best parts of it are the incidental character sketches, of the sort which Priestly does so well, and which led hasty critics in his early days to compare him with Dickens.

HENRY GREEN could hardly resemble Priestly less than he does, but he has written a book about Plain People which makes Priestley's effort look silly. It is "Caught," and it tells of life in a sub-station of the London Fire Force during the early days of the war and during the Blitz. Green is not well-known to Canadian readers, but he should be, for his work is important. Beginning with "Blindness," about twelve years ago, he has produced five carefully written, tortuous, rather disagreeable books which nevertheless contain extraordinary energy and power; in colloquial criticism, they pack a terrific punch. In "Caught" he deals with characters of different social classes, but unlike Priestley, he treats them as people and not as types. His Auxiliary Firemen are linked by circumstances which have nothing to do with their fire-fighting, and the way in which he works out his story is masterly. His writing may be a little rich for some stomachs; one girl's kiss, for instance, was "of opened figs, wet at dead of night in a hothouse." If you read Priestley's book, read Green's as well; they give two views of a People's War, and of the two Green's is the more convincing.

A Poet Of Line

Neither the draughtsmanship nor the modelling nor the colouring nor the composition of Botticelli can be said to conform with the so-called laws of art, which are nothing else but conventions derived from so-called classical art, that is to say Greek art of the fifth and fourth centuries B.C. and Italian art of the Cinquecento. But the lover of Botticelli must not be too cautious and must not think that he was an imperfect artist because he was a "primitive." Walter Pater, although he was the first to have an inkling of how Botticelli would have felt and imagined, errs on the side of cautiousness when he admits that he finds him of secondary importance compared with Leonardo and Michaelangelo....The outlines of Botticelli are more incisive and precise than those of Leonardo; they are therefore different, but not inferior. The standard by which we do or do not appreciate those outlines is Botticelli himself. In the same way, the unity of Leonardo's scenes depends on the subordination of every element depicted to the general distribution of light and dark tones. But the unity of chiaroscuro in the scene is one of those characteristics which in Leonardo is a merit, but which would become a defect in Botticelli, because the latter follows a different method in his composition. Harmony between light and shade in the colouring is found in Peiro della Francesca, but not in Botticelli, because the latter assigns to colour a different function....

Ruskin was also the first to understand that Botticelli's vision is centered in his outlines. His preference for line as against chiaroscuro or colour is a limitation of his genius, but within that limitation it is his strength, his glory. He is one of the greatest poets of line whom history records.—From "Botticelli," by Lionello Venturi. (New York: Phaidon Edition, Oxford University Press.)

LIFE'S DARKEST MOMENT

Letters To The Editor

AGRICULTURE IS BASIC

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—In The Examiner to hand (issue of Oct. 4) I notice the following statement in your feature-column "Farming News and Views" by Hon. Duncan Marshall: "Flour produced in Canada during the crop year 1942-43 has amounted to 23,549,707 barrels. This is the largest output of flour in Canada in any one year. Great Britain has recently negotiated the purchase of a million tons of flour. The milling of this flour here leaves the offal in Canada, which makes much needed feed for livestock...."

My understanding is that those 23,549,707 barrels of flour represent just 100,000,000 bushels of the raw grain? It would be most interesting if your columnist would devote a story to the tonnage of "feed" accruing from processing the above barrelage of flour—what happens to it, and its dollar value to the people who buy it for their livestock?

While I've my pen in hand, may I just add a word or two of comment on a piece of news in your advertising columns of this same issue, over the name of the Bank of Toronto, and showing the picture of a Canadian farmer. The text runs thus: "A Billion Dollar Business.... There are more than a million Canadian farmers, with the imposing capital investment of $4,500,000,000 in land, buildings, equipment and livestock. This is Canada's biggest basic industry...."

That is fine! In an effort to help the average busy urban reader to weigh the above bank assertion, I would like to add the following fact as a scale with which to measure the economic position of Canadian agriculture: According to the Canada Year Book (1942) the capital invested in Canada's 25,000 manufacturing establishments just balances that Bank of Toronto figure, i.e. $4,800,000,000. Against this latter "scale" it is easier to understand the need for a prosperous agriculture in Canada, if the rest of us are to thrive?

REALIST.

CHRIST OR KARL MARX?

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Speaking at the annual meeting of the Confederation of Catholic Workers of Canada recently, Bishop Arthur Douville warned the delegates "not to affiliate, like certain other labour unions, with political parties." And he added: "You Catholic workers must, as you always have, aim at a constructive policy and not attempt to take any destructive measures as other Communist-inclined labour groups do."

It would be well if our Protestant bishops and ministers generally would issue the same warning to their people, for Socialism, wherever it has taken deep root, has sapped the very life of religion. Karl Marx declared that religion—and he meant Christianity—was the "opiate of the people." He boldly put forward Socialism as a "substitute" for religion, and he might have gone further and said that Socialism is a religion. We know that National Socialism has been preached as a religion in Germany, with Hitler as its Messiah. Lenin was virtually deified in Soviet Russia, and the teaching of the Christian religion to young people was banned. That was quite logical, because Socialism was the State religion and Christianity was a very different religion.

There have been preachers who have declared that Christ Himself was a socialist, and they have gained notoriety by preaching what they called a "social gospel." While such preachers may achieve a fleet-popularity, they have invariably lost their spiritual influence and in many cases have renounced their vows and become futile politicians. The reason for this desertion is that a man cannot have two religions at one and the same time—"for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other."

Socialism is in reality a materialistic version of Christianity. It promises the people salvation, not of the soul, but of the body. It does not regard human beings as individuals, but as "the masses." The people are a species of super-ants to be herded into the Kingdom of Karl Marx. That is the Socialist's heaven, and he also has a hell—reserved for the Capitalists. Socialists sneer at Christianity because it can only promise a heaven in a future life, but they themselves have nothing better to offer to the current generation, for their Utopia is always projected into the future—after a revolution or when they can get sufficient people to vote for the Socialist Party.

Yes, Socialism is a religion, and it is the most hopeless of all religions to the individual soul, for it has neither the promise of the life that now is, nor of that which is to come. The real issue as between Democracy and Socialism is not merely a political one; it is basically a religious question—Christ or Karl Marx?

LEWIS MILLIGAN.

DISLIKES LOTTERIES

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The Examiner is again coming into my home and I always read it with interest and generally with approval. I take exception, however, to your editorial, "A National Lottery Suggested." Following the order of the editorial I take exception to the word "suggested." The Confederation of Catholic Workers asked the Government to establish a national lottery. That, I grant, is their right and privilege, but the results of all lotteries on a grand scale prove false all the reasons given for such a lottery.

I am fairly conservant with the reactions of such organizations as the Churches, the Social Service Council of Canada, Police Commissions, and the Judiciary, and they are unanimous against such lotteries on principle, based upon knowledge of sad and troublous experience. It may be just my opinion against yours but I do not believe that "millions of Canadians of small income would love a lottery."

Again I do not believe there is such a thing as an honest lottery. To grant such is to lamentably degrade the word 'honest'. Neither is money put into a lottery an investment. I am sure you would not like to reduce the investment of money in 'eminently respectable forms of commerce" to the level of gambling in lotteries.

Now as to the principles involved they have been stated so often it ought not to be necessary to state them again. I will only state three. First, the element of chance in life. In all worthy and necessary aims and achievements in life every effort is made to reduce the element of chance to a minimum. Failure is usually an error in judgment. Lotteries and the like are a courting of luck or chance and the results are bad whether one wins or loses.

Second, the hope of gain. In legitimate business profits are hoped for. When profits are made the investor is not the sole winner. Many others have also benefitted in many ways. The investment is creative. In gambling the winner wins at the sole expense of others. No new wealth has been created.

Third, the motive. In gambling the motive is something for nothing and it is a hundred to one that there will be disappointment. I know there are good old sports who get a kick out of it, win or lose. In ordinary business the people as a whole are not just grabbers. The necessity of living decently enters into their calculations. They know they must give value in goods and service to succeed. All this is far removed from the motive of gambling and highly different in its results.

One specific reason given for this present proposal, the reduction of income tax, would, if successful, simply place the burden on shoulders least able to bear it. What fairer basis of taxation is there than upon income? We may not be unanimous politically but the leaders of our political parties are shrewd men and honourable and their attitude on this subject is not based upon prejudice. The principle of lotteries, especially as national policy is vicious, and in national economy would be chaotic and disappointing. It offers "Nothing for nothing and not much for sixpence," as the Scots say.

E. M. COOK.

Foxboro, Ont., Oct. 9, 1943.

Aim of True Philosophy

The aim of true philosophy must lie, not in futile efforts towards the complete accommodation of man to the circumstances in which he chances to find himself, but in the maintenance of a kind of candid discontent, in the face of highest achievement.—"Marius the Epicurean," by Walter Pater (1839-1894.)

Jones: "Life is full of trials."
Brown: "Yes, thank goodness."
Jones: "Why do you say that?"
Brown: "I'm a lawyer."

At the Centre of the Empire

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 13 (CP)—The time has come for the health ministry to dust off last winter's signs and warn the populace to get out the red flannels and handkerchiefs and start taking care of themselves.

This winter, what with falling production in the coal mines and the possibility a lot of coal will be going to Italy, things may be chillier than usual and so the ministry's warning is more pertinent than ever.

Last winter the ministry warned that the common cold was about as tough a thing as Britain has had to combat in this war.

So it is time to dust off the health department signs, such as "coughs and sneezes breed diseases—do sneeze into your handkerchief," and hang them out in the subway stations again and plac[e] before the public once more the frightsome figures of the man-hours of production lost in the previous year because somebody got caught in the rain without rubbers on and developed a cold and let it go on and coughed here and there and gradually infected all his friends.

In this connection, the fuel ministry has asked that there be no fires built in fireplaces at least until Nov. 1. It is patriotic to be chilly. But it is patriotic not to have a chill. So Britons must strike a happy medium and most of them do—building meagre fires in the fireplace in the one room most of the family will occupy during the evening and then bedding down under all the woollens available.

Nevertheless, despite all precautions, it is a fair bet that the colds will come along this winter, as before. You have only to take a bus trip in London to bear this out.

And he bearing his cross went forth into a place called the place of a skull, which is called in the Hebrew Golgatha: where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst. (John 19: 17, 18.)

Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils. And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept. (Mark 16: 9, 10.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Mistress (to charlady)—And you think your Lizzie would make me a good housemaid, Mrs. O'Brien? Is she an early riser?

Mrs. O'Brien—Sure, an' she is that. She's up an' has all the beds made of a morning before the rest of us is awake at all.

Oletimers—"Is your married life one grand sweet song?"

Newlywed—"Well, since our baby's been born it's more like an opera, full of grand marches, with loud calls for the author every night."

"Edith," he whispered, "will you marry me?"

"I don't know, Tom," she replied coyly.

"Well, when you find out," he said rising, "send me word, will you? I shall be at Eva Gordon's until ten o'clock. If I don't hear from you by then I'm going to ask her."

Only One Half Of People Working Have Purchased Victory Bonds

REGINA, Oct. 13—CP)—Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada and chairman of the National War Finance Committee, said here today that half the $5,500,000,000 to be spent by the Federal Government this year—mostly for war—will come from taxation, but that there is a limit to that source of revenue.

"While it might seem desirable to raise even more by taxes, it must be recognized that there is a practical limit," he said in an address prepared for delivery to a Victory Loan audience.

"We cannot tax more heavily without interfering with productive effort and without creating inequities and hardships in all cases where the weight of our taxes cannot be democratically adjusted to meet individual circumstances."

Mr. Towers spoke in the interests of the three-week campaign opening Oct. 18 to induce Canadians to buy $1,200,000,000 worth of bonds in the Fifth Victory Loan.

He said that even after paying taxes individuals would have $1.60 of income to spend this year for every $1 of income they had in 1939.

Token Support

"Many Canadians who can and should be buying Victory Bonds have not yet done so," he said. "Many others have been content to give token support.

"Of the 5,200,000 Canadians now believed to be gainfully employed we have in past loan operations obtained subscriptions from only about half what might be considered our potential market."

While Canadians now had more money to spend or save they should remember that, although it was the right and natural desire to use that money in accordance with personal desires, it was the duty to save it no for spending later when such spending would not interfere with national economy or retard the war effort.

"Canadians now are earning, after taxes, about $15 for each $10 of available goods. Our job is to save the surplus voluntarily through the purchase of Victory Bonds."

Future Prosperity.

Victory Bonds would play an important part in providing a foundation for prosperity in the future. Individuals investing in them would have more money to spend in the post-war period when there would be wider variety of goods and probably better values for the money.

Canada's fighting men now had vision of victory. For them—and many more were getting into it — this meant heavier fighting and sacrifice until the end.

"If they are not going to stop, neither must we. If they can face the firing on the front line, surely we can endure the hard work and slight discomforts that may be our lot on the home front....

"The possibilities are that this ar—which some of us are apt to regard as over—will take an increasing toll of Canadian lives.

"No effort that we can make will be too great if it saves the life of one unknown soldier; no effort will be too great to enable us to look squarely at those who return with knowledge that we on the home front did our part....

"Even if you were asked to give, victory should be worth it. But you are asked only to lend; to postpone your own personal wants and needs for the more immediate and urgent needs of our men overseas."

Must Live Right

SIMCOE, Ont., Oct. 13 — (CP). — Eyewitnesses to a miracle were Provincial Constables Arthur Dymond and Kenneth Kersey, as they sat near the C.N.R.-Wabash level crossing at nearby Nixon, Saturday. They saw a truck driven by William F. Storoschuk, 41, of Nixon, carried 60 feet along the railway right-of-way by a westbound freight and reduced to a mass of scrap iron and kindling. They saw Storoschuk crawl unassisted from the debris. Rushed to hospital, he was reported to suffer cuts, chest injuries and shock.

TAMBLYN ADVISES PREPAREDNESS

It is indeed a most wise and essential practice to be prepared at all times for any household "emergency." Most of us at one time or another have had occasion to regret our lack of foresight in this respect and have found ourselves very much in need of a certain item or items which we have carelessly neglected to provide. The elimination of such occurrences is part of the service "Your Tamblyn Drug Store" endeavours to render you, and is the reason to a large extent for their continuous and diversified displays of "Home Necessities." At this season of the year—possibly more so than at any other time—it is distinctly to our advantage to be prepared, for with changeable weather, less sunshine, more confinement indoors and usually more arduous duties, our extra energy is most liable to become dissipated. So taking everything into consideration, we reiterate "It is wise to be prepared" and following this thought "your Tamblyn Store" this week again is featuring many items most necessary for the average household and have also included a representative assortment in this list of

KING EDWARD AND KING GEORGE DIVIDE SCHOOL SOCCER POINTS

Evenly Matched Teams Draw

Two well balanced teams—King Edward and King George—battled for an hour and ten minutes on Tuesday afternoon, on King Edward Park, in the Public School Soccer League games, and divided the points with the count at 2-all. It was a hard and fast tussle with hard checking predominating throughout. J. Byers, King Edward and K. Anderson, were outstanding.

First Half

Right from the kick off, King Edward forwards opened up the play with accurate combination that harassed the King George boys into their own territory but after ten minutes of play Anderson broke up a Southend attack that resulted in Payne carrying ball into Riche's citadel. Downer blocked his progress but Van Allen caught the loose ball to bang it against an opponent's legs to witness the ball roll through the goal as Lawson fell upon it in an endeavour to save the count. All with in a few minutes, King Edward led by Dyer and Murray at half back forced the issue and were rewarded when Lawson tricked a full back nicely to let Eakins get the equaliser. They went right back again to take the lead when Clark on an individual effort picked the inside of the upright. Half Time. King Edward 2, King George 1.

Second Half

On resuming, both elevens opened up at a terrific pace with the ball travelling from end to end with both custodians conceding no favours as the forwards endeavoured to score. Byers, at centre half for King Edward was a tower of strength as he came to the rescue time and again to safeguard his citadel, in fact, he overdid the play by unnecessary kicking to touch, although his tactics held the fast moving King George forwards outside the shooting zone. A succession of corner kicks fell to East City boys but King Edward blocked the goal to kick clear amidst a sea of legs. Lawson relieved the pressure by sending his forwards away on the left. He dribbled his way into goal; then Stock, goalie, saved his drive from mid-air. With fifteen minutes to go, King George forced the issue to register the equaliser through Anderson. Both elevens battled hard to get the winning count but it never materialized. King Edward 2, King George 2.

King Edward: A. Riches, goal; A. Crocker and D. Downer, full backs; H. Dibben, J. Byers and J. Murray, halves; N. Dane, L. Eakins, K. Lawson, D. Floyd and R. Clark, forwards. Subs: W. Dolan, J. Robertson and M. Chambers.

King George: J. Stock, goal; R. Pollock and B. Carr, full backs; J. Miller, G. Rome and R. Mounce half backs; A. Payne. M. Van Allen, K. Anderson, J. Swanston and R. Wyatt, forwards. Subs: J. Blackwood and K. Northcott.

By FRED D. CRAIG

A big squad of rangy, fast-moving youngsters have been working out in Confederation Square in recent afternoons as the revival of rugby at the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School gets into its stride. Enough material has been revealed to justify the formation of three teams which will play out a schedule and from the membership of which a Collegiate squad will be selected for competition in the interscholastic series. This seems to be the logical way to bring back the popular fall pastime for it will afford a chance for a large number of young players to learn the rudiments of the game and to show their stuff. Obviously the 1943 team will be on the young and light side. There are not many boys near the top of the interscholastic age group in attendance at the Collegiate this year. But the kids are enthusiastic and willing and the way they were moving around yesterday when this column happened to drop around was encouraging. One thing is certain. This year's team should not be short of forward tossers or pass receivers for the youngsters were throwing the pigskin around in baseball style and for the most part catching the forwards like ace centre fielders. The workouts have been under the direction of Messrs. Dave Brown and McNabb who have been keeping a keen eye on the potential material.

News of the sudden death of Dick Turpin, Cobourg's fire chief has been received with sorrow by old-time baseball players and fans in Peterborough. Turpin was long a colorful figure in base ball in this district. As a catcher and first baseman for the old Cobourg team in the days of the Midland League and later he was a well-known diamond performer, noted particularly for his prowess with the bat. Always a big and powerful player Turpin took a real cut up there at the plate and when the Cobourg team played its games in Victoria Park, by the side of Lake Ontario his specialty was to pull drives into left field and into the lake. Many a game was broken up by a Turpin home run for he could certainly powder the pill when he got a ball to his liking. Later, however, the pitchers discovered that the big fellow couldn't hit a ball around his knees so from then on they pitched downstairs to Turpin and his long-ball hitting disappeared. Even before he became famous as a ball player the Cobourg fire chief's name was a household one. He enlisted with the Canadian contingent to the South African War and was detailed as batman to Col. Sam Hughes. Every time that gallant officer wrote home he mentioned "My Man Turpin" and as the letters were nearly all published everybody in the country knew of the Cobourg soldier. The result was when he started to play ball the nickname "My Man Turpin" went into the game with him. Dick didn't like it very well but there wasn't much that he could do about it. He was a popular player who made a host of friends around the country and they will be grieved to learn of his death.

Quite A Day

Twenty years ago today, October 13, 1923, was quite a day in baseball so far as Peterborough was concerned. Here at home the fans were watching Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians and one of the greatest ball player of all time in action, along with other big leaguers. At the same time over in Welland, Harry McFadden's C.G.E. team was winning its second Ontario intermediate championship in two years by beating Welland. The game here was a most interesting show. Speaker headed a party of All-Stars including Jim Edwards, great young Cleveland outfielder, Les Nunamaker, veteran catcher and Roger Peckinpaugh, star shortstop of the Washington Senators and their opponents were a Toronto semi-pro outfit, the Wellingtons. The All-Stars won without a great deal of difficulty by 10 to 3 with "Spoke" showing why he was regarded as one of the finest hitters and outfielders in the game. He had just finished the season with the hefty American League average of .380 and in the game here he cracked out two triples and a single, ran the bases like a greyhound and in addition to playing the outfield pitched for five innings. He shared the day's honors with Babe Dye, the Toronto boy, who played left field for the All-Stars and came through with two of the most sensational one-handed, back-handed running catches ever seen in left field at Riverside. And that covers a lot of ground for there have been plenty of good left-fields in action on the same diamond, not forgetting Greasy Neale of the London Club who afterward starred with the Cincinnati Reds.

* * * * * *

In winning their second Ontario title in two years the Canadian General Electric team played good ball to beat Welland 10 to 6 and take the series in two straight games. The Electrics scor- first and were never headed. Bun Frost kept the Welland eight hits fairly well scattered while the C.G.E. hammered out eleven off the offerings of Dennis who was a surprise starter on the rubber for Welland. Jimmie Hall with a double and two singles in three trips to the plate and Ray Rose with a homer and two singles in five official appearances were the leaders with the willow for the winners while Upper was the dangerous man at the plate for Welland, blasting a home run and a double. The fielding gem was contributed by Eddie Dugan who grabbed a line drive and finished a double play unassisted by stepping on first to retire a base-runner. The C.G.E. have always claimed that there should have been a triple killing on the play for after getting rid of the two opposition Dugan whipped the ball to second in time to nail a second runner but the umpires failed to register the out so the C.G.E. first-sacker had to be content with two.

Still A Mystery

The more the statistics of the last two world series games are studied the more inexplicable becomes the downfall of the Cards in such simple fashion. As we pointed out yesterday the Yanks scored one run less this year than they did a year ago and yet won the series 4 to 1 while last year they only could take one game in five. And here's something else. Last year in losing the series 4 to 1 the Yanks of 1942 actually outhit the Cards 44 to 39. In the series just closed the McCarthyites only made 35 hits, nine less than last season and two less than the Cards made this year and yet they breezed home a convincing winner of the annual classic. Last year again the Yanks made three home runs; in the series just closed they had to be satisfied with two. Last year they had several performers in the .300 class with Phil Rizzuto leading both teams with a total of eight hits. This time six hits was tops and rookie Bill Johnson with a batting average of exactly .300 for the series was the only Yank to get into the select circle. As a matter of fact the Yanks batted only .220 as a team and that shouldn't win any series. The Cards in winning only one game in five hit .224 and had the leading hitter of the series in Martin Marion who batted .357. Marion also led both teams in extra bases with two doubles and a homer in his total of five hits.

Says Soup Campbell in the Oshawa Times-Gazette: "It looks as if the Oshawa softball season is actually finished. Oshawa Colts wanted to play a game or two this week-end in the worst way but it just couldn't be arranged. It was at first hoped that North Bay would win the Northern Ontario honors and be able to come down to Oshawa for a final series but Sault Ste. Marie won out and that's too far to travel. Then the Colts wanted to play the Senior "B" champions of Ontario, in a challenge series for something that really meant something but unfortunately, St. Catharines "Thompson Products" team is playing the All-Ontario final series up in Sudbury this week-end. Then an attempt was made to have the well-known Peoples team come to Oshawa. However, they are in the midst of the Toronto "A" championship playoffs and will be playing two games on Monday themselves, against either Dominion Bridge or Rooneys. Bowsers were not interested in a trip to Oshawa so that left everything up in the air. Many Oshawa softball fans wanted to see the championship Colts hook up with Ecclestone and Peoples and as a matter of fact, the Colts

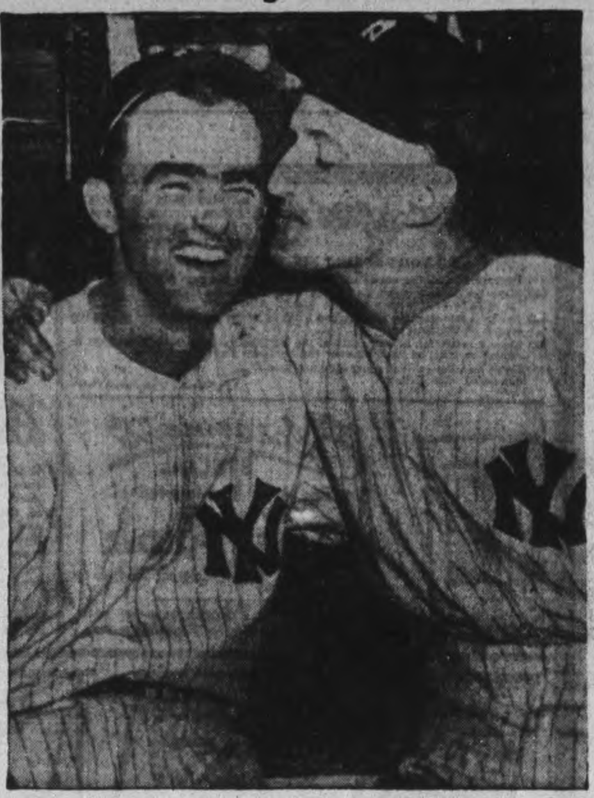
What Is This Thing – Like Love?



Hank Borowy of the Yanks seems to be overcome with affection for Yankee Bill Johnson. The incident happened during the World Series, when Johnson put the Yanks in the lead by his 8th inning triple with bases full. It was in the third game of the series.

By The Canadian Press

Pro hockey received the green flag yesterday when the Chicago Black Hawks received formal notice from the U.S. War Manpower Commission that employes in essential industries "in the off-season"—presumably from spring to early fall—are to be permitted to play hockey for the club with which they have contracts.

According to a ruling by David Cohen, regional attorney for the War Manpower Commission at Chicago, a player under contract is engaging in the sport as his regular occupation and work in essential esesntial industrial occupations durin the off-season is not to be construed as regular employment. The opinion pointed out, however, that the decision had no effect on the status of a hockey player in the matter of selective service requirements for the armed forces. In other words, playing hockey in the U.S. is a regular job, acceptance of other work is helpful to the war effort but a puck-chaser is liable to the draft if he qualifies under the selective service code.

Commandos Ready

The Ottawa Commandos are all set for the hockey season with seven of last year's Allan Cup team, an executive of 15 military officers of the Capital and James P. McCaffrey as manager. At last night's annual meeting, it was reported Al Barnes, Joe Cooper, John Inglis, Ken Kilrea, Jake Brunning, Walt Murray and Sid Fenn were the available players.

At Clearwater, Fla., yesterday a bomber accidentally dropped a practice bomb within a short distance of a group of lawn bowlers, the missile exploding in a clay court of the bowling club. Result: a four-foot hole in the court. The players went on with their game.

Retires From Racing

W. J. (Willie) Morrissey of Toronto, winner of the King's Plate with Bunty Lawless and Willie the Kid, last night announced his retirement from racing but stated he would continue to breed horses with a number of his veteran prize-winners remaining in his stable.

The O.R.F.U. will hold a meeting Friday night in Toronto, with Canadian Rugby Union officials attending, to deal with schedule and play-off arrangements in view of the application of the Quebec Union to play a semi-final for the Grey Cup. The regular schedule may have to be accelerated to accommodate the Quebec challengers prior to the East vs. West classic with Winnipeg.

Lewis Retires

Herbie Lewis, former Detroit Red Wing, yesterday announced his retirement as manager of the Indianapolis farm club of the N.H.L. team to devote full time to a war job. Manager Jack Adams immediately announced that the position would be offered to Ebbie Goodfellow who had retired as player-coach of the Stanley Cup champions.

After 19 years in lacrosse, Goalie Bert Large of the Mimico-Brampton Combines may be forced into retirement because of the knee injury he sustained in the first game of the Mann Cup series, it was reported from New Westminster, B.C., last night. Large is to undergo an operation in a Vancouver hospital.

Edward G. Barrow, president of the New York Yankee, missed all but the first of the world series games because he was forced to go to a hospital at New Rochelle, N.Y., with a heart ailment and was not even permitted to hear the broadcasts. Barrow, 75, went to Boston Red Sox from the Toronto Leafs before the first Great War.

Cards Leading School League

The Cardinals have taken the lead in the St. Peter's High School rugby league by defeating the Red Sox 34 to 12. The game was a battle from start to finish, with the Cards having a slight edge but with the Red Sox threatening often but faltering just when they were in a scoring position. The Cards' defence system was like a brick wall.

A great improvement was shown by the players of both sides in running, plunging and kicking.

LeGrow, Conroy and McDonald starred for the winners while Lucano, Ferren and Murphy worked hard for the Red Sox.

The scoring was done as follows:

Cardinals: Touchdowns, Conroy 3, LeGrow 2, McDonald; singles, Legrow 3, Conroy 1.

Red Sox: Touchdowns, Lucano, Ferren; singles, Ferren.

The lineups:

Cardinals: Conroy, LeGrow, J. McDonald, Wolf, Brady, Hayes.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 9 — (CP). — Racing days of the greatest greyhound since the immortal Mick the Miller ended on a London track when champion Ballynennan Moon pulled up lame in a trial. Now the Moon will take up stud duties at the previously unheard-of fee of approximately $475.

The Moon belongs to Mrs. W. J. Cearnes, one of Britain's foremost owners of racing dogs. And, though it might be hard for Canadian sport followers to visualize, there was quite a stir in pubs and other places where the sporting fraternity gathers for a chat over the day's events when it became known the Moon had torn a shoulder and thigh muscle.

Had the Moon been running in normal times, there's little doubt he would have beaten Mick the Miller's prize money record of $45,000. He won 65 of 89 races and set up four track records. Last year he won 14 successive sprints and only a head defeat at London's White City Stadium—where crowds of 90,000 gathered to watch the dogs in peacetime— prevented his equalling Mick the Miller's run of 19.

The fourth season of wartime cricket ended at famed Lord's before 10,000 when the Royal Australian Air Force feat the Royal Air Force by three wickets. One of Surrey's cricketing twins, Flt. Sgt. A. V. Bedser was a standout for the R.A.F. and took two wickets in opening his side's bowling.

Incidentally, the problem of the Bedsers, who cannot be told apart even by their best friends, has been intensified.

A year ago Eric was promoted to flight sergeant and received a distinguishing mark in the shape of a crown over his three stripes. Now brother Alec has been promoted to flight sergeant— and the trouble starts all over again.

Vic Oliver, British comedian who is a son-in-law of Premier Churchill, took his first racing victory of the season when Treasury, recent acquisition to his small stable, won a seven-furlong sprint at Ascot. It also was the first triumph for Treasury, purchased by Oliver from Sir Malcolm McAlpine.

Prices ranged from $70 to $1,000 at a Stockton race course sale of bloodstock, mostly horses in training. The best price of 160 guineas was paid by Trainer Tom Hall for Ionia, a two-year-old filly which has placed three times this season in Northern England racing.

Lude Wareing, hondsome hockey performer from Regina, Sask., won't get a chance to display his wares this winter unless he moves into a colder climate. Once of the Philadelphia Ramblers in the American, Lude is a leading aircraftman on clerical duties in a North African administrative tent.

Pending erection of a temporary stand to replace that bombed and burned out last season, Millwall of the Football League South will play home matches on the Charlton Club grounds.

McCREADY AND KATAN SWAP PUNCHES, MATCH ENDS IN A DRAW

Bunny Dunlop Beaten By Doc Felice

There was only one winner on Frank Tunney's weekly wrestling melange at Brock Street Arena Tuesday night and that was Doc. Felice who got the decision over Al Bunny Dunlop in the semi-final because the Toronto strong man swung a couple of rights to the jaw of Referee Bert Maxwell and was disqualified.

Earl Moose McCready and Killer John Katan fought a tough main bout to a draw with each of the battlers getting a fall, and in the preliminary long Joe Christie and a newcomer, Jan Gotch, another back alley performer, went 30 minutes without a fall.

The McCready-Katan tussle opened with an argument when McCready protested that the Panther was greased, and continued on that note throughout with plenty of action and not a little feeling. Katan's back was glistening when he took off his bathrobe and looked to have about as much grease as a hamburger pan. McCready tried a couple of holds, only to have his hands slip off, and in a tone of disgust the Moose asked that Katan be requested to remove the grease. The Panther objected but finally Referee Maxwell tried to take off some of the oily covering with his hands and the bout got under way.

Katan started in on McCready with his favorite chin lock and mixed in some high-class gouging and punching. He had the Moose in difficulty early but McCready finally saved himself for the time being by slipping a scissors around Katan's neck and it was the Killer's turn to be on the catching end of the pressure. He got out of the jam by crawling to the ropes, but McCready slapped the hold on twice more before Referee Maxwell finally broke the battlers.

Then Katan returned to the unconscious chin lock again and finally took the first fall with it. McCready motioned that he was being strangled but Maxwell declined to interfere and Katan kept the hold on until the weakened McCready was easy prey, after which he pinned his shoulders.

When the bout was resumed McCready came back at Katan with the same hold but Referee Maxwell aroused the ire of the crowd by making the Aurora farmer break the grip, claiming it was a strangle. There was some furious battling during the next few minutes and Maxwell took as much punishment as the wrestlers. Once he tried to break the pair and found himself gripped around the neck by Katan and he was out of breath when he finally got loose. Then he blamed McCready for attacking him. A few minutes later a right swing by Katan intended for the Moose struck the referee in the breadbasket and again he warned McCready for striking him.

Old Rocking Chair

Old rocking chair finally got Katan. After 21 minutes hard battling McCready got an opening, clamped the rocking chair cradle grip on the Panther, rolled him around the ring two or three times and held his shoulders on the mat for the fall.

McCready did most of the pressing in the remaining ten minutes and nearly broke Katan's leg off with a series of toe holds.

At one stage Katan got a Cantonwine hold on the Moose, hanging him up in the ropes but McCready released himself and to the delight of the crowd carried Katan over to the ropes and left him hanging in similar fashion while he jumped on the ropes on the other side of the ring to give the Panther a real ride. Katan was groggy when he finally got loose but McCready could not cash in on the advantage and the bout ended in a draw, the bell ringing as the two big opponents were swapping punches.

Cheers For Felice

With two bad men, Doc Felice and Al Bunny Dunlop, matched in the semi-finals the fans were on the spot. They had been so accustomed to booing both battlers that their style was cramped but they finally settled on Felice as the favorite for the night. It was a rowdy bout while it lasted, with both rowdy performers taking a hand at dishing out the usual rough stuff and honors were about even in that respect until Dunlop at the end of nine minutes of lively action used Referee Maxwell as a punching bag and his lack of judgment cost him the decision. The Toronto strong man had Felice in trouble along the ropes and when the referee tried to separate the pair, Dunlop swung a right to the official's jaw. Maxwell was staggered but he went in again and again Dunlop's right landed on the button and this time the referee hit the floor. As he got to his feet Dunlop tried to kick him and was disqualified, thus giving the bout to Felice. The Doc was cheered as he left the ring—a new experience for him in Peterborough.

A Lively Argument

Tall Joe Christie and Jan Gotch, a new addition to the Tunney talent staged a riot in the opening bout. It was about the liveliest preliminary of the season, Gotch, a big, fast-moving battler was soon in disfavor with the crowd because he gave Christie the works in the line of rough stuff, kicking, rabbit-punching and gouging and the tall boy had a rough passage. Gotch hurled him through the ropes and kicked him out again when he tried to climb in. However Christie brought the crowd to its feet soon after when he waded into Gotch with a series of hay-makers to the jaw that shook up the whole Gotch family. The last swing sent the rowdy Jan right out of the ring and the fans cheered lustily. The two battled thirty minutes without a fall and they tossed plenty of action into the doings.

The usual officials were in charge. Bert Maxwell as referee and Fred Scates as announcer and timer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP). — Red Schoendienst, Rochester's 20-year-old, 4-F shortstop who'll likely land a spot with the Cardinals next spring, got his job by trying to save some dough.... Three years ago Red and a pal wanted to see the Cards play the Dodgers so Red applied for a morning tryout with the idea that they'd be allowed to stay for the game...Within an hour, Schoendienst had signed a contract and next day he was off to join the Albany, Ga., club.

Frank Boucher Try Comeback With Rangers

WINNIPEG, Oct. 13—(CP)—Coach Frank Boucher, former star centre of New York Rangers, was preparing today for a possible comeback in the National Hockey League while Manager Lester Patrick announced he was busy trying to line up players for his shorthanded club.

A group of youngsters are practising here along with Boucher and the two regular Rangers left in last year's lineup, Defenceman Ott Heller and Forward Grant Warwick.

Patrick's only comment on his efforts so far was "we've got no hockey players."

Speaking of a possible comeback, 42-year-old Boucher said: "After a few days of practice, I'll know whether or not I'm good enough to play again. Until then, I'm just experimenting."

Canadian Sport Snapshots

TORONTO, Oct. 13 — (CP). — Reaction of established baseball organizations to the National Baseball Congress' plans for a Canadian championship play-off and a Canadian-United States sandlot "World Series" is lukewarm and in some cases hostile.

The criticism is based chiefly on grounds the congress is a body of United States origin whose interest in Canadian baseball is only a year or two old. It has appointed Lloyd Douglas of Toronto as Canadian commissioner. Some of the long-established Canadian groups, such as the Ontario Baseball Association, regard the congress' attempt to organize Canadian interprovincial playoffs with some specticism.

Vic McKenty of Kitchener, Ont., secretary of the Inter-County Baseball Asociation, writes: "In my humble opinion the Canadian Baseball Congress would be better advised to work out some kind of an arrangement with the leagues concerned before going overboard on a plan which calls for those same leagues to make all the sacrifices for the benefit of a body which, as yet, hasn't had a chance to prove its worth to amateur baseball."

Another criticism is that the congress requires that district playoffs be completed in time for the national tournament on August 3. Since none of the regular leagues have champions declared by that time, it means each must choose a representative, then revise playing schedules to provide for absence of that representative in the district sandlot playoff and perhaps the national tournament.

London Army team of the Inter-County League won the Canadian sandlot title this year and McKenty says their "cut" of the gate didn't meet expenses and, in addition, the schedule interruption meant loss of a gate of an estimated $250.

Vic comments that there is no comparison with the proposed congress baseball play-offs and the established play-offs for hockey, football and lacrosse championships, which are all conducted by national bodies with whom all the teams are affiliated through provincial associations.

The obvious answer, of course, is that Canada, then, should have a national baseball organization, along the lines of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Although the congress' plan for a national play-off would provide a stop-gap, a central organization with delegates from each district is the ideal set-up. Interprovincial play-offs at the season's end would create national interest in amateur baseball — an interest sadly lacking at present.

Baseball could be the equal of hockey in popularity in Canada since the seasons do not conflict. Many cities, however, are without good senior ball. Publicity attendant on Dominion-wide play-offs would build interest and mean the development of the game among youngsters.

The National Baseball Congress is therefore to be commended for its efforts to sponsor a national championship tournament. And, if the congress' play-off system is faulty, then the older leagues and associations should organize to formulate a better set-up rather than let the idea drop altogether.

McCarthy Says Team Spirit Wins Pennants

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 — (AP) — This is a story about why New York Yankees have won seven American League pennants and six world championships of baseball in the last eight years. But it is mostly a story about Joseph Vincent McCarthy, the truculent, 56-year-old Irishman who is manager of the Yankees.

Coming back on the train from St. Louis, where the Yankees had just finished trampling on the Cardinals, McCarthy was sitting up late at night with newspapermen in a diner.

Someone passing from one group of celebrants to another stopped to congratulate McCarthy and told him he had done a great job with a bad ball club.

The hot Irish temper flashed up and McCarthy retorted in a bristling voice: "Who says it is a bad ball club? I never said it was.

"I'll tell you something," he continued, his tone mellowing as quickly as it had harshened, "I knew at Asbury Park last spring that this ball club would win the pennant. It had the championship spirit. That's what wins pennants."

McCarthy's whole life is devoted to winning and nothing less than victory satisfies him. He will not have a player on his club who does not feel the same way.

Yet there as more to the Yankees' triumph this year than just spirit. There as expert handling of players, fitting new parts into an old machine, and manoeuvring of a pitching staff which was sometimes unpredictable.

McCarthy did it well, and in the World Series he never made a mistake in strategy.

In the muddled baseball scene caused by the war he finally has been recognized as the man who makes the Yankees champions.

Stanley Mocarsky May Be Man Without Country

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 13 — (AP).—Judge pointedly invited an American citizen who failed to report for induction to leave the United States forever, but the invitation was turned down promptly.

After Stanley Mocarsky, 23-year old arms plan worker from Hartford, had pleaded guilty to failing to report for induction into the armed forces, Judge Carroll C. Hincks suspended sentence in the case yesterday "on condition the defendant shall accomplish his removal from the United States and thereafter shall remain outside its borders."

Mocarsky, married and the father of a child born last May, informed the court through his lawyer, Joseph P. Cooney, that he had decided to turn down the proposal that he quit the United States and asked for immediate imposition of sentence. The judge, however, continued the case for 30 days so that the accused and his family might have time to think it over.

Mocarsky the court was told, refused to report for induction because he felt that the American people hadn't done anything for him; and that while he failed to obey the induction order, he stood ready to defend the United States if it was invaded.

Judge Hincks said today he had no legal right to "throw Mocarsky out of the country because he is a citizen." But Mocarsky's attitude was such, said the jurist, that "I see no reason why we should feed him three or four years."

In court yesterday, Mocarsky complained the United States had done nothing for him and as a result, he had been forced to stand in breadlines in Chicago and beg for food.

Made a Captain

A pleasant feature of Thanksgiving Day for Mr. and Mrs. John Ridge was the receiving of a cable from their elder son, William, who has been in England for over two years, announcing his promotion to a Captaincy. Captain Ridge is with the Perth Regiment, and is attached to a headquarters staff overseas. His father is a veteran of the last World War, and is at present quite ill following a serious heart attack over a week ago.

Prices Board Lowers Maximum Lamb Prices

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 —(CP)—The Prices Board today issued an order establishing maximum prices which retailers may charge for cuts of lamb.

Board officials said the maximum prices generally will be "slightly lower" than in the past. The order covers the period between Oct. 18 and the end of this year.

Under the new order the retail ceiling price for loin rib roast or chops in Ottawa and Toronto, for instance, is 39 cents a pound; for back or shoulder chops 29 cents a pound; for leg of lamb 36 cents a pound and for breast of lamb 17 cents a pound.

The board said in its statement that a similar system is already working satisfactorily" for beef and that "steps are being taken to extend it to veal and pork."

Information.

(Radio France at Algiers announced this morning that since the liberation of Corsica, the Germans had sent 20 new divisions into France guarding against an invasion there).

Unfavorable weather over target areas yesterday grounded Allied heavy and medium bombers, the communique said.

In Cairo the R.A.F. announced that heavy bombers, continuing the bomb-lashing of the Dodecanese, had hammered Maritza airfield on Rhodes Monday night, and other planes hit the harbor of Kos last night.

Bombs burst on the runway and aircraft dispersal area and started a fire at Maritza, the Cairo communique said. Medium and light bombers raided the harbor of Kos in the German-invaded island, and a medium-sized merchantman off the island was hit and left stationary. One R.A.F. plane was lost.

Allied and German armies took advantage of the pause in hostilities brought about by adverse weather to prepare for the approaching battle for Volturno River. Reports said the Nazi Army was strengthening its defences on the north bank of the river which the 5th Army must penetrate.

Smash 10 Tanks

On the Adriatic coast the indomitable 8th Army, of which the Canadian 1st Division is a part, succeeded in making some progress despite adverse weather although German resistance in the area was described as becoming increasingly stiff.

(As an indication of the type of heavy fighting the 8th Army has been meeting, Canadian Press War Correspondent Louis V. Hunter reported Oct. 6 that British tank formations had destroyed 10 German tanks in stopping a determined German effort to retake the town of Termoli. Units of the Canadian 1st Division, however, were not mention as taking part in this battle.)

Hold Euchre Party

HASTINGS, Oct. 13 —(ENS).— Eight tables progressive euchre were played at the parish hall, sponsored by Catholic Women's League. Prizes were awarded as follows: Women's first, Mrs. Bert Lynch; second, Mrs. Jimmie Crowley; men's first, Ford Beavis; second, James Duff. The lucky chair prize was won by Ford Beavis.

Proceeds go to the sewing circle for Red Cross work. October 15 the ladies are holding another euchre.

British Move Troops To Azores Bases

LONDON, Oct. 13 — (CP). — British newspapers to-day hailed Portugal's action in granting Britain naval and air bases in the Azores as another proof of Germany's waning military strength.

There was growing hope, too, that Eire, Turkey, and another neutral countries might follow Portugal's example and extend military facilities to the United Nations. Britain and Turkey are parties to a treaty similar to the 570-year-old Portuguese-British agreement under which yesterday's action was taken.

Discussing the development, which strengthens the Allies' control over vital sea routes from North America to Europe and the Mediterranean, the London Daily Mail said:

"This is an act against Germany which once would have been followed by swift and terrible reprisals. Portugal still may not escape unscathed. But the day when Hitler merely had to threaten and people bowed to his will has passed."

The Daily Herald said:

"The neutral countries no longer are terrorized as they were by the dread of an invisible German army ready at any moment to crush them."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said editorially:

Hint to Others.

"There are other neutral countries with plenty of help to offer us and powerful means of cutting short Germany's career in war. Portugal sets them an example. The time has come for them to cast off their four years of fear and act again as honor dictates."

The German radio, meanwhile, attempted to minimize the importance of Portugal's action, saying it was believed in Berlin that the general course of Portuguese foreign policy would not be affected by the agreement and intimating it had been made under pressure.

Dispatches from Lisbon said British warships already had steamed into harbors in the Azores and had landed troops to defend ports and airfields. British planes were reported landing from aircraft carriers.

The Lisbon correspondent of the Associated Press said in a dispatch that it was generally believed that Germany would not recall her diplomatic representatives from Portugal and would continue to buy Portuguese tin ore, tungsten, and sardines. German consular offices in the Azores, however, will be closed and all personnel withdrawn imemdiately.

Plainville Ladies Entertain Groups

PLAINVILLE Oct. 13. (ENS). — The ladies of the Plainville W.M.S. held a special Thankoffering service at their regular October meeting. Ladies were present from Coldsprings, Gore's Landing and Bethesda (Harwood); about 60 were in attendance.

The president of the Plainville Society, Mrs. Glen Cole, presided and was assisted by Mrs. Earl Joice who was in charge of the devotional period. On the program was a number from each of the visiting societies. Mrs. Garnet Isaac of Bethesda sang a solo; Mrs. Cliff Timlin and Mrs. Cliff Minifie of Coldsprings a duet; and from Gore's Landing, a reading "Six Reasons for Giving a Thankoffering," was given by Mrs. Wallace Pratt. Mrs. Stuart Herriott and Miss Evelyn Brisbin of Plainville also sang a duet. As the special speaker, Mrs. Stanley J. Gray of Garden Hill took as her subject "What Our Missionary Society Is Doing." This was given as an interesting travelogue in China, Japan, Korea and Africa, as well as in Canada, especially at Batawa, where a Protestant church has been requested by the people there and it is hoped that the auxiliaries in the Cobourg Presbytery will be able to assist in some measure. Mrs. M. C. Fisher moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Fisher and made the Offeratory prayer.

Later the ladies adjourned to the basement where a delicious plate lunch of salad, tomato pickles, sandwiches, cookies and tea was served. About 34 dollars was received in the thankoffering.

"heavy fighting was still in progress" yesterday.

The Russian war bulletin also reported fierce fighting in the battles of the Dnieper, but failed to mention specific areas. It recounted deeper penetrations "many miles" west of the river and indicated that the enveloping operations around Kiev were proceeding satisfactorily.

In White Russia, Russian columns were edging closer to Vitebsk, northern anchor of the German defence wall, overcoming fierce opposition.

The Berlin radio described large scale fighting in the Gomel area below Vitebsk, an indication the Russians had won bridgeheads on the west bank in their flanking assault on that rail centre. Soviet newspapers said the Russians were deploying in strength along this 100-mile battle line and that an attack in force was imminent.

THIS IS PETERBOROUGH

SAFETY

WEEK!

SAFETY—

IN THE FACTORY

SCHOOL AND HOME

People most frequently suffer accidents when they are careless. The old saying "familiarity breeds contempt" is applicable to machines and automobiles. When we are very familiar with a machine or an automobile we are apt to become careless when working with it or driving it. Care should be exercised at all times no matter how well we know how to operate them. By doing this we are practicing safety.

Caution should be observed at all times when at work, in the home, or at play. Many accidents are caused by thoughtlessness and could have easily been avoided if the person were safety conscious. It is everyone's job to watch themselves and others when they see actions which could lead to serious accidents.

You can never go wrong if you always "play safe". If you do not know how a machine operates or how some mechanism functions, make it your job to find out first before you risk using it. In the factories always use safety equipment where necessary. Also teach children to play safely—and observe traffic rules and regulations.

Help To Keep Peterborough Accident-Free This Week— And Every Week –

This too is an important war job. The job of preventing accidents which would keep men and women from doing important war jobs. To keep up production everyone must be on the job all the time. We too, must reduce preventable accidents on the streets and in the homes. Citizens of Peterborough, let us all get behind this campaign and make a real job of practicing and teaching "Safety."

Mothers—Listen To The CHILDREN'S SAFETY PROGRAM
Over CHEX – 10.15 A.M. – Thursday and Friday

At 10:15 a.m. children will be assembled in all schools to hear these programs, where safety will be stressed. Special programs for High Schools will commence at 9:[illegible] a.m. and continue for 15 minutes.

Drive, Walk, Work, Talk—SAFELY

The Peterborough Examiner

VOL. LXXXVIII, No. 86 PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1943

Safety Week Notes

The Safety Week score board was still a blank at the end of the second of the week's six days of special endeavor in making the people of Peterborough aware of the need and importance of Safety,—in walking circumspectly as some one might suggest.

W. H. Munro of Ottawa, formerly of this city, remarked in his talk last night that Peterborough is a highly industrialized community, and the ideal safety should be held high. Incidentally, Mr. Munro paid the Examiner a little compliment.

"Your Peterborough association is getting better publicity than any other place I know of, certainly better than we get from the Ottawa papers," Mr. Munro said.

He turned to Frank Jones of Ottawa for verification of that statement,, and added "But, you don't read the Examiner, Frank, I do."

"The Examiner has given liberal space to reporting your proceedings, and that means they have been helping you in your aims of making this city "anti-accident conscious."

Among the visitors introduced to the dinner crowd by H. A. Cranfield were:—W. Frank Jones, Ottawa, immediate past divisional chairman of the Ottawa-St. Lawrence division.

Alderman Jack Allen, vice-chairman of the Belleville district.

C. H. Kercher, Toronto, director of Safety for all C.G.E. plants in Canada.

I. F. McRae, past divisional chairman of the Peterborough-Lindsay division.

R. B. Morley, Toronto, general manager of the I.A.B.A. in Ontario.

And Alderman Adam Sands, one of the most active workers in the cause of Safety in Peterborough.

Mr. Cranfield was chairman of the luncheon at the Kawartha Club.

Luncheon Attendance

Those who attended the luncheon at the Kawartha Club were: Mr. Munro and and Mr. Jones of Ottawa; Mr. Kercher and Mr. Morley of Ottawa; J. M. Elson, Toronto, editorial representative of "Industrial Canada."

Gordon Richard, of Mobilization Survey Division, National Selective Service, Kingston.

W. G. Ritchie, safety director of Fittings Limited, Oshawa; E. H. Dithridge, director of safety, Port Hope Sanitary Manufacturing Co. Ltd.; Fred W. Brooks, Port Hope, secretary of the I.A.P.A.; Aldermen Sands and City Clerk Outram; J. H. Vernor, Western Clock Company, past president of the I.A.P.A.

L. E. McLean and K. N. Gerow, Corbin Lock Company, Belleville; H. J. Allin, production manager of Stewart - Warner - Alemite Corp., Belleville.

Arnold G. Shallhorn and J. S. Munro, Peterborough.

Thomas Taylor, director of safety, Peterborough Canoe Company, Limited, and also chairman of woodworking accident prevention group, Central Ontario Division of I.A.P.A.

T. A. Lister, safety engineer, C.G.E. Company; W. L. Ferguson, Brinton Carpet Company; J. E. Girvan, Canadian General Electric Company, Peterborough.

F. J. Overend, Peterborough Lumber Company; H. T. Cranford, Western Clock Company, past chairman Central Ontario Division, I.A. P.A.; W. S. Howson, Peterborough Lock Company.

Col. Doug Lawrie Relinquishes CommandOf43rd

On the 16th of this month, Lt.-Col. D. J. Lawrie, E.D., relinquishes command of the 43rd (R) Field Regiment R.C.A., and retires to the Corps Reserve of Officers. Pending appointment of a Commanding Officer of the Regiment, Major G. J. Edwards of the 45-56 Battery, Lindsay, will be Acting C.O. of the Regiment.

Col. Lawrie sent in his resignation recently to District Headquarters, Kingston. With Regimental Headquarters in Peterborough and no Battery here—the 4th Battery having lately been attached to the 33rd Brigade Group of Ottawa as an Anti-Aircraft Unit—he felt he could not do justice to the Cobourg and Lindsay Batteries of the Regiment with his work here.

The retirement to civilian life terminates a long period of service by Col. Lawrie. He went overseas as a gunner in the last war in 1915, took his commission in France, where he was also wounded, and was discharged in 1919. It was through the efforts mainly of Lieut. Lawrie that the 4th Field Battery was organized here in the winter of 1919-20 and went to camp the next summer in the local Exhibition Grounds. Lt. Lawrie was second in command, but assumed command as a Captain in 1923. He held this post for five years and then assumed command of the 44th Field Brigade R.C.A. He retired in the latter part of the 30s for several years.

When the 4th Battery went active as an anti-tank unit early in the present war under command of Major J. A. Harstone, Col. Lawrie was asked to re-organize a non-permament 4th Field Battery. He did this in August of 1940 and remained in command of this unit until the death of the Bridgade C.O., Lt.-Col. C. T. Peterson, when Col. Lawrie was given command of the Brigade, later changed to the 43rd Regt. That was in December, 1941, and he held this office till the present time. Always a gunner at heart, Col. "Doug" Lawrie proved a very popular Commanding Officer with all ranks, and general regret throughout the Regiment and district is being expressed upon his retirement.

Obituary

JOHN FRANCIS GALVIN

The funeral of John Francis Galvin was held from family residence, 558 Gilmour street, Monday, to St. Peter's Cathedral where Rev. G. Wolff celebrate requiem mass and delivered an eloquent sermon on death. Many friends and relatives were present and spiritual and floral tokens presented at the home gave evidence of high esteem.

Mr. Galvin was a retired employee of Canada Customs. Interment was made in St. Peter's Cemetery. Rev. K. Malane conducting graveside services.

ALWAYS A ROYAL GEORGE

The name "Royal George" has been in constant use in the Royal Navy since the days of Queen Anne.

McIntosh Reds To Grace Scout Baskets

There is no "ceiling" on the McIntosh Reds the Boy Scouts and Cubs will offer to the people of Peterborough at street corners on Saturday.

You can name your own price, and if you boost it to a quarter or half a dollar or even an eye-popping bill the youngsters will be happy at the end of the day, they will have a new faith in their elders, and your money is directed to an excellent cause. By the way, the apples are going to cost the Scouts and Cubs considerably more than in other years, and an extra dime in your contribution will help a lot in meeting the "overhead."

Apple Day is a national appeal. All over Canada hundreds of groups of these young lads, Canadian men of the future, will be out on the streets early with their baskets of applies as a means of raising funds.

Total collection in 184 Ontario centres last year was $41,097.

This money is used for many purposes including the Chins Up Fund to aid bombed out British Scouts, contributions to provincial headquarters, training of leaders at Blue Springs Camp, Scout and Cub rallies, hobby shows.

Peterborough Scouts are paying for half their new hut built on their camp grounds at Nassau. They also have a local scene headquarters room.

The public probably knows that Comissioners and Scoutmasters give their time and effort, entirely at their own expense.

85 Women Register At Selective Service

Eighty-five women registered for defence work and essential civilian employment on Tuesday, as the effort to enlist married women which began last Thursday continued its course. Approximately 400 women have already appeared at the local office of Selective Service in the Barrie Building, anxious to offer their services in this important cause.

Of the total number registered on Tuesday there were 73 referred to plants and industries, while in addition to those taking full-time employment several women have signed up for part-time jobs. One of those among the latter is Mrs. J. C. Larmer, past-president of the Women's Council.

HIS VOCAL COUNTERPART.

By the expedient of a record transcription which he had previously made in the studio, the voice of W. H. Munro of Ottawa, president of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, was heard over the air from CHEX last night just about the time he was completing his speech at the Safety Week dinner at the Empress.

PLOWMEN COMPETING.

Twenty-five entries in the county plowing match at Henry Batten's farm today was regarded as a worth-while response in the circumstances of war-time. The ground was exceedingly dry, and possibly the weather was slightly on the warm side for plowing, and while morning spectators were few it was expected that the sunshine would bring out a crowd for the afternoon.

Near-Record Size Small Mouth Black Bass Caught At Hiawatha By Stanley Ballard

Stan Ballard of the Post Office staff and Clarence Prophet of the De Laval wound up the fishing season in a blaze of glory on Thanksgiving Day when they visited Rice Lake.

Ballard battled one of the largest if not the top small-mouth black bass of the year, landing one that weighed 6¼ pounds. He was using a long bamboo rod and a green frog, the old style of bass bobbing, when the fighter took hold, and Ballard had a busy time for a few minutes, despite the fact the fishing rod was a stout one. Besides this beauty they landed seven large pickerel, using frogs and worms, to climax one of Autumn's perfect days.

The small-mouth bass is being mounted, and is doubly unusual in that Rice Lake is noted more for its large-mouth bass than for the more coveted variety, the small-mouth.

Draw On Rabbits Nets $13.25 For War Victims

One good turn deserves another, and so it came about that the winning of a prize in a draw held on behalf of the Peterborough and District War Victims Fund by William Welch of 140 Douro street, was made the opportunity to hold a similar effort on behalf of the fund. through his donating a pair of rabbits for that purpose, in return for his good luck in the former one.

With a number of young folk giving assistance through the selling of tickets in the persons of Annie Blackburn, Leonard Cooper, Roger Hendren, Jimmy Johnson and Terence Chapman, this was made to realize the sum of $13.25, which is listed in to-day's receipts on behalf of the fund.

The draw for this was made by the secretary of the fund and resulted in the prize being won by ticket No. 335 held by Miss G. Dunford of 64 Hunter St. W. This marks the continuance of a lively interest Mr. Welch has taken in the fund, for money has been raised on previous occasions through his generosity of a like nature.

Parker Family Repeats.

From an individual standpoint there are few who can gainsay what a wonderful support the John E. Parker Family of Route No. 1, Norwood. have given to the fund. In the aggregate this one family has raised the splendid amount of $1,108.80 to which total it was brought through Mr. Parker's personal gift of $10 appearing also in to-day's list of receipts.

In addition to this, Mrs. Parker has booked the stall on the market for Saturday, November 6, when she will put forth a special effort to give a helping hand to the special donation for the Children's Christmas Cheer Fund, which it is hoped can be cabled to the Lord Mayor of London in time to be of service at the coming festive season.

For Others Instead of Self.

Saturday, October 9 was Sammy Kingdon's birthday. a big event for one of such tender years. At the party that was held to mark the event, instead of the usual round of gifts the young guests brought money to give help to the boys and girls in Britain, through the fund, repeating an act in his name which occurred just one year ago. These youngsters would no doubt learn from this how blessed it is to give, rather than to receive, and when the object of their giving to help those less fortunate than themselves, it takes on a greater degree of significance, which most likely will find expression in later life to a larger degree than that which would otherwise have been inspired.

Sailors' Names Needed At Once

While the dead-line for receiving names and addresses of Peterborough sailors to qualify them for the Christmas ditty bags being prepared by the local Auxiliary to the Navy had been set for last Saturday the Auxiliary officers feel that there are some local boys in the Navy who have not yet been registered and the time has been extended a few days, although the list will have to be closed shortly.

Relatives and friends of Peterborough members of the Navy who have not yet sent in their names and addresses are urged to do so at once. It is particularly desired to secure this information in regard to boys who are serving overseas, whose Christmas bags will have to be shipped in the near future to be sure of delivery before Christmas.

Mrs. F. D. Craig, 544 Water street, is convener of the committee and the names and addresses can be mailed to her or telephoned to 5591.

B'Nai B'Rith Observes Its Centennial

The Jewish service society B'Nai B'Rith begins today its second century of progress and usefulness.

Not with observances of jubiliation in a world of war and woe, but in a quiet spirit of rededication to its aims and purposes, especially as they may be directed at this time to the accomplishment of victory, B'Nai B'Rith is making a silent bow to this day which represents its centennial hoping for happier tomorrows.

This association traces its origin to twelve immigrants who, inspired by their vision of democracy of the new world, met in a gas lit coffee shop in New York City on October 13, 1843, and they pledged themselves and their heirs to serve the best interests of America, humanity and the Jewish people. In Peterborough and elsewhere throughout this nation and across the United States border the members of B'Nai B'Rith feel on this first one hundredth anniversary that the covenant of their founders has been kept.

Large Membership

Their membership has grown to 175,000 in 1,500 groups in every city and virtually every town here and in the U.S.A. Its hospitals, orphanages, homes for the aged and their community welfare services represent an investment of $20,000,000. It has devoted $10,000,000 to education and to youth projects, and has contributed more than $5,000,000 to the Red Cross.

More than 17,500 of B'Nai B'Rith members are in the United States army, and the society in both countries has supported the war action of their governments, and have done their part in upholding local administrations and in contributing to community progress.

"Instead of celebrating its centennial, B'Nai B'Rith is commemorating this landmark in Jewish history by an even greater mobilization of its strength and resources to help bring closer the inevitable day of victory."

This association is of comparatively recent establishment in Canada and Peterborough, but its members in this country have within a few years displayed a keen interest and energy in public welfare and service, a desire to promote sympathy and understanding among all classes of the people, and to bear their share of community enterprise and advancement.

Bill Hamilton Wins D.F.C. For Berlin Raid

OTTAWA, Oct. 13—(CP).—Air Force headquarters last night announced award of Distinguished Flying Crosses to a fighter pilot, two bomber pilots and a wireless operator air gunner of the R.C.A.F. serving overseas.

The awards winners: Flt. Lt. N. R. Fowlow, Halifax; Flt. Lt. R. H. Cochrane, Montreal; PO. W. B. Hamilton (559 Homewood Avenue), Peterborough, and FO. S. W. R. Wilhelmson, Elbow, Sask.

The citation:

PO. Hamilton—"This officer piloted an aircraft detailed to attack Berlin one night in August, 1943. When near the target area one of the bomber's engines failed. The aircraft gradually lost height, but PO. Hamilton continued to the target. When over the city, the bomber was hit by anti-aircraft fire whilst illuminated by the searchlights. Nevertheless, PO. Hamilton executed a determined attack and afterwards flew the aircraft to base. This officer displayed great courage and determination throughout."

Bill Hamilton, Sr., father of the pilot officer and a well-known fur merchant and storekeeper in Peterborough, has been eagerly awaiting the citation to learn how his boy came to be decorated and he was thrilled today when informed of the news release.

Mr. Hamilton is a veteran of World War 1, and was wounded at Hill 70. He enlisted with the 39th Battalion in Peterborough, transferred to the Divisional Signals of the Engineers, and on demobilization was serving as a despatch rider. He spent three and a half years overseas.

Two Charges Withdrawn

Charged with breaking and entering the dwelling-house of W. Steenburgh in Belmont township by day, Pte. Gordon Spencer, 20, appeared before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning and the case was withdrawn at the request of the crown.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry in asking for the withdrawal said that Spnecer was absent without leave from his unit.

As soon as the accused left the dock he was taken in charge by a military escort.

A similar charge against Mrs. Muriel Maracle of Shannonville was also withdrawn by the prosecution.

Soldier Is Hit Crossing Bridge

The effectiveness of the Safety Week campaign was somewhat marred Tuesday night when a hit-and-run automobile climbed over the sidewalk at the east end of Hunter street bridge, knocked down a soldier and sped away eastward without stopping.

The injured man was Pte. Patrick Loney of the local Military Training Centre who is confined to the hospital at the camp suffering from a cut on his head and concussion.

Eye-witnesses of the affair told police that the car was travelling east and that it swerved off the road on to the sidewalk, and collided with the soldier and that the driver made no effort to stop after the crash.

Constable Harold Mesley who investigated the accident had Pte. Loney removed to the military hospital. His injuries are not regarded as serious.

Indian River Man Given Seven Days

John O'Leary, 22, of Indian River, was sentenced by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning to seven days imprisonment in the county jail, after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of having driven an automobile while intoxicated.

There was an order to the police to impound O'Leary's car for three months and the accused's driving license was also cancelled for the same period.

O'Leary protested that he needed the car in his business. "I have to inspect telephone lines," he said, "and you can't do that without a car."

"You had better get a bicycle," suggested Magistrate Gee, adding that the law provided for the holding of automobiles in such cases.

Peterborough Merchants Asked To Decorate Windows In Support Of Fifth Victory Loan

J. H. Jamison, in charge of window displays on the Public Relations Committee, for the Fifth Victory Loan Campaign, is making an appeal to all merchants in the city to arrange suitable displays in their show windows to help promote the campaign.

The Victory Loan Office on George street has a supply of display cards, posters and banners and merchants are asked to co-operate by picking up whatever they need. The merchants are further asked to have all displays ready by Saturday, October 16, and to continue the showing for the duration of the campaign.

RAYMOND BARRINGER

Raymond Barringer of the R. C. N.V.R., only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Barringer, is now stationed in Toronto. He enlisted in the Navy on May 30 and reported at Kingston and then was immediately posted to Toronto for his basic training. Prior to enlisting Raymond was employed at the Millbrook Creamery. His parents lived in Peterborough for several years before moving to Millbrook and he began his public school education here.

A small piece of note paper bearing a scrawled pencil signature with the name "Mary Churchill," is the prized possession of PTE. JOYCE SPENCELY, daughter of Mr. A. Spencely, 108 Auburn street, who is on the permanent staff of the C. W. A. C. in Kitchener

After hearing Canada's famous guest address the girls stationed there, Pte Spencely had an opportunity of getting her signature. As far as the Army girls are concerned Mary Churchill is tops, and in the words of this soldier girl "we all fell for her hard."

Pte. Spencely worked in the Ovaltine until she enlisted about 8 months ago and she is quite in love with her job, and thinks the service life is the only one for girls. At the present time she is home on furlough, but declared enthusiastically that she would lose no time upon her return looking up two Peterborough girls, MARION QUINN and THELMA ZAVITZ, who have just enlisted and who will be taking their basic training course in Kitchener by the time she returns. Pte. Spencely has a brother in the army who is a prisoner in the Far East.

LIEUT. SADIE TROTTER

A recent arrival overseas is Lieut. Sadie E. Trotter of the R.C.A.M.C., who has just notified her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Trotter, R.R. No. 4, that she is in England This nursing sister is a graduate of Nicholls Hospital here, having been a member of the 1941 graduating class, and she joined the Army shortly afterwards During the time she was in Canada, she was stationed at Petawawa Camp.

A mere squadron or two of planes zooming through the skies in England no longer is able to arouse enthusiasm in soldiers there, writes HYMAN YANOFSKY of the R.C. C.S., who has been there for 1½ years and who took three months of his basic training at No. 32 C.A. (B) T.C. in Peterborough

"Now we can see hundreds of fighters and medium bombers and a few hundred "Forts" and consider it just an average day. Of course, Jerry hits back now and then in a very very small way, and there are times when the novelty of flak going up and bursting high in the sky is still something that pulls us out of bed.

"When it does happen at night, you can't imagine anything more colorful than tracers going up in all colors, red, orange and green. It is hard to imagine those little red darts as lethal instruments, but we have seen them shoot planes down and now we know. We're from Missouri.)"

Sgnm. Yanofsky, who hails from Montreal, had a grandstand seat when an anti-aircraft battery made shooting history, by bringing down an ME 210 (photographic reconnaissance plane) from 35,000 feet. This is supposed to be the highest any ack ack has yet scored a kill.

The raid occurred in daylight and when the sirens sounded the Canadians looked up and saw some exhaust trails far away. Then shell bursts appeared behind them, the flak began to get so hot that the planes began to circle for home, the soldier wrote. They stopped leaving trails and were lost to sight and for 15 seconds no one was able to see anything.

"Shrieks of 'they're getting away' went up, but the words were no sooner uttered than there were new bursts in the air and a red streak, and we all realized he was on fire as the plane dived into the sea."

They Get Around

"We recently had two weeks of boyscouting or as the Army would put it, tearing up and down the country causing damage to farm lands, humble cottages and tearing after someone who before the start of the "exercises" might have been your best friends. This time served to remove many of our active service kinks and we were with a Canadian Division at the time and had a lot of fun chasing with them all over."

Even the rain didn't give them a break, Sgnm. Yanofsky said. The worst night was one with a thunder storm playing the stellar role and a downpour sufficient to capsize anyone's navy. Some of the group bedded down on the floor of an empty cottage and were able to keep reasonably dry, but a more venturesome man from Kamloops, B.C. (used to the Rockies) rigged up a protection outside and only the side of his cap was damp.

PTE. EDWARD MOORE

Italy is a land abounding with barbers, Pte. Ted Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Moore, 43 Frank street, has discovered, and the price for a shave is—two cigarettes. The Italians prize these above almost anything else.

"The Italian people cannot seem to do enough for us, even though their means are very limited. They are short of everything, but mostly food. We are in a large park in a fair sized town and with fresh fruit and vegetables added to our menus, we are getting dandy meals. When we first arrived, the Italians were terrified of us, but now you can hardly drive them away."

Up to the time this letter was written no mail had reached this Canadian unit, principally because they have not stopped long enough in any one place for it to be distributed. The picture which appears above was taken in Sicily and forwarded to his parents. Pte. Moore has three other brothers in the forces, two in the Army and one in the R.C.A.F., and they are overseas.

The Hostess House at Barriefield Camp is one of the most popular spots, not alone for the C.W.A.C. girls as might be supposed, but for the men. On a Sunday, the staff has an average of between 600 and 700 men dropping in, just for the quiet atmosphere and perhaps for the doughnuts and rolls.

Three women, who look just like mothers, live right at the Hostess House and take different shifts during the day. They are there to sell things to the troops, help their relatives when they are visiting and to give the boys and girls a touch of home, with their attractively decorated rooms and comfortable chesterfields and chairs.

With all the Auxiliary services working at capacity, they can not begin to handle the crowd. MURRAY DRYDEN, supervisor of the Y.M.C.A., has as one of his regular assistants PTE. RUSS KIDD, son of Mr and Mrs. Percy Kidd, R.R. No. 2 Peterborough. Russ has been at Barriefield for two years and thoroughly enjoys his work JACK SAGE, another Peterborough boy, whose photographic scenes adorn the walls, although not in evidence during this reporter's visit, was well known around the camp.

Since there is generally a lively selling and bartering trade going on between members of the services, the Y.M.C.A. has a large bulletin board up and special forms are made out to be used when a soldier wants to either buy or sell something in his possession. The notice gives the circumstances of the deal, the price and the name and location of the soldier, and has proven to be very popular with the entire camp.

The new drill hall which will soon be turned over to the camp authorities will be as large if not larger than the mammoth structure at Camp Borden, which held a unique place in Army Camps. Couples enjoying dances in this drill hall will earn their fun by the time they have trotted around the floor three or four times. The Camp Borden hall will take care of about 5,000 people and it is estimated that Barriefield will handle about the same number.

Industries Have 3 Accidents To Spoil Record

Three industrial accidents in two of the city's factories were marked up on the record board of Safety Week at the Custom House late this morning.

Those minor but painful mishaps snuffed out hopes of an "accidentless" week, and the general industrial-municipal committee is now confining their wishes to at least a low "score" when Safety Week ends on Saturday.

At one plant an experienced tradesman ran a chisel in his hand requiring stitches to close the wound. In another factory a man using a file wihout a handle pierced his thumb with the sharp end.

The third case was that of an employees who failed to look as carefully as he might have before he jumped on to one end of a board. The other end flew up and hit him no the face. That injury which sounds so simple and yet was decidedly painful also called for stitching.

Trade Groups Meet

Safety Week broadcasting continued today with special public address reminders at the noon hour at Westclox and Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Limited with T. A. Lister at the "mike."

Meeting of trade groups, which J. E. Girven, assistant works manager at C.G.E., explained at the Safety Week dinner last night, are scheduled for this evening. This development transfers a major responsibility to employees and leaves to their conceptions the suggestion of new Safety ideas.

Organization of a transportation group is planned at a meeting at Kawartha Golf Club. It is designed for the drivers of trucks and all other commercial vehicles. The success of this effort will depend entirely upon the drivers themselves and, for immediate results, on their response to this meeting which is called for 7 p.m.

The wood working group will meet at Peterborough Lumber Company and metal machine group at C.G.E. The Safety Week fashion show moves to the Centre Theatre tonight at 8.50 o'clock.

Fire Bug Age 9 Escapes Police

LINDSAY, Oct. 13 — (ENS). — A fire bug in the person of a nine year old boy Bill Bonall, ward of the Bowmanville Training School, made an escape from officials here when he was arrested following his alleged attempt to set fire to the Northern Casket Co. The boy jumped out of a car in which he had been placed by one of the schools' officials and as yet Lindsay police have no information as to his whereabouts.

Bonall was arrested by Constables Hargreaves and P. Mark following a call by the caretaker of the Northern Casket Co. A fire had been started near the building and had gained considerable headway when the officers arrived they arrested Bonall who had several boxes of matches on his person which he admitted taking from the local A. and P. Store.

Chief's Son Arrested

STE. ROSE, Que., Oct. 13—(CP)—Rene Bolduc, 23-year-old son of the police chief of nearby Plage Laval, was arrested on Tuesday on a charge of disturbing the peace which police said was the result of blows exchanged with them while they were ejecting Bolduc from a hotel. Bolduc will answer the charge in Recorder's Court here on Friday night.

PETERBOROUGH'S SAFETY WEEK FIRST OF ITS KIND IN ONTARIO

Practice Of Safety Promoted By Compensation Act First Step In Social Security

The Workmen's Compensation Act, which has been in effect since January 1, 1915, "was one of the first, if not actually the very first, great steps in what is now called Social Security," said W. H. Munro, general manager of the Ottawa Light and Power Company, in his address at the Safety Week dinner last night at the Empress Hotel.

"This act embodies the basic principle on which social security is now advocated, namely the collective responsibility of society for certain burdens which fall on individuals."

As the former general manager of the Peterborough Light and Power Company years ago, and as a native son, Mr. Munro was warmly welcomed by friends of those days and by a large assembly of representatives of industrial plants of the city and district and members of the City Council and Board of Education.

Both Mr. Munro and R. B. Morley, Toronto, manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations of Ontario, stressed the fact that this was the first occasion on which the ideals and purposes of Safety Week were extended to an entire community, a new departure in the technic of co-operation in the prevention of accidents.

Fred J. Overend, convener of the Safety Week committee, and chairman of the dinner, announced that thirty-nine firms were represented by the ninety men who attended.

In the personal aspect of the program, tributes were paid to H. A. Cranfield, chairman of the Central Ontario division of the I.A.P.A.; F. W. Brooks, Port Hope, secretary of the divisional organization; Alderman Adam Sands as the connecting link with the Council and Board of Education; T. A. Lister, safety engineer with the C.G.E. Company, Mr. Morley and others.

Mayor Hamilton extended a civic welcome to the visiting promoters of the ideal of safety, and G. K. Fraser, M.P., and Harold R. Scott, M.P.P., spoke briefly congratulating the Central Ontario division upon the expanding scope and success of the work they have been carrying on in this city and district.

Mr. Munro prefaced his address with what might be called a filial acknowledgment to the character and industry of the forefathers of Peterborough, with some recollections of his own youth and apprenticeship in his grandfather's industrial plant on Reid street, the Wm. Hamilton Co. And with that grateful and reminiscent introduction he passed on to his main theme of the development of the ideal of Safety in industry and throughout the community, and the influence of the Workmen's Compensation Act upon the growth of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, rewarding results that have flowed from this policy, and suggestions for the future.

Looking Backward

"I smile to myself to think that I or anyone else should venture to talk to people in Peterborough about industry, because if by industry one means toil, labor or work, there is nothing any one can tell the inhabitants of this city and of this county on that subject," Mr. Munro said. "You and more specially your forbears are and were past masters of that kind of industry.

Since the first white men settled in these parts, the bush, the fields, the lakes and rivers, the mills and shops of this county and this town have seen sweat flow copiously. Even the Indians found more sweating labor hereabouts in their longest portage through the Trent watershed."

Mr. Munro interjected a reference to Premier Drew's statement in a speech at Ottawa last week in which he said: "By education Canadians can make or break the nation."

"Pioneer days required vastly more muscular labor than today," Mr. Munro continued. "Times have changed, and we should heed the message of Colonel Drew, get education. I am sure he meant more than just filling our heads with facts and data and mathematics. Did he not also mean, get culture, develop character get that elasticity and fertility of mind which permits one to apply technical and professional training so as to advance in all the arts, including the art of living."

Creek's Primitive Power.

Returning to his visualization of a Peterborough of other days, Mr. Munro spoke of the Jackson Park creek as a physical feature that was once a thing of beauty and utility, and now a humble and unobtrusive detail of the landscape and probably a source of recurring headache for City Engineer R. H. Parsons.

"There is every reason to believe that this feature determined the site of this city. It used to be referred to by the elders as "The Creek" and by the youngsters as "The Crick." It was once a robust and picturesque stream gambolling vigorously out of the hills to the north-west and crossing the town diagonally to empty into Little Lake.

The Creek was water power to the earliest industries. It was within their abilities of development. The rushing Otonabee was too wild for them to tackle at first. Small mills and shops and a tannery strung themselves along the Creek to get a start in business. It was their source of water power.

Mayor Hamilton's father, Peter Hamilton, began manufacturing agricultural machinery down at this end, and Peter's cousin, William Hamilton, who was also my grandfather, put in a dam in the bush just west of the Smith Road, now Reid Street, and went in for boilers, water wheels, and sawmill machinery.

Years later, your Mayor and I learned the rudiments of the trades of patternmaker, moulder, and machinist in those shops. A former Mayor, George A. Macdonald, was a senior apprentice, and we could give a list of conditions and practices which the field representatives of the I.A.P.A. would not tolerate now for a moment. Before the Edison Works with its whistle arrived here, the Hamiltons were the largest employers of skilled labor.

The River Harnessed.

Power developments extended eventually to the Otonabee River, at London Street for the Dickson Lumber Company, at Auburn for the woollen mills, and at the big Red Mills at Nassau. In the '80's and '90's Peterborough was humming with the music of saws and rumble of mills and the sweet smell of sawdust and new lumber pervaded the community.

The power was all mechanical, long line shafts, gears and belting abounded. My grandfather had a rope drive running across Reid Street and there was another over the river at Hunter Street which many of you remember. Industry as everywhere, but tragedy lurked behind this active scene. On all too frequent occasions a wagon or express rig would drive up to a humble home. Men would carry something into the house, back out, and silently drive away. Inside a woman would stand wringing her hands with her apron, perhaps a couple of children clinging to her skirt, horror and alarm on their faces, gazing at the husband and father who had gone out to work at 6:30 o'clock that morning, and now lay gasping and bleeding on the bed.

Where was help to come from? Neighbors, relatives and the church did what they could—also the Boss depending upon his temperament and his finances. Lawyers talked and promised. Misery set in for the family.

Then there were the less obvious and more frequent cases of bruises, sprains, wrenched backs, hernia, and broken ribs, when a man limped home on the arm of a friend and kidded himself he would be all right in a few days; suffering and losing pay. So-called blood poisoning was not uncommon.

Ontario's Initiative.

As early as 1900 an attempt was made to solve this unhappy situation, a start having already been made in Great Britain. Nothing came of it, however, until 1912 when Sir William Meredith was commissioned by the Government of Ontario to study and report on the matter. He did so and drafted a bill for the Legislature, which was passed and put into effect as the Workmen's Compensation Act on January 1, 1915.

As Mr. T. N. Dean says: "Since 1915, the Act has been amended frequently, as the strength of its administration grew, and throughout all amendments runs the principle of extension of benefits and coverage, until at the present time no Workmen's Compensation Act anywhere in the world provides greater benefits to injured workmen and their dependents, nor, generally speaking, is more liberal in interpretation, or simpler in procedure, or administered at less expense to society."

Medical Aid Extended

Mr. Munro said the greatest improvement in the scope of the Act was in medical aid. In the beginning the workman had to find medical service at his own expense. To-day, full and complete medical aid, surgical, hospital and convalescent service is provided by the Workmen's Compensation Board, is supervised by them and are the best that money can buy. In serious cases the victim of an injury is taken to one of the several large centres such as London, Hamilton, or Ottawa, and given attention by specialists.

The Board has also set up a rehabilitation clinic in which the workman, after convalescing, is trained to overcome as far as possible, whatever physical defect he has suffered, and become an effective wage earner again.

Compensation Increased.

At the outset the general rate of compensation was 55 per cent of earnings, out of which medical service had to be paid by the injured person himself. To-day the general rate of compensation is 66.6 per cent of earnings, and this cash is available for the subsistence of the workman's family while he is in hospital.

Other improvements of the Act cited by Mr. Munro were: pensions to widows and children have been more than doubled; a minimum compensation for low wage earners was introduced; burial expenses have been increased; provision has been made for more and more industrial diseases. These benefits amount to a widening of the original Act of something more than 100%.

Beyond those features, the Workmen's Compensation Act has gradually shaken itself free of narrow legal precedents and interpretations which unfairly biased and unbalanced the awards of the Board. No man need go before the Board with a lawyer to look after his interests. The Board leans backward in seeing that he gets a fair deal, and is always open to appeal as regards cases already dealt with and which are found to deserve reconsideration.

"Summing up these changes and improvements it can safely be said that the Act is today 130% more liberal toward the injured workman than it was at the time it first came into effect."

Assessments Stationary

Turning to assessment costs upon employers, Mr. Munro said that in 1916 the average rate of assessment on industry was $1.07 per $100 of payroll, and that in 1941 the average rate was $1.08 per $100 of payroll. The assessment rate had not been increased; it is almost unaltered.

"T. Norman Dean, statistician of the Board, reports that from 1916 to 1941 both the frequency and severity of industrial accidents in Ontario have decreased.

This means that today, as compared with 25 years ago, there are fewer accidents per 100 full time workers; and, of the accidents that do occur, a greater proportion of them are cases of medical aid only, a smaller proportion are temporary disability cases; and again very much smaller proportions of them are permanent disability and death cases.

Mr. Munro credited this decrease in frequency and severity of cases, first, to improved medical aid; and second, to the accident prevention effort.

"It was a wise and logical provision which the framers of the Act included therein whereby employers were encouraged to form accident prevention associations. The idea may possibly have been somewhat self-interested in its inception, based on the theory that since employers are required to find the money to operate the whole Compensation Plan, they should be allowed to busy themselves in keeping down its attendant costs.

Doubtless in 1915 the financial aspects of Workmen's Compensation worried many employers. It probably took them some years to work the costs into the prices of their products. In some cases hardships were suffered.

Humanitarian Factor

However, employers were well aware of the sort of thing I tried to picture in my earlier remarks. Their humanity and common sense told them the new plan was fundamentally right, and they settled down to play thir part whole heartedly."

With the appointment of R. B. Morley in 1921 as manager of the seventeen associations of the I.A.P.A. the dollars and cents aspects of the effort began to fade back into their proper place.

The urge to prevent men from being killed, maimed and otherwise hurt; to preserve their wives and families from sickening shocks, apprehension and suspense; to prevent workers from losing earning capacity and to preserve the production capacity of industry itself, these began to take their rightful places as primary considerations and as the chief motives for accident prevention.

I don't wish to give the impression that dollars and cents faded entirely out of the picture. How could they, with business men? I do say they have taken their rightful place with the I.A.P.A. I cannot recollect hearing any complaint from employers as to the assessments of the Board.

The employers of Ontario will begrudge no expenditure, within reason, which the Board sees fit to make on behalf of a workman in the way of making working conditions safer and healthier for him, and in the way of restoring him in the shortest possible time to the best possible physical condition after an accident, and in the way of maintaining his widow and children decently, in the event of his death, for that period of their lives for which he would have been responsible. But they will be interested and critical of all payments made in cash to an injured workman himself."

Credit to Employers

By their co-operation in the field of prevention of accidents, in conjunction with the I. A. P. A., the employers had done more than any other factor in effecting the success which the Workmen's Compensation Act has attained in Ontario, Mr. Munro stated.

"I believe that persistent organized development and practice of this effort will eventually bring down to an astonishing degree the staggering human financial and production losses which industrial accidents are still causing.

The word staggering is used advisedly, because while the Workmen's Compensation Board has paid out in benefits between January 1, 1915 and December 31, of 1942, more than $163,000,000, this huge hum is conservatiely estimated at being only one-fifth of the total losses to the province in that period through losses in manufacturing production, certain losses to workmen themselves that are bound to be involved."

Peterborough's Example

The prevention effort has heretofore been conducted in meetings of employers amongst themselves and with their superintendents, foremen and employees and their friends, together with experts from the United States and Great Britain. Never before have I seen or heard of a Divisional meeting at which the public through its accredited political and municipal representatives have been so completely represented as on this occasion.

I congratulate the Central Ontario Division, and its chairman, Mr. H. A. Cranfield, in evolving this ambitious idea, and I hope other Divisions will adopt similar measures, because now especially is the time to do all we can to conserve manpower and woman power in production. Our generalship in the field is showing that it has learned to apply equipment to win battles with a minimum of casualties. Central Ontario Division is showing a corresponding wisdom in its attempt to keep down 'casualties' in producing that equipment."

Not Government Funds

Ian F. McRae, works manager of C.G.E.-Genelco Limited, in moving a resolution of appreciation to Mr. Munro, remarked that the funds in the custody of the Workmen's Compensation Board were not government funds. This money, he said, was a trust which has been accumulated for the benefit of working men and women who may suffer injury by accident while employed, and for the benefit of their dependents.

Alderman Sands, as a member of the City Council, expressed his thanks to Mr. Munro for coming back to Peterborough to advocate Safety Week, and also for the highly interesting outline of the early industrial stage in the city's progress.

2 WAYS TO MAKE PRECIOUS JELL-O and JELL-O PUDDINGS Go Farther

UNFORTUNATELY, due to wartime conditions, no housewife is getting all the Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings she would like to get. But when you are able to get either, you are sure of satisfaction. Use them carefully and make them go as far as possible. Here are two ideas to help you.

JELL-O CUBES WITH CUSTARD

2 cups hot water
1 cup custard sauce
1 package JELL-O (Strawberry, Raspberry or Cherry)

Dissolve Jell-O in hot water. Turn into shallow pan. Chill until firm. Cut in cubes. Pile cubes lightly in sherbert or parfait glasses. Pour custard sauce over the cubes of shimmering Jell-O. Serves 6 to 8.

Easy, isn't it? And here's an idea for Jell-O Puddings:

JELL-O TRIFLE

1 package JELL-O PUDDING
(any flavor, but vanilla is specially good)
6 or 7 squares plain cake
Home-made jam

Prepare Jell-O Pudding as directed on the package. Spread top of each square of cake with jam. Place squares of cake in individual dessert dishes. When pudding is cool, pour over cake and chill.

This recipe gives 6 or 7 servings of as delightful a dessert as you ever tasted. You can thank the unvarying quality of Jell-O Puddings for that full, rich flavor —that smooth, creamy consistency.

W.M.S. Studies African Mission Work

In the absence of the presdient, Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. H. R. Roberts presided at the meeting of the W.M.S. of George Street Church, held in the Board Room on Tuesday afternoon. The theme of the meeting was "Thanksgiving" and the country studied, Africa. The meeting opened with a Thanksgiving poem read by Mrs. Roberts. Mrs. Parker read the Bible and Mrs. A. B. Burrows sang "It Was Alone My Saviour Prayed." Mrs. Roberts led in prayer.

A review of the work being done in Africa by the United Church as given in the Blue Book, followed, with Mrs. Burrows' group in charge. Mrs. R. Parnall took the evangelical work, Mrs. F. Armstrong the deaconess work, Mrs. F. G. Cole the medical work and Mrs. C. Renaud the educational work.

Mrs. Renaud dealt particularly with the "long view in Africa" showing that while the work is very slow, the results of the work done 25 years ago are now very apparent.

The treasurer's report showed that $68 had been sent to the Presbytery treasurer for the quarter. The Sick and Visiting Committee with Mrs. W. J. Hales as convener, reported 115 calls made during September; Mrs. Parnall, Community Friendship convener, reported six calls at the hospital and three in the homes. The presbytery rally, to be held at St. James on October 20 was announced.

Campbellford Boy Wed In Quebec

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13 (ENS) —A wedding of considerable local interest took place in St. Phillip's church, Three Rivers, Quebec, on Saturday, October 9, when Suzanne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gauthier, was united in marriage to Flying Officer Paul O'Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. George O'Sullivan, Campbellford. Rev. Father Williams, R.C.A.F. Chaplain, Cap-de-la-Madeleine, P.Q., performed the nuptial mass. The church was decorated with gladioli, chrysanthemums and fern.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a suit of aqua lavender, silver fox trimmed, with matching accessories and carried a colonial bouquet of Rapture roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Peggy O'Boyle, was gowned in powder blue with black hat and carried American Beauty roses. The groom was attended by his brother Flight Sergeant Frank O'Sullivan of Ottawa, and the ushers were Flying Officer Joe Keenan and Flying Officer Bill Newton.

The reception was held at the Metaberoutin Golf Club and the bride's mother received wearing a black dress, sequin trimmed, black hat and corsage of Johanna Hill roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who chose a brown dress and hat and corsage of Talisman roses. Later the bride and groom left on a trip to Quebec City, the bride travelling in a beige wool dress with camel hair coat and brown accessories.

Thanksgiving Observed At W.M.S. Meeting

Mrs. A. Wilson was hostess on Tuesday to the W.M.S. of St. James' United church.

The president opened with prayer and the business period dealt chiefly with arrangements for the Peterborough sectional rally to be held in St. James' Wednesday, October 20, with an all-day session.

An encouraging financial report was given by the treasurer, who announced that at the close of September, $228.33 had been raised toward the allocation of $395.00.

For many years it has been the custom for this Auxiliary to give a life membership certificate to one of its members. This project was also discussed. Mrs. E. Beavis gave a fine report on the temperance work of her department. while in a brief talk Mrs. F. W. Craik reported for Christian Stewardship, telling an interesting story of the Rev. Dr. Arnup's itinerary of China with many facts of the need for help in that great country.

The devotional part of the program was presented by Mrs. A. W. Clark and her group, who took for their theme "The Bible for All of Life," in which several of the group took part with Mrs. Wesley Rose as leader. After responsive reading of a Psalm, passages of Scripture were read by Mesdames A. W. Clark, F. McAdam, E. Kitney and Miss Deyell. These readings were alternated with the verses of the hymn, "O Word of God Incarnate." A period of dedication to the study of God's Word was followed by prayer offered by Mrs. E. L. Woodley.

In presenting the first chapter of the new study book "For All of Life," Mrs. Eric Hunter emphasized the three L's—Light, Literacy and Literature. She told of the attempts of the missionaries to teach the men and women to read and write. They eventually overcame all obstacles and found the people of India very eager to learn.

The Thanksgiving hymn. 'Thanks Be to God,' was sung by Mrs. Leslie McLaren, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. George Wallace.

The autumn thankoffering was received and Mrs. E. M. Davis led the dedicatory prayer.

Mission Circle Holds October Meeting

The Jean Wagar Mission Circle met for October at the home of Mrs. Cyril Davis, George street, with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. George Martin, presided, and the meeting opened with prayer for the empire and its rulers, by Jessie Martin.

In the call to worship Lottie Leggett read the poem, "In Everything Give Thanks" and Mrs. Gerry Cuff read the Thanksgiving lesson. Business included plans for the next meeting to be held at the home of Gladys Langton, Simcoe street.

Every member was urged to attend the Mission Circle rally at Knox United Church on Monday night, October 18, where Miss Ida Mackenzie will be the special speaker.

The Circle was pleased to welcome a new member, Helen Moncrief, a newcomer to Peterborough and St. James'. An informal talk on the Mission Circle book-shelf was given by Connie Wagar, who reviewed the various books and urged the girls to read more extensively. During the discussion which followed, the girls decided to buy individual copies of the study book, "What Is Your Share", A Thanksgiving solo, "We Plough the Fields" by Geneva Sedgwick was accompanied by Jean Davis.

Reporting for the temperance department, Lottie Leggett based her talk on the word "Hospitality" saying that liquor dealers suggest to the public that serving liquor is the highest form of hospitality. There are many good uses for alcohol but not as a drink. Liquor is the greatest single enemy of home life and there is no place for it in the Christian way of life.

Mr. R. L. Hale Addresses Music Teachers

Mrs. J. L. Smith presided over a well-attended meeting of the Ontario Music Teachers' Association held in the YWCA on Tuesday evening. An interesting report of the recent annual meeting held in Toronto was given by Miss Marguerite Rome. Mrs. L. R. Mitchell, accompanied by Miss Musa Cox, favored the gathering with three well-chosen solos.

Mr R. L. Hale delighted the meeting with his lecture, "Some Rhythms in English Verse." His reading of outstanding examples of imitative rhythms found in the poems by Browning, Kipling, and Burns, Masefield and Lindsay were thoroughly enjoyed as were works by Shakespeare, Shelley and Walter de la Mare. Mrs. J. H. Matthews moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

Mental Health Stressed At V.O.N. Meeting

The Board of Directors of the Victorian Order of Nurses held the October meeting in the Board Room on Tuesday afternoon with Mr. J. Dutton in the chair. Mr. Dutton expressed the hope that Miss M. Ross, at present on leave of absence, would continue to improve in health and would return to her position as supervisor feeling much better.

Miss H. McGeary gave a report on the nurses' activities for September, showing an increase of 14 cases over the same period last year. Of these admissions, the pre natal visits had slightly more than doubled and 9 per cent of the visits to holders of Metropolitan Life Insurance policies; 13 per cent to patients who paid full fee; 10 per cent to patients who paid a portion of the fee and 60 per cent were free visits. The free visits, included pre-natals and visits to new-born babies for health supervision, for which no charge is made.

Of the new patients, 40 per cent were referred to the Order by doctors; 28 per cent by families themselves; 10 per cent by Public Health Nurses; 9 per cent by Metropolitan Life Insurance agents; and 7 per cent by friends of the patients and 2 per cent by industry. Miss McGeary also mentioned the increasing need for an awareness on the part of the nurses of the mental health aspects of public health.

Mr. Dutton, in commenting on the report, said that Peterborough could look forward to the resumption of th services of the travelling Mental Health Clinic, temporarily suspended owing to the war needs, in the near future, and asked that anyone knowing of prospective clients for the clinic let the Health Department know as soon as possible.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, October 14.

LARGE AND significant operations should work out successfully if they are undertaken with well-reasoned plans, sound tactics, and hard work, together with patience, persistency and the will to win. This may be against definite opposition from large interests or superiors, or perhaps want of community or public endorsement. Stability, good judgment and proper manipulation of obstacles or impediment are likely to attract the enthusiastic support of influential persons, won over by novelty, ingenuity and cleverness. Also there is forecast of inheritance or a property windfall.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is should have the clear mentality, ingenuity and sound sense to grasp important openings for stabilizing their affairs and possessions, by well-laid plans, sound tactics and the will to forge aheal against impediments or opposition from group or public. In the end their ingenuity, skill and high purpose should win the endorsement of those in place and power. All this should have excellent re-actions on the private life, possibly to the extent of gifts, trust or inheritance. Industry and application should batter down all limitations and impediments.

A child born on this day should have splendid talents and traits of character to attract the approbation of those in high places, probably eventually being the recipient of a substantial gift, trust fund or inheritance.

IN MEMORIAM

FERGUSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father. Donald Ferguson who passed away seven years ago today, October 13, 1936.

There's an open gate
At the end of the road
Through which each must go alone,
And there in a light we cannot see,
Our Father claims His own;
Beyond the gate our loved one
Finds happiness and rest,
And there is comfort,
In the thought
That a loving God knows best.
— Lovingly remembered by his Wife and Family.

their Victory Loan subscriptions. It is their responsibility to obtain the objective set for their district and each district must go over the top to keep the county's record for former drives in good standing.

Wide Canvass

The Payroll Savings Section under the Chairmanship of R. G. Parker will conduct an intensive canvass of the employees of the nine large plants in the county. Plant objectives are as follows:

Edwards and Edwards Ltd.	$14,400
Douglas-Pectin Ltd.	3,100
Cobourg Matting Co. Ltd.	3,500
Cobourg Dyeing Co. Ltd.	5,800
H. W. Cooey Machine and Arms Co. Ltd.	9,000
Campbellford Cloth Co. Ltd.	15,000
Cooey Metal Products Ltd.	9,000
Breithaupt Leather Co. Ltd.	6,700
Dominion Wheel & Foundries Ltd.	4,200

Assisting Mr. Parker on his committee are the following: D. H. Cooey, E. C. Hilliard, H. J. Cooey, W. H. McGuire, J. H. Cunningham, L. F. Daley, Dr. George C. Kidd, R. Holland, N. K. Noble, H. M. Taylor, G. L. Wheeler, Frank Krauel and A. G. Scott.

The record of this section in previous campaigns has been impressive. In the Second, Third and Fourth Victory Loan drives, they sold respectively $56,150, $73,400, and $81,150 worth of Victory Loan bonds to the employees of these plants. They again hope to exceed their record.

Special Attractions

Dr. A. R. Richards, County Public Relations Chairman and his committees throughout Northumberland have planned many events to boost the campaign. The Brighton Public Relations Committee under the chairmanship of Tom Sampson, with Miss M. Lapp, R. Maybee, R. Quick, J. Whyle, E. Seeds and W. Goodfellow, M.L.A., assisting, have planned a window display contest among the Brighton merchants and a poster contest among the school children. On Saturday afternoon, October 23 they will be host to the R.C.A.F. Brass Band from Trenton who will stage a Victory Loan parade in Brighton.

The Campbellford Public Relations Committee under the chairmanship of P. C. Denyes and composed of Mayor F. F. Long, Dr. O. G. Watson, Wilbert Kingston, William Brady, Bert Taylor, E. N. Greig and W. J. Callahan are planning a window display program in Campbellford to further the campaign. On Saturday evening, October 23, they will stage a Victory Loan parade on the occasion of the visit of the R.C.A.F. Brass Band from Trenton.

LINDSAY

Bicycle Thief Given 2 Years

LINDSAY, Oct. 13 — (ENS). — "It is too bad that the law does not give me the power to order persons like you to be put in to the military service," stated Judge J. McGibbon in sentencing George McLachlan of Mariposa Township to two years in the Kingston Penitentiary yesterday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a bicycle the property of A. R. Broom of Lindsay. Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson submitted a list of previous convictions against McLachlan that revealed he had either committed criminal offences or been in jail since 1932.

Evidence was given by Constable Percy Mark who stated that McLachlan on being questioned admitted taking the bicycle and to leaving it hidden in a bush near his home. "People of your type are a decided detriment to the community," Judge McGibbon told the accused. "While you are preying on the public other young men are giving their lives for their country. I wish that the present laws could be revised so that in lieu of sentencing you to prison I could send you to the front lines. You might prove to be a good soldier."

To Try Again

TORONTO (CP)—The last time that the Quebec Rugby Football Union figured in the Eastern playdowns for the Grey Cup was in 1937 when Sarnia Imperials, as Ontario contenders, crushed Montreal Westmounts 63-0. The Quebec loop has decided to try again and a vote is being taken among C.R.U. executive members on the application.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Perhaps the most pertinent thing yet said about the world series is the remark of the AP writer that the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals were of necessity makeshift ball clubs and had players on the field who would not even have been on the bench in peacetime....Ken Colling commenting on the last game opines that Ghandler was much better in the clutches than Cooper....But after all wasn't he only one ball better, Ken—a ball up around Bill Dickey's letters instead of lower down as Cooper intended....Bob Davidson is captain of the Leafs this season and his first job will be to get acquainted with his fellow players....Young Don Sutherland of Owen Sound who played goal against the Petes last winter is trying out with the Leafs....The kid was good but hardly looked pro calibre yet....However this is going to be a queer year in the N.H.L.....Lou Klein had a chance to drive in thirteen runs for the Cards and failed on each occasion.

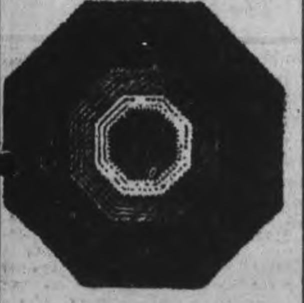
What Charm Your Own Rugs Add to a Room



SMART RUG

Wouldn't you like to be able to make this lovely octagon silk rug? Not so difficult as it would seem because, even if you have never made a rug before, you'll be able to do this.

This particular rug is crocheted of silk stockings dyed in petunia colors—violet, purple, bright blue, and ivory. Full instructions are in our booklet.

Our 32-page booklet is full of step-by-step directions for hooked rugs, woven rugs, braided rugs, crocheted rugs, tufted rugs. It even has knitted rugs, floral applique rugs, mosaic rugs, French knot rugs and cross-stitch rugs. Every variety is included and you have your choice of whatever type you particularly desire.

The types of rugs described in this booklet have had their origins in many parts of the world and in many ages. They were made on looms or with tools very much like the ones used here. They are all easy and simple to make, and were designed to be adaptable to many types of interiors and to many uses. You will find much pleasure from them.

For your copy of HOW TO MAKE YOUR OWN RUGS send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BID OVER DOUBLE WEAK

THERE IS seldom any need for you to stick in a bid, when the opponent at your right has made an informative or takout double, if you have a hand which is fairly strong in high cards. You can afford in that case to wait and then bid on the next round, or else, if you are extra strong, with nearly an opening bid's worth of high cards, you can redouble on that first turn That enables you to use an immediate suit bid over the double as an indication of weakness and a desire to "save the bacon."

South's "business pass" produced 700 points for his side at Table 1, as West was set four tricks. He wanted to redouble, after South's pass, to beg East to take him out in his longest suit, but so many people use that redouble now to indicate pleasure at the situation that he feared East would pass it.

Apparently South at Table 2 had never learned you can make more points on the defense, sometimes, than by having your own side play the hand. His diamond bid was atrocious. His side made the No Trump game to which it pointed, but that was worth only 400 points.

East saved points for his side at Table 3 by bidding 2-Clubs immediately over the double, to advertise his abject weakness. With a hand of medium merit, he would have passed, and with a fair one, just under opening strength, would have redoubled. He could not very well be set more than a couple of tricks at his 2-Clubs, which was what South thought. South's bid, therefore, resulting in a No Trump game for his side, was the best he could do. East was the hero, however, preventing a business or penalty pass by his weak bid.

What is soundest play of this deal, with South in 4-Spades, if East had bid diamonds twice and then doubled the eventual contract?

500 Hun Planes Down In Eight Days

By ROBERT N. STURDEVANT

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP). — Nazis' airplane rocket guns, which hurl jagged chunks of metal at Allied bombers, were invented too late to save the German Air Force, it appeared tonight.

On the basis of official claims, the Germans lost at least 500 fighters in air battles during the eight-day Allied offensive ended yesterday.

This loss, weighed against estimates of 600 to 700 fighters a month as Germany's current production, leads to the conclusion that the Nazis will find it increasingly difficult to get the fighters on which to put rocket armament.

The Allies, moreover, have concentrated on the German airplane factories in order to cut into the Nazis' basic fighting force.

The two main German fighters are the Focke-Wulf-190 and the Messerschmitt-109.

In August and October heavy-bomber formations from the Middle East and Northwest Africa blasted the Messerschmitt factory groups at Wiener-Neustadt, south of Vienna, while British-based American heavies hit the Messerschmitt plant at Regenburg in Southeast Germany, which has been said to produce possibly 75 per cent of all German airplan propellers.

Focke-Wulfs Hard Hit

Next came the Focke-Wulf assembly plants last week-end. Aerial reconnaissance has shown vast destruction at the Marienburg plant in East Prussia, where, it is estimated, half of the Focke-Wulfs are assembled. The Focke-Wulf parts plant at Anklam also suffered serious damage.

The plants turning out fighters at Hamburg, Stettin, Bremen, Berlin and Rostock also have been pounded.

The Germans also have been having production difficulties in the plants themselves. The Messerschmitt Company was said recently to have been assigned to manage Fock-Wulf production because it had been too slow. American raiders have encountered a larger proportion of Messerschmitts lately.

"With Wheels Down"

An indication of the German plane shortage was seen recently in stories of American airmen that Nazi fighters were attacking "with wheels down"—indicating emergency use of the old Stuka dive-bomber.

Regardless of the number of planes, it appears the German air Force has been transformed in the last year from an offensive force with a backbone of bombers to a defensive one. Although a large toll of German bombers has been taken on the Russian front, the production ratio has swung rapidly around in favor of fighters.

Trans-Canada Ready For Two Crossings

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 (CP).— The Trans-Canada Airlines Trans-Atlantic service of one flight a week will shortly be stepped up to two flights, it was learned to-day in official quarters.

A T.C.A. Lancaster last week set a new Montreal to Scotland record of 11 hours and 56 minutes. Two other Lancasters assigned for T.C.A. service now are being equipped with special apparatus for winter flying and as soon as they are ready the service is to be doubled.

Munitions Minister Howe, the Minister responsible for civil aviation, informed the House of Commons at the last session that Canada planned to produce planes for trans-Atlantic service. The use of Lancasters by T.C.A. is a quick realization of these plans.

Ralph P. Bell, Director-General of Aircraft Production, announced last week six Lancasters have been completed by Victory Aircraft at Malton, Ont.

Red Cross Appoints Canvassers

HASTINGS, Oct. 13 (ENS).— A special meeting of the Red Cross was held in the council chambers last week. The president, Reeve L. E. Kelly, presided.

The purpose of this meeting was to organize a committee to canvass for blood donor volunteers. Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Tim. Walsh, Miss Della Plant, Miss Jessie Lamb, Mr. S. Stevenson and Mr. W. McEachnie were appointed for the village. Mrs. Basil Johnston was appointed for the Flemings district, and Mrs. Gordon Dickey for the Cobourg Road.

There is to be a card left in each home by one of the above named, and each one is asked to give this matter the deepest consideration.

The aim is to get at least 50 from the village and 50 from the surrounding district.

There will be another meeting Thursday, Octoer 14, in the council chambers when all cards are to be handed in and free transportation aranged for.

Good Health Preventer Of Accidents

By R. A. KELLY, M.D., D.P.H.
Acting Medical Officer of Health

This is Peterborough City Safety Week. It is a week sponsored by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association with the hope that the citizens of Peterborough will become concerned with the problem of accidents and take such precautions that these accidents will be reduced to a minimum, not only this week but in the future.

The Department of Health is very anxious to co-operate in this undertaking as it is believed that prevention of accidents is closely allied with our work of preventive medicine.

It is understood that accidents whether in the factory, home or on the street are more prone to occur when one is feeling below par. Therefore, good health and a feeling of well being are of prime importance. As pre-disposing causes of accidents may be listed such factors as worry, fatigue, poor diets, infections and disease of all kinds. Thus it is our intention in this and subsequent articles to briefly discuss such matters.

It is realized that with fathers, husbands and sons fighting overseas there is real cause for worry and anxiety. Our only advice is,—don't brood and do keep busy.

The question of fatigue is an individual one as the amount of rest required by different persons varies greatly. In general it may be said that every adult should have from 7 to 8 hours sleep every night. Be sure and get yours regularly. If you are only half awake it is easy to make a mistake; a mistake may mean an accident.

From recent dietary surveys and physical examination, it is known that malnutrition really does exist in this country. Food gives you energy for work and play, material to build and repair your blood, muscles, skin and all other parts of your body. Make sure that your daily diet contains meat and eggs, milk and green vegetables.

Don't take chances with your health. Be sure and have that scratch or cut attended to at once. If you are sick, don't work until you have seen your doctor. Let him decide if it is serious. Also, don't always wait until you are sick before calling on your physician. A complete check-up is necessary at least once a year in order that slight physical imperfections may be corrected at once.

Only a very few of the underlying causes of accidents have been considered and these but briefly. Other problems in this regard will be discussed in more detail. But remember,—be well, be healthy, be happy, be on the safe side.

KIRKLAND LAKE, Oct. 13 —(CP).—Two wolves are reported to have come to unorthodox ends south of Cobalt recently. Frank Goddard of Temagami and John Parcher of Cobalt are claiming the respective $25 bounties.

Woman Killed Assailant Starts 3 Fires

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP). — Police investigating the death en route to hospital Monday night of Mrs. Betty Edwards, 24, today said "the whole back of her head was crushed in."

Mrs. Edwards was found in the coal bin in the basement of her home by firemen who extinguished a blaze believed to have been set by someone who had attacked Mrs. Edwards.

Police said they believed someone tried to murder Mrs. Edwards and then started fires in a number of places in her Grove Avenue home. Her two children, Geraldine five, and Robert, two, were rescued from a smoke-filled upstairs room.

Blood was found on the cellar floor and on the walls and floor of the living room. A trail of blood also was found leading into the kitchen and there was a pool of blood at the foot of the cellar stairs.

Police said smeared marks and bloody prints on the legs of the dining room table and on the casing of the floor leading to the kitchen would indicate that Mrs. Edwards had struggled with her assailant while being dragged across the floor.

Mrs. Edwards' husband, LAC. John Burton Edwards, is stationed with the R.C.A.F. at Guelph.

No trace has been found of any weapon used to strike Mrs. Edwards.

Pte. John A. Kennedy, whose brother Frank first noticed the fire and turned in an alarm, rescued two-year-old Robert and Mr. Edward's cousin, Walter Ashworth, who arrived on the scene at the same time, rescued Geraldine.

Reporter Describes Attack On Rabaul Port Says Japs Panic Stricken

Huge Bombs Lift Ships Out Of Water Pulverize Dock Facilities To Re-enact Pearl Harbor On Small Scale

By FRANK L. KLUCKHOHN—New York Times Correspondent

ABOARD A BOMBER, Over Rabaul, Oct. 12—(Delayed).—Far below us ships are bursting into flames or leaving white wakes as they circle frantically. A pall of black and pinking gray smoke dims the wide area of airfields and installations where waves of United States medium bombers strafed earlier.

A big salvo of 1,000-pound bombs has lifted a large vessel from the water, covering it with spray and smoke. Docks are being blasted from existence.

Black puffs of ack-ack appear fruitlessly far off from us. Yellow gun flashes from a warship break along her whole length.

Hundreds of planes, heavy bombers, medium bombers and swarms of fighters are pounding the harbor, airfields and gun installations at this north end of New Britain Island which is the anchor of the Japanese position in the Southwest Pacific and South Pacific. Gen. Douglas MacArthur had scraped together and had repaired for this effort every Liberator, Flying Fortress, Mitchell and Boston he could lay hands on for this powerful assault. Some R.A.F. Beauforts were employed for special attack.

Before many squadrons of Liberators arrived over the target mediums, large Mitchells, with a heavy fighter escort had strafed airfields and gun positions at a perilously low level. Brightly burning planes, particularly around the edge of one leading airfield within our vision, bear witness to the fact that scores of enemy planes were destroyed on the ground.

Japs in Frenzy

Now we are drilling over our target, the harbor, in banked echelon. The American emblem is bleaming on the wings and the Japanese below are in an obvious frenzy.

Several enemy destroyers are running in circles, weaving white wakes. Some big transports are running in all directions. One dock is vanishing and a ship moored there is listing.

Obviously this is not as important an affair as the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor by a long way but probably every man hidden behind an oxygen mask in these American planes filling the sky feels a glow of satisfaction on seeing the Japanese on the receiving end of this great surprise attack, knowing the Japanese are dismayed as flock after flock of heavy bombs strings to the harbor.

Heavy guns are following us as we make our run in. Shells explode above and below us. Now our bombs are away and we watch them hit between two vessels, probably getting one.

This is like a colored motion picture of destruction, but because our earphones are on it is a silent one. From our plane we can see five good-sized ships casting up black smoke. Now five strings of bombs are landing on a ship that seems to puff from our view.

New Labor Code Ready For Amendments

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's new labor code now is in draft form but numerous changes—some of them probably recommended by the provinces—are expected before it takes final shape, it was learn today.

The code, a consolidation of numerous orders - in - council applying to labor matters in wartime, has been one of the most important matters before the Cabinet in recent weeks. Although not yet in complete form, it has reached a stage which provides a basis for discussions with the provinces, expected to culminate with a conference of Dominion and Provincial authorities in Ottawa several weeks hence.

Recommendations for a new code were advanced in both the majority and minority reports of the National War Labor Board's recent inquiry into labor relations and wage conditions in Canada.

The Act now is used almost entirely to deal with disputes over union recognition, but is not usually invoked until efforts of the provincial labor officials have proven unsuccessful.

Lacks Teeth

Main criticism of the Act has been that it lacks "teeth" to enforce recommendations of industrial disputes inquiry commissions. By providing compulsory collective bargaining, which was also recommended in the War Labor Board reports, steps could be taken to put union recognition on a new basis with compulsory clauses.

Such action, it is believed, would be accompanied by the imposition of definite responsibilities on

Allies Holding Greek Islands

LONDON, Oct. 14 (CP)—Official Allied quarters withheld comment today on an Ankara radio report that Allied forces had occupied some of the Cyclades Islands off the east coast of Greece.

The radio report, which was lacking in details, followed unconfirmed press dispatches from Istanbul last week saying British forces had landed at unspecified points in the Islands.

The group, which belongs to Greece, have air bases and port facilities dominating the entrance to the Aegean and the approaches to the Island of Crete further south. Fighter planes based on the Islands could easily range over both Crete and the Greek mainland.

Italians Eager For Battle

Feel Nazi Treatment Can't Get Worse

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, Oct. 14—(AP).—Now that Italy is at war with Germany, all the Italian land, naval and air forces are hoping for a crack at their former allies, Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio declares.

The 72-year-old Marshal, his face beaming after reading a prepared statement announcing his government had joined in the fight against Germany, said all Italian military forces had been placed at the disposal of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"My troops are especially suited for mountain warfare and there are a considerable number of them," he added.

The Premier explained that "even before my government's declaration I ordered Italian troops to fight with the Allies in Corsica against the Germans and our troops are fighting in the Balkans and northern Italy too.

"The will to fight prevails not only in the heads of the Italian government, but in all military forces and among the people."

He was asked what he thought might be the German reaction to the war declaration, particularly whether it might have any effect within the areas still unconquered.

"They can't do worse than what they've done already in Italy," he asserted.

General's Famous Good Luck Dice Roll 11 To Put OK On Great Rabaul Raid

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Oct. 12.—(Delayed.)—(AP).—Lt.-Gen. George C. Kenney rolled his famous good luck dice to-day before his United States' air force struck a sledgehammer blow at Japan's key base of Rabaul, New Britain.

After he did that, he felt better.

Gen. Kenney has carried the tiny dice ever since a Catholic priest gave them to him in 1917, blessed them and told Kenney they would always bring him luck provided he did not use them to make money.

Kenney always has carried them in his watch pocket except once—and that time his plane crashed, almost killing him.

After the armada of planes was in the air, he took out his dice, rattled them and rolled while others in the room held their breath.

The dice bounced over the desk top and stopped. He had shot an 11.

Huns Rob Canadian Soldiers Casualties In Italian Drive

By WILLIAM STEWART—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 7—(Delayed)—(CP Cable).—A company from Toronto fought one of the liveliest actions to date in the Canadians' push.

The company, detached from a battalion, was given the task of taking a road junction two miles north of a town astride a hump running up from a valley. Meantime the remainder of the unit marched down into the valley.

The little force, commanded by Maj. Ian Wallace of Toronto proceeded cautiously up a winding road leading in a wide semi-circle through the wooded hills. The company mounted a gravel road at the start, finding nothing but evidence of a German withdrawal. Then as it reached a spot where the woods fall away, German mortars started dropping bombs.

Lieut. Blair Eby of Toronto took his platoon off the road in a flanking move to the right. The platoon clambered up a slope and spotted the Germans in positions between the men and a cross-roads three miles away.

Try Flanking.

Eby, realizing the enemy was too strongly-held to be overcome by a platoon, sent back word to the company commander who was following up the remainder of the detachment. This included platoons commanded by Lieuts. G. A. Fraser, Toronto, and Ken Hudson, Grimsby, Ont.

Sgt. Bill Gibson, Kirkland Lake, Ont., set out with a patrol that included Cpl. Bill Melvin, Niagara Falls, Ont. It drew sporadic machine gun fire. The company lay low for a while and then Eby took 15 men in another wide march to the right and, with a pair of tanks in the lead, caught the enemy from behind. However, no sooner had the Germans been driven from that hill than heavy machine-gun fire lashed out from a higher position just beyond, dominating the cross-roads, the company's objective.

Two of their machine-guns spurted into action and two of our Bren gunners were killed. One of them, a private, had kept firing and advancing even after he was first wounded. A sergeant guided his men forward until he died.

"It started to get hot then," said Eby. "German paratroops, tough as they are supposed to be, moaned and cried like babies."

Nazis Holler.

Farther back the Germans, estimated to be two companies strong, reorganized and started a counter-attack. The Canadians withdrew to cover. A lance-corporal who was left for dead reported the Germans stripped Canadian casualties. This lance-corporal played possum. He was found the next day when a patrol discovered the Germans had withdrawn. The Canadians went on, and took up a position overlooking the cross-roads. A patrol moved into the town and met up with the men from the regiment who had gained their ridge objective.

Members of the company included the following from Ontario: Signallers Ken Johnstone, Preston; Hilliard Perrault, Penetanguishene; Ptes. Charlie Male, St. Catharines, and Herb Russell, Sudbury, both snipers; Bill Allan, Dundalk; Keil Miller, Ridgeway; Albert Cox, Minden; George McNulty, London, and Wilbert Craig, Meaford.

Japanese Bomb Attu Island

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP).—Loss of two American destroyers in the Mediterranean was reported today by the Navy in a communique which also told of an unsuccessful Japanese bombing raid on Attu Island in the Aleutians.

The destroyers, the Buck and Bristol, both sank as a result of underwater explosions, the Navy said.

The Buck, a 1,500-ton ship, went down off Salerno October 9 and the Bristol, a 1,700-ton vessel, was sunk yesterday.

The Navy said casualty details had not been received and that next-of-kin of all casualties will be notified immediately upon receipt of information.

The bombing raid on Attu, taken from the Japanese late in May, was the first carried out since American occupation of the little island on the tip of the Aleutians chain.

Ten Japanese bombers flew high over Massacre Bay, the Navy reported. Their bombs were dropped without causing damage.

The Japanese bombers presumably came from the enemy base on Paramushiru at the northern end of the Kurile Island chain, of which Japan is a part.

Loss of the two destroyers, each of which carried approximately 250 officers and men, brought to 122 the number of U.S. naval craft lost since 1941.

Claims Italy May Dodge Retribution

Many Realize Italians Have Already Paid Heavy War Penalty

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

There appears to be fear in some circles that Italy is going to squeak out of just retribution for her partnership in the Axis because she has become a co-belligerent with the United Nations.

Well, one can understand that feeling, especially among Allied soldiers who have fought the Italians and have had comrades killed by Mussolini's troops. It's a natural reaction. Still, it seems to me we don't need to be anxious on that score. Italy is paying a terrible price for her sins, and will continue to pay.

As a mater of fact, I for one must plead guilty to having a different feeling towards the Italian people in general (quite apart from Mussolini and his gang) than towards our other enemies. That's because I toured Italy not long before the war and found that the rank and file were peace-minded enough and were bitterly hostile to Hitler. In short, Mussolini carried most of his people into the war against their wills.

Talk In Whispers.

How could that happen? You've got to experience the working of an absolute dictatorship to understand. When I was in Italy after Munich, people were talking in whispers for fear of the Duce's secret police. Typical of the general feeling was that of a young man who had a wife and two children. He was a brilliant chap who spoke six languages and wanted to get to the United States where he had an opening for his talents. I asked him why he didn't go. He glanced over his shoulder fearfully before answering, and tears came to his eyes as he said:

"Until I'm 55 I'm potential fodder for Mussolini. No man can leave Italy so long as he is able to fight."

If you demand that Mussolini and the rest of the Fascist regime shall be made to walk the plank, or otherwise be put out of circulation permanently, you will find few Allied folk to argue against it. The Italian people, though, are being horribly punished by German atrocities and by the ravages of war amidst their homes. Also they bid fair to lose much of their empire—not a very good empire, but still an empire. That seems about enough to make 'em good.

There's no doubt that the Italian declaration of war against Hitler will benefit the Allies. We don't need to be grateful for that, but we don't need to forget it, either.

We will be wise to reserve judgment on the probable extent of help which the Allies may get from Italian troops. Marshal Badoglio has called on his men for a "united military effort," but the fact remains that at the time of Italy's surrender her fighting men were thoroughly fed up with the war. Perhaps the turn of events will give them fresh determination to win through, but we must wait and see. Certainly an anti-German population in Italy is no help to Hitler.

Reds Storm Closer To Melitopol

Four Major Cities Likely To Fall This Week

LONDON, Oct. 14 (CP)—Fresh divisions of German troops were being rushed to Kiev by the German high command in an effort to fend off the Russian drive against the flaming city long enough to evacuate Nazi troops and equipment, a Reuters News Agency dispatch from Moscow said today.

With the capitulation of Kiev apparently inevitable, the fall of three other major German defence bases on the Russian front—Melitpol, Zaporozhe and Gomel—also appeared imminent as Red army forces tore new gaps in wavering Nazi defences.

A Soviet communique broadcast from Moscow said Russian troops already were fighting in the streets of Melitopol, and were battling the Germans on the outskirts of the other three. Capture of all four cities would jeopardize the whole German position in Russia and might force a gigantic withdrawal of the Nazi armies to secondary defence lines many miles to the west.

Soviet troops, breaching formidable German defences in the South Ukraine, forced the Molochna River and surged into the centre of Melitopol in the face of desperate resistance on the part of the defenders, the Soviet bulletin said.

Squeeze in Crimea

The city is on one of two escape railways open to the German garrisons in the Crimea. Its capture would be a milestone in the Russian drive to isolate the Crimea from the north.

The drive for Melitopol began four days ago.

A four-day battle to the north of Melitopol was said to have brought Soviet advance columns to within five miles of Zaporozhe, on the southern end of the Dnieper River bend. This advance also threatens Dnepropetrovsk, Dniper River power city, further north.

The Moscow communique detailed advances south of Kiev on the west bank of the Dnieper that reached five miles further inland in the face

Beer And Whiskey Rations Unchanged

TORONTO, Oct. 14 — (CP). — Ontario Liquor Board officials announced here today that new beer coupon books covering the next 6 months will be issued late this month replacing the present books which expire October 30.

There will be no change in the present quota of 36 pints or of 18 quarts per month.

Board chairman, St. Clair Gordon was in Ottawa yesterday conferring with Federal authorities regarding the release from bond of the province's spirit quota. Authorities said no change is to be made, and while supply of certain brands is not large, the Board has been assured they will obtain their quota providing for 40 ounces of spirits a month, at least for the remainder of the year.

A Great Victory

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (CP).—The New York Times, termed Italy's declaration of war on Germany "the greatest defeat Germany has suffered."

"Before everything else it is a vindication of Allied policy," said the paper. "It makes the critics look pretty foolish who denounced Anglo-American recognition of the 'Moronic little king' and the government that ousted the Fascists...."

The New York Herald Tribune commented: "There is something almost awe-inspiring in the power of Nazi Germany to make embittered enemies out of even the friends and allies who come in contact with it."

Potato Acreage In Ontario Said Lowest In 60 Years

TORONTO, Oct. 14—(CP).—Dry conditions throughout Ontario and early frosts in the southwestern section of the province did considerable damage to corn, tobacco, bean and tomato crops, the monthly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture stated today.

Supplies of roughages for winter feed requirements have been declared sufficient in every section, but there are shortages of feed grain due to poor oat, barley and wheat crops. Milk production has been decreased and purchases of feed cattle are below last year.

To meet shortages, western grain is being imported, but "a large quantity will be required yet to maintain production of animal products." As a result, many farmers are cutting down on livestock holdings.

Potato acreage for 1943 in Ontario is reported as 116,000 acres, the lowest figure in 60 years. High costs, scarcities of seed, labor and machinery will prevent, the report states, Ontario from reaching the objective requested by the Dominion Government of a 10 per cent. increase over last year's production.

Potato prices on most markets are slightly under ceiling with consumers paying between $1.75 and $2 per 75-pound bag for Canada No. 1.

Tobacco Hit.

The report estimates the total Ontario flue-cured crop at 55,000 planted acres, expected to yield approximately 1,100 pounds per acre or a total of 50,000,000 pounds when frost losses in Norfolk have been deducted. The 5,500 acres planted in Burley indicate an average yield of 1,090 pounds per acre or approximately 6,000,000 pounds.

The sugar beet crop escaped damage in the September frosts, and shows no sign of blight or disease. Crop estimates are nine tons per acre, or a total of 83,592 tons on 9,288 acres. The Wallaceburg sugar factory will commence operations on October 25, and there are indications of a better than average sugar content.

Final payments on the 1942 crop were made in September after the molasses was sold and brought the average factory price of beets to $7.89 per ton. Since the average yield in 1942 was 11.89 tons per acre, the crop value last year was $93.81 per acre.

Apples Better.

In Western Ontario, the apple production estimate is placed at a 16 per cent. increase over 1942, in Spy, McIntosh, Wealthy and Stark varieties. The grape crop shows indications of being 22 per cent. lighter, and the peach crop 73 per cent. lighter than 1942. Pears have decreased 31 per cent. in yield, and plums, 43 per cent.

Commercial apple production in Eastern Ontario has been estimated at approximately 255,000 barrels, a decrease of three per cent. from the 1942 crop. The pear and plum crops will be one-third of 1942 crops.

Murder Suspect Given Remand

HAMILTON, Oct. 14—(CP)—Joseph Kennedy, 52, was remanded to Oct. 18 without plea when he appeared here today on a charge of murder in connection with the death Monday night of Mrs. Betty Edwards, 23-year-old wife of a Guelph, Ont., airman and mother of two children.

The charge of murder was laid against Kennedy last night after he had been held for 24 hours for questioning on a vagrancy charge in connection with Mrs. Edwards' death.

Mrs. Edwards was found in the cellar of her blazing home Monday night by firemen called to the scene and died en route to hospital a few minutes later. Her two children, the elder five and younger two, were rescued from a smoke-filled bedroom by Frank Kennedy and Pte. J. A. Kennedy, sons of the man charged with Mrs. Edwards' murder. They had been visiting their parents' home next door.

Police said Tuesday that it was believed someone had set fire to the Edwards' home after attacking Mrs. Edwards, who was found with the back of her skull crushed. Kennedy was arrested Tuesday when he returned to his home after an absence of 24 hours.

Police have not announced whether they have established a motive for the slaying, but are concentrating their investigation on the 20-minute interval Monday night between a telephone call Mrs. Edwards made to a cousin—telling him she was "lonely and frightened" and asking him to come over—and the time when she was found dying in her cellar.

FLANK VOLTURNO GERMANS

LONDON — A German news agency broadcast from Berlin said British troops landed at the mouth of the Volturno River tonight in a flanking attack on German positions in Italy.

Troops Cross Swollen River In Dead Of Night Despite Withering Barrage

Mighty New Offensive By 5th Army Threatens To Wipe Out Huns; 8th Army Takes Gildone In 7-Mile Advance

By N. NORGAARD—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 14—(AP)—British and American troops, swarming across the steep-banked Volturno River in a resumption of their drive on Rome, have cracked German defences in a furious night attack and established several strong bridgeheads on the north side of that greatest obstacle in their path, Allied headquarters announced today.

The troops of the 5th Army unleashed the mighty new offensive Tuesday night. They had the support of a thundering artillery barrage which tore German defences to shreds and the aid of powerful air armadas which swept the area unchallenged and pinned to earth the tanks and guns which the enemy attempted to use, in counter-attack.

Held Up By Rain.

Held up by several days of rains which had swelled the 100 to 200 yard-wide Volturno to a torrent and bogged down his vehicles, Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark took advantage of subsiding floods and drying ground to send his troops into battle with the words "hit them hard," after the Germans had attempted to throw the projected offensive off balance by a desperate attack on their own against Capua on the south side of the river.

The Allied troops did hit them hard.

Plunging across the stream in the face of heavy fire from German machine-guns, mortars, rifles and concentrations of artillery, Gen. Clark's troops swam and crossed the barrier in assault boats and amphibious trucks, and speedily established their bridgeheads.

They were quickly reinforced by American tanks which rolled across bridges hastily constructed by combat engineers under fire. Reports from the front to-day said Allied armor was fanning out in all directions and threatening to isolate German forces on either side.

All through the night and all day yesterday the battle of the bridgeheads raged, with the Germans rushing reinforcements from the home area in an effort to beat back the attack. Seven German divisions were strung across Italy to withstand the onslaught.

Sicilian Wounded Reach Halifax

HALIFAX, Oct. 14—(CP)— The Lady Nelson, Canada's only hospital ship, arrived in port early today from overseas. She is lying at anchor in mid-stream.

Now she is awaiting a berth at one of this port's busy piers, so she can discharge her cargo of wounded Canadian or American battle veterans. Possibly she has men on board from both Canada and the United States.

It is presumed in unofficial circles that she may be carrying troops, battle-scarred and wounded from the Sicilian and Italian campaigns, but it cannot be verified until newsmen—now waiting on the dock—are permitted to board the ship and interview her passengers.

This marked the completion of the fourth Atlantic round trip for the Nelson, former flagship of the Canadian National Steamship Line,

Australia Gets Spitfires

British Determined To Speed Fall Of Japan

CANBERRA, Australia, Oct. 14—(CP)—British Spitfire fighter planes of the latest type have been ordered to Australia as further proof of Britain's determination to bring about the downfall of Japan at the earliest possible moment, Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt told parliament today.

Reviewing his recent mission to Britain and the United States and his consultation with Prime Minister Churchill, Dr. Evatt quoted Mr. Churchill as saying:

"It is only a small installment of what ultimately will be forthcoming from Britain for the purpose of crushing Japan."

The Spitfires will be manned by R.A.F. personnel.

Dr. Evatt said President Roosevelt's decision to assign more U.S. combat aircraft for use of the Royal Australian Air Force is being implemented in relation to 1943 deliveries.

A. S. Drakeford, Air Minister, told the House that more than 15,000 flyers of the Royal Australian Air Force are engaged on battle fronts other than the Southwest Pacific.

Since Japan entered the war, the R.A.A.F. in the Southwest Pacific has flown more than 325,000,000 miles in operational flights, he said.

JAPANESE SUFFER TERRIFIC DISASTER AT RABAUL'S BIG HARBOR

Allies Destroy 119 Ships Burn or Damage 177 Planes

By C. YATES McDANIEL—Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, The Southwest Pacific, Oct. 14 (AP). —Every Allied bomber and fighter plane that could be risked was thrown in a gigantic smash at Japan's sea-air bastion of Rabaul on New Britain Tuesday, and the resultant devastation prompted General Douglas MacArthur to comment, "I think we have broken its back." The far-reaching results — they may speed the unhinging of the whole perimeter of defences anchored to Rabaul—were:—

Destruction or severe damage of 177 enemy planes, an estimated 60 per cent. of the air force on Rabaul's airdromes.

Sinking of at least 17,600 tons of ships, including three destroyers and three merchant ships, as well as 43 small sea-going cargo vessels and 70 harbor craft.

Severe damaging of a submarine, its 5,000-ton tender a 6,800-ton destroyer tender, and a 7,000-ton cargo ship.

Wrecking and firing of wharves and waterfront installations at Simpson Harbor, one of the finest in the world.

Allies Lose 5.

These accomplishments cost the Allies five planes. The raiders expended 350 tons of bombs and more than 250,000 rounds of ammunition.

The heavy and medium bombers, escorted by fighters, struck by daylight at the base.

The sharp scaling down of Rabaul's striking power followed a series of heavy raids since mid-August which have destroyed approximately 500 enemy planes at Wewak, New Guinea.

The Japanese were so completely surprised at Rabaul that they got only 40 fighters in the air, of which 26 were downed. Low-flying medium bombers raked 151 grounded bombers and fighters, while the fighter-protected four-engined aircraft went after shipping.

One immediate result of the raid, Gen. MacArthur said, is to give the Allies mastery of the air over the Solomons seas and adjacent waters.

Ideal Base To Fight Sub Menace

British forces have already landed on the Azores, which lie along the main Atlantic shipping lanes, 1,037 miles from Lisbon, Portugal, and 1,265 miles from Gibraltar.

MISS HANNAH CROWLEY

The death occurred at her residence, 40 Edgmont road, Rochester, N.Y., on Sunday of Hannah Crowley, daughter of the late James Crowley and Ellen English.

Born in Asphodel, she received her education in the local schools and went to Rochester as a young woman, where she has resided ever since.

She leaves to mourn her loss two sisters, Miss Ellen Crowley of Rochester and Mrs. Edward Sheehan of Peterborough, and four brothers, James of Rochester, and Patrick, Timothy and Bartholomew Crowley of Asphodel, and many nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held Wednesday from the old family homestead, the residence of Patrick Crowley in Asphodel, to our Lady of Mount Carmel church, Hastings, where Rev. J. J. Garvey offered requiem mass in the presence of an exceptionally large gathering of friends and relatives present to assist at the services and pay tribute to a former parishoner. Rev. Garvey delivered an eloquent sermon on death and during his address explained how the church follows the members from the cradle to the grave.

The wealth of floral and spiritual tokens presented was an indication of the friendship enjoyed by the deceased both in Rochester and the community surrounding her birthplace, which she visited on many occasions.

Interment was made in the family plot in Mount Carmel cemetery. Rev. J. J. Garvey conducting the services at the graveside.

Pallbearers were Richard Hayes, James Crowley, Richard Herr, Leo Hayes, Francis Crowley and Leo Herr.

MRS. JOHN HYNES

The sudden death of Mrs. John Hynes took place Thursday morning, October 14, at the age of 71 years.

Although of failing health for some time past, death came as a shock to her many friends and relatives. She was a faithful member of the Altar Society and St. Peter's Cathedral.

She is survived by her sorrowing husband, five daughters, Mrs. Loretta Lasure of Racini, Wisconsin; Mrs. John Laton, Mrs. John O'Neill, Mrs. Bernard Jones and Mrs. Vincent Flynn of Peterborough; two sons, Harold of Peterborough and George, Ennismore; also five sisters, Mrs. George Charlton, Lakefield, Mrs. Frank Hynes, Peterborough, Mrs. John Condon, Douro, Mrs. George Hall, Ithaca, N.Y., and Miss Sarah Maloney, Peterborough; and four brothers, George Maloney, Peterborough, Herbert Maloney, Detroit, Michael, Rochester and Jermiah of Asphodel.

The funeral will be held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bernard Jones, 273 John St., Peterborough, on Saturday morning to St. Peter's Cathedral where Mass will be offered for the repose of her soul at 9:00 o'clock.

Interment, St. Peter's Cemetery.

MRS. FRED J. OVEREND

The death of Mrs. Fred J. Overend, 314 London street, occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital this morning after a comparatively brief illness.

Mrs. Overend was born in Peterborough forty-eight years ago, Mary Madeline Rutherford, daughter of the late C. J. Rutherford and Mrs. Rutherford. The families of her parents were both among the early settlers of Peterborough more than one hundred years ago, and her paternal grandfather, Robinson Rutherford, was one of the members of the first town council at its incorporation in 1950.

Their interest in the affairs of the community was carried on by Mrs. Overend in her own sphere, with special activity in the Red Cross Society of which she was a member of its executive. She was also a former president of the Catholic Women's League, and participated in the affairs of the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral of which she had been a devoted member all her life. Mrs. Overend was an alumnus of St. Joseph's College, Toronto. Her practical Red Cross work was carried on until a few weeks ago when illness compelled her absence, and gradually since then her associates became apprehensive of her ultimate recovery. Her friends had recently become reconciled to the probability that her remaining days were to be few.

Mrs. Overend will be greatly missed in the various organizations to which she gave valued assistance combined with a cheerful, winsome personality that was characteristic of her through girlhood and into the years of her marriage. To the members of her family the deep sympathy of a very large number of friends will be extended in their bereavement.

Mrs. Overend is survived by her husband, Fred J. Overend, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Lumber Company, and two daughters, Anne and Mary; also by her mother, and four brothers, John C. and George of Peterborough, Dr. Thomas F. Rutherford of Kingston and Victor of Cleveland.

The funeral of Mrs. Overend will take place from the family residence Saturday morning at 10 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

Fierce Night Attack Across Volturno Establishes Foothold

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 14 — (AP). — The Anglo-American 5th Army launched strong attacks against the enemy Volturno River positions Tuesday night and has gained several bridgeheads headquarters announced today.

"The enemy is fighting fiercely to retain his hold on his positions covering the river," a communique said.

Weather conditions for the attack were described as favorable and the "ground was dry enough to permit movements off the roads."

At the same time the bulletin reported that Northwest African air forces had swept across the Adriatic and bombed Tirana, capital of Albania.

On the east side of the line across Italy, the British 8th Army made a slight advance against the strong resistance, the announcement said.

Tirana Bombed

The air attack on Tirana was carried out by medium American bombers, operating from bases in Italy. They were escorted by fighters. It was the first American air assault on German forces in Albania. The airfield at the Albanian capital was hit.

Bombs were said to have exploded on the runways in dispersal area, destroying or damaging more than half of the German planes parked on the field, hangars also were hit, an air force announcement said, and fires were started.

All the attacking planes returned.

Other medium bombers attacked targets in the town of Alife and road junctions at Sessa and at Arunca, all on the main road im-into their wheeling attack threatening the German flank. They rushed forward in a hard battle and captured Guardia, 14 miles northwest of Benevento and six miles northeast of Ponte. Guardia is only nine miles east of the Volturno and about four miles north of the Calore.

Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army, which includes the Canadian 1st Division, still further to the northeast pushed ahead for a gain of seven miles from Ricca, near the centre of the line, and occupied the town of Gildone.

This march brought the 8th Army within six miles of the important mountain road centre of Campobasso and opened a threat to the even more important communications point of Vinchiaturo, six miles southwest of Campobasso.

The Germans threw their carefully-hoarded fighter plane strength into the fray. One formation of 16 Messerschmitts was beaten off by Spitfires which shot down two and damaged many more.

Swarms of day and night bombers from Allied airdromes supported the great drive, hitting at communications, highways, bridges and troop concentrations and enemy airfields.

A Desperate Fight

The swift movements of tanks and guns prevented the Germans from sealing off the danger point and permitted the formation of a steel wedge which threatened to trap large numbers of their forces still holding the Volturno line near the river's mouth and in the corner to the east at the confluence of the Volturno and Calore.

All through yesterday and last night the battle raged and it was the belief that the Germans would fight desperately for every foot of ground.

But the German divisions now in line were showing signs of extreme fatigue and their morale was bound to suffer, now that the Allies had smashed the positions they perhaps hoped to make into a strong winter defence line just at the time the Russians were breaking down other winter defences in the east along the Dnieper.

With only seven divisions arrayed against the 5th and 8th Armies it was obvious that the Germans had too few troops to make a really firm stand even along the Gaeta-Pescara line to the north where rough mountains would favor a defence.

They seemed confronted, therefore, with the alternative of either attempting to bring south some of the divisions north of Rome, or of relinquishing the Italian capital and all the political prestige that goes with its retention.

No Fair Play With Ducks Hunters Claim

LINDSAY, Oct. 14 — (ENS). — Resentment is being voiced by the sportsmen in Lindsay over restrictions placed upon duck shooting. Regular hunters, consisting mainly of industrial workers are not allowed to buy shotgun shells and the sport it is stated is being reserved for more wealthy people who had the means to buy large supplies of shells before the restriction was placed. Hunters who state that the best hunting grounds are being purchased or leased by wealthy clubs or persons. These grounds are regularly shot out and large numbers of almost tame ducks fall prey to the club members.

"Private game preserves are alright if they are for the protection of the birds," one hunter states, "but when they are used for the purpose of inducing ducks to flock in for a slaughter it does not appear right to us." Ontario game laws appear to be influenced more by wealth than by fair play and if our present system of control keeps on it will mean that the former popular sport will be reserved for the wealthy."

Germans Report Midget Subs Lost

LONDON, Oct. 14 (CP) — The German radio claimed today that none of the British midget submarines which participated in the attack on the German battleship Tirpitz in Norway's Alten Fjord on Sept. 22 "has actually returned to England from this operation."

A British Admiralty communique announcing the attack last Monday said that three of the submarines were missing but did not disclose how many had participated.

The German broadcast added that British agents with large sums of money had been landed in Norway to assist the operation and had made unsuccessful efforts to discover the fate of the midget submarines and their crews.

Nazi Generals In New Dispute

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 14 (TP) — The Berne newspaper La Suisse said today that Field Marshal Albert Kesselring has been recalled as Commander of German forces in Southern Italy after a dispute with Marshal Erwin Rommel, commander in Northern Italy.

Kesselring was transferred to an unannounced post and another commander, who was not named, has been sent to southern Italy where he will be under Rommel's orders, the newspaper added.

(The Berlin radio said that Mussolini had received Rommel, and "in a long conference present military problems were discussed.")

La Suisse added that the Kesselring-Rommel dispute dated back to Rommel's earlier victorious push toward Egypt. Although then outranked by Kesselring, Rommel refused to take orders from Kesselring or Italian generals. Rommel's feats won him pomotion to Field Marshal's rank, equal with Kesselring.

Huns Retreat Before Patriot Unit

Entire Division Of Italians Join Tito's Army

LONDON, Oct. 14 — (CP). — Strong German forces attempting to storm the town of Tuzla, industrial centre dominating the plain leading to Belgrade, have been beaten back and are retreating westward toward Doboj, a communique of the Yugoslav National Liberation Army, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, said to-day.

This stinging repulse of Nazi forces which for the past several days have been battling for this strategic strongpoint, followed by a few hours the announcement by Drug Tito's headquarters that the entire Italian Venezia division, until recently fighting with the Germans, had come over to the Patriot cause.

At the same time, however, Tito declared that the Chetnik forces of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, King Peter's field commander, and his war minister, were arrayed with the Germans against the Partisan forces of liberation.

Today's communique said bitter but inconclusive fighting between Partisan columns and German forces was raging around the cities of Ogulin, Karlovac and Zagreb in Croatia; Sibanik, Zara and Imotski in Dalamatia and along the main railway arteries in Slovenia and on the Istrian Peninsula.

In the Fiume sector the Germans, reinforced with tank brigades, stormed Patriot positions near Susak, the communique said, "and by great superiority (of numbers) succeeded in advancing toward Orkvenice and Bakar" on the Croatian coastal plain.

Allied Tenacity Wrecks Nazi Air Force

CAPODICHINA AIRFIED, Italy Oct. 5 — (Delayed) — (AP). — The German air force is slowly dying month by month, week by week, day by day, and when you inspect a once-great Axis air base such as Capodichino you readily see how its nests are being blasted from it one after another by the ceaseless pounding of the Allied bombers and fighters.

The grass grows high on Capodichino field. We counted more than 100 wrecks of German and Italian airplanes scattered around the green acres. They had been shattered by fragmentation bombs dropped by bombers, or riddled by incendiary bullets from low-flying fighter-bombers.

The planes were of all types. Ruined German fighters stood by ruined German bombers. Several great six-motored transports had been caught on the field and had burned.

These sky giants appear to have been one of the German air force's poorest investments. They look as if they were built to be shot down, and they are as helpless against a swift fighter plane as a tired cow against a wolf.

In addition to being bombed Capodchino was subjected to heavy demolition by the Germans and afterward came in for considerable shellfire in the battle during which British troops drove off the defending Nazis.

Surprising is the number of usable planes the Germans are unable to get out when they are forced to abandon a field — a fact which leads some airmen to conclude that the German air force, bled dry by four years of bloody combat, is as short of trained fliers as it is of planes.

Corvette Sign Up

COBOURG Oct. 14—(ENS) — The huge Sictory Loan sign painted by G. A. Sheppard of Cobourg, has been erected in front of the town hall and has excited much favourable comment. Thirty feet long and six feet high, it contains in the centre a painting of a corvette, representing the corvette, "H. M. C. S. Cobourg" and on the left is the announcement of the Loan and on the right is a space for day by day reports of the campaign.

CAMPBELLFORD

FO. E. Douglas Said Missing

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 14 (ENS) —Flying Officer Eric H. Douglas, formerly of this town, has been reported missing following operations over Sicily and Italy.

Eric is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Douglas of Hamilton, and was born in this town thirty-two years ago. He went to both Public and High School here and after graduating joined the staff of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal. From here he transferred to St. Catharines and subsequently to Hamilton, where his parents had taken residence after leaving here. At the time of his enlistment he was on the staff of the College street branch of the Bank of Montreal in Toronto.

Flying Officer Douglas took his initial training at Centralia and graduated as a Navigator at St. Ancienne Lorette, in August, 1942. Soon afterwards he was posted overseas and received further training in England before being sent to the Mediterranean theatre. He was posted as missing following operations on August 17 and at that time he had completed nineteen operational flights over enemy territory. According to information received by his parents the bomber on which he served was lost during an attack on beach targets in Italy. Two brothers, who will also be remembered in Campbellford, are in the service—Pilot Officer Paul with the R.C.A.F. and Writer Evan with the R.C.N.V.R.

LAKEFIELD

Councillors Try To Get Wood For Winter Use

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 14 (ENS) — Village councillors are still attempting to purchase wood for the village, and are taking out a wood dealer's license this week. Clerk E. H. Northey was instructed to write the Hydro Electric to obtain permission to pile one hundred cords on their property.

Correspondence was read from the Bell Telephone requesting that they be allowed to erect poles to Mr. George Oglivies property, the council to share the cost as agreed in a by-law passed some years ago. The clerk is to write them to the effect that the council will do so.

William Edwards, garbage collector, told the council he is unable to get help, and unless he is able to get someone will have to resign. His last man he said left because he would not handle the garbage which the people are putting out. All garbage is supposed to be wrapped, but according to Mr. Edwards, very little of it is.

Lower Rent

The council decided after a discussion to have the clerk write W. J. Charlton to the effect that the rent on the road, from the station to Concession street, which he owns, would be $1 per year in the future instead of $10. The village has paid rent on this bit of road for forty years. The council will keep the road in condition as formerly.

The village grader will be rented to Harvey township for $2 an hour. Harvey to furnish gas and oil; the clerk to write William Thompson of Lakehurst to this effect.

Reeve S. Scriver presided at the session with Councillors D. B. Millar, G. Graham, Fred Lawrence and G. Charlton present.

Accounts Paid

The following were the accounts for the month: Garnet Samis $51.20, salary, police trousers $6.75; T. Chaplin, stamps $3; Councillors D. B. Millar, G. Charlton, G. Graham, F. Lawrence and Reeve Scriver, sessional allowance $9; Mrs. T. Martin, laundry, $10.41; Frank Traynor, wood, 25½ cords, $178.50; John Drummond, taxi $10; W. C. Men Dredge Harbor

COBOURG, Oct. 14—(ENS) — Dredging of Cobourg Harbour is proceeding at the present time. Big job facing those responsible for keeping the harbour in shape is the repair of the T. pier, part of which is under water and repair of the pier running out by the ferry dock. The latter pier is sunken in several places. It is believed that most of the repair work will be done as part of a post-war program.

LAKEFIELD

Fire Chief Talks At High School

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 14—(ENS)—Fire Chief Allan Clark in an interesting address to the staff and pupils of the high school outlined the routine each fireman goes through at a fire and explained the different apparatus used.

He stressed that the pupils should do their utmost to remove fire hazards to keep the village free from fires. Principal J. F. Harvey thanked Chief Clark for his talk to the pupils.

The High School Junior Red Cross Society has commenced for the term. The following were the officers elected: President, Jean Frankish; vice-president, Joan Kelly; secretary, Doreen Kelly; treasurer, Lillian Calberry; circulation manager, Muretta Hull; convener for war work, Dorothy Bullock.

Already in their treasury there is the sum of $11 given them by Mrs. J. Minifie, the result of sales of the products of their garden, which she cultivated and sold during the vacation.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 14. — (ENS).—"Gratitude and Thankfulness" was the theme for the October meeting of St. Andrew's W. M.S. Tuesday afternoon when members met in the church parlours.

The president, Mrs. R. McCulloch, opened the meeting with prayer and in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. John Storie, took the minutes of the meeting. Mrs. F. B. Adamson who gave the treasurer's report volunteered to assist Mrs. James Stories in the work of "The Glad Tidings."

The main business of the meeting concerned arrangements for a tea to be held at the manse on October 29. This will be under the convenership of Mrs. F. B. Adamson and Mrs. John Storie with Mrs. F. G. DeCarroq and Mrs. C. Milne as program conveners.

Mrs. J. O. Ralston presided for the program and there followed a Scripture reading by Mrs. Alfred Hay, prayer by Mrs. Alex Beattie, a reading by Mrs Ralston entitled "Gratitude"; vocal duet by Mrs. F. G. DeCarrol and Mrs. C. Milne; a review of the Study Book dealing with work among the Chinese, French, Ukrainians and Indians in Canada, by Mrs. Ralston and a few thoughts on Thanksgiving by Rev. J. O. Health Of Worker In Industry Is Big Factor In Production

By DR. R. A. KELLY
Acting Medical Officer of Health

Accidents occur in many different places—the plant, the home, the highway. Let us consider one of these sites—the factory. Accidents and the health of industrial employees are so closely related that it is difficult to consider the one without the other. Therefore, we are pleased to present an article, "The Health of the Worker in Industry in Wartime" by Dr. J. G. Cunningham, Director, Division of Industrial Hygiene, Ontario Department of Health.

"There are different kinds of armies in this war. In one of them active service begins not after a period of training but on the day of enlistment. Twenty-five per cent of its peace-time establishment has important physical defects which are now increased by the absence of fit men eighteen to twenty-five, and by the addition of unemployed, retired and handicapped men and large numbers of women, accepted and placed on a trial-and-error basis. When sickness or accident occurs, the gap in the line is left empty or filled by a new recruit until the casualty returns or decides in three or four days that medical care cannot be avoided. There is no sick parade but an accident parade is conducted as the law provides.

An inspector from headquarters makes visits once a month or more often, as time will allow, to ensure that sanitary conditions are maintained and to assist with special health problems should he detect or suspect them, or if they have arrested the attention of the executive so forcibly that they cannot be ignored.

Except for a few units, this is the "industrial army of Canada" as far as the maintenance of physical capacity is concerned. There is work for all to do and for a long-range effort the substantial value of handicapped workers lies almost entirely in adequate placement at work and supervision of health.

Much Accomplished

All in industry, especially skilled and supervisory forces, have accomplished much more than people realize and in spite of medical problems which in their influence on work are appreciated still less, even within industry. One large factory displays in a poster, "It's here the great offensive starts."

The increase in industrial accidents in war is attributed to new workers and supervisors, new methods and stress of production, but they have also risen in some industries where these conditions do not obtain. In any case, sickness is ten times as important as far as output loss is concerned, even reaching six per cent of working time. War takes its toll and perhaps it is necessary to pay in terms of public health but it must be emphasized that production is a much more sensitive index of ill-health than is lost time. This is well illustrated in the experience with return to moderate from excessive hours of labor. Many months elapse after sickness absence falls before output is stabilized again at the higher level.

Night work is necessary and is increasing for both men and women. Sickness absence is higher and studies have shown that output is greater in the second week of day work after a spell at night, while it is less in the second week of night work. Such fluctuations in output do not occur with a weekly change of shift but other considerations have led to the frequent adoption of fortnightly changes. Those with gastritis, anaemia and nervous dis-

Time Editor Flays Reporters

MONTREAL, Oct. 14 — (CP). — Eric Hodgins, editorial vice-president and general manager of Time magazine, told the Advertising Club yesterday that United States newspapers should change their practice of reporting "dream battles in which nobody but the enemy ever gets hurt."

"In the United States," he said, "we are reporting the war as if we were writing continuity for an animated cartoon. We take a deep breath and blow on our enemies and blast them off the screen.

"The United States has been routing, crushing, blasting, hurling back, blitzing, smashing, wiping out, shattering and annihilating the foe — in the headlines—almost every day since its involvement in the war. And in so doing we have been feeding our public a dangerous and insidious narcotic."

A Law For Pedestrians

In the interest of public safety, we feel that there should be a law requiring pedestrians on the public roads to reverse the usual rule of the road, and keep to the left, instead of to the right. If this were so, pedestrians would always be facing traffic on their side of the road, and would thus be able to keep out of danger. Many accidents happen every year in which pedestrians are knocked down by motor traffic because the drivers of motor vehicles either do not see them or see them too late to avoid hitting them. In most cases these accidents are avoidable, and would certainly not happen if the pedestrians were facing traffic instead of walking with it.

Most of these accidents, we understand, happen at night. Anyone who drives a car knows how hard it is to see a human being on the road after dark if the pedestrian is not carrying a light. If two cars are passing the glare of headlights is often so strong that the pedestrian is unnoticed until it is too late. As we have pointed out before, the pedestrian is very conscious of being on the road, and cannot imagine that he is virtually invisible to a driver who is moving at a speed six, eight or ten times as great as his own. And it must be said that many pedestrians are extremely careless, and throw all the responsibility for their safety on the drivers of cars. Perhaps the walker feels that his right on the highway is as good as that of the driver, and no doubt he is right; but safety is not always a matter of strict rights—it demands the use of common sense.

Pedestrians will continue to be killed, or seriously hurt, as long as they keep the important stream of traffic behind them. If they face it, they have plenty of time to step aside and keep well out of danger until motor vehicles have passed them. We feel strongly that a law reversing the rule of the road for pedestrians would do much to cut down the number of traffic accidents on our highways and secondary roads, and we should like to see some action taken about it.

E. B. Jolliffe On Profits

On the last day of September Mr. E. B. Jolliffe, the provincial C.C.F. leader, made a speech in Tecumseh, in Essex county, in which he dealt with the subject of profits. This is what he is reported to have said:

"Prime Minister King has told us there is no profiteering in this war, but taxes or no taxes, profits are being made on a much bigger scale than before this war.

"According to the Bank of Canada's statistical summary for October and November of last year, which includes all companies with assets of more than $500,000, the true picture is this: In 1938, the last full year of peace, these companies made net profits, before providing for taxes, of $320,000,000, and in 1941 they made $668,000,000. The war more than doubled their net profits.

"Even after paying their taxes these companies made 'far bigger profits' as a result of the war, Mr. Jolliffe said. In 1938 their profits, after taxes, were $264,000,000 and in 1941 they were $373,000,000.

"'That increase did not come out of thin air,' the Ontario Opposition Leader said. 'It came out of the taxpayer's pockets.'

"But the biggest and most outrageous profit is concealed. It does not appear as income at all. But the simple device of accelerated depreciation, great corporations are increasing their capital, their assets, by hundreds of millions, all at the expense of the public.

"They are profiteering on capital and what they are making on that makes the profiteers of the last war look like pikers."

It will be seen that Mr. Jolliffe considers a profit as "net" before taxes have been deducted from it; this is a misuse of the word, for a "net profit" is a profit against which no further charges can be made. This misuse of a word might be taken as a slip of the tongue, or an unusual misunderstanding on Mr. Jolliffe's part if it were not that this particular misuse of the word "net" is common among thinkers of his political colour.

Men of business, however, know that taxes are one of the greatest charges against their profits these days and will find this special use of the word "net" very irritating.

But we hope that Mr. Jolliffe's hearers did not believe all that he told them about wartime profiteering. He did not tell them that 1938 was not a good business year, and he did not tell them that $61 millions of the $108 million dollar increase between 1938 and 1941 came from the railways and the pulp and paper industry, which had been having a bad time. If there was any profiteering on a large scale, the Excess Profits Tax of 1942 took care of it most effectively.

His remarks about charges for accelerated depreciation are also ambiguous. Since the coming of war many manufacturing plants have installed elaborate and expensive machinery to supply war needs, and as soon as the war is over this machinery will be utterly useless; for this reason the Government permits them to hasten the rate of depreciation, so that when the war is over the manufacturers will not suffer a heavy loss. Is there anything unreasonable or crooked about that?

We suspect that many of the lay members of the C.C.F. are not familiar with the workings of the Excess Profits Tax. Every Canadian business now has a base profit, estimated as the average of profits during the four years 1936 to 1939. If a business makes profits which come within that basic sum, the Government takes 40 per cent. of the profit in taxes. If the profit exceeds the basic sum, the Government takes 30 per cent. of the basic sum, and 100 per cent. of all profit in excess of it. If Mr. Jolliffe does not think that that is real taxation it is because he has never had to run a business. And if he knows of any firms which are evading this heavy taxation in any way, it is his duty to denounce them to the Department of National Revenue. He should not waste his time complaining to the innocent citizens of Tecumseh, who can do nothing to remedy the matter.

A Disadvantage Of Democracy

There are two sides to everything, and there is no governmental system which does not carry with it a few disadvantages to offset its advantages. Certainly it is so with democracy. One of the circumstances attending the form of democracy in vogue here and in the U.S. which occasionally makes for trouble is our custom of electing representatives to the central government upon a basis of personal popularity rather than upon tested fitness to deal with great affairs. As the enemies of democracy have often pointed out, we demand no special aptitude or fitness in our governors. Of course, the common sense of the electorate ameliorates this defect to some extent, but not in all cases.

These reflections are prompted by the reports which have been brought home by five United States' senators who have made a tour of the globe in order to see what they could see. They appear to be well-satisfied with military matters, but they have many complaints to make about political and diplomatic matters. They think that their country is being abused by superior British cleverness; they have, indeed, revived the old fear that the simple Americans are being used as catspaws for the scheming British.

Frankly, this attitude must astonish all British people. In time of peace our allies across the border suffer from no fear that the British will prove more clever than they; indeed, they are sometimes frank in confessing that they do not think any other nation can surpass them in ingenuity and alertness. Why should they reverse this attitude in time of war? But now some of the travelling senators fear that the British are hoarding their own oil while using American oil freely; they are convinced that Russia could save a million American lives by declaring war on Japan; they think that Britain is preparing to out-general them in the matter of post-war aviation; their fears and suspicions are many.

President Roosevelt has dealt with some of these fears by declaring them to be groundless; he has said that others are not worth bothering about. In short, he has acted like a great statesman and a man deeply versed in international affairs. But the suspicions of the senators will linger in the minds of many thousands of men and women who are constitutionally suspicious and fearful. The damage, as the President has said, will not be great, but it is a pity that any damage should be done at all.

Democracy is a great ideal, but it has its negative side. And one aspect of this negative side is the publicity and weight which it gives to the views of people who speak from insufficient knowledge and parochial judgement.

Demands In Vocational Training

By F. G. PATTEN
Ottawa Collegiate Board

WE have been told that Canada's industrial development over the past four years represents possibly twenty-five years of peacetime achievement. Modern medical technique amaze us, and though our economic and social controls may confuse us by their complexity, they also startle us by their daring. These advances cannot fail to affect the schools and it is small wonder that educationists are questioning the effectiveness of the school in meeting the needs of this changing society.

During the depression years large numbers of young people left our schools with little prospect of employment. Vocational schools in particular were often criticized for graduating students who possessed specific skills, thereby flooding the labour market. Following the declaration of war, however this surplus of trained people rapidly disappeared and commerce and industry were faced with the necessity of obtaining workers for the additional jobs created by our increased needs—civilian and military. Many people with little or no high school education were given a short shop course and sent into factories where, under modern production methods, they have performed quite capably.

AS the supply of available manpower diminished, the Armed Services themselves reduced educational requirements for certain personnel from Upper School to lower standards, so that today these same branches accept applicants with a High School Entrance certificate. Recruits with a couple of years of high school training and with a definite objective in mind can be taught enough mathematics and science in a few months to do a competent job as pilot or navigator. Again, many young men with academic qualifications considerably below pre-war matriculation requirements have been admitted to university to take courses in science and engineering. Apparently these results are also quite satisfactory because in post-war days the enrollees are to be permitted to complete regular university courses.

All these trends have significance for vocational schools, for when peace comes we will probably have more skilled people than jobs. We shall again hear complaints about a glutted labour market and just as soon as unemployment affects skilled workers we shall be urged to stop training additional welders and machinists, stenographers and typists, whose presence will further diminish opportunities for work. The first lesson that our vocational schools must learn is that a saleable skill can be most easily and most economically developed by intensive training over a short period of time, especially when there is a definite object in view. On the other hand, we must avoid being stampeded by those who would have us return to a classical curriculum merely because the classical virtues of thoroughness and concentration are so necessary now.

THEN too, in post-war days it is likely that young people unable to find employment will remain in school as they did in the 1930's. Numerous reports on post-war reconstruction mention a school-leaving age of eighteen years, and while it is likely we shall move in that direction, we must consider whether it will be desirable to keep our young people in school until that age unless we provide them with a school program closely enough integrated with the life of their community to be vital and meaningful. We shall continue to provide these people with so-called vocational subjects taught, in the junior years at least, for their general educational value. In connection with this education we must provide work experience that will enable students to see their own contribution in terms of its community and national value—possibly under a sort of paid-apprenticeship system. Thus, one of our biggest problems will be to accommodate the daily school programs to the needs of all sorts of young people engaged for part time in various types of work.

Now if schools cannot provide these boys and girls with a broad vocational training, along with work experience and a better training in citizenship, we may again be faced in post-war years with the necessity for turning over a large percentage of our students to Federal agencies to provide these, just as was done in the United States in pre-war days. Is it not somewhat humiliating to think that our Department of Education should have turned over some of the legitimate functions of our schools to the Department of Labour, which now handles our War Emergency Training Program, though very few who have seen the program in action can regret that it was established or can deny that it has done a most capable job.

ANOTHER trend that should be of concern to schools is the ever increasing importance that society is attaching to Officer Selection Boards, Personnel Work, and Labour Management Committees. An individual's ability to cooperate with others in planning and executing, his character and his emotional stability are all matters of concern to his employer and to society. Indeed, our hope for a better post-war world depends upon whether or not individuals and nations can live together co-operatively in tolerance and understanding. Even one's health, and choice of hobbies and recreations, can be of vital concern to the nation at large.

Though this philosophy makes terrific demands upon our schools, their English and Social Studies and their Mathematics and Science are already being studied from a social and economic point of view. For years large numbers of our teachers have been constantly aware of the occupational tragedy presented by the brilliant graduate with an unfortunate personality trait.

In view of these demands for better training in citizenship, it is likely that we shall expand our school programs in the Social Sciences, Health, Home Economics, General Shop, Business Practice and Typewriting. Emphasis will be placed on personal use, rather than the skill aspect of the so-called Vocational subjects. Work experience will be required; if not near at hand, then it may well be that non-military work camps will have to be established. A period of suitable manual work for every young person physically able would do much to break down prejudices now existing amongst occupational groups. Some type of work experience is certainly an essential background for our new citizenship program. In dealing with these post-war needs, Vocational Schools, relatively unfettered by tradition, are in a position to provide much-needed leadership.

Mr. Smith had been lecturing in a neighbouring town.

"How did you get on, dear?" asked his wife. "Did you carry your audience with you?"

"No," he replied. "But I could easily have done it [illegible] small enough."

"BLUE MONDAY"

Whitehall Notebook

(By SYDNEY GRUSON, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Oct. 14 (CP)—For more than two years, Lord Vansittart, once one of the most powerful men in British affairs, has been preaching the credo of what has become known as "Vansittartism." He is still preaching it, and at the same time attempting to destroy a "fable."

The "fable," as Lord Vansittart describes it, is that Vansitartism advocates the extermination of the German people. It has grown, he says, "as the result of German propaganda repeated by a certain number of British stooges."

Vansittartism, summed up briefly in his own words, is this: "I want the total defeat of Germany, the destruction of German militarians, whether spiritual or material, and an inter-Allied occupation of Germany long enough to get education re-started on an unassailable basis."

That is the message he has propounded since he resigned as chief diplomatic adviser to the government in June 1941, a position he held from 1938. He was permanent undersecretary for foreign affairs from 1930 to 1938, the years of Germany's renaissance as a military power.

As a civil servant he could only watch the German threat grow and remain silent from the public, and his answer to those who asked why he didn't resign sooner to voice his fears was that Prime Minister Churchill, not then in office, urged him "to stick it out."

But his resignation in 1941 freed his voice to trumpet the message of Vansittartism. And just as often as he delivered the message he has found it necessary to make clear that he does not preach the extermination of all Germans.

In his most recent speech at Manchester, he said: "Most of my adversaries say I believe that all Germans are Nazis. Nothing could be further from the truth. My point is that all Germans are not Nazis and that a great many of them were thinking and doing what they are doing now long before the Nazis were ever heard of."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express says that whisky was among the many subjects discussed by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt at Quebec.

Because of the falling reserves in Britain and the fact that grain shortage prevents resumed production here, Mr. Churchill wanted Canada to begin distilling whisky again, the Express said, but United States producers "demurred on the ground that it would revive bootlegging."

The paper reported that there may be a compromise "by which both America and Canada will resume production on a small scale."

There has been no let-up recently in the emphasis being placed by British leaders on the need for post-war co-operation between Britain, the United States and Russia.

"None of these nations can afford to be so weak that other people have a predominance of strength and use it for purposes of brutality," said Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade.

Sir Walter Citrine, secretary of the powerful Trades Union Congress, said "Unless those three nations have a clear concept as to what they expect peace shall bring, it is utterly impossible to get anything like complete agreement among the 38 nations on the side of the Allies."

Whitton Challenges Marsh Report

(FINANCIAL POST)

UNDER the title "The Dawn of Ampler Life," Dr. Charlotte Whitton's analysis of the Marsh Report on Social Security for Canada, prepared at the request of Hon. John Bracken, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, offers not only discussion of Dr. Marsh's suggestions, questioning several principles and disputing the estimated costs, but also a comparative treatment, in Canadian terms, of the major Beveridge recommendations and some comment both on the Heagerty Health Insurance bill and the Report of the National Resources Planning Board of the United States.

Dr. Whitton suggests, as essential to postwar planning now, a judicial reference and decision as to what powers and responsibilities are to rest with Dominion, provincial and municipal governments, respectively. Then, she submits, action must follow either by concurrent legislation or amendments to the British North America Act to give a sound basis for action to meet postwar needs, before these are upon us.

Dr. Whitton is a former head of the Canadian Welfare Council. Herewith is a digest of her proposal.

Welfare security for Canadians, Dr. Whitton maintains, will have to rest more largely on what her reports calls the Social Utilities and sound, humane social assistance and less on social insurance than in Britain. This, it is claimed, is the trend in Sweden and in Russia, whose climatic and occupational conditions are comparable to our own.

Social Utilities are described as services built up through general public taxation, to serve the whole population, regardless of income, and at cost. Such are the schools, many children's services, care of the aged, etc., nursing, prenatal, cancer, tuberculosis services in many provinces today. All these services, it is recommended, should be enlarged and extended.

Diametrically opposed to the Marsh proposals for each allowances for children and the cancellation of income tax exemptions for them, the Whitton report instead would greatly improve the schools and extend all services, caring for the expectant mother and the health training or welfare of children, all family services, etc., whether under public or voluntary or joint auspices as each province might desire income tax exemption for children would be increased as a natural state recognition of the service and responsibility assumed by the parent for the nation in the child's care, nurture and training. On the same basis, the Social Utilities would provide low cost housing with preference for large families with young children, both to home owners and on rentals.

The report rejects the Marsh proposal of a system of funeral benefits and would divert the money to what it claims are more constructive primary needs. It would control mortician's rates where high, and give direct social assistance wherever needed, because of a death.

Breaking definitely with the Marsh and Heagerty proposals, the Whitton report proposes that some agreed standard of diagnostic medical, hospital, nursing, dental and opthalmic care be made an out-and-out social utility, under full-time staff, available to all citizens with no downward or upward income limit, on a basis, comparable to the school system. This plan would leave all services, not within the agreed standards of medical care, and all persons, who did not want to use the public services, to the field of private medical practice.

More small units for the care of the aged, chronically ill, infirm and convalescent, Dr. Whitton would add to the Social Utilities in every district, using buildings now fitted for war purposes for these homes and carrying their re-equipment or the building of new units in post-war works.

Dr. Whitton urges the immediate strengthening of social assistance throughout Canada. She urges the creation now, with national income high, of a Dominion Assistance Fund to supplement provincial and municipal assistance services and make it financially possible for these units of government to discharge their responsibilities.

Dr. Whitton suggests placing unemployment and other proposed forms of insurance in one general category. This would be income insurance, calling for a flat percentage payment at the same rate for all payers of income-tax and for all, not paying income tax, who yet could meet the income insurance premium. It would be available to all, regardless of upward income level and be paid with the income tax.

"If you please, ma'am," said the new cook, "I should like to ask you something. It's about Tomkins, the butcher. He says I shall have five per cent on all orders I give him. What does that mean?"

The lady of the house considered for a moment before answering.

"These technicalities, Jane, are hard to explain. Broadley, it means that we shall get our meat from Jones [illegible] in future!"

A Bible Message

Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God. (Heb. 12: 1, 2.)

Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. (Phil. 2: 5-8.)

But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him. (Rom. 5: 8, 9.)

After The Victory

This was no time to relax, to indulge in futile congratulations or in idle speculation. The smoke screen suddenly engulfed the ship; it was not nearly as dense as when it had first been laid, but with the rapid approach of night now that the sun was below the horizon the darkness inside the smoke screen was intense. The Captain took three strides in the darkness to the end of the bridge and craned his neck to look aft. There was only the faintest glow to be seen of the fire which had raged there, and a few more minutes with the hoses would extinguish even that.

They emerged into the evening light again; the scant minute during which they had been in the smoke screen seemed to have brought night far closer. There was just enough light to see how the fires and the enemies' hits had left the whole after-third of the ship above water line a tangle of burnt-out steel, a nightmare of buckled plates and twisted girders, desolate and dead.

"All hands darken ship," said the Captain. "Second degree of readiness."

Artemis under the orders of the Navigating Lieutenant was wheeling round to take the station allotted to her by the standing orders for convoy escort at night. It was as well that the fires had been subdued, for otherwise the flames would be a welcoming beacon inviting a torpedo. The aeroplanes had attacked in the morning; in the afternoon they had beaten off the surface ships; tonight they would have to be on their guard against submarines, for the enemy, like the devil, was capable of taking many forms. One battle completed, one victory achieved, merely meant that Artemis and her men must plunge headlong into the next: into the long, long struggle of sea power against tyranny; the struggle that the Greeks had waged at Salamis; that the Captain's ancestors had waged against the Armada of Spain, against the fleets of Louis XIV and Napoleon and Wilhelm II, the long struggle which some day would have an end, but not now, and not for months and years to come. And even when it should end the freedom which the struggle would win could only be secured by eternal vigilance, eternal probity, eternal good will and eternal honesty of purpose. That would be the hardest lesson of all; peace would be a severer test of mankind even than war....

The Captain suddenly tensed himself as his roving eyes caught sight of a twinkle of light ahead, and then he was able to relax again and even smile a little to himself in the twilight. For that was the evening star shining out over the Mediterranean.—From "The Ship," by C. S. Forester. (Boston: Little, Brown.)

Health Of Worker

orders are poor risks. For some reason, those on continuous night work suffer gastric disturbance not attributable to the kind of meal, e.g., miners and bakers. Rotation at work is necessary but the groups referred to require special attention if absence is to be avoided.

The lack of skilled workmen requires the breaking down of complex operations to simpler ones—usually at higher speed and fixed space, out of control of the worker. Such processes are associated with increased absence on account of sickness and are more likely to employ women. The death rate from tuberculosis in women fifteen to twenty-four in Great Britain increased by fifty per cent during the last war.

Occupational Diseases Increased

The number of cases of occupational disease has increased, but up to the present they have come from increased exposure to the common substances in use rather than from new processes. Spraying large surfaces with lead paint, substitution of benzol with toluol, evolution of nitrous fumes in nitration processes and skin irritants, have increased the risk. The inconvenience, discomfort and interference with rest, due to skin irritaton from such sources as cutting compounds or plating solutions, warrant expert attention for control.

Such are some of the conditions of work which can be modified or to which some adjustment may be made to maintain health. However, the illnesses to which all, whether inside or outside industry, are subject, remain the most important brake on output. They can be controlled only through their early recognition, and for this the physician must be brought to the worker at the factory as has been done for years by certain progressive industries, requiring no new demonstration of its value. His duties include examination for placement at work and examination afterward as required, the supervision of first-aid and of conditions of work, and education in personal health.

The treatment of accidents, important as it is, instead of monopolizing the attention of such medical staffs as exist in industry, then becomes a part of a program for maintaining health, carried out mainly by part-time personnel with general medical training and experience, and a viewpoint which recognizes the medical problems and needs of industry. Half the lost time from sickness can thus be prevented and hazardous occupations are then under continuous control.

In the bearing of health supervision on industrial relations a 1939 report of the National Industrial Conference Board showed that 43.4 per cent of the industries with medical service regarded it as an "important factor" and another 42.9 per cent as a "definite help" while 13.7 per cent said "no effect" or did not know. The country at large benefits from improved output, the result of good health of its workers, and the force of the example carried home by the bread-winner can hardly be overemphasized.

Malnutrition Exists

On the other hand, increased employment of women with home duties, night work, lack of interest and knowledge, offset the advantage that an improved economic state from steady employment contributes to better nutrition. Recent surveys show that malnutrition exists in this country and that family funds are often not used for food to the best advantage. Many industries have suspected as much and have provided food at the factory to "ensure one good meal a day." As with health supervision, the response of employees is immediate.

Housing and transportation engage the attention of medical officers of health, supplementing the federal scheme where it applies. Inadequate rest, communicable diseases and labor turnover due to poor accommodation, react unfavorably upon the community and the work of industry alike.

There is some indication of increasing interest by industrial groups in provision for the treatment of sickness, paid by employer and employee, but without a corresponding interest in the control of sickness except as readily available treatment contributes to this end. As experience of the amount and kinds of sickness in industry and of its cost accumulates, for which the employer makes direct outlay, he will want to know what can be done about it. If public health officials and the medical profession generally, believe, and they do, that adult sickness can be controlled to an appreciable extent by early diagnosis, appropriate advice for treatment, and other measures at their disposal, that belief should be acted upon now, so that war industry may benefit from a procedure which can be so much more readily applied to groups than to individuals outside a group."

QUEEN ALEXANDRA AND PRINCE OF WALES BATTLE TO SOCCER DRAW

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The beautiful trophy presented by Ald. R. S. Cotton to the Girls' Softball League as emblematic of the senior championship of that organization is now engraved and all ready to be handed over to the first winners of the new cup, the Westclox team. It will be presented at the annual banquet of the league which will be held early next month. Ald. Cotton who is known as the father of girls' softball in Peterborough and who has always been a warm friend and faithful worker for the good of the game offered the cup at the last annual banquet of the league when it had been announced that the Bond Cup, the senior trophy, had become the permanment property of the Westclockers who had won the honors three times. The alderman promised to replace the trophy and he has done so with a very fine cup, one condition of which is that it is to be a permanent trophy, with the winner holding it only one year. In other words it cannot be won outright no matter how often the same club happens to grab off the club championship. Ald. Cotton's donation of this splendid cup is in line with his other services in behalf of girls' softball, services that include the providing by the city of the present bleachers and playing field at the Ashburnham Bowl.

In winning the provincial championship at Preston on Saturday Stratford Kroehlers hammered both Annie Petrinka and Eenie Ernst hard, and making 15 hits as they defeated the Preston Rivulettes 14 to 5. The Stratford girls scored eight runs in the sixth, with Ruby Huras hitting a homer and Doris Barloff and Helen Doubrough slamming triples. Chick Appel, Stratford sport writer whose daughter Betty played a lot of shortstop for the winners has the following comment in his column: "It's no mean achievement to knock off a provincial title, no matter in what branch of sport it may be, but what makes the victory of Stratford Kroehler girls sweeter and more satisfying was the manner in which they accomplished it—the hard way. From the very outset the dice were loaded and the cards stacked against them, thanks to some peculiar ruling of the governing body in ordering them to engage in the playdowns throughout four series, and in every instance giving them the short end of things. It's hardly necessary to enlarge on what this column has mentioned before, but briefly Stratford Kroehlers were obliged to meet Guelph Coronettes, St. Catharines Merry Macs, Peterborough Westclox and Preston Rivulettes in best-of-three series, with the champions forced to play the first game of each series on their home diamond and the next two, if necessary, on the field of their opponents. Not once did the governing body make any attempt to give Stratford Kroehlers the second and possible third games of a series at home."

Last For Duration

With the world series over comes the disturbing thought that the round just completed may have been the last until the war is over. Admittedly both clubs were below the normal standard in the annual classic and the outlook is that by another year the ranks of the big league outfits will be so riddled that there won't be enough material to carry on, especially if Uncle Sam goes ahead with the drafting of fathers, a step that would yank some of the finest players in both leagues out of the game. The Cards lost Pitcher Murray Dickson on the eve of the series and he was with them for the clash with the Yanks on borrowed time, having been granted leave by the army. On the day after the final game Pitcher Alpha Brazle and Centrefielder Harry Walker were inducted into the armed forces and other players on both clubs will probably be drafted shortly. It is true that the Yanks and the Cards have elaborate farm systems and a large number of players on tap but the draft law works all the way down the line and has been making inroads on the farm clubs. Baseball will undoubtedly try to carry on again next summer but it will be a tough problem.

The situation is much the same in N.H.L. hockey where the clubs will operate this season with young material. The veteran Jim Fitzgerald of the Telegram sees the outlook thusly: "Toronto hockey Leafs have been duly shipped and have as duly arrived at St. Catharines. The parting message left on this desk reads: "The kids look promising," is something that will develop in due time, whether that promise will be fulfilled on the ice and in actual competition. The bulk of the Maple Leafs and every other N.H.L. club this year come up from junior and even midget amateur ranks. Maybe that will be something like a blessing in disguise and return the game at least in some degree to the old status of hockey down the length and breadth of the ice, rather than confining it to the restricted areas in the immediate vicinity of the goals. These are times of war and the best the public can hope for must come from these young lads with a sprinkling of oldtimers. In short, hockey fans must be as considerate as the times demand. The clubs will be giving them the best material they can lay hands on, the lads certainly will do all they know, and with the teams all in the same class, it should work out all right. Nevertheless and notwithstanding, somebody should see to it that boys of school age should be obliged to continue their educations, with the playing of hockey as a side, not a main, issue."

Nice Going, Oshawa

Oshawa had a flourishing six-club minor baseball league operating this season and it wound up its campaign Saturday when the Victors after being beaten Saturday in the first game of the playoff finals took the title by winning a double-header Monday. As a result of the Oshawa experiment some 75 Oshawa kids have had a chance to learn to play baseball during the past summer and the results cannot fail to be beneficial. The games were interesting and some promising talent was uncovered. It was a big step in the right direction. Says Soup Campbell in a farewell send-off to the loop: "So it's all over now but the shouting and the cheering, oh yes, and perhaps the Association officials will be able to arrange a banquet when it comes time to present the championship crests to the boys. It's been a great season and it would end up in a fitting climax. A double-header of 2-1 and 9-8 scores to decide a championship is positive proof that baseball is back on its feet in this city. The men who organized the Oshawa Minor Baseball Association can take a modest bow, they have done a swell job. League umpires and official scorer have been paid every game and there has been very few slip-ups. There have been the usual odd regrettable incident which was either an honest mistake or the unavoidable result of circumstances but all-in-all, it was a well-operated 6-team league and a real beginning towards putting baseball back in the limelight in this city."

Word from Frank Tunney, wrestling promoter, today is that Katan's feat in battling Earl McCready to a draw here this week has earned the Palermo Panther another crack at Gentleman Jack Clayborne and that the two rivals who have been feuding since midsummer have been booked for the main bout for next Tuesday's show with the time limit extended from the usual hour to ninety minutes. The additional time should give the battlers a chance to finally settle their argument. Clayborne looks upon the match as a stepping-stone toward an opportunity to meet Champion Whipper Watson for the British Empire title and Katan will find the colored star tougher than ever to beat.

Vera Baker Wins Championship At School Meet

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 14. — (ENS).— There was keen competition in the annual sports day competition held at Campbellford High School Wednesday and this was particularly true among the girls of the school since the male enrollment is down as a result of the war and the fact that with many working after school hours less time was available for such activities.

The biggest surprise of the day came with the naming of a new senior girls' champion for Esther Meiklejohn had dominated this roll for the preceding two years and had she been successful again she would have retained permanent possession of the cup. Miss Meiklejohn worked hard to retain her top position but was bested in half a dozen competitions by Vera Baker, who stepped up from the junior championship of last year to outpoint her on the day. Esther finished the competitions tied for second place with Irene Wood, both girls collecting a total of 15 points.

The senior champion of the day was Jack Connor, who collected 4 firsts, 2 seconds and 1 third, while Doug Burgiss became the new intermediate champion with 3 firsts, 2 seconds and 5 thirds. Grant Wallace, a newcomer, picked up a total of 26 points during the day and carried off the junior boys' trophy. The junior girls' cup went to Jean Wood. Detroit Wings Start Practise

DETROIT, Oct. 14—It's a four-ring hockey circus Jack Adams and Bun Cook are supervising at Olympia these days as they prepare four teams for the approaching National and American League season.

Adams is bossing two workouts a day for the combined squad of the Detroit Red Wings and Indianapolis Capitols. At the same time he is searching for a manager for the Capitols, the Detroit farm club left leaderless by the resignation of Herbie Lewis.

"Good As Any of 'Em"

Cook, newly signed by Owner Al Sutphin of Cleveland to replace his brother Bill, now general manager of the Barons, follows on the ice with a squad composed of the Barons, Pittsburgh Hornets and some unattached players, mostly former Washington players, who are league property now the club has folded.

Larry Aurie, the former Red Wing, who managed the Pittsburgh Club for five years, has not appeared at practice. Now employed as a probation officer by the juvenile court, he says he is still talking terms with Jim Balmer and John Harris, Pittsburgh general manager and owner, respectively.

The world champion Red Wings look "as good as any of 'em," according to Adams, with nine players who saw action last year, two more on the way and 25 prospects in camp.

Adams has his best forward line of Syd Howe, Carl Liscombe and Modere Bruneteau, his new captain, intact. He has Forwards Adam Brown, Joe Carveth and Bill Jennings, who has pinch-hit for the club in the past. On defense he has Cully Simon and Harold Jackson from last season's cup squad. Jimmy Franks, the former Indianapolis goalie who filled in part of the season for the Rangers, has first call on the job vacated by Johnny Mowers.

Wolves And Sharks Play Tie Game

In a game jammed full of action the Sharks tied the Wolves in a St. Peter's High School rugby battle, by a score of 16-16. This is the first game of the series to be tied.

Each team opened up the play with accurate combinations that harassed one another but after ten minutes of play the Sharks opened the scoring. Not letting this get them down the Wolves received the ball from the kick-off with McIsaac carrying the oval for a nice gain of about forty yards. Both teams scored twice again with LaPlante and Lynch kicking the singles.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Facing a manpower crisis of its own, major league baseball let it be known last night at New York that the two big loops would operate in 1944 even if it meant cutting the club squads to 18 players each, in which case less than 300 balltossers would be required.

Baseball leaders were agreed that the one serious threat to the future of the sport was the shortage of high-calibre players and it was predicted there would not be enough men for all the minor leagues next year by the time the major clubs got through with their ivory hunt. Big league baseball expected to lose many of its stalwarts to the armed forces before the call goes out for spring training but the magnates were satisfied about one thing about which there was some question 12 months ago, namely, that the fans want baseball. They feel, definitely, that the reaction of the public to baseball in wartime is favorable. In ball circles, too, there is an optimism regarding the general war situation —a change for the better, particularly in Europe, before another season rolls around.

The St. Louis Cardinals had only two regulars left for next season yesterday after two more players had passed their final physical test and were inducted into the army. They were Pitcher Al Brazle and Outfielder Harry Walker. Both are married.

Director J. E., owned by Mrs. Ella K. Bryson of Maryland, led from the start to win yesterday's Richard Johnson Stakes at Pimlico, defeating Mrs. H. J. Mohr's Royal Prince by more than a length. The winner returned $5.80 for $2 at the mutuels.

Hockey Starts

Cleveland plays at Pittsburgh Wednesday, October 27, to open the American Hockey League season but the loop has been cut to six clubs from the all-time high of 10 teams which figured in the race three seasons ago. Buffalo plays at Indianapolis Oct. 28 while Providence makes its bow at Hershey Oct. 30.

Through President W. H. Jake Gaudaur Hurt.

After losing five straight games in the O.R.F.U., there was more bad news for the Ottawa Combines at last night's practice in the announcement Jake Gaudaur, husky lineman, had injured his shoulder and would enter an Ottawa hospital to-day. The former Argonaut may be out for the season.

The Northern Ontario Baseball championship series stood squared at one game apiece last night after Kirkland Lake All-Stars drubbed Copper Cliff Redmen 6-1 on Art Hillman's five-hit hurling.

Mel Hill of Saskatoon, and Walter Pratt, who has been working part -time on a railway in Western Canada, have both been rejected for the Canadian Army, acording to an announcement last night by Coach Hap Day of the Toronto Leafs at the St. Catharines Training Camp. Both are on their way to join the N.H.L. team.

Shepperton Colt Collects $3,326

TORONTO, Oct. 14—(CP)—The cheers of the racing world still sounded today for Fred Schelke's Shepperton, the golden-coated colt whom many horsemen rank among Canada's all-time turf greats.

In his final appearance of the 1943 season, Shepperton added new lustre to an already glossy record yesterday by charging to the finish line of the mile and 1/16th Canadian Championship at Dufferin Park a length ahead of W. E. MacDonald's Tulachmore. Nat Northwood's Teeworth was third and Braeside Stable's Western Prince fourth.

It was Shepperton's second straight victory in the $3,000-added weight-for-age classic, his ninth in 14 starts this season and his 15th in 31 starts over two years of racing competition. As a repeat winner of the Championship Shepperton earned an additional $1,500 which boosted his pay cheque for the race to $3326 and his lifetime earnings to $23,100.

The four-year-old son of Sun Craig-Chatwater which Schelke bred on his Gormley, Ont., farm has been unplaced only four times in his entire racing career.

Northenders Had Lead Three Times

After taking the lead three times throughout the period, Queen Alexander failed to hold the advantage against the fast - moving Prince of Wales aggregation that had to come from behind to even the count 3-3 in a Public School Soccer League game, on the King Edward Park on Wednesday afternoon. Dracup for the Northenders being the most prolific scorer with two and W. Jary got the other. Dyer, Foster and Miller for the Westenders. This puts Queen Alexander in the running for the play-offs.

First Half

Both elevens opened up at terrific pace with the Queen Alexandra boys combination working to perfection that upset the Prince of Wales attack. Crawford, at left full back, always nipping the forward in the act of shooting. He kept plying the ball up-field that eventually left Walter Jary in possession who rattled a hard drive on goal. The custodian saved the ball but let the sphere roll over the goal line. Within the next few minutes, Foster got the equaliser on an individual effort. Simmonds broke up a dangerous raid near his goal and carried the play to the other end where Dracup caught the defence off guard as he picked the inside of the upright. At half time, the Queen Alexandra boys had the lead.

Second Half

On resuming, Prince of Wales bombarded the Northenders' goal from every angle. Powers in goal, being outstanding with his smart saves. After three minutes of the play Dyer connected with a fast shot that beat the goalie. Exchanges continued even with the half back division forcing the play into the shooting zone but Dracup caught the Prince of Wales full backs napping as he made a snap drive inside the upright. With a goal lead again they tried to consolidate their margin through defensive tactics. Crawford and Jewell battled against an aggressive forward line that was full of fight and were rewarded when Miller got the equaliser after Powers had about saved the drive. At full time: Prince of Wales 3, and Queen Alexandra 3.

Goal scorers: Queen Alex, G. Dracup 2, W. Jary; Prince of Wales: Foster, Dyer and Miller.

Queen Alexandra: K. Powers, goal; C. Jewell and D. Crawford, full backs; D. Richardson, T. Morin and R. Morgan, half backs; C. Wiechorek, J. Simmonds, G. Dracup, J. Nichols, and W. Jary; forwards. Subs: H. Johnston, D. Welsh, J. Syvertsen.

Prince of Wales: T. Kay, goal; F. McMullen and D. Burrows, full backs; R. Kidd, R. Miller and N. Cullen, half backs; G. Foster, G. Kimberley, D. Dyer, R. Storey and J. Storey, forwards; Subs: T. Chambers, N. Nisbett, L. Hanes, S. Brown.

Salmonbellies Win 17-9 Over Combines

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Oct. 14—(CP)—New Westminster Salmonbellies took a 2-to-1 lead in the best-of-five Mann Cup final for Canada's senior lacrosse title last night by defeating the defending champion Mimico-Brampton Combines, 17-9, in the third game of the series. Next game will be played Friday night.

First Period

Mimico dominated play in the early minutes and went into a 3-goal lead on goals by Ken Dixon, Bill Isaacs and Bill Brunskill.

After Billy Wilkes got the first Salmonbelly goal at 10:22 on a penalty shot, the British Columbia champions perked up. Ed Downie added another for the Fishermen at 13:15 to end the scoring, with Combines leading 3-2.

Second Period

Forty-five second after the start of the second quarter Bert Bryant counted for New Westminster to tie the score. Half a minute later Bill Brunskill put Mimico ahead again. Then Salmonbellies scored three without a reply, Downie, Ross and Ferguson doing the firing.

Scoop Hayes put Mimico back in the picture, but, while George Masters was in the penalty box, Bryant and Ferguson put Salmonbellies into an 8-5 lead. Ken Dixon counted for Mimico on a penalty shot after being tripped, and Masters added another for Combines. Harry Carter completed the second quarter scoring as he gave New Westminster a 9-7 lead.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 14—(CP)—Luckily for the outfit that sponsored the world series broadcasts, it doesn't sponsor the National Hockey League broadcasts from Toronto. From a preview of the Toronto Maple Leaf rookies on show at the annual luncheon Tuesday, we'd estimate not one in five has reached the shaving age.

At least nine of the rookie players at the luncheon were in midget or schools hockey last season. The others were all in their teens except Red Carr, trying to make the jump from Nanaimo, B.C., Ross Knowles, 33-year-old Fort William veteran, and Goalie Benny Brant... Coach Happy Day settled the Chicago-Toronto squabble over Knowles for this season at least. Day was a mite annoyed last week when, after providing Knowles with transportation to Toronto he learned the Black Hawks had stepped in to obtain an official lease on Knowles' service. Day is all smiles again though. He announced Hawks have agreed to let Leafs have the ageing defenceman for this season... When Day discovered Turk Broda was definitely enlisting, he cast about frantically for a goal replacement. He remembered Benny Grant's prowess in the minors and promptly put through a telephone call to Benny at Owen Sound, Ont.

Making the oblique approach, Day opened cautiously:

"I need a goalkeeper, Benny." Grant was fast on the uptake and blunt on the reply. "No," he contradicted. "You did need a goalkeeper."

Hunters Note!

What to do with the carcass? A sign on a Vancouver eating spot reads: "Bearburger. Genuine Bear Meat—Fresh From our B.C. Wilderness—15 Cents While They Last."

No, No, Not That

Newspaper printers and hockey broadcasters all over the country are shuddering and keeping their fingers crossed. A Port Arthur defenceman named Hyrmnak is trying out with Art Ross' Boston Bruins.

That Bitter Pill:

In a Vancouver golf tournament Johnny Davidson sank his tee shot for an ace on the 150-yard 16th hole at the Marine drive course. On the 17th Johnny put three balls out of bounds and wound up with a 9.

Schriner In West

CALGARY — (CP).— The management of the Calgary Buffaloes, 1942-43 Intermediate hockey champions of Western Canada, announced last night that Dave (Sweeney) Schriner, former Toronto Maple Leafs National League star, would play with them this season. Buffaloes also signed Irving Frew, formerly of Montreal Canadiens. Schriner announced some time ago he would not leave his position here.

Pratt, Mel Hill To Rejoin Toronto Leafs

By VERN DeGEER.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 14.—Best bet on the morning line as National Hockey League clubs prepare to go to the post in the 1943-44 puck derby is that Toronto Maple Leafs will offer a front line of Lorne Carr, Mel Hill and Rob Davidson. Coach Hap Day chased his squad of 29 through two workouts yesterday that revealed little more than that youth was willing and age was being cute and cagey. The Toronto hockey skipper had little to offer in the way of comment after the two workouts. But telephone business was brisk in his hotel suite.

What Day said that was most important was that Mel (Sudden Death) Hill had been given his army rejection papers because of bad eyesight. Hill planned to leave his Saskatoon home Thursday, reporting here Monday morning. Day's second major communique had to do with Babe Pratt, the fugitive from New York Rangers and an outstanding defenceman with the Leafs last winter, when and if the spirit moved him.

Day was advised early Tuesday evening that Pratt was a physical rejectee by the Canadian Army and was on his way to Toronto on a transfer from his part-time railroad position in Western Canada.

Reviewing the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey set-up after the double practice session yesterday Coach Day suggested a tenative roster array as follows:

Goal, Benny Grant; defensemen, Bucko McDonald, Elwin Morris, George Bootham, Ross Knowles, Babe Pratt, Ross Johnstone; forward lines, Lorne Carr, Bob Davidson and Mel Hill; Jackie Hamilton, Jackie McLean and Red Carr; Don Webster, Gus Bodnar and Jack Ingoldsby.

"Anything can happen," qualified Hap in outlining his prospective lineup after the first day's drill. "We have a lot of young lads to deal with, and some may come along in a manner we haven't dreamed of. That's something nobody knows. The field is wide open and there's no hammerlock on positions as far as I am concerned. What I'm giving you is my preliminary review of a prospective Toronto club. But we have two weeks to go. Any one of a dozen lads I can think of can easily step into the picture."

For Outstanding Prospects

Day's early review suggested only four of the so-called amateur group as outstanding prospects to make the Leaf family, namely, Ross Johnstone of last year's Oshawa Generals; Gus Bodnar, a centre from Port Arthur; Red Carr, from Nanaimo, and Elwin Morris.

"I don't want to go out on the limb," said Day, "as saying we won't come up with some material from the rookie ranks. Nobody can decide that at the moment. All I'm giving you is an honest review of talent on the basis of records, experience and early indications. The picture may be changed over night."

"You must remember," Day added, "that we're dealing with the most unusual situation in the history of pro hockey. The N.H.L. has lost a great number of its outstanding players. My aim, and the aim of every other N.H.L. coach, I imagine, is to present the best team possible under existing conditions. I'm satisfied we can do it. But how many youngsters are going to help us I don't know. Neither does anybody else."

Virginia Bruce, who retired when her husband died, will return to the screen in "International Zone," George Sanders carrying the main role. She has been busy enough running her ranch and taking care of the children. Her name has been linked romantically with that of Clark Gable, now in the USA Air Corps. . . It's surprising that her studio hasn't decided to keep Sara Allgood, who will be remembered as the mother in "How Green Was My Valley," on the job. Her last picture for that company will be "The Lodger." The actress expected her option to be renewed and arranged a party to celebrate. She gave the party anyway. . . . Seven years after her American film debut she was worth $5,000,000 and shortly after she had lost it all. Her current earnings go to pay off creditors. Her name had been linked with Hitler's but Pola sued the French paper which started that story and won judgment. . . Jack Benny, when he returned from an overseas entertainment tour, said: 'In Iran, according to the current films, Shirley Temple hasn't been born yet, and Francis X. Canadian Athletes Hold Meet During Lull In Fighting

Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Oct. 14 — (CP). —A few days after a Southern Italian town was captured by the Canadians the troops took time off from fighting to treat Italians and fighting men to a sports competition, running off the finals in a modern Fascist athletic grounds on the outskirts of the town.

The events were held in front of a streamlined concrete stadium hung with British flags and packed with Canadians in tropical uniform and some of their senior officers. The day was sunny, and the air cool and many were reminded of crisp football weather prevailing back home.

Italian townfolk hung over a wall at the edge of a high road curving above the hillside sports park and gaped at kilted pipe band marching with precise steps before the applauding soldiers.

Makeshift Trophy

Soldiers from a Western Infantry formation captured the group championship and a lieutenant colonel from Vancouver was presented with a cup by the acting Canadian commander who handed prizes of cigarets and special fibre championship discs to individual winners.

He said the discs were tokens to be worn temporarly until special medals made in England were available. The cup was made of brass from an Italian shell case and was set on a wooden base cut from the trail of an Italian gun. Its handles were copperoil lines from a German self propelled gun.

Though the meet was held within a comparatively short distance of the front line there was no enemy interference. Anti-aircraft crews were stationed around the stadium ready for any enemy aircraft.

The athletes and uniformed spectators—and the Italians peering over the wall—enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The troops in the stands were brought to their feet by close contests in the jumps, dashes, tugs-of-war and a difficult obstacle race.

Campbellford Man

The most exciting finish of the meet was provided by the mile race won in five minutes and six seconds by Bmdr. Leslie Brooks of Montreal, who beat Pte. B. J. Martin of Grand Falls, N.B., by inches, with Cpl. D. R. Cameron of Sudbury, Ont., just behind.

Cameron won the 880 yards in 2:14 with Brooks following him. In the 220, Pte. J. Nicol of Vancouver was second, and Clarkson third. Nicol, since reported killed in action, won in 55:9 seconds, and was followed by Sgt. R. J. Shaw of of Toronto and Pte. R. E. Hay of Campbellford, Ont. The mile relay winners were Sgts. R. T. Shaw of Toronto, F. X. Sexton, of St. Catharines, Ont., Ptes. J. Martin, Nanaimo, B.C., and R. E. Hay.

Cpl. J. A. Fox of Regina, Sask., leaped five feet four inches to win the high jump. Ptes. W. V. Mischook, Montreal, and R. J. A. Mills, Kingston, Ont, were second and third, respectively.

Won by Stirling Man.

The standing broad jump was won by Pte. C. E. Radcliffe, Stirling, Ont., with nine feet five inches Sigmn. Albert Simon, of Ridgeway, Ont., was second.

County Breeders Top List At Orono Show

Not only did they win the coveted County Herd Competition, the feature event of the day, in which six counties participated, but they also headed all group classes and took the Senior and Grand and Junior Championships in the female classes and the Reserve Junior Championship in the bull classes.

Stewart Nelson, Keene, showed both female champions, taking the Senior and Grand honors on his outstanding three-year-old heifer, Keendale Lodge Pietje Lass, and the Junior award on his first prize Senior Yearling, Keendale Lodge Polly Pietje. He also showed the third prize four-year-old cow, the first prize Senior Get-of-Sire and the first prize Progeny of Dam.

J. T. Tully, Peterborough, took first prize on the bull calf, Otonabee Supreme Colanthus, who was made Reserve Junior Champion. He also showed jointly with N. W. McConkey, Peterborough, the first prize Junior Get-of-Sire. Mr. McConkey also had the second prize three-year-old Heifer. The third prize Senior Yearling Heifer and the fifth prize two-year-old heifer was shown by Stanley Wood, Peterborough.

Altogether 118 head were shown in the various classes by 34 exhibitors. This was the round-up show of the year for breeders in the counties of Durham, Northumberland, Victoria, Ontario, and Peterborough, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, where prize-winners at local Black and White Days competed for regional honours.

Reserve Senior and Grand Champion was the outstanding Aged Cow, Pabst Posch Francy Burke, owned by Earl Burnside of Madoc. Inka Supreme Posch, the winning Aged Bull for J. C. Nelson of Campbellford, made a stand out Senior and Grand Champion with the Reserve Grand honors falling to the Junior Champion, Glenafton Pilot, shown by John Cruickshank, Hampton. The judge was J. Durno Innes, Woodstock.

Millbrook W.I. Members To Bring Gifts

MILLBROOK, Oct. 14 (ENS) — Mrs. T. G. Harkness opened her home, Union street, for the October meeting of the Women's Institute, the president, Mrs. D. Olan, taking the chair, and the roll being answered with: "Something I have to be thankful for."

For the November meeting, the roll will be replied to with a parcel for the layette the branch is preparing for the Red Cross. To avoid duplication, since the local churches are sending Christmas parcels to the boys overseas, and the Red Cross has a permanent fund for this purpose supported by voluntary givings, the Institute will defer sending parcels until Easter.

Correspondence read by the secretary, Mrs. Henry Blakely, including a letter regarding the coaching class to be held in Millbrook on October 18, in conjunction with the Junior Girls' Club and their project: "Good Grooming"; and also a letter from radio artists who were to have provided the program for a social evening but are unable to come owing to transportation difficulties.

Delegates appointed to attend the Provincial W.I. convention in Toronto on November 10, 11 and 12, are Mrs. Olan and Mrs. Blakely. Mrs. D. L. Lunn, convener of the standing committee on health, took charge of the program and provided many important health hints, and other information relative to proper sanitation, care for individual, community and national health, and some first aid instruction.

National Film Board Pictures Shown Everywhere

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Oct. 14 — (CP). —A distinguished visitor to Canada called at the National Film Board offices recently and charmed his hosts with the comment: "Canada, Canada, we read, hear and see so much about Canada it's hard to realize there are no more than 11,500,000 Canadians."

That sort of remark cheers the enthusiasts who work to tell the world of Canada through pictures.

The 451 employees of the Board have two main jibs: They keep Canadians informed through motion and still pictures; and they tell the outside world—as interestingly as possible—about Canada.

Board officials say there is no point in making moving pictures about rationing, war industry, the training of the forces, Victory Loans and all the associated matters of interest to Canadians unless they can be distributed, so an extensive distribution system has been established.

One branch has developed something new in the way of public service, comparable to the mail carrier who let neither hail nor storm prevent the mail getting through. It is the rural circuits branch, given the task of seeing that rural districts have an opportunity to see movies.

Improvise Halls

Films are presented in town halls, church basements — anywhere a projection unit can be set up. Every film has a purpose. One now being shown demonstrates how farmers can make their farm equipment last longer.

The projectionists on the rural circuits make their dates far ahead and keeping those dates, especially in winter, often tries their ingenuity and their physique. But more than 300,000 persons in the rural areas see the films every month.

Then there are the industrial circuits. Workers in a silk factory go about their work with new enthusiasm after they have seen a movie of Canadian paratroopers being trained at Fort Benning, Ga, and have watched the silken folds of the parachute emerge as the trooper jumps.

Such pictures have been shown in hundreds of factories, under an arrangement by which management and labor agree to about 25 minutes being set aside during one day.

Attendance during August was 253,884.

Another outlet for Film Board productions is provided by private and voluntary projectionists who apply for films to show to groups like service clubs.

In addition, Film Board productions appear in the standard theatres across Canada.

George Foster Suffers Shrapnel Wound

CAVAN, Oct. 14 — (ENS). — George B. Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Foster of Fleetwood, Lancashire, England, who worked at Cavan before enlisting, is reported to be in a hospital in Sicily suffering from a shrapnel wound.

After coming to Canada at 15 years of age, George worked for Ira Gillis for nine years. When war was declared, he was called for guard duty at Millbrook Armouries, and was later transferred to Trenton where he volunteered for active service. After a short time at Camp Borden he went overseas in August, 1940.

Foster saw no active service there until he transferred a year ago to the Commandos, and he went to Sicily in July of this year. He recently wrote to friends mentioning that he was wounded, and Sergt. R. Theobald, who has reached Sicily, wrote that he was still confined to hospital.

Besides his parents in England, who have suffered from the blitz, he has two sisters, and also three brothers in the forces. One is in the Navy, one is stationed in England, and the other is a prisoner of war in Italy. Before the war, George was active in the Reserve Militia.

EARLY CANADIAN QUILTING BEE
"Patchwork" Quilts, they were called, but there was nothing patchy about the solid comfort they imparted on cold winter nights! In Canada's early days, when the term "home-made" denoted a special quality, quilting bees were frequent neighborhood affairs.

FOOD canners in the industry's early days struggled to preserve the choicest items of their day by the application of heat at the temperature of boiling water—212° Fahrenheit.

Heat is still the only preservative used in canning. But since Libby's was established 75 years ago (31 years manufacturing in Canada), the ingenuity of science has stepped up the available temperature through steam pressure—thus opening the way to provide you with an infinite variety of new and better foods.

Japan Declares Philippines Independent

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—Japan proclaimed the "independence" of the Philippines today in a series of propaganda broadcasts and announced the inauguration of Jose P. Laurel as first president of a puppet "republican government" set up under the thumb of Japanese armed forces.

The United States office of war information quoted the Tokyo radio as saying that Laurel took the oath of office in Manila at 9:40 a.m. (8:40 p.m. EDT) Wednesday) and 10 minutes later issued "the declaration of independence of the Philippine Republic."

Laurel, according to the Tokyo broadcast, hailed Japan as "the great power of East Asia" who was granting the Filipinos their freedom "as an example of justice in the history of mankind."

"The empire of Japan, which in this great war has the mission to liberate the oppressed races," Laurel's proclamation said, "has banished occidental domination from the Philippines and has collaborated with all the means at her disposal in the formation of the independent Philippine nation. We have now attained the glory of seeing the honor of the national race restored.

Under No Thumb

"Before the world we are now a free and independent people. Henceforth we shall not belong to any foreign power...."

Laurel said that one of his objectives would be to "constitute the nation as an integral state of the East Asia co-prosperity sphere and in this way contribute to the creation of a new order in the world."

The Filipinos are the second people to be accorded their "freedom" by Tokyo while still remaining to all intents and purposes completely dominated by Japan. Burma previously was similarly "freed."

The obvious propaganda purpose behind the Japanese move in the Philippines was indicated by a Tokyo broadcast, reported by the O.W.I., which said Japan's "altruistic and generous act" should prove a "great stimulus for India's struggle." Tokyo propagandists have promised independence to India.

THIS IS PETERBOROUGH SAFETY WEEK!

SAFETY—

IN THE FACTORY SCHOOL AND HOME

People most frequently suffer accidents when they are careless. The old saying "familiarity breeds contempt" is applicable to machines and automobiles. When we are very familiar with a machine or an automobile we are apt to become careless when working with it or driving it. Care should be exercised at all times no matter how well we know how to operate them. By doing this we are practicing safety.

Caution should be observed at all times when at work, in the home, or at play. Many accidents are caused by thoughtlessness and could have easily been avoided if the person were safety conscious. It is everyone's job to watch themselves and others when they see actions which could lead to serious accidents.

You can never go wrong if you always "play safe". If you do not know how a machine operates or how some mechanism functions, make it your job to find out first before you risk using it. In the factories always use safety equipment where necessary. Also teach children to play safely—and observe traffic rules and regulations.

Help To Keep Peterborough Accident-Free This Week— And Every Week—

This too is an important war job. The job of preventing accidents which would keep men and women from doing important war jobs. To keep up production everyone must be on the job all the time. We too, must reduce preventable accidents on the streets and in the homes. Citizens of Peterborough, let us all get behind this campaign and make a real job of practicing and teaching "Safety."

ALL CLEAR.

Rumors were rife in Ottawa Wednesday night when an All-Clear signal, mistaken for an air-raid Alert by most of the population including a good many air-raid wardens, was touched off by a short circuit. The best one had it that the Parliament Buildings had been blown up by saboteurs. As soon as the alarm sounded homes and buildings began blacking out, and motor traffic on the streets was ordered by police to halt and turn out lights. After some minutes of uncertainty and confusion, with A.R.P. headquarters and the Bell Telephone Company being bombarded with hundreds of calls, the truth of the matter was established and Ottawa's anxious citizens began to relax.

Reports Show Rainfall Badly Needed

Recurring observations in this week's report from the Ontario Department of Agriculture include the following items: Rain is needed; most of the potatoes are dug; early apples are picked; silo-filling is all but completed. But, Oxford says: "It is doubtful whether more than 25 or 30 per cent of the silos will be filled," and that is a discordant note.

Neighbors in Durham say: "Another excellent week for silo-filling, buckwheat harvesting, and apple-picking. Most fields of buckwheat are yielding very satisfactorily. The acreage of fall wheat has increased considerably."

Hastings: "The county is very dry, making it difficult to plow. Pastures are dry and the flow of milk is declining rapidly. MacIntosh Reds are all picked; yields of red clover are disappointing.

There is some inquiry for breeding sheep in the Muskoka district, and the potato crop is heavier than last year.

Prince Edward says most of the tomato growers harvested a big crop; Victoria dairymen are feeding their cows, a reminder of the end of the long season of pasturage which began when the cattle were turned out of the barns when winter finally vanished and the grass as ready.

Blight Losses Few.

Threshing operations are about wound up in Frontenac, with the exception of buckwheat. Yields of potatoes are remarkably good, with blight losses very light from present indications. Seed from second cutting of alfalfa will average two bushels to the acre

Demand for milk cows and dairy heifers continues keen in Grenville, where the potato quality is high and yield satisfactory.

Young pigs are described as a drug on the market in Lanark and many sows are being sold. "There will be a surplus of hay and grain, but most farmers will have to buy grain."

In the western section Lincoln says young pigs are being offered for sale at $3 and $4 each, but are being picked up rapidly by feeders who have facilities for them.

Potatoes are estimated at about 60 per cent of the normal crop in Oxford. Turnips and part of the mangel crop are all that remain in Wellington County fields.

Police Advocate Driving School

The inaugural meeting of the "Transportation Accident Prevention Group" was held on Wednesday at the Kawartha Golf Club. There were 55 present, representing 9 different firms, including representatives from the City Board of Works.

Tom McCabe occupied the chair and is the permanent chairman of this group, which promises to be active in preventing traffic accidents within the city as well as the highways. Following the dinner a round table discussion was held, the subject being "Transportation Accidents." P.C. Archie Menzies of the Peterborough Police gave the audience some very important items in which they could assist in reducing accidents. One suggestion was that every motor vehicle driver should be subjected to a re-examination at least every three years. He definitely stressed that motor vehicle driving hazards should be taught in the schools. His suggestion to this group was that they organize a school where safe driving methods would be taught at the Transportation Accident Prevention Group.

W. Kercher, director of safety for all C.G.E. plants, and honorary treasurer of the I.A.P.A., made a few brief remarks and quoted several highway accidents, and in his opinion the commercial driver was much more courteous on the road than the individual.

James Dutton, manager of Wonder Bakeries, Ltd., in his remarks said that there are distinctive hand signals for motor drivers to use, but they were not used in a lot of cases correctly, but that it is far better for a driver to use some type of hand signal as the person behind knew than the driver was about to stop or turn and this would serve as a precaution.

The executive members elected at this meeting are: Norman Whipp, secretary; E. A. Guppy, W. Darrick, R. Williamson, W. J. Cribbes, J. Gilders. This executive will be responsible for the activities of this accident prevention group.

Mr. Cranfield congratulated the group on the attendance, and pointed out that this group, like other accident prevention groups, has a big field in which to work in order to cut down accidents and avoid human suffering.

Fred H. W. Brooks, division secretary, gave a few accident figures, and stressed the necessity of vigilance at all times on the part of motor and horse-drawn vehicles.

Peterboro Goods Used In Italy By City Boys

Signalman J. R. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. White, Homewood avenue, is constantly reminded of "the old home town" in the products of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing, Limited, which he is now using every day in Italy.

During the campaign in Sicily, Sgm. White wrote to Hugh Campbell of Outboard Marine that a battery charger set up on a truck for the signal corps bore the name "Johnson" and the made-in-Peterborough sign of the local company. His letter said the Johnson motor was doing an excellent job, and the corps was well supplied with them.

Signalman White has been with the famous British 8th Army in the Mediterranean campaign. A few days ago his father, Harry White, executive with Outboard Marine, received a cablegram which was put on the wire somewhere in Italy.

Peterborough people have probably surmised that a huge number of Johnson motors have been scattered about the world in the service of the Allied forces. Some day the local plant will be permitted to tell the story of their wartime production which switched from the company's peacetime job with a swift change-over at the outbreak of hostilities, probably prior to that date.

R.C.A.F. Enlists 8 For Air Crew

Eight Peterborough and district men were sworn in as air crew during the two days that the R.C.A.F. Mobile Recruiting unit has been at the Y.M.C.A.

The recruits are: R. A. Armstrong, 623 Armour Road; L. E. Dewar, 801 Water street; E. G. Godin, Campbellford; S. A. McLaren, 299 Louis street; E. A. Beauclerc, 303 Frederick street; A. J. Shadgett, 350 Aylmer street; K. R. Miller, 647 Park street; and G. L. Beatty, Peterborough.

This is a decided drop from the 25 of a month ago, but Flt. Lieut. T. Pryde explained that at the present time the R.C.A.F. is not accepting men for ground crew, because of the great need in the air crew division. A number of girls came to make enquiries and take their tests and they will be sworn in sometime in Toronto.

Service Auxiliaries Are Sending Christmas Parcels Overseas

Members of the armed services overseas will receive this year, as in other war years, Christmas parcels packed and sent by members of the active service auxiliaries of the Army, Navy and the Air Force. Members of the local auxiliaries are busy now buying articles and packing boxes for the post office has warned that all parcels for overseas must be mailed by November 1, in order to be sure that they will reach their destination by Christmas. Parcels for the Army and Air Force are all packed by the members and contain a uniform number of articles. Sailor's ditty bags, though many are packed by the Naval Auxiliary, are frequently filled by private individuals who exercise imagination and ingenuity to make the Christmas box something to be remembered.

Parcels for all three services will all contain necessary toilet articles not issued to the men, such as towel, face-cloth, soap, toothbrush, tooth powder, razor blades and shaving soap. All these articles are necessary and hard to get in many places. The Air Force and Army are sending the soap in a metal container, and also add two other small necessities, shoe-laces and stationery and pencils.

The serviceman's desire for variety in his food is remembered and all parcels contain chocolate bars except those being sent to the hot countries where candy might melt before the parcel reached its destination. The army boxes will also contain two packages of chocolate drink, a package of Lipton's chicken-noodle soup (dehydrated), half a pound of Christmas cake, a large tin of Oxo and life-savers. Air Force men from Peterborough will receive one pound of the Christmas cake, a variety of candies. The Naval Auxiliary, in addition to the candy, includes half a pound of cheese and a small package of crackers.

Army and navy parcels both containing cigarettes and the navy adds needles, cotton thread and darning wool and a package of bandaids. The Air Force auxiliary is sending shaving talcum and all parcels contain chewing gum. Air Force men will find their gifts individually wrapped inside the parcels and waxed maple leaves scattered on top of the box to remind them of home. A serviceman's amusements are not forgotten and playing cards appear in all navy parcels, with the addition in many cases of miniature checkers, or of dominoes.

Farmers Hold One Of Best Plowing Matches

"Just one of the best plowing matches we ever had," was the gratified comment of Art McIntyre in summing up his impressions of the annual county competition which was held yesterday on the farm of Henry Batten.

Twice as many entries as last year, about the same crowd which was entirely satisfactory, splendid weather, and altogether a good match, were details of the McIntyre summary of the day.

"We had to stake off more lots than we had planned," he added, "and that gives you an idea of how the plowmen turned out. There were a lot more of them than we expected. Everything was plowed up and left in good shape, and I think we were all happy in carrying on this year although some felt we might as well drop it on account of the war. The turnout of contestants and spectators was most encouraging."

Results were as follows:

Tractors, two furrow plows:—1 William Robson, North Monaghan; 2 Jack Preston, North Monaghan; 3 Lorne Reynolds, Smith; 4 Walter Orde, Otonabee; 5 Bruce Clark, Smith; 6 Richard Batten, North Monaghan.

Tractors, open class, three furrows:—1 Vern Campbell, Douro; 2 Henry Sharpe, Smith; 3 Manson Cathcart Springville.

Sod, open class, jointer plows:—1 William Hooton, Cavan; 2 Richard Moher; 3 John Nooton.

Sod, utility, Peterborough county only:—1 William Moher, Douro; 2 H. C. Manley, Otonabee; 3 E. Kelp, North Monaghan.

Sod, Peterborough county only, any plow:—1 Joe Watts, Warsaw.

Sod, boys under 20, residents of five district counties:—1 Wylie Byrnell, 2 Alin Dawson.

Stubble, Peterborough only:— 1 Dennis Driscoll, Otonabee.

Sod, open, two furrow plows, any type plow, three or more horses:—1 Robert Leahy, Douro.

Won Burnham Cup

The J. H. Burnham Cup, awarded to the Peterborough county man who plows the highest scoring land in any class was won by Richard Moher.

The Royal Bank Cup to the boy under 21 years who plows the highest scoring land in any class, won by William Robson.

The special prize to the owner of the best going plow team on the field went to Hugh Stewart.

Alex Huston's special class for business and professional men brought out four competitors and their work was so uniform that each of them gets a first prize ribbon or something like that. The reference to uniformity did not mention the degree of quality or lack of it, or in other words, uniformly good or bad.

At any rate this quartette of performers were: Bruce Sargent, Cliff Curtis, Stewart Hall and J. E. Weir.

The Salada Tea special for the best land in the jointer class, drawn by horses, and plowed by a resident of the county was awarded to R. Moher.

Two demonstrations of implements attracted the crowd's attention during the afternoon. Don McIntyre operated a tiller and Albert Fife showed the folks a buckrake. And G. A. Gillespie called it quite a satisfactory day.

The judge was Clark Young of Milliken, a member of the provincial association's executive.

Toronto Police Check Hazards To Stop Deaths

Constant enforcement of the regulations is the greatest deterrent to traffic accidents, said Edward C. Dunn, Inspector of the Traffic Division of the Toronto Police Department, in a recent report to Mayor Conboy on street accidents.

"When enforcement increases, traffic accidents decrease; and when enforcement is relaxed, traffic accidents increase," Inspector Dunn found in his investigations and from his experiene.

In August 1942 three persons were killed in Toronto street, but in the corresponding month this year fifteen persons were fatally injured, five of whom were children.

Inspector Dunn set enforcement at the head of his recommendations, a policy which applies to municipal policy of supervision in all other countries.

"Another fact which I believe has contributed to traffic accidents, perhaps as much as any other, is that people are not at present "Safety Conscious." They seem more concerned with the making of a livelihood, and other responsibilities brought about by war conditions.

Careless About Rules

I have noted when driving about our city streets that many people, especially elderly people, constantly expose themselves to the dangers of street traffic. They do not observe the ordinary rules of safety. It may be that they are fulfilling household duties which formerly have been carried out by younger people, such as shopping, etc., but it is quite apparent they do not realize the speed of vehicles including street cars, or the distance required to stop.

The tremendous increase in the number of passengers carried this year by the street cars in Toronto indicates that more people are travelling by street car than formerly."

Inspector Dunn pointed out to Mayor Conboy that many mothers in Toronto were working in war plants, leaving their children in the care of elderly people or with those much too young to realize their responsibility.

Police Suggest Safety Hints

The city police department is cooperating in this week's Safety drive by passing out helpful suggestions to motorists, cyclists and pedestrians.

Two officers on duty have a supply of cards and whenever they notice a dangerous practice they hand out a card to the offender, calling his attention to the fact that he has been guilty of a breach of the safety rules. "Our hope is that by bringing it to your attention," reads the card, "you will conscientiously endeavour to observe all traffic rules from now on."

Motorists are warned against parking in prohibited areas, or overtime, or too close to a fire hydrant, or in such a manner as to obstruct traffic or contrary to signs.

To cyclists the police are passing out cards that call attention to such practices as riding two abreast, or on the centre of the street, or with passengers on the handlebars or on the sidewalk or on the wrong side of the street, or between a stationary bus and the curb, or cutting in or out between moving vehicles or failing to stop at a stop sign.

Similarly pedestrians who jay walk are likely to find themselves presented with a police suggestion card.

Woodworkers Name Officers

The inaugural meeting and election of officers of the Peterborough woodworking group was held at the plant of Peterborough Lumber Co. Wednesday evening. Forty-five members were present, representing seven firms. A very pleasant tour and inspection of the plant was made by all guests and they found machines and guards in a very satisfactory condition, after which the guests assembled in the recreation room, where the meeting held discussions and elected officers for th ecoming year.

Thomas Taylor of the Peterborough Canoe Co., was re-installed to the office of chairman and H. H. May of the Canadian General Electric Company, was re-installed a ssecretary. Both gentlemen were the unanimous choice of those present. The pleasant evening was terminated by a very dainty luncheon prepared by the lady employees of this enterprising firm.

John Colby Speaker At Credit Union

A meeting of Credit Union members of this district was held in the United Farmers' Co-operative Hall this week. The chairman of the meeting was Mr. J. Harold Lewis of Smith Township, president of the Farmers' Co-operative Credit Union. The occasion was the annual visit of Mr. John Colby, Field Representative of the Credit Union National Association, whose headquarters are in Madison, Wisconsin.

Mr. Colby was introduced by Mr. A. B. Burrows, president of the W.E.A. (Peterborough) Credit Union. The speaker, Mr. Colby, gave an interesting resume of the history of Credit Union developments from its beginning in 1848 in Belgium, its spread to Germany, Scandinavia and eventually to Canada and the United States in 1900. Today there are over 11,000 Credit Unions in the U.S. and Canada, with one billion dollars in assets and a membership of over five million people.

Mr. Colby defined the objects of Credit Unions as: (1) To combat usury, (2) To promote thrift, (3) To educate people in the handling of personal finances. A Credit Union, formed among people with like or community interests, in a non-profit service for human needs.

"The success of its plan of operation, which is strictly supervised by federal, state and provincial governments, is proved by the fact that over $1,800,000 was loaned by these Credit Unions in the year 1942, with a cash loss of the small sum of $82. In addition all loans are insured against loss by death or disability through the central Credit Union National Association."

Every city and rural-dweller should be vitally interested in Credit Unions, composed of small or large groups of people interested in co-operative efforts to avoid financial strain in cases of emergency, he declared.

The W.E.A. Peterborough Credit Union was the first organization in the city to take advantage of the benefits of the Plan for Hospital Care. A hearty vote of thanks was voted to Mr. John Colby for his address.

Officers Named By Safety Group

A meeting of the Metal Machine Safety Group was held in the Canadian General Electric plant Wednesday evening. After an inspection of the works the group adjourned to the plant cafeteria, where a discussion was held.

The safety group was welcomed by I. F. McRae, and he invited those present to offer criticism of any condition or work method which appeared to be hazardous.

A total of 18 recommendations were made and the chairman, Mr. McDonald, then called for an election of officers.

E. D. Foley, Genelco, Limited, was elected chairman, and H. Baptie of Western Clock Company, vice-chairman, with N. McFadden as secretary.

This group was one of the first to be formed in Peterborough, and is now entering its second year.

Seventy-three were present at the meeting, representing 9 firms in the city.

The large turnout gives promise of a very active group for the coming year.

Children's Work Gives Aid To War Victims

When one comes into direct contact with the zest that the younger folk can bring into play for an object for good, it makes a deep impression of the potential advantage that could be gained to the whole order of civilization by a wise and judicious direction of these boys and girls who will be the men and women of tomorrow.

In the work connected with the raising of funds by the city and district fund to relieve the sufferings of the victims of air raids in Britain, this has been demonstrated time and again, so much so, that one does not need a super vision to determine that the possibilities in this respect are really immense.

About two weeks ago, four young children brought in a donation for the fund which in the eyes of a world now accustomed to huge figures would not be called large, but it represented an endeavour on the part of these young folk that was one of sincerity in a desire to help less unfortunate people, and then not being satisfied with their own work, this same group of youngsters went immediately to work to better their own record, which now has resulted in a further $3.54 being credited in their name to-day.

This group composed of Maureen Fletcher, Ruth and Harold Bulmer and Beverley Brooks ranging in age from 2 to 9 years held a bazaar at the corner of Aylmer and Dalhousie streets in this latest endeavour, and in handing in their report their main thought was that the friends and neighbors who had helped to make their effort possible by donations should receive an adequate share of the thanks. That's a wonderful spirit for these young folk to have and augers well for their future.

Saturday's Market

Last Saturday, Girl Guides Jean Chambers and Jean Graham were the sales clerks at the stall on the market, from which $2.80 appears today through their sales of potted plants and produce among which were donations from Mrs. J. E. Parker of Norwood and Mrs. V. Sweeting of R.R. No. 5, Peterborough.

In addition to this, a small draw was held on a potted plant donated by Miss M. Mathews, which realized $1.35, and was won by Mrs. A. E. Dorrington with ticket No. 224. Next Saturday the stall is allotted to the Springville Centre with Miss Jean Fairbairn as convener, to be followed on the succeeding Saturdays by The Stewart Hall Community with Mrs Harold Dawson as convener, the Orange Corners School under the direction of the teacher, Milburn Jones, and Mrs. J. E. Parker of Norwood, all in the order named.

Brinton Total $830.90

Today's list also includes a further contribution of $10 from the employees of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co., Ltd., which marks the 63rd time they have made a gift to the fund, a wonderful achievement on their part, which now is under the supervision of Mary Richardson, giving this group now reduced in numbers to almost half of what it formerly was, a total credit of $830.90 contributed to this one fund alone.

Fire Causes Damage To Quality Cleaners

LINDSAY, Oct. 14 (ENS)—Considerable damage was caused to the dry cleaning plant of Quality Cleaners here Wednesday afternoon when fire broke out in the frame partition of the building. Only the quick action of the Lindsay fire crew in ripping out one side of the building prevented the flames from reaching the adjoining compartment in which several thousand dollars worth of furs and wearing apparel were stored.

James Sawyer of the plant was unaware of the fire until he saw the smoke seeping into the dry cleaning room.

Careful Packing Is Necessary

With many thousands more of the members of Canada's fighting forces serving overseas and in the more distant theatres of war, the volume of Christmas parcels to be handled by the Post Office this year is expected to establish an all-time record.

Adopting "Mail early for Christmas overseas" as its slogan, the Post Office Department advises the public to get its gift boxes ready as soon as possible and the earlier the better, not delaying until the last minute. This year, November 1 has been set as the deadline ensuring the arrival of parcels in time for Christmas, but the further a man is away from home, the earlier his mail should be sent.

Though the maximum weight of a parcel at the reduced rate of 12 cents a pound is set at 11 pounds, each sender is asked to voluntarily cut down as far as possible on the weight and size of each Christmas package in order to facilitate the provision of shipping space for the overseas Christmas mails and make it possible to forward the maximum number of the parcels in the space available on board each ship.

The maximum dimensions allowable for an overseas parcel are

PRE-NUPTIAL PACT BY COUPLE WOULD FRUSTRATE TROUBLE

Boy and Girl Should Agree on How They Will Treat Each Other in Matrimony.

THE reason there are so many disappointed and disgruntled married couples in the world is because a good husband or a good wife is such a loosely defined job. Everyone knows what the qualifications of a good lawyer or doctor or secretary must be and what his or her duties and responsibilities are, but no one knows just what makes a man or woman a good husband or wife.

And what complicates the situation is that a man's idea of being a good husband is entirely different from a woman's idea of what constitutes a good husband, just as a woman's idea of being a perfect wife is not at all a man's conception of one.

Wife Wants Attentions

A man thinks, for instance, that he is being a good husband if he is as domestic as the house cat and a good provider, but the husband that a woman pines for is one who will keep up his love-making and tell her how young and beautiful she is no matter how much she gets the middle age spread. As long as a husband will hold his wife's hand she will cheerfully work it to the bone for him.

And a woman never doubts that she is being the wife of her husband's dreams if she is devoted to him. She thinks if she loves him it gives her the right to nag the life out of him, and poison him with bad cooking.

Thus we have the spectacle that would be amusing if it were not so sad of two well-meaning people who desire to make each other happy, but who make each other miserable because neither knows what the other wants.

Now, considering that marriage is the most important contract into which a man and woman ever enter, it is a curious thing that we leave it a sort of a gentlemen's and ladies' agreement upon which any boy and girl can put their own interpretation, instead of specifying minutely what each desires to the other, and what concessions and compromises each is prepared to make.

Pre-Nuptial Understanding Helpful

Certainly it would save a lot of tears and heartaches and quarrels and divorces if, before the marriage, John Doe of the first part, and Jane Doe of the second part, would take enough time off from their billing and cooing to come to some sort of a binding agreement about how they would treat each other, and what they would do to make their marriage a success.

John might pledge himself, for example: (a) To keep up at least part of the ritual of courtship and never to take his wife for granted and confuse her with the vacuum cleaner and other household gadgets; (b) To include one compliment a day among his daily dozen; (c) To put a little pep and warmth into his kisses.

He might also agree to make her a definite allowance for her own personal behoof and benefit. To remember anniversaries. To take her out stepping at least once a week. Not to criticize her hats, or tell her that her new dress is ten years too young for her. Not to sit up of an evening like a stuffed shirt and only grunt when spoken to. Not to growl over the bills. Never, never, never to tell her how good-looking some other woman is.

And Jane Doe might solemnly promise, and put it down in black and white, that she wouldn't throw away the bait with which she caught her fish just as soon as she was married, but that she would use the same tactics to hold him as she did to hook him. That she would never come to breakfast in a soiled housecoat and with cold cream on her face. That she would never start breakfast table fights.

Wife Must Be Considerate of Mate

That she would never turn into

Gifts For Women On Active Service

Right now is not a second too early to start shopping for Christmas gifts for the girls in uniform! But first and foremost, remember please, that they all want small usable gifts most. Keep in mind that they must travel lightly, that their living quarters while very comfortable and cheerful are not so big as those they had at home. So for all the girls in uniform you know (and the boys too for that matter!) say Merry Christmas with small, usable gifts, which according to surveys, are the gifts that rate high with all the girls. Stationer is one of their big favorites. An excellent choice would be one of the new and very compact writing kits complete with sheets, envelopes, calendar and place for pen and pencil. Many of these kits have an extra pocket for correspondence, stamps and such. Stationery with service insignia is another welcome gfit as are pen and pencil sets, the latter doubly nice if you have them monogrammed for the personal touch. Toiletry gifts are another of the little presents that get a great big welcome. To keep her well groomed, choose one of the smart toiletry kits that pack neatly into her travelling bag. Completely fitted with comb, hair brush as well as clothes brush, they'll keep her spick and span. Shoe shine kits, sewing kits are big favorites too and so wonderfully practical they're indispensable. One of the best little gifts of all for the girls in uniform is a beauty kit to keep her completely feminine as ever. One of the new beautifully streamlined beauty boxes for all her lotions, creams, powder and makeup—and of course—with a nice big mirror for a smooth finish. Or if you prefer, choose one of the completely fitted make-up boxes with exactly the cosmetics she likes, but do be sure you know her preference and coloring exactly.

Underscored for Christmas gifts by the girls in uniform are little wearable gifts such as fine linen handkerchiefs which you can have monogrammed and which she'll wear for best. Well tailored regulation shirts, ties, and hats also rate high. Or why not a gift for after-hours relaxation? For scooting off to the shower—a well tailored bathrobe, add slippers—and it's a perfect gift! And because she's just as feminine as ever, she'll prize a pretty nightgown or tailored p.j.'s—or a smooth slip. In a word, when your Christmas shopping for the girls in uniform—"keep it small—keep it practical!" And your local stores have all these gifts ready for you now!

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, October 15

ALL THE affairs of this day, business and personal, may be expected to move at high tempo. New projects are encouraged, with every promise of splendid success, providing there is no excessive outlay or lavish expenditures on getting started. A similar sign of extravagance and munificence pervades the social, domestic and affectional affiliations, which may culminate in courtship or marriage. Under such expansive and generous mood be careful not to overdo.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a most pleasant and propitious state of affairs, both in business and intimately personal relations. New projects and objectives may proceed with much assurance, courage and high pressure, but with the menace of overdoing. This also dominates the domestic scene, under an expansive and generous urge to celebrate some happy occasion beyond the budget justifications. With prudence and thrift there should be a delightfully happy and productive year.

A child born on this day should be well endowed with energy, skills and ambition to attain a pleasant and progressive place in life. Early training in economy and conservation of funds would not be amiss.

SEND THE BOYS AND GIRLS IN THE SERVICES A BOX FOR CHRISTMAS

Games For After-Hours Are Welcomed As Service Gifts

Remember what he loved to do Christmas mornings when Santa brought Jr. an electric train? He played and played with it — and neither you nor Jr. could tear him away from an excited survey of the red signal that flashed on and off, too. This Christmas, when he's far off from all of you—and certainly far removed from childhood fun and play, why not send him some of that lightheartedness and pleasure? You can, easily by choosing his favorite games (excluding Jr.'s trains this year)—and sending them off to him in time for Christmas.

And even if trains on Christmas morning weren't his favorite in all the world, everybody enjoys a game for his leisure moments when he depends upon himself and his companions for recreation. And although you can't send him the beer and pretzels that went with such an evening at home, you can send him the where-with-all to indulge in old familiar pastimes while he's away seeing and doing new things.

Good Choice in Stores

You'll find the stores well stocked with a complete variety of classic game favorites, as well as bumper crops of new game inventions inspired by the war exploits. Monopoly, the real estate trading game is still going over strong with those in service (keeps their "hand in" with civilian affairs.) Similarly, anagrams, checkers, chess and lotto are still very much on the list. Many of these old-timers are presented in streamlined variations, and combinations. And you'll find dozens of playing card kits, fully equipped with the makings of the most successful poker sessions.

The Commando's assaults on the invasion coasts are the basis of a new favorite, which uses the English Channel coastlines as the playing field and provides invasion barges as playing pieces.

"Spotting" is another new game based on methods of plane identification that service men as well as civilians enjoy in their spare time. Airplane combat and naval manoeuvers have provided inspiration for a variety of new strategy games. A number of new target games use military themes as the basis of the competition. Camelot, the battle game that combines the principles of checkers and chess is another old favorite that's a current craze with servicemen.

"Skill" Games Popular

And don't think that men and women in Service say "no" to games of skill. There are numerous small and amusing "parlor" tricks that go over big in the service camps. Like trying to thread small objects, maze games, figuring-out-the-right number games, that used to be an endless source of amusement at home. They can still get fun out of old pastimes . . . and even though the family background is missing the family fun is with them, thanks to these gift games.

Timely Reminder

And remember, wrap all gifts carefully, in complete accord with ALL of the Postal Regulations. Let there be no empty "stockings" on Christmas day for those overseas . . . or in the service here—because we at home are tardy or careless.

Simple Gifts Go Over "Big"

So you think you know Junior like a book? And you say there is nothing that Mary could possibly think of that you haven't already sent her? Look sharp, doting parent, fond auntie, or one and only heart-beat! Unless you're in the army now yourself, your knowledge of service-gift strategy can probably bear a little refreshing.

The cartoons that show Johnny Jeep wresting with a set of fancy doodads that he can't possibly find use for may seem over-drawn. Yet many a well-meaning homebody unwittingly sends his or her hero in service a gift that's well-nigh useless, and one that he has no room to store. The average army barrack affords no more than the absolute minimum of space and the navy bunk is even more sparse in its accommodations. Thus, where is that oversize gift going to fit? And not only that, if your serviceman or woman happens to have to meet rigid inspections, he may even suffer the consequences in the from of KP or other extra duty for having an overaboundance of non GI material in evidence.

Shoppers Take Warning

Now that the Christmas season, or at least the shopping season, is with us again, at least insofar as service gifts are concerned, it is wise to check our shopping lists against the wants and needs of the boys and girls from latest requests as documented by a special survey only recently completed.

Make it a rule to select simple, compact gifts that the boys and girls in uniform can really use, If you know the rules of the branch of service in which he or she is situated, you can safely choose socks (stockings for women), or gloves, ties, and shirts, to supplement their GI supply. These come in regulation models, and are available at most stores.

Parcels Sent War Prisoners

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 14 — (ENS). — The last quota received by the local branch of the Red Cross is for 'Capture Parcels' according to a report made following the weekly meeting Tuesday afternoon. Such parcels are sent to Britain from where they are sent to a prisoner of war as soon as he is reported captured, and they include 2 pairs of socks, 1 sleeveless sweater, 1 shirt, 1 set of light underwear, 1 pair pyjamas, 1 bath towel, 1 housewife, 1 blanket, chocolate, personal property bag containing wash cloth, shaving brush, tooth brush, hand towel, 3 handkerchiefs, 12 packages of gum, 1 razor set, 1 shaving soap, hair brush, comb, 2 cakes soap. It is revealed that Branches in Ontario have already filled 1,000 such bags and 5,000 more are needed. Towards this quota the local branch is supplying 20 pairs of gloves, 10 round neck long-sleeve sweaters, 40 pair service socks, 20 ribbed helmets and 50 housewives.

These parcels, it is pointed out, should not be confused with the weekly Red Cross food parcels of which 100,000 are packed in Canada every week and sent abroad. Though some of these are paid for by the British and the Australian Governments the big end is supplied by the Red Cross which is now undertaking to supply some of Poland's starving prisoners in Germany. To date 750 tons of corned beef have gone into prisoner of war parcels as well as 1,000 tons of butter. And into woollen comforts made by volunteer workers in branches of the Red Cross throughout Canada, since the outbreak of war has gone enough wool to stretch around the circumference of the world more than thirty times.

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Oct. 14—(CP)—Canadian pilots are adding almost every day to the Dominion fliers' bag of enemy aircraft, knocking down Nazi airmen on both bomber and fighter trips over enemy territory, as well as taking care of the odd German aircraft, knocking down Nazi airmen on both bomber and fighter trips over enemy aircraft which attempts to molest coastal command patrols or tries to penetrate the defence of Britain.

The fighting in Sicily and Italy gives scope for increasing individual totals and recent Canadian victors in aerial combat are FO. J. R. Woolgar of Edmonton, FO. I. F. Kennedy, D.F.C., of Cumberland, Ont., and Flt. Sgt. Reg Gray of Toronto. Gray and Kennedy each shot down an Italian Macchi and Kennedy got an FW190 in Sicily.

Kennedy had to chase his Focke-Wulfe 60 miles up the Italian coast before getting in the burst which finished him.

PO. Joseph Albert Johnson of (1081 228th St.) Vancouver and his observer, FO. Lloyd Greenwood of (4178 West 14th St.) Vancouver shot down a Heinkel 111 and a JU88 in one night during a patrol off the Italian coast. Their score is three destroyed and one probable.

In the midst of preparations for a night raid on Germany from Bomber Command an explosion occurred in the bomb dump at an R.A.F. airfield where Canadians are now serving. The dump had to be closed and it looked as if the bombers would not be able to take off. The transport officer, however, organized a convoy of trucks and "borrowed" the required number of bombs and had them loaded in plenty of time for this station to take on its share of the raid.

Sqdn. Ldr. E. K. Sinclair, member of the Royal Air Force who has been awarded the D.F.C., was among the Australian journalists received by Hitler and Ribbentrop at Nuremburg on the eve of the war. Now Sinclair is a flight commander in a Lancaster squadron that takes part in most of the big raids and has had at least one crack at Nuremburg.

A Polish Spitfire pilot, adrift in his dinghy for four days and three nights, buffetted by Channel waves which threw him out of his frail craft seven times in one night and which hid him from the view of searching aircraft, decided to leave a last message in case help should come too late. On his shirt collar he wrote: "It's so difficult to die slowly." But on the fourth day a minesweeper sighted him and picked him out of the channel. As the vessel bore down on him he wrote on the collar: "I have been saved. Thank God. Tears of my mother and wife saved me."

"Tears of my mother and wife" is a Polish expression which means that their prayers saved him.

Of Interest to Women

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have been keeping all your kitchen tests since they started—..someone else might like to have them.

I have wanted to write you ever since the beet season.

I know the old way is to boil and can them but no matter how you scrub and swim them they still have earthy flavor I do not like.

I just want you to try them my way to cook and can, and for pickles or buttered or Harvard beets. You can use small or large ones and cut as you like them after they are cooked.

I am also sending a fish pie we like better than a loaf—someone asked you for fish recipes.

There is something else I wanted to mention. Some have asked why their cakes seemed too thick and the batter stiff. Do you know there is a difference in flour from a paper or a cotton sack.

I had a grocer ready to throw me out for teasing him. He told me he had sent a paper sack to a lady and she asked him to take it back as she could not use it, so he just put it in a cotton sack and sent it back. I asked him what he did, and he said nothing—I replied that he had simply aired the flour. The lady came in and thanked him for changing. I always sift the flour into my can I have for handy use. I think perhaps that is somebody else's trouble—I learned it years ago from a miller's wife. J. O.

TO COOK OR CAN BEETS (Contributed by J. O.)—Peel beets of a uniform size as you would potatoes. Cook in boiling water until tender, leaving small ones whole and cutting large ones to suit fancy. Have jars hot and keep beets hot. Keep liquid they were cooked in. To 3 cups liquid add 1 cup vinegar and heat to boiling. Pour hot liquid over hot beets in jars and add 1 teaspoon each salt and sugar to each jar and seal.

If you wish to make pickles use 1 teaspoon mixed pickling spices. For plain buttered beets do not use any spice, but cook in their own liquid and drain then add salt and pepper. For Harvard beets heat and add sugar to sweeten to taste, a piece of butter and cornstarch to thicken for a creamy sauce.

FISH PIE (Contributed by J O.)

Use cooked fish—cod, finnan haddie or haddock.

One and one-half cups cooked fish put in casserole. Add 2 tablespoons onion cut fine, 2 hard cooked eggs sliced. Season with salt and pepper. Make sauce by melting 2 tablespoons butter, adding 2 tablespoons flour, salt and pepper and pour over 2 cups hot milk, stirring until thick. Pour over fish and eggs. Cover with 4 or 6 mashed potatoes, and sprinkle over these ½ cup grated cheese. Bake in very hot oven for about 20 minutes—or until heated through.

ANSWER—Thanks for all this help J. O.

I think you have a good point when you sift your flour when you first put it in the bin. You will note that in all our cake and muffin recipes we specify to sift flour before measuring—it does make a vast difference in the finished texture of the product. The fish pie is very good—many people hesitate to use cheese with fish but I think it improves cod and fillets of haddock.

QUESTION — I wonder if you could publish some instructions for removing peach stains from linen. I have some in my best linen napkins and must do what I can to clean them up.

PHYLLIS DELANEY.

ANSWER—Javelle water is your solution.

Use Javelle water according to directions on bottle. The only precaution you must take is to thoroughly rinse out the Javelle solution when the stain is gone—if any of the Javelle is left in the fabric it will weaken the fabric. Use at least 4 rinse waters. Hydrogen peroxide bleaches old stains in white fabrics too, and it is not harmful to fabrics.

Price Control Ration News

The Women's Regional Advisory Committee, Consumer Franch, Central Ontario, Wartime Prices and Trade Board answers the questions put to this paper regarding price control and ration regulations.

Q.—We have always bought puff paste raspberry and blueberry turnovers or tarts at our bake shop for 5 cents each. To-day my husband was charged four for a quarter. Will you check up on this and let me know the result of your findings?

A.—Yes, we'll have prices for pastry in this particular shop looked into and will be glad to report the result of the investigation direct to you.....There is a ceiling price on bakery products. You should not pay more for the same kind and quality than you did during the basic period, September 15 to October 11, 1941.

Q.—A boarder residing where only two boarders are kept, says her landlady tells her that in future she will serve no noon lunch, and is allowing no rebate in the board. The ladylady has already used up the sugar for canning. Now when the boarder has to seek new quarters what allowance should the ladylady make regarding the canning sugar? If the landlady is not willing to make any allowance what steps can the boarder take?

A.—If the landlady is no longer going to supply the noon meal at the same rate, this is really an indirect increase in the rate and is contrary to Price Board rental regulations. Please report the particulars to the nearest rental office or to us for investigation.....We are sorry it is not possible for the ration administration to say what canning sugar allowance should be made every time a boarder decides to move. This is a problem boarders and landlords must work out together as equitably and fairly as possible.....Surely if they talk things over, they can come to some satisfactory arrangement between themselves.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumers' News" or the Blue Book (the book in which you keep track of your ceiling prices) mentioning the name of this paper to: Wartime Prices and Trade Board, 406 Metropolitan Building, Toronto, Ontario.

Plans for the autumn tea were discussed, the conveners Mrs. C. Collis and Mrs. Welsh, and the tea will take the form of a fan and shawl display and will be held on November 16. Arrangements were made for members to attend the forth coming deanery meeting, to be held at Lakefield on Friday, October 22. Those wishing to attend should phone the president regarding bus reservations. A social period followed the meeting and tea was served.

Colorful Suede Ensembles

Lederer de Paris

The forward set beret with its coq fancy; the gauntlets with wrist bow detail; the orchid corsage; the big, flat handbag, are all made of soft suede in a single jewel tone.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

BEAUTIFUL colors which will light up sombre winter costumes are available in suede accessories smartly styled. One Fifth Avenue shop has made a fashionable name for itself by the use of both suede and water reptile skins in flower and jewel tints.

Winter's shades are the darker tones, amethyst, ruby, peridot, star sapphire, rose quartz, suggesting a few of their colors. One needn't wear hat, handbag, corsage and gloves all at once. The two latter, together, are good evening fare, the two first named for daytime.

QUEEN ELIZABETH.

The October meeting of Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association was also graduation night for the 1942-43 graduating class. Mrs. C. Doughty, president, was in the chair and conducted the short business session. Mrs. G. Simpson, program convener, announced that Dr. J. D. Smart of St. Paul's Church would be guest speaker at the November meeting. Miss M. Taylor sang a solo, "Loch Lomond," accompanied by Mrs. W. Frise. Miss Taylor also led in community singing. Mr. A. Olmstead, former principal, presented diplomas to the graduating class, Agnes McIver, Ken Doughty, Ruth Hawley, Carl Doughty, Angus Austin. Agnes McIver gave a very competent valedictory address.

Mr. J. E. R. Munro of Queen Alexandra School addressed the graduates in an inspiring talk in which he stressed the value of night school after the collegiate course was completed, and spoke of education as a growth continuing throughout life. He said that schools are an agency for speeding up and condensing the process. "We look at many things that we do not really see," he said, "and parents of young children can do much to educate them in the proper use of their senses.

Mr. R. F. Downey introduced the two new teachers, Miss Marilyn Munro of the junior room, and Mr. Lewis Bird, the new principal. Each spoke briefly and said that they desired co-operation during the coming year. Mrs. G. Simpson moved a vote of thanks and a social half-hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served from a lace-covered table centred with a silver basket of asters and tea was poured by Mrs. F. W. Sayers.

KING EDWARD

A large number of parents and friends were present at the King Edward Home and School meeting on Wednesday when certificates were presented to the graduating class.

Mrs. T. H. Floyd read a selection from the scripture, after which Robert Tamblyn gave a pleasing vocal solo. Mrs. A. Ellis read a report on the Home and School council meeting, and a report on the hospitalization plan outlined at the local council of women's meeting was read by Mrs. W. G. Gunn. The attendance banner was won by Mr. McKee's room.

The meeting was then handed over to Mr. D. T. Crawford, the principal. Misses Eleanor McGee and Jeanette Sloan gave two delightful piano duets which were enjoyed by all. Mr. Crawford then introduced the guest speaker, Mr. K. S. Wightman, who congratulated the students on their successes and told them to think back to kindergarten days and realize the changes that have taken place; to think of their knowledge as a kit of tools; and asked, "What are you going to do with it? Learn how to enjoy life and get most out of it, instead of just earning a living."

He suggested that those attending school study and work hard and they will get what they strive for; and to those who are working, to try to attend night classes and read good books and keep on educating themselves. To all the graduating class he said not to slacken, but to keep on trying hard.

Mr. Crawford called on Joyce Baxter for a vocal solo. He then congratulated the graduating class and paid tribute to the teachers who had taught them through the years. He also told them not to forget Rev. F. W. Craik, who had given religious instruction in the senior grades. He then presented the diplomas to the successful candidates. Miss Helen Duncan gave the valedictory address.

Mrs. Mackey, a former pupil, gave a delightful vocal solo. Mrs. Burnside moved a hearty vote of thanks to the guest speaker and all who had helped with the program. Refreshments were served to the graduating class.

How To Make Good Cakes, With Less Butter, Sugar, Eggs

HERE'S a cake recipe that uses only one egg—only ¼ cup shortening—and that can be made with sugar, or with a mixture of sugar and corn syrup or honey. But more than that! This recipe can be used for a square cake to be cut into bars, a layer cake, cup cakes, chocolate cake, cottage pudding, spice cake. It's really a one-egg wonder cake! Here's a whole set of cake recipes all in one, really!

One-Egg Wonder Cake

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and cream together well. Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8 inch layer pans in moderate oven (370°F.) 20 to 25 minutes.

There's your recipe for a light, tender layer cake—serve it plain, or with jam between the layers, or iced with your favorite frosting.

To Save Sugar

Substitute corn syrup or honey for half the sugar. Use ½ cup sugar and ½ cup syrup. Decrease the milk by 3 tablespoons.

Tempting Cup Cakes

Make up recipe for One-Egg Wonder Cake. Bake in greased cup cake pans in moderate oven (375°F.) 20 minutes. Makes 2 dozen cup cakes.

Orange Syrup Cake

Flavor the One-Egg Wonder Cake with 1 teaspoon grated orange rind. After baking, let cake cool ½ hour. Mix together ½ cup orange juice and ½ cup sugar, and spread on cake at intervals, 1 or 2 tablespoons at a time until all of syrup is used.

Delicious Cottage Pudding

Mix One-Egg Wonder Cake, using only 3 tablespoons shortening; omit egg and increase milk to 1 cup. Bake in greased 8 x 8 x 2 inch pan in moderate oven (350°F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Serve warm with fruit sauce or chocolate sauce.

Lunch Box Surprises

Mix One-Egg Wonder Cake. Divide batter in halves and make the two variations listed below. These can be baked in greased cup cake pans or in any 8 x 8 x 2 inch pan for cutting into squares. In either case, bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 18 minutes.

Chocolate Cakes. Melt 1 square Baker's Unsweetened Chocolate. Add to half batter; turn into greased pans; top with nuts.

Spice Cakes. Add 1 tablespoon molasses, ¾ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon mace, and ¼ cup chopped raisins to half of batter. Blend.

Let's be realistic about this question of wartime cake-baking. In the first place, the ingredients you put into cakes (eggs, butter, sugar, flour) are just as good for you, just as nutritious, as if you used them in some other way.

In the second place, the more restricted our menu, the more we need cake and desserts and other things to brighten it. There is a good supply of substantial food in Canada, even if there aren't all the kinds we have been used to. The only real problem is that of keeping the family's mind off shortages of certain foods by giving them variety. And cake helps to do that.

And finally, there are ways of making really delicious cakes that economize on such scarce ingredients as butter and sugar and eggs. There are only two things you need to do—use a good recipe, and use Swans Down Cake flour. This specially prepared flour gives good results even in the simplest, most economical recipes.

Jane Taylor Allen

The Flour is Important

It is important to remember one thing about these cakes made from simple, inexpensive recipes. You can't get the same results with ordinary flour.

Only soft, winter wheat, is used in Swans Down Cake Flour. Selected parts of this choice grain are ground by the Swans Down "Controlled Milling" process, then sifted and re-sifted through silk. The result is dependable Swans Down Cake Flour, 27 times as fine as ordinary flour.

Another Aid to Better Baking

Calumet Baking Powder helps you get the best from all baking ingredients. That's because it's a double-action baking powder. First, in your mixing bowl, Calumet sends thousands of tiny bubbles surging through your batter to make it light and fluffy. Then, another leavening action takes place in your oven, where thousands more tiny bubbles lift cake or biscuits gently and evenly to their proper height. Order Calumet today from your grocer.

One-dish Oven Meals Aid In Conserving Vitamins

By MARY MOORE

In attempting to conserve coal in these first few weeks of Fall I have kept a fire in the grate and planned to use the oven to best effect, its surplus heat making our kitchen very cozy. When I boasted of this some of my friends off-handedly said they always did that in the Fall so I was deflated. But maybe some of you are still on my plane and would like to know the combinations of oven cooked food I liked best.

I have two major reasons for oven cooking: Covered foods retain their vitamins longer than food exposed to air. Baked food is served in the medium and dish in which it was cooked and the minerals are conserved are not poured down the drain as if often the case with vegetables boiled on top of the stove); and serving dish and cooking dish are one and the same utensil, thus dishwashing is reduced.

Oven Menu Number One

Shepherd's Pie (see note)
Casserole of Spinach and Carrots in Cream Sauce (see note)
One-Crust Plum or Apple Pie
Coffee

Shepherd's Pie

Two cups cold cooked meat cut in pieces or ground, 1 cups mashed potatoes (preferably hot), ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, few drops onion juice, about 3 tablespons leftover gravy, 1 egg yolk, 2 teaspoons cold water. Grease a baking dish and line bottom with mashed potato. Season meat with salt, pepper and onion juice; moisten with gravy; place in dish. Cover evenly with mashed potatoes. Spread top with egg yolk, beaten into the cold water. Bake in hot oven of 425 deg. Fahr. until brown and heated through, about 25 minutes. Individual shepherd's pie may be made in custard cups. These amounts serve 6.

Casserole of Spinach and Carrots

Wash well 1 pound raw spinach. Cut washed carrots into strips and cut them very thinly, about ⅛-inch thick. Place in well buttered casserole, dot with butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover and bake in oven of 400 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes, then begin adding the spinach to it, about half of it at a time if your casserole is big enough, cover, and bake until wilted, then add remainder, dotting it with a little butter or pour over 1 cup medium thick cream sauce. Cover and bake just until spinach is wilted. This is a nice combination of vegetables and looks attrative on the table.

Baked Fish (preferably Lake Trout or Whitefish) (See note)
Scalloped Potatoes
Buttered Onions
Oven Stewed Tomatoes
Lemon Pudding (see note) Coffee

Baked Fish

Dip the prepared fillets of fish in either very fine bread crumbs or flour, dot with butter or with cooking oil. Put in oven of 450 degrees Fahr., and after five minutes, sprinkle with salt and paprika. Fish should be served immediately after it is opaque throughout—further cooking dries. Serve with lemon or tartar sauce.

Lemon Pudding

Two-thirds cup sugar, one tablespoon flour, pinch of salt, two egg yolks, one cup milk, rind and juice of one lemon, two tablespoons butter, two egg whites, stiffly beaten. Sift the sugar and flour and salt and blend with the beaten egg yolks. Add the milk, lemon juice and rind, beating thoroughly. Melt butter and add. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and bake in pudding dish set in a pan of hot water ¾ hours in moderate oven of 350 degrees Fahr. This is best served cold.

Oven Dinner Menu Number Three

Roast Stuffed Spareribs
Baked Pepper Squashes
Cabbage or Cauliflower Scalloped
Apple Gems Marmalade Tea

Apple Gems

One and ¼ cups scalded milk, 4 tablespoons shortening, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2-3 cups yellow corn meal, 1 beaten egg, 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ cups chopped apples. Add shortening, sugar, corn meal to milk and mix well. Add egg, flour, baking powder and salt. Add apples to batter and beat thoroughly, drop into greased muffin pans and bake in oven of 350 degrees Fahr., for about 25 minutes. This makes from 12 to 14. These muffins are also delicious for afternoon tea.

Oven Dinner Menu Number Four (Economical)

Liver, onion and Apple Casserole (see note)
Baked Potatoes in Jackets
Baked Green Tomatoes Crumbed
Hot Apple Tarts (see note)
Coffee

Liver, Onion and Apple Casserole

Eight slices bacon, 1 pound beef liver thinly sliced, 2 or 4 medium sized onions cut in halves crosswise, 2 large sour apples, chopped, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Cut each bacon slice in 3 or 4 pieces. Place in alternate layers in greased casserole with the liver slices, onion pieces and chopped apples and sprinkle with the seasonings. Cover very well and bake for 1½ hours at 350 degrees Fahr. This is a delicious and economical dish that should become a "regular" on your table.

Hot Apple Tarts

Line 8 small muffin pans with your best plain pastry. Fish each with alternate layers of sliced apples, sprinkle of sugar and top with little pieces of old cheddar cheese. Sprinkle with cinnamon and nutmeg. Cover each with strips of pastry and bake 30 to 40 minutes at 375 degrees Fahr. ,or until pastry is browned and the apples are tender.

Recently I have been able to buy beef sweetbreads; these are larger than the veal sweetbreads you are familiar with but when parboiled in water with a little vinegar may be treated the same as veal—and are much more economical. I used them in the following dish with the remains of some roast chicken:

Chicken and Sweetbread Casserole

One tablespoon chopped onion, 3 tablespoons butter, ¼ cup flour, 1 cup chicken stock or hot water, ½ cup milk, ½ cup light cream or top milk, 1 cup diced cooked chicken, ½ or 1 cup chopped cooked sweetbreads, 1 teaspoon of salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup buttered crumbs and ½ cup sliced mushrooms OR 1 tablespoon pimiento OR green pepper OR ½ cup blanched almonds. Saute the onions (and the mushrooms or peppers if used) in butter until lightly browned; stir in the flour add stock and milk gradually, and cook, stirring until thickened. Add the cream, chicken, sweetbreads, salt and pepper and bring to boiling point. Turn into buttered individual or large casserole and cover with crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees Fahr., until heated through and browned. Hard cooked eggs sliced may be substituted for the sweetbreads. A delicious dish.

Black and Gray Symphony

Sophie, Saks Fifth Ave.

Soft, cloud gray wool makes a suit which accents its moulded fit with a yoke design of black braid. This treatment also appears on the pockets. Black jersey gilet, self buttons.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE gray wool which makes this jacket and skirt ensemble is soft as a kitten's ear, and of a high-bred, show Persian cat shade. It is so elegant that it will fill warmly and with chic the role of a classic afternoon frock...all Winter, too, as it will slip comfortably beneath a topcoat. The black fox stole shown with it here, can be carried as a muff, as above, for extra swank.

Junior Miss' Pinafore

De Pinna

Gored skirt, not too deep a neck cutout, cinched belt, for this corduroy pinafore of green or red. The broadcloth blouse is finished with red stitching about collar and cuffs.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE pinafore, childhood's bib dress, has made the complete circle through the ages of woman, and is back at home base on the little girls. (Not that great, big, lovely ladies have given it up...but there are some now available to the kids as well.) Here it is in hardy corduroy, for school, self-belted, and with a wash blouse.

one of the women who are all mother and no wife. That she would never belittle her husband, but would always build him up in his own and other people's esteem. That she would never forget to say "thank you," or to show appreciation for all he did for her. That she would accord him the right of an evening off without making a scene over it. That she wouldn't always have her own family under foot. That she would keep within her budget, and feed him well.

And both John Doe and Jane Doe might take their Bible oath not to argue or quarrel, but to give each a right to his or her opinion. To treat each other with the politeness and consideration they would show to strangers. To magnify each other's good qualities in their minds and be blind to their bad ones. To put as much hard work and intelligence and patience into trying to make their marriage a success as they would in attempting to make a go of any other venture.

You may say, of course, that there is no way in which a marriage contract can be enforced, but it would pull many a husband and wife who are slippng up short to see what they promised to do and realize how they are defaulting on their bargain.

TESTED . . RECIPES .

Here you have a new version of the old macaroni favorite.

It has super flavor and is easy for any cook, you don't have to be experienced to do it nor to know it will taste good. Young brides your young soldier husbands will like this too.

Baked Macaroni and Sausage

One or two pounds sausages depending on number of people to be served, 1½ cups macaroni, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1½ cups milk, ¼ lb. grated cheese, 2 eggs slightly beaten, salt. Cook the macaroni in boiling salted water until tender, about 20 minutes. Make a white sauce by combining butter and flour, gradually adding milk and cooking until thickened. Melt cheese in white sauce, add slightly beaten eggs and macaroni, stirring. Season. Pour into buttered casserole and top with the sausages in a single layer. Bake in hot oven of 425 deg. Fahr., having dish stand near top of oven to brown sausages thoroughly. This is good if served with—

TOMATO SAUCE: One-half tablespoon onion chopped, 1 tablespoon parsley finely chopped, 2 cups tomatoes, salt, pepper, 4 tablespoons flour, 4 tablespoons cooking oil. Simmer the onion and parsley in the tomatoes 10 minutes. Strain. Melt butter, add flour, stir, then add the strained tomatoes. Serve hot with above dish. This sauce is also good with baked, fried or steamed fish.

MRS. WHITE WAS RIGHT...
LIPTON'S NOODLE SOUP MIX
IS THE QUICK SOUP WITH THE REAL CHICKEN-Y FLAVOUR

The finest-flavoured quick soup you've ever served. And it's so quickly and easily made, you'll want it always in your home. Just add contents of package to 4 cups of boiling water. Cook for 7 minutes. Then you can sit down to a smooth, satisfying, golden soup, so delicately seasoned and so appetizingly flavoured that you'll say it equals the best slow-simmered soup ever made on your own stove.
Lipton's Noodle Soup Mix is extremely economical... each package makes one-third more soup than that obtained from the average canned soup. Ask your grocer for it today.

You are getting ALL the Vitamins and Minerals you need"
If your husband is concerned about getting enough Vitamins and Minerals just give him three good meals a day and Ovaltine night and morning. Then you can be sure he is getting all the extra Vitamins and Minerals he needs.
Authorities say 3 out of 4 people are underpar—undernourished—for lack of enough Vitamins and Minerals. But experts agree with 3 average-good meals a day and Ovaltine you are getting all the extra vitamins and minerals you can profitably use—except Vitamin C which is plentiful in fruit juices.
Ovaltine is recognized not only as a rich source of vitamins and minerals but, equally important, as a well-balanced dietary food supplement prescribed by doctors the world over for those who are thin, nervous or underpar.
So don't worry about vitamins and minerals. Rely on Ovaltine to give you all the extra ones you can use—in addition to its other well-known benefits. Just follow this recipe for better health—
3 MEALS A DAY + OVALTINE NIGHT AND MORNING
TWO GLASSES* OF OVALTINE ARE EQUAL TO VITAMIN A in 4 oz. average butter
VITAMIN B1 in 6 slices whole wheat bread
VITAMIN D in 1 teaspoon standard Cod Liver Oil
VITAMIN G in ¾ oz. dried brewers yeast
IRON in 3 oz. liver.
CALCIUM in 2⅓ oz. Cheddar Cheese
PHOSPHORUS in 2⅓ oz. Cheddar Cheese
*Made as directed with average milk.
Get Ovaltine today at your drug or grocery store.

3½ feet in length, wides or depth but in no case must the combined length and girth exceed six feet. In the case of parcels addressed to R.A.F. or Imperial Army personnel, the weight limit is set at 5 lbs. and this limit applies also to members of the United States armed forces overseas.

The utmost care should be taken in seeing that parcels are plainly and properly addressed. Misleading abbreviations should be avoided and ink used at all times, with the return address put on the outside and a Customs declaration form filled out and pasted on. It is a good idea, too, to include a slip inside the parcel with the sender's address as well as the address of the parcel.

Careful Packing

To ensure safe arrival in good shape parcels should be packed compactly enough to resist the pressure of other mails in the sack and the handling in transit, with each article in the package firmly secured.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

OBSERVE DETOUR SIGNS

AUTOMOBILISTS who will not observe "detour" signs are bound to come to grief sooner or later. So it is with declarers who pay no attention to doubles of their contracts and play hands the same way, when somebody has doubled them, as if there had been no double. To the sound player, the location of certain cards is marked by a business double from an opponent, and consequently the course of action is altered.

North: ♠ 5 3 ♥ K 8 4 ♦ 8 7 5 ♣ A 8 6 4 2

West: ♠ 6 ♥ 10 9 6 2 ♦ 9 6 3 2 ♣ J 10 5 3

East: ♠ J 10 8 2 ♥ Q 3 ♦ A K Q 10 4 ♣ K 7

South: ♠ A K Q 9 7 4 ♥ A J 7 5 ♦ J ♣ Q 9

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♦	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣
2 ♦	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Dbl

What in the world could East have for his double? Outside of the diamond suit, the only side cards of value would be the club K and the heart Q. Surely the double could not have been based on those alone. Hence East must have expected to take a trick at least in trumps, against the showing of such a terrific suit, even if he was making a bad and unsound double. But South apparently did no such figuring.

After East took the diamond 2 lead with the K and returned a diamond to make South ruff, the declarer scored the spade A and K, and was chagrined to note that West did not follow suit a second time. This left East with the spade J and 10, sure to produce a trick, since South held over them only the Q-9-7. South now could not avoid losing a trick in clubs and one to the heart 10, and so was set.

After ruffing the second diamond, South, after East's double, should have gone to the dummy to finesse the spade 9. Doing this would have prevented any spade losers at all and would have made the contract sure if South played East for the heart Q even if it had been adequately guarded.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ 7 ♥ Q 10 7 6 3 ♦ K Q 9 8 7 2 ♣ Q

West: ♠ Q 10 8 6 ♥ 8 ♦ J 4 3 ♣ K J 6 5 3

East: ♠ A K 4 3 ♥ 5 4 ♦ 10 6 ♣ A 10 9 8 2

South: ♠ J 9 5 2 ♥ A K J 9 2 ♦ A 5 ♣ 7 4

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is the truly expert bid for West to make after South bids 1-Heart to overcall East's opening 1-Club on this deal?

33-lb. Muskie Caught In Rice Lake

William Patterson of Tyrone, Pa., a retired railway man and an extraordinarily keen angler, made six trips to Bewdley this season, and last Sunday afternoon he hooked and landed a 33-pound maskinonge.

But, that wasn't the whole story, although it meant the acme of satisfaction and reward for the elderly Mr. Patterson, whose fishing motto is keep trying.

In the boat with him was Wilfrid Holtz, also of Tyrone, Pennsylvania, and believe it or not (and this should be a story for Morris Ackerman of Cleveland), Mr. Holtz hooked and landed a 33-pounder muskie that was almost identical with the first one.

That is the story Don Sidey of Bewdley told the Examiner last night. He was in with Ernie Rehder of Bowmanville to the Safety Week dinner.

"They looked alike and there were only a few ounces different in their weight," said Mr. Sidey. "Those two Pennsylvania men brought in sixty-six pounds of fighting fish. I never saw anything like that as an exception to the ordinary run of fishing. Patterson told us it took them about three-quarters of an hour battling with one of the twins, and probably twenty minutes before they had its pal beside it in the boat."

NAZIS IN RETREAT FROM VOLTURNO

Russians Capture Zaporozhe Isolate Melitopol; Huns Dynamite Dnieper Dam

Double Prong Threat Hangs Over Crimea With Army In Caucasus Ready To Drive Across Straits Of Kerch

LONDON, Oct. 15—(CP).—The waters of the great Dnieper dam—the largest in Europe—were sent rolling over the Russian countryside once more by German troops, the Berlin radio reported today in acknowledging their flight from Zaporozhe, their long-held southern key base and guardian fortress of the Crimea.

News that the $110,000,000 Dneprostroy had been blown up by the enemy, indicated that they had succeeded in repairing it after the Russians destroyed its usefulness themselves when falling back from the Dnieper in 1941 in what was called the greatest piece of self-sabotage of all time.

The gigantic dam is situated at the lower end of the Dnieper rapids, a few miles north of Zaporozhe and was considered one of the outstanding industrial achievements of the Soviet regime. Its waters generated power for the whole industrial area of the Ukraine and it has been said that "whoever controls the dam controls the whole southwestern Russian industry."

Hope To Stall Reds.

By blowing up the great dam, five miles northwest of Zaporozhe, the Germans evidently hoped to stall the Russian advance westward and to prevent the entrapment of garrisons in the Crimea, believed to number more than 100,000 troops. There was no confirmation of the dam's destruction from Moscow and it was not known whether the Russians would be able to transport their armies across the newly-flooded terrain to close the Crimean escape corridors.

The great dam was frequently called the Dnepropetrovsk Dam although it lies some 40 miles south of that Dnieper River city.

German dynamite was unable, however, to spoil the real Russian victory of the Zaporozhe bridgehead which the Soviet Army publication Red Star said was the last German hope of protecting the railway to the Crimea through Melitopol from the north and of checking the Russian offensive in the south.

One London military columnist wrote today that the victory "may even be much greater than that at Stalingrad," pointing out that by crossing the Dnieper in force at Zaporozhe the Russians would be in position to drive along the inner lines of German forces south of the Dnieper and in the Crimea.

Other London commentators said German forces in Russia had been divided both geographically by the Russian successes and by the necessity for sending top-notch troops to the Italian front.

Meanwhile Melitopol, 65 miles to the south, has been isolated by other Soviet columns and its fall is expected hourly, the Russian communique indicated.

Threat of a double-pronged Russian offensive hung over the Crimea. The Red Army was pouring masses of men and tanks into the Dnieper flatlands, just north of the Sea of Azov both above and below Melitopol. Other Soviet forces were reported converging on the western tip of the Taman peninsular in the Caucasus, preparatory to launching a powerful amphibious attack on the Crimea, across the two-mile wide Kerch Strait.

Claims Canada Should Amend Her Constitution

MONTREAL, Oct. 15.—(CP). — Justice Minister St. Laurent told a women's Canadian Club audience here to-day that he believed amendments to the Canadian constitution should be made "by our own representatives right here within our Dominion."

He said a scheme for making such amendments with the proper safeguards for the rights of provinces and minorities had not been devised as yet but he had confidence it would be forthcoming when the necessity arose.

Speaking at a luncheoen meeting, Mr. St. Laurent gave some detailed figures of Canada's contribution to the Allied war effort, discussed the possibility of western hemisphere unity and co-operation and expressed confidence in Canada's ability to cope with the problems of peace.

"The first and all-absorbing task which still lies ahead of us is to win the war," Mr. St. Laurent said.

Mr. St. Laurent's theme was the development of Canada from a group of colonial communities to a self-governing Dominion equal in status to the United Kingdom and other Dominions, united in a common allegiance to the Crown.

Axis Protests Portugal Move

LONDON, Oct. 15 (CP)—Germany and Japan protested to Portugal today over the granting of bases in the Azores to Britain, and the Nazis angrily served notice that they reserved the right to take retaliatory action.

Germany left unstated, however, whether she would go so far as to declare war on the Portuguese.

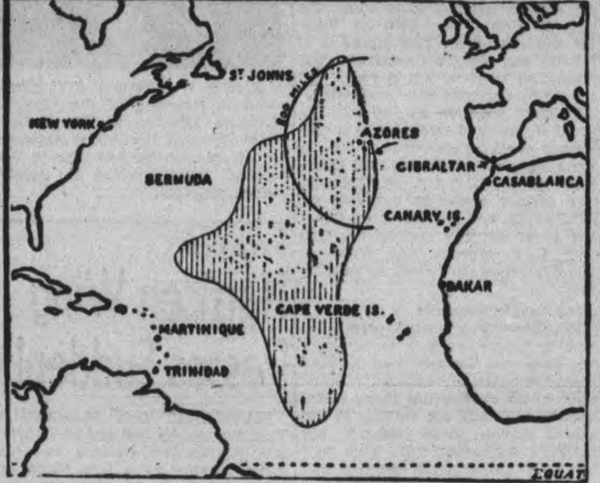
In announcing the protest, the Berlin radio called Portugal's act a "severe violation of neutrality."

Just what retaliation the Nazis would take remained to be seen, but it was considered doubtful that they would plunge Portugal into war because by so doing they would lose one of their most valuable listening posts and spy centres in Europe.

A Tokyo broadcast announcing Japan's protest quoted a Japanese spokesman as saying that Allied acquisition of Azores bases was "one more example of Anglo-American violation of international law as in the case of the seizure of Madagascar and of strong unjustified pressure exercised on a weaker power."

Apparently the Japanese failed to remember that they moved into the Portuguese island of Timor before the British and South African troops occupied Madagascar.

How Azores Bases To Help Allies



Shaded on the attached sketch-map is the approximate area of the Atlantic Ocean not covered by Allied shore-based patrol aircraft. An arc of 800 miles drawn with the Azores as the centre includes the most northerly section of this area. With Portugal giving Great Britain bases in the Azores it will afford added protection for one of the most vital sea lanes to Europe.

Premier King Removes Ban On Jehovah's Witness Sect

OTTAWA, Oct. 15—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today amendment of the Defence of Canada Regulations to remove the wartime ban applied against Jehovah's Witness, Technocracy Inc., the Ukrainian Labor-Farmer Temple Association and three Finnish societies.

The Finnish groups are named the Finnish Organization of Canada, the Finnish Society, and the Finnish Society of Toronto.

Property previously owned by all these organizations, which was seized some time ago by the Government, will be restored to them.

A number of organizations still remain banned under the Defence of Canada Regulations, including the Communist Party of Canada.

Today's statement was brief and gave no details of the reasons for amending the regulations.

During the dying days of the 1943 House of Commons session, vigorous debate sprang up on the continued ban on Jehovah's Witnesses. Opposition members said they criticized the prosecution of members of the organization for distribution of literature containing Bible quotations but which did not bear the printer's name. They also said that a religious meeting by Witnesses in Montreal had been visited by police who demanded to be shown the registration cards of those attending.

Justice Minister St. Laurent said previous changes in the regulations had provided it would be no offence for members of banned organizations like Jehovah's Witnesses to attend meetings for religious worship or instruction.

The Minister said the Witnesses would not salute the flag since they considered that an act of idolatry, and that at the time they were detrimental to the Nation's morale. They had urged young men to seek exemption from war service.

During 1942 sittings of the Defence of Canada Regulations committee of the House of Commons, a majority vote favored removing the ban on the Communist party. House members said the support for removing the ban on the Witnesses was almost unanimous in the committee.

Japs-British Clash In Burma

NEW DELHI, Oct. 15 — (CP). —British and Japanese land patrols have clashed near Maungdaw, about 100 miles north west of Akyab, in the Arakan sector of Burma, a communique announced today.

Increased activity on the part of British troops along the Burma front since the end of the Monsoon season a few weeks ago, was climaxed when a Japanese column attempted to surround a British patrol but was driven off, the communique said.

This was the second ground clash in the Maungdaw area in recent days, a British communique reporting 24 Japanese killed in a previous incident, and the Japanese reporting the repulse of a British landing party.

The communique also said other British patrols and levies have "successfully ambushed enemy parties in the Chin Hills and in the Sumprabum areas."

Planes Busy

In air operations R.A.F. Mohawks blasted Japanese positions in the Chin Hills, destroying a number of army huts. Last night R.A.F. Wellington bombers made their third successive night attack on Burmese rail installations. Other aircraft struck at water communications, lorries and water tanks.

CGE Workers To Raise $500,000

Speaker Stresses Great Need For Post-War Fund

With an objective of $500,000, employees of the C.G.E.-Genelco Limited, figuratively "beat the gun" in the start of the Fifth Victory Loan campaign, which begins throughout Canada next Monday, with a mass meeting on the Park street lawn between 1 and 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

B. A. Trestrail of Toronto, the man who conceived the ideas of the payroll saving plan of buying War Bonds, suggested to the assembly of thousands of employees that they regard their support of the nation's financing of the war as a means to a personal end of building up a reserve of savings for the post-war period.

It was no longer necessary to stress the patriotic purpose and essence of the Victory Loans, Mr. Trestrail said. That aim and desire of supporting the country's war action could be taken for granted at this stage.

"We know what the war is all about and what it takes, but at the same time there is some danger of us getting a little bit soft on the home front, probably feeling that we can now let things slide perhaps. This Victory Loan will serve to cystallize our thoughts of what we still have to do to speed up the victory. It brings home to us again the fact that we have to keep on working and saving and sacrificing. There is no regimenting of our people in our Victory Loan campaigns. Any regimentation must be done within our own minds, each person for himself and also for herself. Generally we have two kinds of people, those who think the end of the war is just around the corner, and those who take the view that victory may be quite a distance away from us at present."

In the meantime various plans for the post-war period were being put forward, some of them of a paternalistic character, but whatever that future brought into effect, the individual citizen had the opportunity of adopting a sound plan for himself, which Mr. Trestrail recommended to his large audience. He proposed that each person should limit their present spending to their actual necessities of food and clothing and shelter, plus some moderate recreation, and put as much of the remainder of their income into the buying of Bonds which they would thereby accumulate as a financial reserve to be used when the war ended.

"I suggest that you set up your own saving schedule. Make up your mind that you are not going to buy now anything you don't need. Most of it is only junk any way, especially when you think of the better values that will be available to you after the war. If you don't adopt some saving plan of your own, I can tell you that you are going to deeply regret it.

Determine that you are going to stick to your plan as closely as possible. Make out a list of the things you would like to have, refrigerator, automobile, fur coat and so on, and set your savings to that

Allies Make Decisive Gains Tanks Hit Germans from Sea

By N. NORGAARD—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 15 — (AP). — The main forces of the Allied 5th Army poured across the Volturno River into newly-won bridgeheads today, and dispatches from Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark's headquarters said the Britons and Americans were throwing the enemy back along the entire front from the west coast to the mountain backbone of Italy. The message telling of decisive gains all along the front in the course of furious and bloody fighting was received after an Allied headquarters communique had disclosed that British infantry and tanks had landed from British vessels on the north side of the Volturno's mouth early Wednesday simultaneously with a frontal assault across the stream by British and United States infantry and engineers.

Rolling up the enemy's coastal anchor, this amphibious force quickly dug in positions along a canal, while British naval guns shelled the strong German defensive positions behind the coastal railroad line on high ground four miles north of the river.

While the British destroyers, Laforey and Lookout, and the Netherlands gunboat Flores hurled tons of explosives into the hills, a terrific fight raged along the coast. The Germans obviously had been uneasy over the possibility of such a landing —the first amphibious operation undertaken by the 5th Army since its original arrival on the Salerno beaches — and had concentrated huge artillery groups in the dominating heights and in the lower ground.

Capture Heights

Meanwhile American troops stormed the heights northeast of Capua in the face of determined resistance and consolidated their hold on the high ground screening the Capua bridgeheads where the major body of the 5th Army was streaming into the offensive.

(A German broadcast said today the Allies had "superior infantry and tank forces on both sides of Capua.")

At almost all points north of the river, reports from 5th Army headquarters said, the Germans were counter-attacking sharply and bitterly, time after time, employing tanks in desperate efforts to retard or dislodge the Allies at key points.

President Roosevelt Rebukes Argentina Terms Ban On Jewish Papers, Nazi Flavored

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(AP) — President Roosevelt rebuked Argentina today for suspending publication of Jewish newspapers, terming this action in line with characteristics of Nazi doctrines.

It was the second time within recent weeks that the United States government has reproved the only country in the American hemisphere still maintaining diplomatic relations with the Axis.

State Secretary Cordell Hull previously sent a strongly-worded message turning down an Argentine request for lend-lease assistance.

Mr. Roosevelt said in a statement to a press conference that primarily the suspension of Jewish newspapers concerned the Argentine government and people, but he added:

"I cannot forbear to give expression to me own feeling of apprehension at the taking in this hemisphere of action obviously anti-semitic in nature and of a character so closely identified with the most repugnant features of Nazi doctrine."

Filthy Weather, Steep Hills Fail To Slow Canadians

By WILLIAM STEWART
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN TROOPS IN ITALY, Oct. 13 (Delayed) — (CP Cable). —Hampered by fresh rains and muddy ground, Canadian troops with their artillery right behind them today neared the end of a difficult 25 - mile march through mountains toward an important southern Italian highway junction.

French Canadians and Maritime Province infantry carried the advance to within a few miles of the objective in an area of tall peaks Ontario troops then took the lead for the last rough lap, travelling forward at sundown.

The rain ceased temporarily as the Ontario soldiers rushed ahead. The advance was opposed by the well - hidden enemy, throwing shells at traffic points but apparently intent only on fighting a delaying action.

Progress Steady

While the push for the road junction reached its last stages other Canadian formations on the flanks cleaned out German outposts from remote little towns off the beaten track. The main advance had been carried out across country which means the Canadians have marched up wide, 1,000 foot slopes and down others, trudged across the sandy beds of the rivers, and slithered through mud.

Progress while not fast has been steady. Food has been carried to the front-line men on backs of marching rear-party groups, by mules or by lorries when the roads are cleared of mines and bridge demolitions repaired or detoured.

Canadian artillery has been towed forward in short hops and kept on hills to give forward troops as much protection as possible against the accurate enemy fire. Canadian barrages preceding infantry attacks and the gunners' counter-battery work have been effective.

Italian civilians in towns occupied by the Canadians had described the results from the receiving end.

The troops keep up their cheerfulness despite most difficult conditions and some illnesses. Medical officers are watching jaundice cases which are the most common current ailment.

Plenty of Humor.

The association of the Canadian troops with British troops has been beneficial in some respects as their conduct is being based largely on that of the desert veterans of several campaigns and many battles.

Canadians walking to battle in singles files give an impression of the self-assurance with which a competent man goes about his job. That seems typical of the British troops who fight with a casual every-day manner that evokes admiration and inspires confidence.

Canadians made the best of any situation and in the pinches call on their sense of humor and exchange banter in a manner that one of their colonels calls "typically Canadian."

The mountain drive the Canadians have carried out in the last 10 days in generally filthy weather has been enough to tax their sternest qualities yet as they went forward for the last stage of the battle for the highway junction they were just as cocky and cheerful as when they first tackled the mountains.

20 Casualties In 381st List

OTTAWA, Oct. 14— (CP)— The Canadian (Active) Army in its 381st overseas casualty list of the war containing 20 names today reported the death of two other ranks, listed one other rank who was previously reported missing as now reported killed in action, and reported five officers and four other ranks wounded. Gydnia Harbor Total Wreck

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 15.—(AP).—The Gydnia harbor area and part of the naval dockyards in Poland were wrecked by the American raid last Saturday, Swedish sailors who watched the attack said to-day.

Opposed by only two German fighter planes over the target area, the Americans swept over the naval port in a 20-minute attack.

"They were the most awful moments of my life," said Wilhelm Nordloef, a sailor who had undergone Allied bombing raids in other German ports. "Every moment was like an hour."

Five of eight ships sunk in the harbor by the raid were German, eyewitnesses said. The 15 or 16 damaged ships included warships as well as freighters. Direct hits spread ruin through the dockyard and cranes used for loading ships were smashed.

Others said the damage was so heavy that anthracite coal traffic will be stopped indefinitely.

Eyewitnesses said there were about 30 persons aboard the Swedish ship Stuttgart when it was set afire in Gydnia harbor. The vessel was being prepared for an exchange of German and Allied war invalids. The German press reported the Stuttgart was towed out to sea and sunk because the blaze was out of control.

Anticipate Red Demand for Invasion

Successful Soviet Offensive Will Feature Tri-Power Discussions

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Red Army's continued devastating stabs into the vitals of the German front — the cumulative effects of which threaten to tear the Hitlerite line loose from its anchors and force it into dangerous retreat once more—provide an important and significant setting for the Moscow conference of the foreign ministers of Russia, Britain and the United States which is due to assemble at any moment now.

The Muscovites have let it be known in blunt terms that the initial item on the agenda isn't to be political but is military. They insist that first there must be agreement about the business of winning the war, which includes the "second front" that the Soviet has long demanded.

This has the formidable backing of the situation which the Red offensive is creating. It enables the Soviet to reiterate the theme that the time for the Allies to slam Hitler with everything they have is when he's rocking on his heels.

Nazis Admit Losses.

In advancing argument to substantiate this stand Moscow can even call on the authoritative German periodical, Das Schwarze Korps, which is published by Gestapo Chief Himmler. This paper dares tell the people of the Reich that the Nazi retreat in Russia has resulted in "a tremendous loss of political prestige in Germany — a loss which now troubles many of us."

Some would say that pure coincidence accounts for the unprecedented Red drive through the autumn deluge and deep mud (theoretically an almost impossible feat) just as the representatives of the Big Three are due to begin their delicate task. Be that as it may, we can at least agree that the Russians may well consider they have dealt themselves a most useful hand.

However, the Allies also have new and striking successes, which are huge contributions to the united war effort, to lay on the table. These include Italy's declaration of war against her former German ally, Portugal's grant of invaluable bases in the Azores, the steady northward grind of British and United States armies on the Italian peninsula, and the crippling of Hitler's industrial war effort by the fiercest aerial bombardment the war has produced.

Since all these things seem bound to enter the debate at an early stage, it's good to know that the conference is in the hands of three such experienced diplomats as Anthony Eden, Cordell Hull and Vyacheslav Molotov. We are encourage to believe, also, that there is a real desire on the part of all the Big Three to reach an understanding.

Income Tax Hits Eskimos

Some May Earn $35,000 In One Year

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 — (CP). — The Eskimos who didn't want to buy any income tax, thanks, are buying it in quantity to-day and being pretty cheerful about it, too.

Inspector D. J. Martin, commanding the Royal Canadian Mounted Police "G" (Arctic) Division, said to-day that good fur catches and attractive prices have brought prosperity to the hunters of the lone lands.

With prosperity, they have been introduced to taxation and not the least interesting of the things about taxation is the labor of the Mountie who must complete their income tax forms and make the assessment.

"An Eskimo family in a district where white foxes are numerous, may take 1,000 in a season," he said. "That means they may have an income of $35,000, definitely within the taxable limit."

When the Mounted Police began explaining to Western Arctic Eskimos about income tax last year they were politely informed that the natives weren't interested in buying any.

This led to profound explanations and eventual understanding.

Enemy Agents Fail In India

Linlithgow Lauds Princes On War Job

NEW DELHI, Oct. 15 — (CP Reuters). — The Marquess of Linlithgow told the Assembly of the Chamber of Princes yesterday that a group of enemy agents had been landed in India by submarine but had been rounded up.

Lord Linlithgow was speaking for the last time in public as Viceroy of India, a post in which he will be succeeded shortly by Field-Marshal Viscount Wavell. He told the Princes that the Allies had made magnificent progress in every theatre of war but "much still lies before us."

His reference to the enemy agents came in a passage of his address in which he referred to the co-operation of the Indian States and British India.

He said: "There was one notable incident in which a group of hostile agents was arrested with commendable promptitude almost immediately after they had landed from an enemy submarine on the shores of an Indian state."

The retiring Viceroy emphasized that the Crown's obligations to protect the Indian States carried an equally binding responsibility to ensure that what it protected continued to be worthy of protection.

RECORD LOSS IS SUSTAINED BY U.S. UNIT IN DAYLIGHT AERIAL RAID

60 Bombers Lost At Schweinfurt

104 Enemy Planes Destroyed In Running Fight

By HENRY B. JAMESON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(AP).— The Germans, massing their most effective fighter opposition to date, shot down a record number of 60 American heavy bombers from a force that made a shambles yesterday out of three Nazi roller and ball bearing plants at Schweinfurt.

The bombers, with their fighter escorts, downed at least 104 enemy planes as a gigantic air battle raged for two hours all the way from the European coast to the targets in central Germany and back again.

While no details of the opposition tactics were disclosed officially, numerous American crewmen told of encountering swarms of single-engined Nazi fighters and also the twin-engined craft on which the new German rocket apparatus is mounted...

The bombers destroyed 91 enemy aircraft and a possible 42 more. Fighters escorting them part of the way on the 500-mile trip added another 13 and three probables. Two fighters failed to return.

The number of bombers that participated in the raid was not disclosed.

Despite the opposition, the bombers splattered their bombs over all of the 72 acres of factory buildings housing one of Germany's most important centres for producing bearings — an essential for virutally every piece of mechanized war equipment.

Record Loss

The 60 heavy bombers announced as officially missing constituted the greatest loss ever inflicted upon the Allied air forces by the Nazis in a single raid.

The R.A.F. lost is greatest number, 58, in a night attack on Berlin August 23.

The German overseas radio, in a broadcast recorded by he Ministry of Information, admitted that considerable damage was done by Schweinfurt's residential section

Mounted Police Nab Turk Broda

TORONTO, Oct. 15 (CP)—Headquarters at Military District No. 2 here said today that Turk Brodà, for seven years goalkeeper for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, is not yet in the army "but will be before nightfall."

They said Broda was in the process of going through his medical and other examinations prior to inductment.

Earlier, Royal Canadian Mounted Police said the rotund netminder was removed from a Montreal-bound train a few minutes after midnight and taken to Stanley Barracks, where he spent the night. His National Selective Service callup notice had expired at midnight, they said.

It was understood that officially army authorities will have no comment to make on the circumstances of the beginning of Broda's military service because until his induction is complete the matter is entirely under the jurisdiction of the mobilization section of National Selective Service.

Selective Service officials could not be reached immediately for comment.

Yugoslavs Win 2 More Battles

LONDON, Oct. 15—(CP)—Yugoslav Patriots have answered Hitler's reported appointment of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel as commander of operations in Yugoslavia with two important victories in widely separated sections of the country, a communique of the National Army of Liberation announced today.

Partisan columns, driven out of the Croatian coastal strongholds of Crkvenica and Kraljevica by German tank formations on Oct. 10, reformed and stormed the enemy's positions, and finally expelled them from both towns in hand-to-hand fighting, the communique reported. Both are now "firmly held" by the Yugoslavs, added the bulletin, broadcast by the free Yugoslav radio.

More than 150 miles to the east, units of the Bosnian 1st Corps fighting under Gen. Drug Tito, Liberation leader, captured the town of Zivnica, near patriot-held Tuzla, and centre of the Bosnian timber industry, the broadcast said.

Derail Two Trains

In Zenica, major industrial town in the heart of the "Bosnian Ruhr," 35 miles northwest of Sarajevo, Partisan groups and German troops are still engaged in house-to-house fighting, which has been going on for the past three days, the communique reported.

Further south units of the fourth Croat brigade were said to have derailed two German military trains at Visoko and Ilidze, near Arajevo.

Patriot bands went after Nazi-dominated railway lines in eastern Bosnia, and destroyed many miles of trackage around the towns of Boanski Novi and Bihac on the Una River, the communique said. Two bridges were blown up, while further east, near Pejedor, a "very long, important railway bridge" was destroyed, together with two and one-half miles of track, the bullestanding in the way of complete freedom from the British Parliament was that which makes it necessary to apply to Westminster for an amendment to the British North America Act, which constituted Canadian Confederation.

That restriction, said St. Laurent, was placed there "at our own request."

Mr. St. Laurent said there might be a few inclined to "gloat over the shaking off of ties between ourselves and the other members of the great Commonwealth of British Nations" but that was not true of the great majority.

The coming of age and independence of Canada was in fact, "merely an extension of the original family circle and it means in fact an addition to its original strength."

He spoke of the close relations between Canada and the United States, particularly since the outbreak of war, and of the proof it offered of the success in maintaining and discharging the responsibilities of membership in the British family of nations while maintaining a mutual trust and confidence pledged in mutual endeavor with the United States.

Favors Pan-Americanism

He pictured the possibility of a "Pan - Americanism" that would draw together all the nations of the hemisphere "through respect for and conservation of all that is best in their ancestral traditions and culture."

Discussing Canada's contribution to the war, Mr. St. Laurent said the armed forces, exclusive of the reserve and members of the women's divisions, comprised 727,000 men, of whom there are less than 10 per cent who being "available for and acceptable under compulsory drafting," have not enlisted for service anywhere in the world.

By the end of 1943, Canada will have spent about $7,500,000,000 on munitions and implements of war—about 30 per cent used by Canada at home and abroad, 50 per cent by Britain or Russia, and 20 per cent to the United States, China, Australia and in the Pacific theatres of war.

By the end of the current fiscal year, Canadians will have paid since the beginning of the war $8,000,000,000 in taxes, and will have subscribed to $6,000,000,000 of war bonds.

total. Supposing the amount is more than you can reach. Make a stab at it any way. You never know what you can do till you try. Begin by allotting so much to this article and so much to that, down your list, but instead of spending your money now, you are investing in Victory Bonds and you will have the money to spend when the war is over.

Say to yourself that by your saving during the war you are going to have enough put by in Bonds that will make you independent of any condition, whatever it may be, that develops after the war. Don't let yourself be inveigled now into buying you know you really don't need. Draw up your own plan, and stay with it.

We suggested that policy at the John Inglis Company that is to settle in your own mind a proportion of savings for the entire duration of the war, and eighty percent of the employees adopted it. We don't have to suggest to them that they buy Fifty Victory Loan Bonds. They are committeed to it by this plan which they have undertaken."

Mr. Trestrail declared that if the Canadian people would set themselves to such a personal policy they would have in their own hands a tremendous sum of money and buying power which they could turn loose after the war. If that were done there would not be a post-war problem to look to with doubt and fear. The demand for new goods, and the money to pay for them, would bring a great deal of surge of industrial activity, employment and production.

Mr. Trestrail's proposal was interspersed with amusing stories that were acutely and strikingly related to the ideas which he frankly said he was advocating as a great means to the success of the new Victory Loan.

Ian F. McCrea, works manager, was chairman, briefly introducing Mr. Trestrail, and appealing to the employees for a cordial reception to the Loan canvassers who, he said, would begin their rounds this afternoon. He suggested that some of the men and women who had bought $50 Bonds in previous Loans would be doing a grand service to themselves and the country by increasing that amount to $100.

"Thank God we have had splendid weather for this outdoor meeting," Mr. McCrea said. "I feel that it is an auspicious beginning for our own campaign, and we are hoping to wind it up by October 25th."

The C.G.E.-Genelco objective is $500,000. In the Fourth Loan the plant's allotment was $526,000.

The Pipe Band of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto enlivened the meeting before and after the speaking.

Officials of the company were present from Toronto and Montreal, W H. Nesbitt, secretary of the company, Toronto, and W. Tennant of the secretary's office and Len Hicks of the head office, Toronto; and L. Butters of Montreal office. Several representatives of the Erie, Pa., plant of G.E., here on special business, were spectators of the launching of the C.G.E.-Genelco Fifth Victory Loan drive.

Board Approves Payroll Plan In Fifth Loan

All the teachers of the public schools and the Collegiate are being asked to attend a mass meeting in the matter of the 5th Victory Loan, the date to be announced later. It will be held on school time from 3 until 4 o'clock, it was decided at the Board of Education meeting Thursday night.

T. J. Carley read a communication from Loan Headquarters congratulating the staffs on their splendid efforts the last time when the payroll system was used by them for the first time. The objective is $25,000 and members expressed the hope that teachers would go all out for a 100 per cent bond campaign.

Possible speakers at the meeting are J. J. Melor of Orono, who is well known around Peterborough for his Loan speeches or Flt. Lt. Ross Cameron of the R.C.A.F. at Trenton. The former would be available on October 25, and the latter on October 20 or 21 The matter was left with C. S. Browne and Inspector K. Wightman to select a suitable date.

Need Supply Teachers

Mr. Browne requested permission to hire supply teachers for temporary work and the members declared that it was already within his authority to do so. Because three members of the staff are serving in the armed forces, those behind are carrying a heavier load. This year there are 925 students enrolled and there has been an unusual congestion in Grade 10 academic and another form had to be set up, making four classes.

This extra means that actually the staff is about 5 teachers short, because there is another extra class and three off the staff. Ordinarily this could be handled easily, because the teachers have a certain amount of idle time in the day. But when they are all busy, if any member is absent, there is no one who can step in. The teachers now have no spares and this interferes with the extra curricular work they usually carry on.

In his library report, Mr. Browne mentioned that the books have been recatalogued, newly classified and posters set up indicating the various sections. Miss G. Fowler has repaired and rebound 288 books. About 250 students now have a study period in the library under her supervision for ½ hour or more each day, cutting down use of the auditorium to once a week, instead of the former 45 periods weekly.

Buy New Site

Inspector Wightman reported that the proposed site for the new school on the Wartime Housing property had been found unsatisfactory and a new one had been purchased on the north side of Wolseley street, next to the last house.

The heating system in the teachers' and nurses' rooms at Prince of Wales School works badly and he advocated more radiation to relieve the problem. The possibility of a Home Instruction teacher was also considered. Mrs. L. Copp, who is teaching in the additional room which has been opened in Queen Mary school, has been confirmed in her position until Christmas.

Mr. Melton asked Mr. Browne whether the vocational advisory work had been followed up, after a discussion which took place in the spring. The idea was to have available men and women in the different professions available to give advice and information to students thinking of choosing their life's work in a profession. A committee of teachers was also set up at the school. Various people in the city have been contacted and a list of about 24 names is on hand. Mr. Browne told of Canadian tests for Vocational Guidance which have recently been published and suggested that the Board might later wish to purchase some of these tests.

Will Join City

At a special meeting a few weeks ago the Board members decided to decline the city's offer of offices in their proposed new building and at the regular September meeting Mr. Melton, who had been absent, reopened the question, and a debate about rules and regulations ensued, with no definite action being taken.

At the meeting, it was moved by Mr. Melton and Mr. Sollitt that the Board take advantage of the city's offer to take space in the new City Hall, possibly including offices for the medical and dental officers. The members fell into line with little comment with Messrs. Melton, Sollitt, Canning, Scollard, Carley and Mrs. Morris voting for the motion and F. Reid opposing. G. W. Craw vice-chairman was in the chair as the chairman. Dr. Scott was called from the meeting.

HAVELOCK
Harrison Wing Passes Suddenly

HAVELOCK, Oct. 15.—(ENS).—This community lost one of its most highly respected citizens and one widely known as a fine Christian, with the death of Harrison Ellsworth Wing, who passed suddenly away on Wednesday morning in his 65th year, following two operations in Wellsley Hospital, Toronto.

He was the son of the late Henry and Lydia Wing and was born at Briar Hill, Leeds County, April 20, 1878. Mr. Wing received his education at Lyndhurst and Athens High school. When quite a young man, he went out to Fernie, B.C., where he operated a general store for a number of years. Forty-five years ago he returned to Havelock, and for the past 36 years he has operated a general store on corner of George and Orange streets.

In 1907, he was married to Nellie Myers at Westport, who is left to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and father, with two daughters, Misses Lucy and Laurabelle at home, also one sister, Mrs. Rhoda Campney of Havelock.

He was a faithful member of the United church and served as a trustee on the church board and secretary-treasurer of the M. and M. Fund of the church for nearly 30 years. He was a life member of Havelock Lodge, No. 435, A.F. & A. M. and served as secretary for many years, and also a life member of Royal Lodge, No. 286, I.O.O.F.

The late Mr. Wing served for a term on the local school board and has been a Justice of the Peace for the past six years, and in politics he was a staunch Liberal. In other departments of village life he was always willing to do his share, and many came to him for advice.

His funeral service, which was very largely attended, was held from the United church on Friday afternoon at 2.30 p.m., conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, assisted by Rev. S. A. Kemp and Mrs. John Kinnaird, with interment at Maple Grove cemetery.

Pallbearers were William Buchanan, William Copp, Bernard Smith, A. C. Denike, Harry Peters and Richard Sanderson. Many beautiful floral tributes surrounded his casket.

British Make New Landings Behind Enemy Lines; Canadians Take Casacalenda

Naval Forces Protect Newest Move Huns Reported Nervous Evacuating Civilians On West Coast

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 15—(AP).—Allied troops have landed on the west coast of Italy beyond the Volturno line in a flanking amphibious action, it was announced today.

Light naval forces bombarded enemy positions along the coast in support of the landing operations which were carried out at the strong seaward anchor point of the enemy's line. The landing forces included infantry and tanks of the Allied 5th Army.

Along the Volturno itself, where Allied troops have smashed across the river barrier and won a number of deep bridgeheads in an offensive that began Tuesday night, heavy fighting is continuing a communique said.

The bulletin announced that in the British 8th Army sector where Canadian troops are fighting, on the other side of the peninsula the town of Casacalenda had fallen. It stands 20 miles southwest of Termoli and 18 northeast of Campobasso.

Terni Bombed.

Air action announced today included a heavy bomber sweep 50 miles above Rome into central Italy to attack railway installations at Terni, on the main enemy supply route to the battle zone.

At the same time other bombers bombed the east coast railway north of Pescara and raided the Argos airdrome, in the Aegean, creating extensive damage among 27 enemy planes parked on the field.

Headquarters announced the 5th Army had advanced from two to five miles from Volturno bridgeheads east of Capua. The enemy was said to be resisting bitterly near Capua and also near Caizzo, in the corner formed by the northward sweep of the Volturno.

Violent German counter-attacks with tanks were beaten off.

British troops made up the amphibious force that landed above the Volturno. They went ashore in early morning hours of Wednesday British navy landing craft in the a naval communique said.

A constant stream of troops, tanks, guns and supplies was pouring northward into the Volturno battle area and across the stream into the Allied bridgeheads.

Steady progress was announced

"The enemy's position hourly is becoming more desperate and he will obviously be forced to pull out from all the low area near the river," a military spokesman declared.

An official dispatch from Clark's Headquarters at 10:25 a.m. to-day declared: "The 5th Army continued a strong drive which is rolling the enemy slowly backward. Numerous pockets of resistance are being wiped out."

Stabbing Deep.

The spokesman said Gen. Montgomery's patrols were stabbing deep beyond the announced front lines in the direction of the communications centres of Compobasso and Vinchioture in the Matest Mountains.

Nowhere was the 8th Army meeting heavy and sustained resistance although the Germans fought a brief, sharp battle before relinquishing the ground overlooking Casacalenda.

Fifth Army Headquarters said both tanks and anti-tank guns on self-propelled mounts were joining the infantry in the drive across the flatlands criss-crossed by the small watercourses north of the Volturno and into the heights beyond which rise to 4,000 feet.

Engineers were throwing "every sort of bridge" across the Volturno for this flood of men and material, although the assault forces east of Capua were able to wade the stream almost at will.

Heavy fighting occurred around the town of Caiazzo, one mile north of the river where it makes a northern bend nine miles east of Capua.

But there, as well as nearer Capua, American troops had gained a toehold on the high ground and menaced the German left wing after gaining control of a road paralleling the river.

"Don't Know What I Would Have Done Without Syntona"

Recommends It Highly to All Friends and the Public. Says It Built Him Up and Gave Grand Relief from Stomach Gas, Indigestion, Dizziness and Constipation.

"I certainly was in bad condition if anybody ever was," said Mr. Holding, 47 Edgemont Avenue, Hamilton, Ont. "I had no appetite, couldn't get restful sleep at night, and lost so much weight that I hardly had enough energy to carry on my work. I was troubled with constipation and would get awful headaches and dizzy spells. I also had a lot of gas and bloating in my stomach and intestines and I felt so sluggish and tired-out that I actually thought I'd have to quit entirely.

"But it wasn't long after I started taking Syntona that I began to feel better and now after a couple months I believe I'm the happiest man because this medicine has given me REAL results. I've gained back several pounds of my lost weight, I have a good appetite for hearty meals with no trouble from gas, bloating, or distress in my stomach. My sluggish bowels are regular now and the relief this gave from headaches and those sickening dizzy spells is wonderful. I feel so much stronger and better in every way that I just want to tell every one about this medicine that has done so much for me."

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.—(Advt.)

Campbellford Council Protests Selective Service Raid

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 15 (ENS) — Further repercussions from the raid conducted here a week ago by Selective Service officials were heard at a special session of council last night. Though there was plenty of dissatisfaction among councillors for this town being chosen as the scene of a round up, the fact that local police had participated in the raid drew the principal criticism, and prompted council to take immediate steps to learn who was responsible for the preparation of the original list of persons ordered to report before the Board.

Mayor F. F. Long brought the matter to the attention of council by asking the clerk to read an article headed "Meilis Hopes to Avoid Raid" appearing in the October 9 edition of the Examiner. Pointing to the last paragraph in the article: "We hope . . . the young men (of Peterborough) will be patriotic enough to go and do their bit in war industry without having to be forced to do so", the Mayor declared that this appeared to reflect on the loyalty of Campbellford citizens. "That's a direct reflection on Campbellford", said he, adding he could not understand why this town should have been selected for a raid.

"I thought the government had a record of all these men", said Deputy Reeve MacMillan. "They have spent enough money on it at any rate. Why should they have to send policemen after them. I'll bet you can not find a half dozen men on the streets of Campbellford who are fit to work and are not employed."

"We should find out where Chief Hardy got his list of names", commented Councillor Taylor. "I think its the business of this council to know who gave him his instructions. They have got to be able to give a pretty good reason for commandeering our policemen."

"No body is blaming the police," said the Deputy Reeve, "all I want to find out is where they got their authority. I know there was a good deal of criticism of this raid."

The subject was closed with a motion made by Councillors Taylor and Mason, "that this council take steps to ascertain who gave the authority for the local police to bring men before the Selective Service officers in the raid made in Campbellford and that the said Board be written to, asking for the original list of names".

Balanced Budget

Providing taxes come in as expected and the Water and Light Commission grant is increased from $8,600 to $10,000 the town should have a balanced budget at the year's end according to Finance Chairman Calver. He gave a report on the budget showing the amount spent by various committees so far this year, and how much each had to carry on for the remainder of 1943. Relief, which had a balance of $259 of its $400 budget, and street oiling that cost $1,928.55 instead of $2,500 were the biggest savings. So far, a total of $42,232 of the $59,557 tax roll had been collected. With reference to the proposal that the town purchase a quantity of wood, the Reeve moved this expenditure be made a separate item from the current budget. His motion that whatever money was used be borrowed from the bank, and repaid as the wood was sold, carried.

According to Councillor Fowlds the town would have to apply for a license from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board if it intended to sell wood directly to the consumer. In his opinion the move to purchase wood was unnecessary, as he claimed there was no shortage here. He said it was merely a question of deliveries being slow.

Victory Loan Parade

Mayor Long brought up the question of the Victory Loan parade on October 23 which is scheduled to be headed by the R.C.A.F. brass band from Trenton. He recalled present plans were for members of the local Reserve Company and High School cadets to participate in the parade, and suggested that the usual procedure of the town's playing host to the bandsmen for dinner be followed. On motion the Mayor was authorized to make the necessary arrangements.

A lengthy discussion followed over the question of closing the Sunday midnight show in accordance with a request made by members of the local Ministerial Association at the October meeting. The matter had been left with the Legal Committee which had taken it up with the local operator of the theatre, who had in turn referred the question to the Toronto office. Legal Chairman Taylor said he had gone into the question and established that a by-law effecting the opening and closing hours of places of amusement had been passed on April 18, 1940. According to the by-law he had uncovered the theatre could not legally open from 11:30 Saturday night until 1 o'clock in the afternoon of the following Monday. Thus, it was pointed out, the machinery to close the theatre was in effect, and any citizen could file a complaint. The matter was settled with a motion instructing the legal committee to write the management instructing them of the by-law and asking that they conform to it.

Also on the agenda of the evening was the preparation of an anti-noise by-law, but this was turned over to the Legal Committee to bring in a report at the next meeting. It was felt that certain amendment could be made to the existing by-law covering the question.

Three by-laws were passed at the conclusion of the session. The first ratified the sale of Lots 18, 19, 20, 21 on the south side of Inkerman street to Harry W. Ayrhart; the second authorized the execution of an agreement between the town and Charles Bedford regarding the construction of a sidewalk and the providing of fill for this work by Mr. Bedford. The third amended the early closing by-law in conformance with a signed petition presented at the regular meeting. The only change made was that stores would be able to remain open till 10.30 on Tuesday evening the year around except during the months of January, February and March when Saturday would be the only 'open night'.

Babe Neary Overseas

Pte. Raymond Neary (Babe) has cabled his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Neary, 3 Edgewater Blvd., of his arrival overseas. He enlisted from the Raybestos six months ago and is serving with an Infantry unit, and is 19 years old. A brother, Vernon, who left the De Laval to join the Navy, arrived overseas at the same time.

Good Speaking Is Big Asset

One of the foremost attributes of leadership is the ability to speak effectively in public, it was said Thursday by Leonard M. Reilly of Toronto, president of the Reilly Lock Corporation in an address to the Kinsmen Club.

Mr. Reilly, who is the head of the Reilly Institute for Effective Speaking and was recently nominated the "Dale Carnegie of Canada" by the Toronto Globe and Mail, said that speech and power, the power to compel, convert and persuade large groups of men. More than ever, he felt, the world had become speech-conscious, and he pointed to the tremendous following Winston Churchill had gathered because of his unusual faculty for presenting ideas in addresses to the public.

"Whatever it is that we can do well, the ability to speak effectively will enable us to do better," Mr. Reilly said. "It is a power which helps us in our everyday life and business—in business, because we are engaged in the job of selling ideas."

Used In Business

He stated that many large corporations had realized the part that able speaking could perform in promoting harmonious relations between labor and management and for this reason had sent deputations of their foremen and supervisors to public-speaking schools in order that they might learn how to speak well and thus be able to relay the ideas of management to company employees.

"Speaking in public is a question of the right mental attitude," Mr. Reilly concluded. "If you think you can, you can, and there is nothing on earth that can stop you." He said that prominent leaders of service clubs were practically unanimous in asserting that the art of speaking did not come to a man as a gift, but was an acquirement.

The speaker of the day was introduced by William Osborne, and John Clark moved the vote of thanks.

"your if is the only peacemaker"

Shakespeare: "As You Like It" Act V. Sc. IV.

if has been the tragic word that overshadows a Europe in the dark. Every conquered country depended on IFS that failed. If they had the guns. If they had the planes. If they had the men to meet and stem the crush of Nazi tyranny. These were their "ifs". Now it's up to us. Our IF can count!

if we are going to back the mounting invasions...

if we are ready to do our share in shortening the war...

if we are willing to pledge dollars against lives and against peace...

if we set store by this Canadian way of life... if we want Victory... we'll buy Victory Bonds. Not just a single Bond. Not just as many as we feel we should buy. We'll buy more than we expected — if we want Victory.

if you do your share... it will certainly SPEED THE VICTORY!

Portugal Takes a Stand

Portugal has taken a stand, knowing full well that in doing so she runs the risk of reprisals from Germany. But because "our dignity and our interests may require that we end our neutrality" she has given Britain naval and air bases in the Azores which will be of the utmost value in policing the sea-lanes of the Atlantic.

The Azores lie at a point almost midway on the path from Newfoundland to Britain and to North Africa. Now that ships may put in there, and our planes re-fuel and re-fit there, the war against the submarines can be intensified to a pitch which will effectively neutralize the renewed German effort in that respect. The submarine is the most important single German weapon at the moment, and the Portuguese act will be a serious reverse for Hitler.

The decision of Portugal may have other effects, as well. Eire and Turkey may think it necessary to reconsider their neutrality. When the decision of a war seems clear there is always a rush on the part of the neutrals to put themselves right with the prospective winners. Portugal, an ally of Britain for 570 years, has made a handsome gesture, and one which she could not have dared to make if the issue of the war had been doubtful. When the peace conference comes, Portugal will expect—and justifiably—to be given preferential treatment. Turkey will also want favours, and if she expects to get them she will have to do something to earn them; Turkey has been growing more friendly toward the Allies for the past year, but so far she has taken no irretraceable step toward our side. As for Eire, she alone among the self-governing dominions of the British Commonwealth has remained aloof from this war, and has doubtless salved her ego by so doing. The use of Irish ports for anti-submarine work would have been a godsend to us when the Battle of the Atlantic was at its worst, but Eire did not see fit to grant that privilege, standing firmly upon her rights and doling out strict justice to both sides. Now Eire would suffer acute embarrassment if, after the war, Britain were to return her cold punctiliousness; like it or not, England is Eire's best market. Perhaps, belatedly, Eire will follow Portugal's lead and make a small contribution to an assured victory.

Portugal is a totalitarian state, governed at present by Dr. Salazar, who is as much a dictator as Hitler or Franco; he appears, however, to be thoroughly acceptable to his people, and it is unlikely that an Allied victory would disturb his regime in any respect. The suggestion of Berlin that he was bullied into his latest move by the British is sheer nonsense; the move is too obviously in the interests of Portugal for that lie to be acceptable.

Portugal, in fact, has made a shrewd move, for which we shall be grateful for many years to come, and for which we shall be willing to show our gratitude in tangible form if the need should ever arise. The oldest of Britain's friends has done a friendly act at just the right moment, and the consequences of that act may be even greater than are now foreseen.

Farewell To Toothache?

After several years of patient work the claim is now made that science has discovered a "resistant" to tooth-decay which, it is hoped, may be used in future to preserve the natural teeth unfilled, undrawn and uncrowned until they fall out in the course of old age.

The end of decaying teeth, and with it the end of all the agonizing toothaches of childhood — it is like a dream come true! For in spite of the advances in dentistry since the beginning of the century how many of us have not spent long hours nursing a toothache, due either to an obvious hole in the tooth, or to an invisible and even more painful cause. If future generations are to be spared that they will have been delivered from one of the most demoralizing and nerve-wracking of common ailments.

Toothache has never been better described than in Thomas De Quincey's Confessions of an English Opium Eater; De Quincey suffered from what he called "rheumatism in the face combined with toothache"—the result, it is now believed, of abcessed teeth. The pain, which he suffered, off and on, for ten years, he calls "a terrific curse" and he expatiates upon it in these expressive words: "Two things blunt the general sense of horror, which would else connect itself with toothache—viz., first, its enormous diffusion; hardly a household in Europe being clear of it, each in turn having some one chamber intermittingly echoing the groans extorted by this cruel torture. There — viz., in its ubiquity — lies one cause of its slight valuation. A second cause is found in its immunity from danger. This latter ground of undervaluation is noticed in a saying ascribed (but on what authority I know not) to Sir Philip Sydney—viz., that supposing toothache liable in ever so small a proportion of its cases to a fatal issue, it would be generally ranked as the most dreadful amongst human maladies; whereas the certainly that it will in no extremity lead to death, and the knowledge that in the very midst of its storms sudden changes may be looked for, bringing long halcyon calms, have an unfair effect in lowering the appreciation of this malady considered as a trial of fortitude and patience. No stronger expression of its intensity and scorching fierceness can be imagined than this fact—that, within my private knowledge, two persons, who suffered alike under toothache and cancer, have pronounced the former to be, on the scale of torture, by many degrees the worse. In both, there are at times what surgeons call 'lancinating' pangs — keen, glancing, arrowy radiations of anguish; and upon these the basis of comparison was rested —paroxysm against paroxysm—with the result that I have stated".

Having suffered in our time a full share of these "keen, glancing, arrowy radiations of anguish" we pronounce the discovery of a "resistant" to tooth decay as one of the great advances of medical science, to rank with antisepsis and anaesthesia. Happy will that day be when dentists can throw away their drills and picks, and devote themselves to treating teeth with the new preservative.

Flags, Pulpits And Good Taste

A clergyman, the Rev. D. L. Ritchie, has made public his objection to the use of the Union Jack as a pulpit drape, and he has been severely criticised on this account. We are in complete agreement with his point of view. We do not like to see the flag used as a drape for a pulpit, or a chairman's table at a public meeting, or for any such purpose; that is not what a flag is for.

Contrary to a large body of public belief, a flag is not an ornament, and its use for purposes of "decoration" should be approached with the utmost discretion. It is a symbol of special importance, evoking feelings which we should never degrade. The function of a flag is to fly proudly from a staff, and never to be bunched up and hung from a table or a pulpit.

Indeed, we feel that there are special reasons why a flag should not be hung on a pulpit. We like to think that God favours our side in this war, and will prosper the right, but to use the flag as a decoration in a place of worship is taking altogether too much for granted. A flag is a national emblem, and should not be linked in the minds of the public with that Kingdom which is not of this earth. However fervent the patriotism of a group of worshippers may be, they meet in church to testify to that fatherhood of God which includes our enemies as well as ourselves. Though many regiments hang their flags in churches for an excellent reason, the use of the Union Jack as a pulpit cloth is indefensible, as the Rev. Mr. Ritchie has so ably demonstrated.

The Toronto Star expresses the sensible view that one cause of juvenile delinquency is that too many Dads are Duds.

"Takes Years To Learn Japanese Language" says a headline. We'll have to get it across to them by some other means.

Says the London Free Press: "If they want another name for this global struggle they might call it the Subsidy War".

A report from Stockholm says that Mussolini is not expected to live more than six months. After which, we presume, he will become one of Rome's less glorious ruins.

Canada's New Order?

From the
WINNIPEG FREE PRESS

THERE has been great rage in the ranks of the C.C.F. over a suggestion made in these columns that the fundamental economic philosophy of the socialist state is not particularly different from that of the fascist state. Both are, and are bound to be, totalitarian. Both, in their nature, cannot brook opposition. Neither can be democratic. Further evidence on this point is to hand. The Canadian Forum, the organ of the intellectual wing of the C.C.F. indeed makes no bones about it. In a discussion of the planned economy of the future, after explaining the readiness with which the Canadian people will accept the fully socialized state, it outlines the treatment proposed for those who, after examination and test, do not care for it:

The residue of the abnormal—chronic idlers, shirkers and obstructors—would be dealt with, along with other mentally unfit persons in corrective institutions.

This has the great merit of frankness. In Germany, in Italy, in Japan and in Russia, where a totalitarian philosophy rules, such places were known as concentration camps. In Canada they are to be called "corrective institutions." A rose by another name....

THIS extraordinary revelation of C.C.C. thinking deserves close attention. We are to conform to New Order or we are to be marked off as abnormal persons and placed, with the mentally unfit, in corrective institutions. It is surely a happy way of dealing with difficult problems. A farmer, for instance, does not want to deliver his produce to the appropriate board under the plan laid down. Off with him to a corrective institution. He is an obstructor. This is what Stalin did with the kulaks ten years ago in Russia. A group of workmen, ordered to change jobs and residence under the plan, fails to comply. They are idlers and obstructors. Off with them to a corrective institution. They are abnormal. They are mentally unfit. What a magnificent weapon to have at hand should the great plan develop weaknesses and consequent unemployment. The fault will not be the fault of the planners and the plan. The fault is with the unemployed; and off they go to the corrective institutions, there to be dealt with as abnormal creatures who are mentally unfit.

DURING the depression of the 30's, when Canada was struggling for the first time with mass unemployment without either adequate experience or administrative machinery to help us, there were work camps to which many of the unemployed were sent. These were bad enough. But no government ever declared that these camps were populated by "the residue of the abnormal" who were mentally unfit. There was general recognition that the camps were stopgaps to be used only as a last resort, when all efforts to create adequate employment at adequate rates of pay had broken down. There was certainly no hypocritical assumption that the men in those camps were idlers or shirkers or obstructors. The camps were a frank governmental recognition of failure; and every responsible person looked forward to the day when they would be closed down and the men placed back in jobs.

But our socialist intellectuals have other ideas. The plan under which Canada is to be operated will be their plan. They provide themselves therefore with a prior alibi to explain whatever flaws may be found in it: and they provide themselves too with concentration camps in which to place the victims of their mistakes.

MEANWHILE they insist that their plan is to be fully democratic. It is to be, they say, not "their" plan but "our" plan. We, the people, are to form the plan and make it work. But, somewhere in every plan, there resides the power, the sanction, under which it will work; and this sanction will include concentration camps for those who idle, shirk or obstruct. And who will define the idlers, the shirkers and the obstructors? Who, of course, but the planners themselves. They alone know what the plan is. Nobody else does. And nobody else has the power to define the functions of each under the plan. To each his task, and if he does not like it, off he goes to a corrective institution. He is an idler, a shirker, an obstructor.

This, of course, is the final mockery of the C.C.F. protestations of its democracy. No socialist state can be democratic. Socialism and democracy contradict each other; and the English socialists are honest enough to admit it frankly. We can have one election to endorse the socialist plan. After that—no more such nonsense. No more possible interference with the decrees of the planners. If anyone attempts to do so, the solution is there: he is an idler, a shirker, an obstructor. He is abnormal. He is mentally unfit. Off with him to a corrective institution. And that is that.

Unconsidered Trifles

One of the best instances of absent-mindedness is told of a man who had dined with a friend one night. The next day he wrote to his friend as follows:

"I left my pipe at your lodgings yesterday; please send it back to me if you find it. P.S. — Never mind sending the pipe, as I have found it."

"Riches," said the teacher, as he was reading to his class, "take unto themselves wings and fly away. What kind of riches does the writer mean?"

Blank looks met his gaze.

"Surely someone can answer a question like that. You, Brown, what kind of riches did the writer mean?"

Brown hesitated for a moment, and then plunged. "Ostriches, sir."

A touring American go-getter noticed a lazy Indian chief lolling at the door of his wigwam somewhere out west.

"Chief," remonstrated the go-getter, "why don't you get a job in a factory "

"Why?" grunted the chief.

"Well, you could earn a lot of money. Maybe thirty or forty dollars a week."

"Why?" insisted the chief.

"Oh, if you worked hard and saved your money, you'd soon have a bank account. Wouldn't you like that?"

"Why?" again asked the chief.

"For goodness sake!" shouted the exasperated go-getter. "With a big bank account you could retire, and then you wouldn't have to work any more...."

"Not working now," pointed out the chief.—Tit-Bits.

LIFE'S DARKEST MOMENT

Washington Spotlight

(By J. F. SANDERSON, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (CP)—There is considerable dissatisfaction, especially among regular critics of the state department, with the mass of pre-war documents which State Secretary Cordell Hull's department made public this week.

The documents give a chronological story of world events from 1931 to 1941 at the end of which Japan attacked the United States. President Roosevelt once described this 1931-41 period as "a decade of international immorality."

The papers show that as early as November, 1933, Mr. Hull was convinced war would come in the next two or 10 years. The designs for world domination held by Germany, Italy and Japan were well known to the state department.

The critical question being flung now at Mr. Hull's head is: "Why were the American people not told by the government " When state archives give up their interred papers this same question is often asked. Shortly after the war started the British and French governments made public documents not greatly differently from those of the United States government. People asked the same question then.

CHEAP AIR FREIGHT

Texas fruit and vegetable growers are predicting that 500 to 1,000 cargo planes will leave the Rio Grande valley nightly for big eastern cities after the war, bearing perishable cargoes. A Diesel-motored plane recently flew from Texas to Washington at a fuel cost of $3.50.

Meanwhile, a Texas firm has applied for a licence to operate an aerial ambulance and funeral service. They plan to use helicopters.

HUCH-HUSH STUFF

A survey recently was made of real estate dealers, bankers, insurance companies and farmers in the American corn belt to get their opinions on rising farm land prices. The resulting report was distributed only to high government officials —and stamped with the notation that its contents were secret "within the meaning of the espionage act."

THE STASSEN CANDIDACY

Washington political circles believe that the candidacy of Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota in the Republican presidential primary in Nebraska is a false-front affair. They believe that his delegates, if he gets them, will be turned over to Wendell L. Willkie after the first ballot at the nominating convention.

Income Tax and Absenteeism

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

ORGANIZED labour has long supported the idea of securing revenues for national purposes by means of direct taxation of incomes above a certain level. It approves the policy of taxing according to ability to pay. By a strange reversal, owing to the exigencies of war, labour finds itself coming under the operation of that principle. With what result?

It has become notorious that workers are absenting themselves because if they work full time, or overtime, their additional earnings become subject to income tax payments.

Labour, not unjustifiably, has condemned in the past any attempts on the part of "the rich" to avoid making proper contributions to the national revenue. By what standard of ethics can it approve of workers deliberately avoiding a similar obligation when it is within their compass to add to the national revenues for war purposes? Isn't labour guilty of two offences in this respect —slowing up production so essential to the national war effort, and refusing opportunity to contribute towards financing it?

To refuse to work overtime on the ground that it was detrimental to personal health would be understandable. To refuse on the grounds already indicated can be hardly less reprehensible on the part of labour than labour itself would consider it to be on the part of its employers.

That the problem has become somewhat acute is indicated by an item which appeared on this page in our Thursday issues. The Manchester Guardian was quoted as commenting on the presence in England of Canada's Minister of National Revenue and his conference with the British Chancellor of the Exchequer regarding the "pay-as-you-go" income tax.

It said that "the one difficulty has been the taxation on odd weeks of overtime on high earnings, which had discouraged the workers," and that Col. Gibson was working on some adjustment so that tax rate shall be at the standard of ordinary earnings. Organized labour might perhaps like to give the Revenue Minister a hand in the solution of this problem, bearing in mind, of course, the obligation it has quite cheerfully sought to impose on others.

Some Reminders

(VANCOUVER PROVINCE)

"CHURCHILL, POLITICALLY MAD:"

—Voelkischer Beobachter, 1940.

"One day before Christmas, Winston Churchill, the man who is exclusively responsible for this war, went to the microphone and made a speech. It would have been understandable if, mindful of the blazing flames over Manchester, he had spoken to his own people and asked them to hold out. Instead, he addressed the Italian people and, made a dramatic appeal to the Italian nation to leave Mussolini.

"We openly confess we have overrated Churchill. We must now revise our judgment. With this speech Churchill has committed a capital blunder, which almost deprives him of the right to be taken seriously. At the very moment when the great work created by Mussolini in 18 years of untiring reconstruction has more than ever proved its strength in face of passing adversities, at a moment when the Italian people gather round their Duce in admirable unanimity, when the House of Savoy manifests its unity with Fascism. Churchill makes this attempt at an infinitely clumsy and infinitely silly fraternization.

"How idiotic and maladroit is this Churchill to try at all to righten the Italian people with dangers which exist only as an hallucination born in the insane brains of emigres."

(Article under the headline: "W. C. Politically Mad. Raving illusion to Separate the Italian People from the Duce;" in Voelkischer Beobachter, December 27, 1940.)

SICILY:

Joachim von Kuerenberg, wrote in his book, "Waffenstarrendes Mittelmeer," published in Zurich in 1939: "Sicily is the great fort barring access to Italy. It is 'the bridgehead of the Italian Empire' in the Mediterranean. Specialists call Sicily one single big fortress, a 'springboard of steel' from which the Duce, as he has more than once emphasized, intends to lead his Blackshirts across the sea."

"The British navy no longer rules the waves, but has, after three years of costly warfare, to take a back seat. Before the end of this war, it will be relegated to a place still further behind."

—Radio Breslau, September 9, 1942.

WHAT THE AXIS
SAID OF SICILY:

"You have seen with your own eyes the military apparatus grown up that protect the island on land, on sea and in the air. It would be sheer madness to think of an invasion of the island. Nobody will land here—not a single soldier."

—Mussolini, Palermo, Aug. 20, 1937.

"Sicily's fundamental function is to act as a bat man for Italy and the European continent itself."

—Messagero, March 31, 1943.

A Bible Message

Now Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour. And a certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple.....

Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk.... And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God....

And it came to pass on the morrow, that their rulers, and elders, and scribes, and Annas the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the kindred of the high priest, were gathered together at Jerusalem. And when they had set them in the midst, they asked, By what power, or by what name, have ye done this?

Then Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel, if we this day be examined of the good deed done to the impotent man, by what means he is made whole; be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you whole.

This is the stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner. (Acts 3: 1, 2, 6, 8; 4: 5-11.)

The Slow English

People have been trying to put the Englishman into type for many a year, never with entire success. A Canadian businessman just back from England has told us his version. It, too, is incomplete and by no means an entirely successful picture of the Englishman. But it may be added to the collection:

"I think that the Englishman's great strength is that he makes everyone else think he is a fool. They pretend to be ineffective and indifferent and all the while you are talking business with them you think to yourself that these fellows are decadent. Then when you go back to your hotel you think about the conversation and decide maybe they knew a thing or two. Two hours later you discover that you have talked too much and listened too little; and the following morning you awake to the realization that you were out-thought, out-manoeuvred and outclassed. They are an extraordinary people."

On Our Way

Where are we going? To Berlin. It is not for us to know by which route we shall travel. We may go through Italy or via the Balkans. We may land in Southern France, in Norway, in Denmark, on the coastline which confronts our own shores.

We may do all these things. But these are only stepping stones to the final goal. It is in Berlin itself that we intend to smash the German war machine and purge the German race. Three years ago we stood alone, stripped by Goliath of all but the sling and the smooth, round stone. But we were enabled to endure.

We were inspired to feats deemed impossible. The sling and the stone were once again enough. Now we attack, and the beast—apparently very strong, formidable and ferocious, yet possibly nearer the point of cracking than we think—is caged.—London Sunday Express.

FROM THE LUFTWAFFE FAMILY ALBUM:

"Not for one moment has the German Luftwaffe allowed the superiority over its opponents to pass out of its hands. What, on the other hand, can England send into action? Even taking the most favourable view of the British air arm for both attack and defence, one can not concede them any real chance in the fight against Germany. The coming spring will prove this before the whole world."

—National Zeitung, Essen, January 3, 1941.

400 Ghost Ships To Fight Nazi Domination

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 — (AP).— A ghost fleet of nearly 400 fighting ships, an armada mustered by the overrun nations of Europe, today sails to plague Hitler's dream of fortress Europe.

These ships range from battleships to torpedo boats. They are the remnants of pre-war fleets plus replacements and additions acquired through new construction or lend-lease from British and American sources.

British Admiralty figures in May listed 220 combatant ships and 4,700 officers and men in the conquered nations' navies. A year before their combined forces were estimated at 170 ships and 15,000 men on active service.

The Italian war declaration now puts at least 102 of its warships, including five battleships, on the side of the United Nations.

A Government spokesman here estimated the present strength of the French Fleet at more than 100 ships, among them two first line battleships. Active French naval personnel, he said, was approximately 20,000 men, with a reserve pool of 25,000.

The Netherlands Navy with 63 warships and more than 6,800 crewmen, has destroyed more than 300,000 tons of enemy shippings in operations on all seven seas since the war began.

To-day over 5,000 sailors operate 64 ships in the Norwegian Navy, whose nucleus was 13 ships able to escape to Britain three years ago out of a fleet of 40.

The Greek Navy, marked off as destroyed 30 months ago when the Axis blitz overran Hellas, now has 5,000 ships, ranging from destroyers to subchasers.

The Polish Navy consists of 11 warships, other than trawlers and corvettes, and a personnel of 2,700.

The Belgians have about 20 fighting ships and a reserve naval pool of about 4,000 men, a Government spokesman in New York said.

Navy Delivers Birthday Doll

SOUTH SHIELDS, England, Oct. 15 — (CP) — Five-year-old Pamela Scott received a big doll, beautifully dressed in bonnet and ribbons, from her father on her birthday, but only because the Royal Navy and Merchant Navy teamed up to ensure delivery on time.

Her father, R. S. Rouse, a merchant navy captain, bought the doll during his travels, but realized half-way across the Atlantic that he would not reach home in time. Sight of escorting destroyers gave him an idea and he signalled one: "Are you going to......."

Surprised at this unorthodox question, the escort vessel closed in and had the situation explained over the megaphone. "Send me the doll over," said the commanding officer, "I'll see what can be done."

A line was fired from the destroyer and the doll transferred. The destroyer raced off and soon overtook another merchantman. After another explanation the doll was again transferred and taken to its destination.

DR. THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Constable Held On Manslaughter

KENTVILLE, N.S., Oct. 15 (CP)— A charge of manslaughter was laid late yesterday against Constable Geoffrey Price of the Kentville police force, following an inquiry into the death of 23-year-old Frances Conrad of nearby Fort Williams. Miss Conrad died in hospital yesterday morning from a bullet wound in her abdomen after being found shortly after midnight on the stairway of the building where the constable lived.

The inquiry resulted in a verdict stating the girl's death was the result of the "accidental discharge of a bullet from a revolver which had fallen on the stairway in the constable's home."

Dr. T. A. Patrick, Kentville, a witness at the inquiry, told the jury that a statement made by the girl before she died cleared the constable of any direct blame in the shooting. He said that the girl told doctors "the shooting was an accident, and that the gun went off after falling out of the constable's pocket as he climbed the stairway two steps at a time."

The constable was remanded in jail until Friday when a preliminary hearing into the shooting will be held here.

Airman Averts Panic

QUEBEC, Oct. 15 (CP) — Sgt. Roger O'Brien, R.C.A.F. Wireless Air Gunner, helped avert a panic yesterday when a street car in which he was riding caught fire. Frantic passengers tried to force open an automatic door at the rear of the car and smashed windows in an attempt to escape. O'Brien quietly made his way to the jammed door, pried it open and allowed the passengers to leave.

Stove Prices Clarified

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 (CP) — The Prices Board issued last night an order which it said was aimed at clarifying maximum price regulations for used stoves, ranges and other cooking or heating appliances. The new order, which became effective Oct. 12, consolidates three previous orders issued by Used Goods Administrator S. Godfrey.

Safer At War

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—(AP). — There are no foxholes in Chicago's loop, but a sergeant and two privates disappeared suddenly while walking along South Dearborn Street. The soldiers suffered minor injuries when a 10-foot section of sidewalk caved in, dropping them about eight feet into an excavation.

RAY P. BEST NAMED PRESIDENT OF ONTARIO CURLING ASSOCIATION

40 Years Since This Honor Came To City

At the seventieth annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association, held yesterday afternoon at the Granite Curling Club, Toronto, Ray P. Best, one of the oldest and best known members of the Peterborough Curling Club was elected president of that Association for the 1943-44 season.

R. R. Evans, Hamilton Thistle Club, 1st vice-president and W. L. MacKenzie, Midland Club, 2nd vice-president.

It is well over 40 years since this honor has come to the Peterborough Club and only twice since the association was formed in 1875. In 1890-91 the late Dr. R. P. Baucher was president and in 1901-02, the late E. B. Edwards, K.C. was president.

Member 34 Years

In electing Ray Best as president the Association made no mistake. For 34 years he has been a member of the Peterborough Club and as an expert curler is well known from one end of the province to the other.

He has always taken a keen interest in sport, with curling probably coming first. He has been a member of the association executive for many years and last year was first vice-president. He is at present a member of the executive of the Peterborough club.

And his activities in curling are not confined alone to Peterborough. He has for many years been a regular entry at the Ontario open bonspiel and on many occasions has come home with the silverware; only last season he skipped his rink to win one of the major trophy's at the annual mixed bonspiel held at the Granite club.

Won Ontario Cup

Many years ago he skipped one of the two rinks that brought fame to our club by winning the Ontario district cup championship. And then just a few years ago he also skipped a rink that helped to bring to Peterborough, the Burden Trophy, second only to the Ontario Tankard. He has for several years been on the rink that has represented our club in the Ontario Tankard.

As one speaker said yesterday, Ray, as president will not only make a good representative for Eastern Ontario, but all of Ontario. In his election he has not only brought honor to himself, but to our city and our club. We join with the citizens of Peterborough and with all curlers in particular and extend our heartiest congratulations.

Other local curlers who attended the annual meeting were Representative W. M. Cruthers, J. W. Richmond and H. R. Martin.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

John Katan has had better luck in getting a return bout with Gentleman Jack Clayborne than the colored flash had when he wanted another chance with the Panther after Katan had defeated him on a doubtful decision in their first meeting here. The Palermo grappler flatly refused to give Clayborne another match and it was not until official pressure was put on Katan that he finally reluctantly agreed to battle Black Dynamite again. Clayborne took the honors on that occasion and Katan did the squawking about the final decision and demanded another chance. As a result of his good showing against Earl McCready the other night the Panther is getting what he asked for. Promoter Frank Tunney has matched the pair for next Tuesday night and has extended the main-bout time limit to an hour and a half so that the rivals will have every chance to do their stuff. With an opportunity for a title bout with Whipper Bill Watson, present holder of the British Empire title, awaiting the winner, Clayborne and Katan will have every incentive for giving all they have and the clash should be full of fireworks all the way. Peterborough fans are pulling strongly for the Black Comet. They are anxious to see the fast-moving colored boy in action against Whipper Watson for the champ gets around pretty smartly himself and a clash between the two would be plenty lively.

Dave Leether, recently re-elected president of the Peterborough Carpet Ball League, announces that there is a welcome on the mat for any new teams who are anxious to break into the league this season. The league officials would particularly like to hear from the Military Training Centre and to greet a team or two from the local camp. Already eight or nine clubs have signified their intention of competing this season and it is hoped to run the membership up to at least 14 clubs before the campaign gets under way. The entries close on October 23 and there will be a meeting of the league on October 26 to pass on the new applications and to draw up the schedule for the season. Before the time limit expires it is hoped to have at least a half dozen more clubs enrolled. At the organization meeting held a short time ago the old officers of the league were re-elected with Dave Leether persident of the organization and George Groombridge again officiating at secretary.

Fireworks Likely

The Ottawa Journal evidently looks for plenty of action when the Hamilton Wildcats invade the Capital tomorrow. Apparently the Combines took quite a ride in Hamilton and reprisals would seem to be the order of the day according to the following comment lifted from the Journal: "Combines came back from their week-end jaunt to Hamilton and Toronto quite riled about the officiating offered in their game with Wildcats....From what you hear from the Ottawa players there was no love lost at any time during the struggle....Combines' complaint was based on what they claim was the officials' failure to check upon the piling on of infractions....They were highly satisfied with the work of arbiters in the Toronto game, but criticism was general over the handling of the tilt at Hamilton....From all reports Bob Fulton hung his "Sunday punch" on big Abe Zvonkin during a melee that almost became general....The aroused Fulton kept going and landed one on Referee Seymour Wilson when the latter held him....Seymour did not report the incident....Combines figure they were beaten badly enough after half-time by a really strong Hamilton squad, but the boys are anxious to tangle again with them....Unless a lot of minds are changed it may not be any pink tea party at Lansdowne on Saturday."

Says Doug Vaughan in the Windsor Star: "The way the World Series was doped it was supposed to be power-hitting and pitching—by the Yanks—opposed to speed and youth—by the Cards. That's not the way it turned out. The Yanks, it is true, did get the pitching and displayed some semblance of power-hitting. The Cards may have had the youth, but if they did possess any speed, they certainly kept it well hidden. But the fact still remains that two diametrically opposed farm systems provided the raw product for the two clubs which just finished drawing the curtain on the 1943 major league season. The Yankees built up their parent club with rookies who can turn on the power; the Cardinals have always made a fetish of speed on the spike. Until the war came along, you had to be at least five feet, 11 inches tall to become a Yankee. But when the crop grew scarce the height limit was lowered and the Roly Weatherlys and Phil Rizzutos began to appear in the New York lineup. In contrast Branch Rickey, the man who made the Cardinals, and the inventor of the farm system, always did favor slim, fast youngsters. Babe Ruth, of course, started the Yankee search for big men."

Detroit Looks Good

If some one came along with a shotgun and ordered us to name the winner of the N.H.L. this season this column believes that right off the reel the answer would be the Detroit Red Wings. Admittedly the whole setup is a gamble and at the present writing it is not possible to even guess what some of the lineups will be. But Jack Adams' Red Wings start out with a distinct advantage over their opposition for they have managed to salvage a larger percentage of their regulars than other clubs have succeeded in doing. The rotund Adams has, as a matter of record, nine of the old guard ready for the coming campaign. He has the veteran forward line of Syd Howe, Carl Liscombe and Mud Bruneteau intact as well as the Brown-Carveth-Jennings trio, giving him two good attacking divisions all ready for action. Cully Simon and Hal Jackson are still available for defence with Jimmy Franks in the nets and Normie Smith and Johnny Sherf both trying to beat him out of the goalie job. Compared to the lineups expected by other N.H.L. clubs the Red Wings look like sure fire champs, unless the young talent depended upon by some of the other outfits turns out to be better than expected.

The election of Ray P. Best of Peterborough as president of the Ontario Curling Association will be popuarly received not only here but throughout the whole district. The new president has been a life-long curler, one of the finest exponents of the game in this section of Ontario and a real sportsman in every sense of the word. Ray Best, on the ice and off, has lived up to the best traditions of the ancient and honorable pastime. He has been a faithful member of the Ontario body for years and his elevation to the highest office in the gift of the Association has been richly earned. He has done much for curling both as a player and an executive.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The return of Bucky Harris to the International League to manage the Buffalo Bisons is at least an indication that there will be an International League next season...Bryan Hextall is slated to re-join the Rangers this winter which hardly comes under the heading of good news for N.H.L. goalies....Whipper Watson lost his bout to Champion Bill Longson last night for taking a punch at Referee Jack Sharkey after he had been warned by the official....Now there is a story that Bill Terry may land with the Brooklyn Dodgers as manager. That would be a strange twist of fate....Russ Johnson of the Hamilton Majors must have plenty on the ball....He struck out 20 of the Toronto Peoples in a senior playoff game yesterday and yet was beaten 5 to 3....There has been no action yet on the application of the Halifax Navy squad to enter the Grey Cup series.

Senate Policy Poor

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 15—(AP)—Sir Gerald Campbell, British Minister to the United States, said yesterday no real good could come from the type of disclosures and attendant publicity which marked the recent secret senate sessions at which five senators reported on their tour of world battle-fronts. Those Senators, Sir Gerald said in an interview, should either discuss their findings publicly or prevent a "leakage of only the sensational."

Wildcats, RCAF Have Jinx On Other Teams

By EDDIE LEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Tin Pan Alley usually knows how to put the idea across and the way a song plugger would say it, Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes and Hamilton Flying Wildcats are the "stardusters" of the Ontario Rugby Football Union this season.

Both clubs are unbeaten and the other four teams are "crying the blues" in whatever key suits the whim of the leaders, who shoot for their fifth victories on Saturday. Hurricanes meet Toronto Indians at Varsity Stadium while Cats travel to Ottawa for a return engagement with Combines, whom they flattened 29-3 last week.

The Toronto game could shape the season's big upset, given a lift by their 14-13 victory over Toronto Navy last Monday, Indians are confident they can match their feat of last season when they handed Hurricanes the only defeat the Airmen suffered all year.

"It's all or nothing at all for us Saturday," Coach Earl Selkirk said. "We have quite a few cripples but the boys say we'll only need one team out there to beat the airmen. The fellows are really going to give."

Selkirk said snapback Bud Kuntz is definitely out and Jimmy Cumming, star running back, is a doubtf·l starter.

Coach Ross Trimble was less sanguine about the Hurricanes. "Things don't look bright at all," he said. "We're down to two reserve linemen and expect to lose a couple more next week."

Stukus Missing

Trimble disclosed that PO. Bill Stukus, who starred with Hurricanes Monday in their 15-3 conquest of Combines, will not play Saturday. Stukus, who played a big part in leading Flyers to the Dominion title last season, was on leave from his R. C. A. F. east station last week.

Hamilton will be at least two men short for their clash with Ottawa. Snapback Bill O'Breza and outside Dick Groom still being on the injured list. Otis Gibb, stationed at the R.C.A.F. school at Ancaster, Ont., is a likely backfield replacement.

Combines, beaten in all five of their league appearances, will be weakened by the loss of Jake Gaudaur, ace middle wing who suffered torn shoulder tendons against Wildcats last Saturday and aggravated the ailment Monday against Hurricanes. Gaudaur is out for the season.

An Ottawa newcomer will be Eddie Poscavage, who played last season with Hurricanes.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)— The story keeps bobbing up that the major league baseball tour to the Pacific was called off because the baseball folks were too hasty about announcing their plans before the War Dept. gave its okay. . . . But the best authority we can dig up (he had a hand in the arrangements and would have made the trip) says it ain't so. . . . Every announcement was approved before it was made and the real difficulty was arranging an itinerary that would give the service men a chance to see the major leaguers without taking the ball player right into the front lines. . . . Mike Jacobs has virtually completed negotiations to take over the old St. Nick's Club . . . Wonder if he's starting a farm system or just can't get enough scrappers who can fill the Garden?

From Pad to Worse

Harry (Swede) Dahlberg, now in his 22nd year as Butte, Mont., high school football coach, couldn't figure out how Sophomore Tommy Tracy always managed to be the first player on the practice field when some of the fastest backs Swede Ver had coached often arrived only in time for a scorching lecture, five laps around the field and a quick shower . . . When he investigated, Dahlberg learned that Tommy got a head start by wearing his shoulder pads and jersey to late afternoon classes.

One Minute Sports Page

It may be a tipoff on the Brooklyn situation that the Phillies' Bill Cox was able to get the Dodgers' No. 1 scout, Ted McGrew, merely by making him a good offer. . . . Bill figures that a replacement for McGrew would be "about the $32 question" for Branch Rickey—the $64 item being a manager . . . and a lot of folks might thinks that figures represent the salaries Branch is offering. . . . Down-state Illinois sports editors rubbed their eyes and demanded a recheck last Saturday when the AP wires carried a prep football score: Salem 184, Fairfield 0. . . . The recheck was made and the Salem correspondent reported: "We have audited the score again and now find we were wrong. It was really Salem 188, Fairfield 0." . . . Fullback Don Wile of Salem made 13 touchdowns and 10 extra points.

Gives Up Job

Bout Means Plenty For Winner

The renewal of the Katan-Clayburne feud on the Brock Arena mat on Tuesday promises the sharpest and most exciting action yet seen here. Katan and Gentleman Jack are now fifty-fifty each with a win and Tuesday night they tangle for the "rubber" bout. But this time the time-limit has been extended to an hour-and-a-half and a definite decisive win certain. The tension between the Negro wrestler and John "the Killer" Katan has grown steadily ever since their first bout here several months ago. With Katan dodging a return go, and then finally being forced into it, Clayborne evened matters a week ago last Tuesday with a display of superb power in the last round that had the Palermo Ukrainian a most distressed wrestler. The bout on Tuesday has official recognition as an elimination for Whipper Watson's Empire title and besides the grudge angle, has plenty of reasons for resulting in an all-out effort by both of the big grapplers.

CENTRAL LOSES SOCCER LEAGUE POINTS TO QUEEN MARY ELEVEN

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 15—(CP)—Toronto comments on Quebec's challenge for a berth in the Canadian Rugby Union playoffs are not calculated to smooth the fur down Montreal way. Hal Walker of the Toronto Globe and Mail comments that the Quebec Union must be willing to toss its $250 affiliation fee down the drain and adds: "One thing is sure, none of the four teams constituting the Quebec Senior series...will have strength comparable to say, R.C.A.F. Hurricanes, Hamilton Wildcats or Balmy Beach." ...We hear, incidentally, that the west will not send a picked team into the final as they did last fall when the Winnipeg teams were combined into an all-star squad. This year the western winner will enter the Grey Cup game without further adornment.

For Crying Out Loud:

Reg Threlfall is one of the most illustrious graduates of the college of crying coaches. We note where his Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers have gone three games without defeat, scored 51 points against their opponents' eight, yet Threlfall wails plaintively: "There isn't more than a touchdown diference between any of the three teams in the league." Yeah? See you at the Grey Cup game, Reg!

They Do Say:

Sam Maltin of the Montreal Herald reports Neil Colville is seeking a transfer to the R.C.A.F. So many famous hockey stars have enlisted in the Army this year, maybe Neil figures he couldn't catch a place on an army team...Don't look now, Neil, but it may be tough in the air force, too. Some of the Airmen posted at Lachine, Que., Manning Depot are Jack Stewart, Syd Abel, Harry Watson, Pat McReavy, Ken Mosdell, Bobby Lee. Maybe Colville "should of stood" in Ottawa...Harry Scott of the Calgary Albertan says the duck hunters can hardly wait until after the war so they can buy amphibious jeeps in which to chase the ducks. Why not go all the way and instal wings, machine guns and a bartender?

Shinny Shavings

It will seem like old times around Montreal this winter. The Royal Juniors will include Howie Morenz, Jr., Don Smith and Cliff Malone. Malone is a nephew of Joe Malone who set the all-time N.H.L. scoring record of 44 goals in 22 games with Quebec Aces in 1918. Smith's father came out of Cornwall, Ont., to star with Montreal Wanderers and Canadiens. And Morenz? Seems we've heard that name before!

An Old Injury

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Army eleven has lost the services of Backfielder Doug Kenna, one of the most outstanding of cadets, through a recurrence of a knee injury and will be missing in the game Saturday against Columbia. Kenna, who means plenty to the Soldiers, is expected to recover in time for the Navy game.

Final Score 2-1; Marksmanship Poor Near Goal

Central went down to defeat for the second time on Thursday afternoon on King Edward Park, when Queen Mary got a 2-1 lead to get two valuable points in the league. The losers were more aggressive, but failed around goal time and aagin. Bradley was the winners' marksman.

First Half.

All within a minute, Central was up a goal, and felt confident of holding the lead and went on easy street as Queen Mary forwards kept hammering away at Central goal, and finally Fowler mastered the situation by checking closely the over-anxious opposition to send Butcher away on the right. He centred the ball across to Bradley, who made no mistake with the equalizer. At this point Central were on the offensive for the remainder of the period which brought out the excellent qualities of the Queen Mary defence that held up to the steady pressure until the interval.

Half-time: Central 1, Queen Mary 1.

Second Half.

On resuming, both teams settled down to a combination that was fruitful, with plenty of action around the goals. Time and again Central would break fast inside the full backs to test the goalie with drives into his arms, instead of shooting the ball away from him. After keeping up the pressure Nicholls frustrated a dangerous raid to punt the ball up the centre where Bradley connected quickly and rattled in the winning counter. Thereafter, Central again went on the offensive to find the Queen Mary defence checking closely or kicking to touch to safeguard their citadel. During the last ten minutes Central bombarded the winners' goal from all angles, but their marksmanship was right off.

Queen Mary 2, Central 1.

Goal scorers: Central, J. Dormer; Queen Mary, Bradley 2.

Bucky Harris To Lead Buffalo

By WATSON SPOELSTRA
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT, Oct. 15—(AP)—Stanley Raymond Harris, the old American League trooper who didn't last a full season in the National League, has prepared the way to return to the junior circuit by signing to manage Buffalo of the International League in 1944.

Buffalo is the principal minor league affiliate of the Detroit Tigers, and the studied reaction here to Harris' latest baseball move, announced yesterday in Buffalo, is that he may return to an important role in the Detroit organization. Harris managed the Tigers five seasons before Mickey Cochrane replaced him in 1934. Aside from polishing its best playing talent there, Detroit has made Buffalo a managerial proving ground. Steve O'Neill, who just finished his first season as Tiger pilot, managed Buffalo three years and Al Vincent spent two years there before Detroit moved him up as O'Neill's aide.

The Tigers have made no announcement on O'Neill's future but they are believed to be planning to sign him for 1944 at the major league meetings in Decembers.

Bucky Harris, now nearly 47 years old, came to Detroit 15 years ago from Washington, where he had made fame as the "boy manager." The Tigers got him in exchange for Shortstop Jack Tavener and immediately appointed him as successor to Manager George Moriarty.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

By The Canadian Press

Uncertainty prevails with Montreal Canadiens over player prospects for the coming N.H.L. season, it was revealed last night by a club spokesman in announcing that practices would start next week with evening drills being featured to enable war workers on the roster to be present. Exhibition games were scheduled at Cornwall Oct. 22 and at Quebec City Oct. 24. The official said he was in no position to discuss the composition of the team. There was the prospect that Montreal and Toronto would see better N.H.L. hockey, it was stated, because the home teams would be able to use players who could not make long trips because of war occupations.

At Winnipeg Manager Lester Parrick of the New York Rangers watched four regulars and 20 rookies in the pre-season workouts—and complained at the lack of material, saying that, of all the N.H.L. teams, the Rangers had been hit hardest. In the past three seasons, the club had lost 28 men to the armed forces, he added. Boston Bruins appeared to be fortunate in still having an assortment of veteran players, Chicago Black Hawks seemed to be well supplied while Detroit Red Wings had an extensive farm system from which to draw recruits and replacements.

Nickel Belt Ball

In a see-saw battle, Copper Cliff Redmen came through with a 7-6 win over Kirkland Lake All Stars at Sudbury last night to make the game standing two to one in the best-of-five series for the Northern Ontario baseball crown. Normie Hann starred at bat for the Cliffers with four hits in five appearances.

As quickly as they lose them, Regina Rough Riders pick up new football hoofers. Last night it was announced two new backfielders, Lieut. Ken Preston and ACl. Frank Mathers, both with Winnipeg last year, had been signed. They succeeded Al Rittinger and George Beach who have flitted to pro hockey camps.

In his worry about puckchasers, Manager Lester Patrick of the New York Rangers declared last night at the club's training camp in Winnipeg it was very unlikely any exhibition games could be arranged before the team opens the N.H.L. season in Toronto.

Ted McGrew, former umpire and a scout with the Brooklyn Dodgers until the close of the 1943 season, has been signed by the Philadelphia club of the National League as a talent-chaser.

Sure Of Himself

Predicting his own success as a gridiron star before he signed with Texas Aggies, Stanley (Bing) Turner has lived up to his own specifications. He leads the Southwest Conference in scoring, punting yardage and ground gained. He has scored four touchdowns and nine converts.

Gift Line, Charlie Barrett's pacer from Parkhill, won the 2:19 trot or pace at Wallaceburg yesterday in straight heats, his fastest time being 2:10. Rip Harvester, the Niagara Falls entry, scored three wins in the free-for-all, his best being 2:09.

A crowd of more than 13,000 saw Cap Cod, Maryland stake horse, take the ninth running of the W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap yesterday at Pimlico, taking the $7,500 purse by two-and-a-half lengths over Quien Es of the Calumet Farms. He paid $10 for $2.

Flyweight Champ

The National Boxing Association announced last night at Paterson, N.J., the recognition of Jackie Patterson of Great Britain as the acknowledged flyweight champion of the world in sucession to Little Dado of the Philippines who had not fought in this class for two years.

In the first game of the O.A.S.A. senior provincial playoffs at Hamilton last night, Toronto won 5-3 from the home-towners despite the pitching performance of Russell Johnson in fanning 20 of the visitors. Cam Eclestone, for Toronto, struck out nine.

President Ed Barrow of the New York Yankees was well enough yestreday to receive visitors in the New Rochelle, N.Y. hospital to which he has been confined for a week with arthritis and a heart ailment. His first callers were Manager Joe McCarthy and Scout Paul Krichell of the Yankees.

Benny Grant, Veteran Goalie Irked By Rookie Styles

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 15—(CP)—Veteran Benny Grant, burning with rookie-like ambition to gain a netminding berth with Toronto Maple Leafs which eluded him 12 years ago when Lorne Chabot took over, says goaltending today has become "a job for a magician."

Ask the Owen Sound, Ont., athlete for an explanation and he'll tell you:

"It's the youngsters. They don't seem to have any rhyme or reason in their shooting."

Grant started his hockey climb in 1926-27 when he helped Owen Sound Greys defeat Port Arthur for the Dominion junior crown with only six regulars and two subs. He never quite reached the hockey heights and when he ended the 1941-42 season with St. Paul of the Amercian Association Benny thought he was through with hockey.

He was only on skates once last winter and that was as a referee. But this year when the call came from Coach Happy Day of Leafs Grant responded quickly.

Cooling out from his fourth practice session at the Leafs' National League training camp here, Grant had no illusions about his comeback attempt.

"I know what I'm up against," he said. "I'm bad on my feet. It's going to take me at least two weeks to find my balance.

"But I'm really giving this chance the old college try."

Strenuous workouts are in orders of the day at the Leafs training camp here.

Coach Day, who arrived Tuesday with 29 players—old and new—today said he expected to add two more veterans to the roster.

Leafs open the N.H.L. season in Toronto Oct. 30, against New York Rangers.

The two veterans are Walter (Babe) Pratt, who came to Leafs last season from Rangers in a trade for Hank Goldup and Red Garrett, and Mel Hill of Saskatoon. Both have been turned down by the army and are expected here next week.

Quality Drops On Toronto Cattle Market

TORONTO, Oct. 15 — (CP). — Cattle prices dropped 25 cents a cwt. on all grades below choice, in trade on the livestock market here this week. Lambs were down 25 to 50 cents cwt. and sheep were down 50 cents cwt. Calves and hogs were steady.

The cattle supply was fairly heavy and the quality generally not attractive. A few choice weighty steers sold at $12 with others from $11.75 downward to $10. Butcher steers and heifers were generally $9.50 to $10.75 with tops $11. Butcher cows closed at from $8.50 downward; bulls $7 to $9.25; fed yearlings $11.75 to $13.60. Boning steers and heifers $7 to $9; stockers slow, $8 to $11 with stock calves up to $13.50. Good milkers and springers steady $130 to $160 each.

More slaughter cattle and stockers of better quality could have been sold at steady prices, the Dominion Marketing Service reported, but there was an accumulation of plain cattle from day to day with around 1,000 head unsold at the close.

Calves were unchanged $15 to $15.50 for choice with common vealers downward to $10. Grassers mostly $8 cwt.

A heavy run of sheep and lambs weakened the market. Lambs closed $12 to $12.50 for good ewes and wethers. Bucks were $1 cwt. discount and culls $9 to $10. The offering of sheep was heavier than normal in volume and prices dropped to a top of $7.50 cwt. for best, light ewes with culls downward to $4. About 3,000 feeding lambs and breeding ewes, from the Moose Jaw, Sask., sales passed through the Toronto Yards this week.

Hogs sold at $16.65 to $16.85 off trucks at local packing plants and generally at $16.75 on the yards; sows $14.25 to $14.75 dressed.

Greeks Airfields Hit

It was announced here that the British troops which swept into Cascalenda had advanced six miles to take the town.

In attacking the Argos airfield, in Greece, the medium bombers maintained the air assaults into the Balkans which have increased since captured Italian fields have been put to use.

In the Pescara area, where the heavy bombers attacked railways along the Adriatic coast between Pescar and Giulianova to the north, fighter - bombers destroyed three enemy planes, an air communique said.

In other widely-scattered air attacks, light bombers attacked rail junctions and highways near Formia and motor and railway communications in other areas.

In the central portion of the front Allied arms were also forging ahead and today Radio France at Algiers quoted semi-official sources as saying the key road centre of Vinchiaturo had been captured. Vinchiaturo is approximately eight miles west of Gildone, capture of which was announced yesterday.

(The Cairo radio said today the 8th Army has pushed eight miles beyond the important highway centre of Vinchiaturo.)

Also, Radio France told of increasing indications of German nervousness regarding the Italian campaign, broadcasting a report that the Nazis have ordered evacuation of civilians from the entire western coast of Italy north of Ostia in anticipation of possible further Allied landings.

Ostia is at the mouth of the Tiber River about 10 miles southwest of Rome.

Later German broadcasts, asserting that "flying commanders which set out early this morning are constantly finding more wreckage" claimed 123 American aircraft were shot down. Fourteen German fighters were lost, it was said.

Five four - engined American bombers made forced landings near Munich, it was added in the broadcast which asserted "great confusion" was caused among the Fortress formations by the "new smoke screen rockets" of the German defence which caused some bombers to collide in the artificial fog.

There was no indication, however, that the German 17th Army was preparing to withdraw from its precarious position in the Crimea. On the contrary, the Germans apparently intended to try to hold the peninsula at all costs.

Line Breached

Far to the north, a Russian communique said, Red Army tank corps have forced a new breach in the German lines above embattled Kiev and have smashed three Nazi divisions on the west bank of the Dnieper in fighting on both flanks of the Ukrainian capital.

Gomel, another German defence base on the edge of lower White Russia, also face imminent capture by Soviet forces. Red Army spearheads were closing in on the Sozh River stronghold from the north and south.

The mounting toll of German dead by nearly 10,000 in yesterday's major engagements, the Russians said. In addition, 61 German tanks and 105 guns were destroyed in all sectors, while the quantity of abandoned war equipment gathered in by the Russians rose to tremendous proportions, the Soviet bulletin said.

Capture of Zaporozhe, one of the enemy's "decisive strongpoints" on the Lower Dnieper, was saluted by Premier Joseph Stalin in another special order of the day. Twenty artillery salvoes from 224 guns boomed out the news of the victory to Moscow's jubilant population.

There was no indication that Rommel would personally take over the Balkan command. It was indicated he would probably act in a supervisory capacity.

Toronto Poultry

TORONTO, Oct. 15 — (CP). — The dressed poultry market has steadied somewhat after Thanksgiving trading, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports. In between the rally and the parade the Pipe Band were guests of the Capitol Theatre, which had extended them an invitation to see the movie showing there. The Pipe Band will again play at the Victory Loan dinner in the Genelco Cafeteria this evening at 6.15.

BURIED AT DOURO

The funeral Thursday of Arthur Devlin of Otonabee to St. Joseph's Church, Douro, was largely attended by friends from district and also from the city. Pall bearers were: Augustus Whibbs, Jr., William Torpey, Percy Davidson, and Wallace Brealey, William O'Leary and Emmet Fitzgerald. The funeral Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. McCarthy. Burial was in Saint Joseph's Cemetery.

MUSIC MAKER.

Harrison Randall of Fredericton, N.B., who is known as the cycling rhythm maker" because he has covered 4,500 miles through the Dominion since 1942 playing music for Canadian soldiers, will be in the city over the week-end to entertain servicemen stationed here. Sponsored by the Canadian Legion War Services, he volunteered to do this work since he was unable to join the Army himself. He has a remarkable repertoire of 1,800 selections, playing entirely by ear as he cannot read a note of music.

Gerald McCurrie 30 Months Drowns In River

Falling into the Otonabee River at the foot of Hilliard Street, shortly before six o'clock Thursday evening, Gerald McCurrie, 2½ year-old son of Sergt. Bernard McCurrie, R.C.A.F., Trenton and Mrs. McCurrie was found floating in the river shortly afterward and all attempts at resuscitation failed.

The little boy and his mother were visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Starr, of 861 Water street. While preparations for tea were being made late yesterday afternoon Gerald slipped out of the house unnoticed. His absence was soon discovered and inquiries were being made around the neighborhood when the family's pet collie dog was seen coming from the direction of the river, with water dripping off him.

The search changed to the river bank and the body of the boy was seen 25 feet from shore. A fifteen-year-old boy, Walker Jary, Hilliard street, brought the little fellow to shore in a boat.

A fire alarm brought the fire department to the scene in a hurry and firemen assisted by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure commenced artificial respiration efforts immediately. Later the inhalator was used in an attempt to resuscitate the boy. Constables Harold Mesley and Gordon Trennum of the city police called doctors and Drs. H. V. Dobson and W. S. Fitzpatrick responded. All efforts failed, however, and the little lad was pronounced dead at shortly after 7 o'clock. It was thought he could not have been in the water more than 25 minutes.

The boy's father Sergt. McCurrie was on his way home from Trenton on leave when the tragedy occurred.

Gerald was the only child of Sergt. and Mrs. McCurrie.

The funeral of Gerald Lloyd McCurrie, 2½-year-old son of Sgt. and Mrs. L. B. McCurrie of 861 Water street, who was drowned in the Otonabee river at 6 p.m. Thursday, will be held on Saturday at 2.30 p.m. from the Belleghem Funeral Home to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

Ontario Chairman Is To Open 5th Victory Loan In Peterboro

Thomas D'Arcy Leonard, chairman of the Ontario Victory Loan Committee, is to open the Fifth Victory Loan in Peterborough on Monday. Along with Mr. Leonard will be a band of 30 pieces from the Royal Canadian Air Force.

All plans are completed by the local committee under the chairmanship of Gordon Matthews for the loan in the Peterborough unit where the objective is $4,600,000. This evening the salesmen of the payroll savings and group payroll savings sections are attending a dinner in the Genelco cafeteria where they will be the guests of their companies. The speaker is to be B. A. Trestail of the John Inglis Company, Toronto.

Mr. Leonard served throughout the last war and won his commission in the field, reaching the rank of captain. After being wounded in France and invalided home to Canada, he decided once more to "go active" and joined the Royal Flying Corps at Trenton. But before he was able to get into action again the war ended.

A Toronto businessman, he is the general manager and director of the Canada Permanent Trust Company and director of the Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation. Born in Toronto, April 29th, 1895, he is the son of Charles J. Leonard, Toronto barrister. He received his B.A. from the University of Toronto and studied law at Osgoode Hall, and was called to the bar of Ontario, 1918. Overseas he served with the 3rd Battalion and the 5th Battalion, C.E.F., and the Royal Flying Corps as a lieutenant.

T. D'ARCY LEONARD

Mr. Leonard will address a dinner in the Genelco cafeteria at 6.15, which will be attended by members of the Victory Loan organization and citizens. Tickets may be secured at the Victory Loan office or Zeller's Limited.

City Industries Present Prizes PCVS Students

Three new prizes have been set up for the pupils of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School in mathematics, science, and stenography it was announced at the meeting of the Board of Education on Thursday night.

There have always been prizes in the history and the languages, but never anything such as is now being offered. Members of the Board spent some time canvassing and reported success.

Ian McRae, Works Manager of C.G.E. and Genelco plants, donated $50 for mathematics prize, as a general contribution. He stipulated that it was to be divided between Middle and Upper school and would be given to the boy winning the highest marks.

The Quaker Oats has provided a $35 scholarship in stenography with no strings attached, to be given to the head pupil in that subject and the Outboard Marine has contributed a $50 scholarship to be given in Science. The arrangements were left with the Board and it was decided to divide it between Upper and Middle School and to split it between the Physics and Chemistry.

The Supervision committee reported that there is a deficit in the Nicholls Scholarship of $33.56 due to having to convert five per cent City of Peterborough Debentures into three per cent Dominion of Canada bonds, and the Board decided to make up the deficit as they have been accustomed to doing.

The members also decided to set a goal for public school students upon graduation by offering a prize of $10 for these graduates entering the Collegiate, who have attained the highest standing. This prize will be spent on Collegiate text books and the merits of the prize winners will be determined on the advice of the principals. There was some disagreement about the method of judging, D. V. Canning suggesting that the average of the term and final exams be combined and T. J. Carley recommending that the highest final mark be the deciding factor. The matter is to be referred to the principals for their suggestions and then will be handed on to the Supervision committee.

Radios Important

Because of the numerous requests now being received for use of the Collegiate auditorium on Sunday evenings, the Board has decided to charge a fee of $15.00 for rental when a collection is being taken.

The supervision committee group also brought forward another idea for the members' consideration. It was felt that educational broadcasts are playing an increasingly important role in the school program and that each school should be equipped with suitable radio receiving systems.

Inspector K. Wightman said the Central school had a radio and that one of the staff had installed a loud speaker system some time ago which had proven to be quite satisfactory. Although not all the grades are interested in the same programs, those wishing to can cut off the speaker. Prince of Wales school has a room capable of handling three classes at once where there is a radio. But the others have no such equipment. In order to hear the safety broadcasts this week, small radio sets have been volunteered for use.

It was moved that the matter be referred to the Property Committe to investigate the probable cost, and the matter to be left in abeyance for the present because of the important changes expected after the war.

During the summer two of the Vocational teachers, F. E. Johnston and J. C. Rutherford worked on the typewriting room at the Collegiate to eliminate some of the noise hazards and art tables were made for the art room. The board recommended that each man be paid $25.

Wartime Housing Unable To Help

The policy of Wartime Housing Limited prevents the payment of any amounts for a specific purpose such as a contribution to the extension of the city's health service for the benefit of the company's tenants, J. M. Pigott, Hamilton, president of the government's subsidiary housing corporation, wrote the Board of Health in a letter read at its meeting this morning.

The company has to be able to show that it is not paying any city more than the sums set out in the agreement for the several types of houses. "It is difficult to refuse to make even a small donation for this purpose," Mr. Pigott said.

The Board decided to request City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., to notify Ideal Dairy that improvements to its boiler room and some painting of the premises, as directed by Sanitary Inspector MacPherson, will have to be completed.

Mr. MacPherson reported that the work had been begun some months ago, and apparently the firm intended to co-operate with the Board, but the boiler room job was left incomplete.

The salary of M. Hurtubise, Public Health Nurse, was increased from $1,200 to $1,300 as promised by the Board at the time of her engagement six months ago.

War—25 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

OCT. 15, 1918.—French forces north of Laon and in the Champagne made important advances, while British troops captured Estevelles, Meurchin and Bauvin west of Lille, and the Belgians captured Iseghem and Cortemarck. Homs, Syria, was occupied by Allenby's forces.

Six Accidents Mar Record Of Safety Week

Six accident, one of them a drowning, were reported at Safety Week headquarters this morning, in a spirit of neighborly sympathy and also with disappointment that the Monday morning hopes for a clean sheet throughout the week had been completely routed.

Up to Thursday evening only three accidents were reflected on the board at the Customs House. This morning that number should be doubled, according to the information the Examiner received.

Vernon Sickler, 15, employee of the Canadian General Electric Co. was severly hurt this morning a few minutes before seven o'clock as he was approaching the plant near Townsend and Park streets. Collision of his bicycle and an automobile in the traffic swirl near the main gates resulted in a deep cut on the young man's forehead. A broken headlight on the automobile suggested the manner in which the injury was caused.

Taken To Hospital

A.R.P. stretcher and other first aid materials were brought into use, and Mr. Sickler was removed to Nicholls Hospital.

Some fear of concussion was expressed, but preliminary examination encouraged the hope that the injury was not so serious as that.

A minor accident was reported from the industrial front in the fact of a C.G.E. employee being struck on the eye by a piece of metal as a "tap" broke while he was making a thread. This was a sort of freak accident in the comparatively minor class. The word tap in this connection is from machine shop practice and relates to the boring of a cylindrical grove in a nut.

Flt. Sgt. C. Hurl Reported Missing

Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Hurl of Young's Point received word on Tuesday that their only son, Flt. Sgt. Carl N. Hurl, is reported missing after air operations.

FLT. SGT. C. HURL

He enlisted in April of 1941 and received his wings at Mountain View in March of the following year. He was posted with the Ferry Command in May of 1942 and made one trip navigating a Catalina Flying Boat overseas in August 1942. He returned to Canada and then was posted to England in October of last year.

In his last letter home, Flt. Sgt. Hurl said he had completed 12 operational flights.

Carl attended Lakefield high school and was at Jarvis Collegiate when he enlisted. He is 20 years old.

His father, Norman Hurl, is a veteran of the last war and also served 11 months in England with the R.C. O.C. this war from January to December. His sister, Mrs. Victor Brown, lives in Burleigh and her husband, Pte. Victor Brown, has been in England with the R.C.O.C. since January of 1940.

FISHING SEASON ENDS

The fishing season comes to an end tonight at midnight and the ardent anglers of Peterborough and district can put away their equipment until next year. It has been a good season with a number of noteworthy muskies caught throughout the district, one of the largest small-mouthed black bass reported in years and pickerel catches above the average, with Stoney Lake entering the picture at the tail-end of the season.

Food Purchases Rise Sharply During Past Year

Canadians bought more food by volume during 1942 than in any previous year and spent a larger percentage of income on food, stated J. W. McLeod, management service consultant of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, to a meeting of food retailers in the Council Chambers on Thursday night. Mr. McLeod forecast that the volume of food available for sale during the coming year would be approximately the same as this year, but there would be further reduction in the volume of certain large profit items.

The speaker clearly differentiated between adequate supply in relation to actual needs and in relation to wartime consumer demand as affected by increasing purchasing power, changes in the buying habits of the people and shifts in the population towards centres of war industry. So-called "shortages," he stated, were in many cases a reflection of uncertain distribution in the face of increased production. Citing jam as an example, he declared that the production of jam in 1941 was 33 million pounds for civilian use. In 1942 production for civilian use was approximately 63 million pounds. Despite the great increase in the 1942 figures as compared with 1941 there were shortages in certain localities. It is estimated that civilian supply for the current year will be about 35 million pounds.

Certain Standards.

"The Wartime Prices and Trade Board is determined to maintain minimum nutritional requirements for the Canadian consumer," stated Mr. McLeod. "This policy is being adhered to vigorously in all the consultations concerning the export of foodstuffs to the United Nations and in the storing of foods for occupied countries. Canada's part in supplying United Nations requirements has been tremendous," he pointed out, citing cheese and egg commitments and the figures on the bacon contract.

"Food from Canada helped supply the British 8th Army on its successful African campaign," he stated. And he warned retailers that as the war progresses the United Nations' food supply position will become tighter, since Greece and other presently occupied countries will have to be fed.

Grocers' shelves during the coming year will see larger stocks of cereals and breakfast foods, jelly powders, some shortenings, beans, and other staple lines, Mr. McLeod said. Approximately a third of the normal pre-war domestic pack of canned salmon will be available soon and some other fish is in prospect. Many lines will be maintained in their present volume, he advised. Every effort is being made to secure a slight increase in the supply of dried fruits, but canned fruits and vegetables, jams and marmalades will be down in volume.

The value of price control to the retailer was outlined by the speaker, who pointed out that since the policy was effected in Canada the index has gone up little more than two points. It rose 16 points from the outbreak of the war until price control put a damper on its upswing. The food retailer, in the front line of the battle against inflation, has played a big part.

"These are not easy times for anyone," declared Mr. McLeod, "but, with his new knowledge of overhead and inventory control, with his keener sense of merchandising developed by war conditions, the retailer who does a good job now will find himself with a sounder business at the war's end."

An open discussion was held following the speaker's address in which a number of problems confronting the individual retail food dealer were brought uu for discussion and considered by the merchants who attended the meeting. Answers to questions which arose were given by Mr. McLeod.

Farm Auction Brings $14,000

Receipts at the auction sale of stock and implements at the farm of Fred Brown, northeast of Havelock, amounted to more than $14,000 Thursday.

J. H. Miles, auctioneer, disposed of everything in 4 hours and 50 minutes with an attendance of between 1,200 and 1,500 men from a wide area of Central Ontario indicated by cheque signatures as bounded by Kingston, Bowmanville, Coe Hill, Lindsay and Cobourg.

Some of the prices were as follows: 25,000 feet of green pine lumber at $58 a thousand feet; threshing machine $875; tractor $1,000; binder $287.50; mower $85.

Horses sold up to $375 a team; set of harness $100; sheep $6 to $20 each; and 500 cords of mixed wood brought $8.75 a cord.

Mr. Miles said the sale was an outstanding success, and credited the broadcasting range of CHEX for the exceptionally large attendance.

"I asked quite a number of the buyers how they had heard of the sale," Mr. Miles said. "The man from Kingston told me he heard the announcement over the Peterborough radio, and a lot of others from a distance said the same thing."

Fred Brown is a gentleman farmer, living in Toronto, and forced by lack of labor to suspend his operations on the farm.

Loan Salesmen Get Ready To Start Work

Gordon Matthews, chairman for the Fifth Victory Loan for the County of Peterborough, welcomed the salesmen, both rural and urban on Thursday when they met for their instructional meeting in the Department of Agriculture Office, Hunter street. After the showing of an instructional film "Comrades in Arms" and listening to a recorded speech by J. H. Gundy, Chairman of the Special Names Committee, National War Finance Committee, Ottawa. Arthur G. Walwyn, Organizer for the County of Peterborough, took over the meeting. Mr. Walwyn welcomed the old canvassers and congratulated the new members on coming into the organization. The meeting was then broken into two sections for further instructions. Urban meeting under Lionel Browne and rural under Gordon Fraser, M.P.

At 1 p.m. the salesmen, team captains, executive and bank managers enjoyed luncheon at the Kawartha Club where the afternoon session was held.

Preceding the guest speaker, J. J. Mellor of Orono, Mr. Matthews, Mr. Fraser, Chris Hughes, T. Rodger, representing the bankers, all said a few words concerning the Victory Loan Drive.

Salesmen kits were distributed by the showing of a film "They Bomb by Night" through the courtesy of the Coca-Cola Company.

Mr. Matthews introduced the guest speaker.

Mr. Mellor, who has the power of speech to carry his audience, never writes preliminary notes, never uses notes, and his message, which stirred everyone present, came right from the heart.

He started off by dividing this war into two armies; first, men who hold the high offices in the army down to the private. Each man is complete in himself and perfectly organized. Secondly, the civilian who remains on home shores to do his bit towards bringing about a victorious peace. Each has his own platoon to work with and perfect harmony and organization are absolutely necessary.

At this stage of the game everyone has an important and big job to do, but it is not impossible. Speaking directly to the men, Mr. Mellor said, "What you have been told is yours to do and you alone can do it, no one else, and if you lower your own position as the non-commissioned officer in this civilian army, you break up the co-ordination of the whole platoon." A soldier finds nothing impossible. He sticks it out and fights.

Referring back to his home town, Mr. Mellor said that one day he had occasion to go to the village store and sitting around the stove was the usual little company of men who "run the country." They know all about politics, the affairs of the day, how to fight the war, etc., etc. They were supreme and everything and everybody was wrong. One man who generally had a lot to say was keeping quiet on this particular occasion until the subject of the new Victory Loan Drive was opened, then he burst forth—"I bought my bond the last Drive—my children buy stamps —"I've done my share!"

Doing Your Share

"The thought that came to my mind was how did that man know he

Cyclist Suffers Bad Head Injury

Vernon Sickler, 18, is in Nicholls Hospital in a serious condition from head and internal injuries as the result of a collision between the bicycle on which he was riding and a motor car in front of the C.G.E. plant at 7.30 o'clock this morning.

The boy was riding his bicycle north on Park street and Jack Hesmond, 672 Park street was driving his car south. Hesmond told police that the cyclist came around another car into the path of his automobile and that he was unable to avoid a collision.

When the bicycle and automobile met the boy was flung off the wheel and tossed into the air, striking the windshield of the car.

He was carried into the surgery of the C.G.E. and then removed to Nicholls Hospital.

Service Men Want Snapshots And Letters

TORONTO, Oct. 14 — Letter or family photographs are important items on the Christmas-gift preference of men and women serving overseas. This is revealed after questioning recently returned officers, and War Services officials of The Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A. and other organizations serving the Canadian forces abroad.

More than the most elaborate gift, they said, the airman, soldier or sailor far from home, will welcome newsy, cheerful letters and recent photographs or snapshots of family and friends.

25-Pound Muskie

Mrs. J. J. Ratchford, Canton, Ohio, landed a 25½-pound muskie in Stoney Lake recently, and also caught several large pickerel and bass. She was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dunkerley at the time, and Mart McIlmoyle of Lakefield was the guide. Fishing has been excellent at the top of the lake this season, and Mrs. Ratchford's big one was only one of many hauled in during August and September.

Photos Adorn Walls Of Board Room

The Board of Education meeting room in South Central school has had walls devoid of decoration for a long time, but the situation has now been remedied and scattered around are the photos of the 19 chairmen of the Board since 1911. In addition there is a group picture of the present Board and several shots of schools.

The hand of memory points back a long way, and many of these pictures represent people who are no longer living or who have receded from the front line of civil offices.

John Crane, held the office of Board chairman in 1911-1912; Dr. M. A. Morrison in 1913-1914; B. F. Ackerman, 1915-1916; Vincent Eastwood, 917-1918; Roland Denne 1920; Dr. F. C. Neal, 1921; A. A. Fowler, 1922-1923; J. M. Green, 1924; J. A. McKone, 1925-1926; E. B. Fowler, 1927-1928; Dr. J. J. Craig, 1929-1930; Mrs. W. R. Morris, 1931-1932; E. F. Reid, 1933-1934; Dr. A. Moir, 1935-1936; Dr. G. R. Scott, 1937-1938; J. R. Marshall, 1939; D. G. H. Melton, 1940-1941; H. G. Walker, 1942; Dr. C. Scott, 1943.

Change in Schools

Very few of the earlier chairmen are now serving as members of the Board of Education. Mrs. Morris, Mr. Melton and Mr. Walker are still carrying on and giving faithful service. During the 32 years that these pictures represent many changes have taken place. At that time although there were about the same number of schools in operation they were on a very much smaller scale than those in use today.

In 1911 the school situation was as follows: Central East had been built since 1860 and Central West since 1891; South Central since 1889; Queen Alexandra 1889 and 1907, King Edward, 1906; Old Collegiate, 1907; and the East Ward school, now Immaculate Conception and the West Ward school near Park and Elm streets were being used. Queen Mary and King George schools were built in 1913 Prince of Wales in 1920 and the Vocational school in 1927. The public school to day has 2,915 on the roll and the Collegiate and Vocational school has 925.

In the past year Miss Mary Nicholls, a former teacher at Central school, celebrated her 100th birthday and Dr. H. R. H. Kenner retired after 50 years service. In the past few years many rugby championships have been won by the Collegiate teams and many ex-students are serving overseas.

Doctor Says Air Guns Dangerous For Boys

In response to a query for the Saftey Week suggestions from his practice as a specialist in eye, ear, nose and throat cases, Dr. A. R. Stevenson at Charlotte and Rubidge streets said he considered the air gun too dangerous to be in the hands of small boys.

"I have had three or four eye cases from these guns since, and there is always the danger from those B-B pellets of the loss of sight of an eye," Dr. Stevenson said. "I also know that last Monday, Thanksgiving Day, three or four girls went for a walk somewhere on the edge of the city and boys with air-guns peppered them with shot. Fortunately no injury was caused, but it struck me that when Safety Week was before the community, the authorities might take some steps to curb the air-gun. They do in other places."

Good Start Made On Draw For War Victims

A good start to any endeavour always spells a better chance of making real success when final tale is told so Victor Caban Sr. who has donated a long list of prizes for the purpose of raising money to assist the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, which he also is sponsoring himself, has every prospect of measuring up to the success it really deserves to be.

The seven prizes which Mr. Caban is offering at this time include a total of $75 in War Savings Certificates, or a large load of wood, a pig, and jersey calf together with one bag of potatoes and three ducks as prizes by themselves for which tickets are being sold at 25 cents each or five or one dollar.

The war savings certificates are being given from money which was saved for Victor Caban, Jr., when he should return from active service, but this patriot has given life itself for the cause on the battlefields of Sicily, so to render a further service to the cause, the parents decided to utilize the money in this way, although they themselves are of none too affluent means.

Raise $44

This further sacrifice on their part comes into a class which deserves the utmost in support, so it is a pleasing matter to be able to add that in the few days that have elapsed since the effort was begun, the tidy sum of $44 is listed in today's receipts as the first returns from the sale of tickets, and at that after paying all of the expenses that will occur with the whole effort, through the payment of the account for the printing of the tickets.

The draw for this is to be made at the Legion Hall on Saturday, November 6, and the sponsor has the kind assistance of a number of friends who are busy helping him with the sale of tickets. This is the 5th time that Mr. Caban, himself a veteran of the last Great War, has undertaken to raise money for the fund.

One of the fund's most regular contributors, in the person of the lady known as "E.M.F." is back again with onother donation of $2, preserving a record second to none in maintaining a continuity of giving to help the people of Britain.

Saturday's Efforts

This Saturday, the stall on the market will be supplied and operated by the Springville Community with Miss Jean Fairbairn as convener, who will have the assistance of two Girl Guides as sales clerks, this being a repeat under the same people who held it last year about this time.

Then two young boys, Jack Haslett of 593 Payne street and Ray Douglas, are holding a bazaar at the former's residence, and they have been selling tickets for a draw on a young rabbit, the returns from which will go specially towards the donation to provide Christmas Cheer for the boys and girls in Britain who have lost their homes, or have been evacuated to safer regions in England.

Scow Is Lost In Clear Lake

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 15.—(ENS).—A scow loaded with 104 tons of nepheline sank in Clear Lake Thursday afternoon as it was being towed to Lakefield from the Nepheline Mine Company at the head of Stoney Lake.

It was not known what was responsible for the sinking, but as it began to go down it pulled the towing boat over to such an extent that the towing line had to be cut loose. The company is trying to get a diver who could go down and possibly ascertain the reason for the loss.

The head of the Nepheline Mines Company, Ralph Kilbon, lives in Lakefield.

Only those consumers in the Peterborough Rural District south of the Warsaw Road, and East of the City, will be affected.

Greenwood Says Miners Resent Inaction

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 15 (CP Cable).—The Government emerged safely yesterday from a two-day coal debate in the House of Commons, staving off a threatened Labor demand for a division by the unexpected intercession of Prime Minister Churchill who drew from Arthur Greenwood the decision of Labor back-benchers to "give the Government a little time to have a further look at this problem."

Making clear, however, that it is only a respite, Greenwood, the leading Labor member outside the Cabinet, warned that unless the Government made "a further approach" to clear up long-standing troubles in the coal-fields "it may well become a very difficult discussion" when the debate is re-opened.

Labor had demanded a statement by a War Cabinet Minister Tuesday, but it had not been considered that Mr. Churchill would participate in the debate until the extent of Labor opposition was revealed by meetings Tuesday night to consider forcing a division.

Want Nationalization

The Prime Minister, warning against political disunity while the "bloodiest fighting" is still ahead, reiterated the Government's intention not to nationalize the mines because the step could not be taken without a general election. The powerful Mine Workers' Federation had demanded nationalization.

The Prime Minister minimized the danger of a collapse in coal production and said nothing in the situation justifies "a violent overturn of our present system." He said nationalization was not demanded by war needs.

Greenwood said Mr. Churchill had under-estimated the seriousness of the coal situation, and declared it was his belief that "the depth of feeling in the mine fields today is as great or greater" than since the First Graet War. He foresaw "deepening gloom in the homes of the miners."

"Give them some hope now," he said, apparently referring to the request of the Mine Workers' Federation for a Government post-war plan for miners.

Hereford Stock In Record Sale

Thoroughbred Hereford cattle of the same blooded stock as those owned by John Stuart, Jr., on Old Orchard Farm, R.R. No 7 were sold at an auction in Wyoming this week for what are believed to be the highest average prices ever paid at auction for breeding stock.

The sale of Herefords, including 29 bulls and 31 heifers, occurred at the annual cattle auction in Cheyenne, Wyoming, of the Wyoming Hereford Ranch, owned by H. P. Crowell, Honorary Chairman of the Board of Directors, Quaker Oats Company. The top price paid for a bull was 20,000 and the top heifer sold for $13,000. Average price for the 60 head was $3,294, a total of $197,675 for the cattle sold at auction that day.

Mr. Stuart, who has a large herd of thoroughbred Herefords on his farm, many of them brothers and sisters of the cattle sold at auction in Wyoming this week, states that he expects to have another 20 WHR heifers shipped into Peterborough sometime this winter. They will all, he said, be bred to their Register of Merit sires.

Race And Class Prejudices Rapped By Drew

GUELPH, Oct. 15.—One of the outstanding lessons of this war "is the danger of any new order based upon appeals to prejudice," Premier George A. Drew declared here last night at a banquet given in his honour by the citizens of Wellington County. The Armories was packed for the occasion. The Premier received an illuminated address from the gathering as a mark of esteem and in recognition of his elevation to the Government leadership.

There must be a new order in Canada, Premier Drew told his audience, but it must be one where youth had an oportunity and where youth grew to manhood with the belief that decent success was a desirable aim and that decent conduct was the basis of society. It was because of his conviction that education had played such an important part in the life of Canada that he assumed the role of Minister of Education, Mr. Drew declared.

"Hitler boasted of a new order in Germany and imposed it upon most of Europe," the Premier said. "What matters is the kind of new order that emerges. There are lessons which perhaps are not being remembered as they should be which stand out clearly from the growth of the Nazi order in Germany. Hitler had taught us that in building a new order the prejudice which stirs emotions need not be confined to racial differences but that anything which arouses prejudices and creates a sense of mass excitement can be used to build a new order of that evil type.

Outlawed by Some Nations.

"Some nations have on their statute books laws which make it an offense to arouse racial prejudice," continued Premier Drew. "That is merely a statutory recognition by decent people everywhere that the stirring up of such prejudices not only injures those against whom they are directed but in the end weakens the whole social structure."

When he was a lad attending school in Guelph no such appeals to prejudice were heard then as were heard today, pointed out the Premier. In those days it was believed that Canada was a land of opportunity; that hard work produced results; that success was not just a racket, and that an opportunity had been given Canadians to live in just about the best place in the world.

"And yet I do not find that spirit of confident optimism and of the belief in personal opportunity which was instilled in the minds of every one of us when I was a lad here in Guelph," said the Premier. "The truth is that the horizons are wider and the opportunities greater today than they were when I was young. When we talk of a new order, let us never for a moment forget that any new order based on economic considerations alone will be no new order at all, but merely a return to base materialism which has destroyed nation after nation in the past.

"Victory will not be won on the field of battle alone," the Premier asserted. "I believe that one of our greatest needs in Canada today is for a simple, decent ideal which is capable of serving as a bond to unite the minds and spirit of our people. We need a clear and understandable faith, not alone in our religious beliefs, but in those loyalties which make a nation strong. As the old order changes and the new order takes form, I believe that we must turn again to the faith of our fathers, which built this nation and gave to us so rich a heritage for our children."

Mrs. Drew was presented with a bouquet by Helen Galt Mitchell, great-great-granddaughter of John Galt founder of Guelph. Ald. Harry Mahony, the city's elder statesman, presented Mr. Drew with an engraved silver platter. Mayor R. B. Robson was chairman of the banquet, and Col. L. E. Jones introduced the guest of honor.

Officials Fight Godbout's Take-Over Plan

MONTREAL, Oct. 15 — (CP).—Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated, in a statement issued yesterday, said that the purpose of the Quebec Government, in seeking legislation leading to expropriation of the company, seems to be "to destroy the credit and value of an important public utility of this province."

The statement said the company had been built up as a public utility over a period of 50 years "by strict compliance with the laws of the province and is to-day generally recognized as being the most economically operated public utility of its kind on this continent, with a present credit standing superior to that of the province itself....

It added: "The investing public should ask the Prime Minister (Premier Godbout of Quebec) why in attacking the company, he has proceeded upon the assumption that the company will not be able to justify its position before the Public Service Board, or in other words, why he has prejudged the case.

"Consistent with the rendering to the public of the highest quality of service at the lowest possible rates and pending the outcome of these proceedings, the shareholders of the company can be reassured that no stone will be left unturned to protect their investment and to vigorously resist any attempt at confiscation."

(The company has been advised it is to appear before the Public Service Board on November 14 to show cause why its power rates should not be reduced. Premier Godbout announced his government would seek expropriation of the company a few hours after the ruling of the Board was made public.)

W.M.S. Stresses Bible Reading

MILLBROOK, Oct. 15 (ENS).—Mrs. J. A. Brown was hostess for the October meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church, held on Wednesday afternoon at her home, Tupper street, with the president, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, in the chair, and Miss Mary Widdis' group responsible for the program.

From the September meeting, the secretary, Mrs. H. Ross Edmunds, reported a total of $15.55 in donations and fees, and for the annual fall thankoffering, it was decided to join with the Circle and Mission Band in a public church service on October 31, when the three societies will receive this offering, and the minister, Rev. A. L. Sisco, will preach a special missionary sermon.

Mrs. Sisco reported three quilts completed, with one of these for sale, and two or three more to be done for individual owners. The fall W.M.S. sectional rally was announced for October 21, at Fraserville, when Millbrook is asked to take the offertory prayer, Mrs. Percy Stinson being appointed to this office.

Daily Readings

The president stressed the importance of keeping up the daily Bible readings as given in the Missionary Monthly and Mrs. J. McKnight took charge of the program. Mrs. F. J. Smith presented the stewardship message, and Mrs. John Rowland the one on temperance, this part being concluded by a poem, "A Cigarette Speaks To A Pretty Girl," read by Mrs. McKnight. A comprehensive report of the school for leaders held at the O.L.C., Whitby, August 30 to September 3, was given by Mrs. Franklin Bannister, Presbyterial Mission Circle secretary, following which an appropriate duet was sung by Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Mrs. Stinson.

To close the program, Miss E. L. Hetherington brought an interesting introduction to the new study book, "For all of Life," together with a complete coverage of the first chapter on the light of education, illustrated by a poster. The W.M.S. Watchword closed the meeting, and Miss Widdis served homemade candy during the social hour.

OBITUARY

MRS. HERBERT BICK

BOBCAYGEON, Oct. 15—Following a distressing illness, one of the community's mostly highly respected citizens passed away recently at her late home, Lot 21, Concession 10, Township of Verulam, in the person of Alberta Louise Irwin, beloved wife of Herbert Bick, at age of 64 years.

Mrs. Bick was a daughter of the late William Irwin and Margaret Poole. She was born in Fenelon township, near Dunsford, where she spent her girlhood days and until her marriage September 9, 1903. As a bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Bick took up residence on the groom's farm and where she continued to live until her death.

The deceased was of a very kindly, quiet disposition which endeared her to all with whom she came in contact. She was a faithful member of Trinity United Church and took an active part as a member of the W.M.S. and W.A. of the church. As a member of the Women's Institute she was keenly interested in all its undertakings and was ever ready to do her part. During her illness she was very patient and most gracious. In her home she was a devoted wife and loving mother.

The funeral was largely attended by relatives and friends. Service was held at the home, prior to going to Trinity United Church, where service was conducted by her minister, Rev. C. C. Miller, who delivered a very thoughtful message. In reference to the late Mrs. Bick he told of her faith in her Bible and her God and of how she asked her family to so live that they would meet her in Heaven. Rev. Cathcart read the 91st Psalm. C. H. Pardy sang a favorite hymn of Mrs. Bick, "The Old Rugged Cross." The floral tributes were many and beautiful and bore silent testimony of sympathy and the respect in which the deceased was held.

Remains were laid to rest in Verulam Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Messrs. George Bick, Samuel Bick, Harry Stinson, Gayton Kimble, F. W. Warren and T. H. Martin.

Surviving are her sorrowing husband, two sons, Ross of Peterborough and Lloyd at home; two dear grandsons, Ralph and Dawson; two sisters, Mrs. M. Cairo (Leacen) and Miss Mary Irwin; two brothers, Albert of Oshawa and Wesley of Dunsford.

Surrendered Italian Navy Designed To Aid British

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Oct. 15—(AP)—The surrendered Italian Navy made such a poor showing in the Mediterranean Sea war because it was designed to complement, not fight, Britain's Royal Navy, an Italian naval officer told me.

This officer, off one of the picturebook Italian units now lying here flying their own flag as "guests" of Britain, said the original long-range Italian naval view was toward co-operation with Britain for control of the Mediterranean.

Mussolini's deviation from this view to play into the hands of Hitler threw the entire plan out of kilter, this officer held.

The Italian fleet was tailor-made for the Mediterranean which, as has been proved, could not be held in the face of a predominant Anglo-American control of the world-wide seas plus Italian loss of her African Empire and bites off her home shores.

Stayed In Hiding

In effect, the Italians actually had nothing more than a lake fleet bottled up at both ends with its bases at the mercy of Allied fleet and air attacks.

Their naval initiative soon was limited to open sea forays in which the more adventurous Italian commanders took pleasure in co-operating with or understudying U-boat skippers.

Even so, British naval men pay tribute to some of the individual exploits of the Italians on certain naval ventures, but they have nothing but contempt for the overall decision of the Italian high command never to come to grips with the Allies for supremacy of the Mediterranean.

The Italian naval viewpoint seems to have been at best only tolerant of Fascist leadership, but nonetheless the navy strung along dutifully with the head of the state.

It now can be told that in the darkest period of Britain's war in the Mediterranean the British fleet was withdrawn to subsidiary bases leaving only mine-sweepers which set out daily with such almost ludicrous orders as "seek out the enemy and destroy him wherever he may be found."

Mrs. H. Clegg Speaks To Knox W. A.

The October meeting of the Knox W.A. was held in the church parlours Thursday afternoon.

A brief report of the W.A. convention in Mark St. church was given by Mrs. J. Allen and 'thank you' letters for remembrances in illness were read by Mrs. H Trotter. The 'cent-a-day' method of raising finances for the coming year was decided upon.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. N. Gillis. Prayer was offered by Mrs. R. Laing and a pleasing solo, 'My Task,' given by Mrs. N. Todd. Scripture reading and meditation was given by Mrs. H. Clegg, who was also the speaker. It was revealed by the speaker that the method of collecting pennies originated in 1737, when John Wesley divided the congregation of a church in Bristol into groups to clear a church debt.

In her talk, Mrs. Clegg said that character building should be a part of our every day lives to help us meet emergencies. We need to build up spiritual reserves by practising the principles of faith. She said there was a great need for self-discipline, the spirit of forgiveness and the spirit of unity. Dr. Sclater, moderator of the United church, said upon his return from England that the chaplains in the forces were living examples of co-operative unity.

The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. H. A. Mahoney and a pleasant social half hour.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. F. Lennex.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a street length dress of soldier blue revelation crepe, with white collar, fitted odice and full skirt. She wore a small blue hat and blue accessories. Mrs. Violet Eddy, of Dartford, cousin of the groom, was her attendant, in a street length navy dress with matching accessories. The groomsman was Mr. Walter Eddy, cousin of the groom, from Dartford.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the immediate relatives. The bride's mother received, assisted by the groom's mother. The home was decorated with autumn leaves and fall flowers and pink and white streamers. The bride's wedding cake adorned the centre of the table.

The happy young couple later left on a trip to Toronto, the bride travelling in a dress of beige wool and black coat, with accessories to match. On their return they will live on the groom's farm near Hastings.

Army Auxiliary To Pack Christmas Boxes

The afternoon meeting of the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary was held Wednesday at the Armouries with Mrs. J. Turnbull in chair. Mrs. Turnbull commented on the splendid result of the recent tag-day and on the gift of $1,000 from the city toward the cost of the Christmas boxes.

The secretary, Mrs. Eric Haley, read a letter from Mrs. A. P. Weeks of the Postal Department on the importance of properly packed parcels for overseas. Mrs. H. Borland reported for the buying committee.

The final choice of contents was as follows: two chocolate bars, a large package of cigarettes, a package of Lipton's chicken noodle soup, two packages of chocolate drink, razor blades, a cake of soap in a metal soap box, half a pound of Christmas cake, a large tin of Oxo, toothbrush and tooth powder, pair of shoelaces, life-savers, and chewing gum. The total cost of each parcel was $1.76 plus 36 cents postage. It was decided to change the contents of the boxes going to soldiers in the Mediterranean area and to substitute an extra pack of cigarettes for the candy.

Mrs. R. Allin reported that 921 names had been handed in, 78 of which were those of men in the Mediterranean area. A number of addresses were not complete and members are asked to check these and phone Mrs. Allin or Mrs. Turnbull with the correct names and addresses. Mrs. A. Turner, Regent of the 57th Regiment Chapter I. O. D. E. is to be general convener of the packing which will be done on Thursday and Friday, October 21 and 22 in St. John's Parish Hall.

Mrs. R. T. F. Brain read on interesting newspaper despatch about the capture of an Italian town which had been strongly held by the Germans, which was captured by some Canadian cooks.

Can Only Supervise

Because of the unusally heavy enrolment of 241 in the Sewing classes, Miss Helen Gerrard is unable to each and supervise these classes as well, and it was moved that she be paid for supervising according to the time she finds it necessary. Two assistant instructors will be paid $1 an hour.

Because Miss Gerard is supervising only, the Department of Education does not consider her eligible for the government grant, irregardless of the fact that the large numbers have brought about such a situation. D. G. H. Melton felt that the Department should be shown the error of its ways and that this Board should make a strong plea for grants, since they covered a large percentage of the cost. A motion to this effect was passed.

The difficulty in securing help for the janitor force at the Collegiate has led to Walter Northcott, who served for man years as an employee of the Board of Education, volunteering his services for half time work, to help them out of their difficulty. He reports for work at 1 o'clock and works through the remainder of the afternoon. It was also decided to raise the pay for the janitors who handle the night class shift to $2.50 a night for overtime.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Health a resolution was passed declaring that the city M.O.H. would collaborate with the Board's medical officer on lectures for senior grades dealing with the health and sex education. This matter was referred to the Health committee, which is to report back to the Board on arrangements.

The man who got over being a goat

Ted Pittenger was a born opposer.

It was trying, particularly to Ted's wife. Until one day she exploded—oddly enough—over a cup of Postum.

Mrs. P. had just tried Postum for the first time. And discovered that Postum is a perfectly grand drink.

What with liking Postum, and it being so economical (less than a cent a cup), and feeling that part of Ted's temper was from drinking too much tea and coffee, . . . Mrs. P. decided it would be a good idea to have Postum all the time.

She'd hardly got the word "Postum" out of her mouth, when Ted blatted, "No coffee substitutes."

"But, Ted, it isn't a substitute . . . it's a grand . . ."

"Doesn't taste anything like coffee . . . or tea," butted Ted.

"It's not supposed to. It's a grand drink with a flavor all its own."

Ted shook his horns. "No. No. NO!"

"Ted," said Mrs. P., ominously . . . "You're going to at least TRY this cup of Postum . . . OR ELSE".

Ted looked at her. Then he picked up his cup of Postum. He took a sip. Then several good long swallows.

"Well . . ." he said. "Maybe you've got something."

And that is the story of what changed Ted Pittenger from being an unreasonable goat. And the Moral? . . .

You ought to try Postum. Delicious, easy to prepare—and no harmful caffeine. It comes in two convenient forms: Instant Postum, the kind you make instantly in the cup simply by adding water or hot milk . . . and Postum Cereal Beverage, the kind you make like coffee in pot, percolator or glass coffee-maker.

THE EXPERTS SAY . . .

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 (CP)—Household and recipe tips for the benefit of busy homemakers, furnished by dietitians and home economists:—

BAKED APPLES—Baked apples—a good old stand-by—are favorites with most people, and for a Sunday dinner Laura Pepper, chief of the agriculture department's consumer section, suggests they be decked out in company dress.

Surrounded by golden custard sauce, topped with meringue and a spot of jelly for color, they'll be a sure-fire hit with both family and guests. Here's what to do:

Core six apples, prick the skins, place in a casserole and bake in moderate over until tender. To make a custard sauce mix two tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon cornstarch and a pinch of salt with one cup of milk. Heat in a double boiler. Beat two egg yolks with one-half cup milk and add slowly to the hot milk, stirring constantly until the mixture is thick enough to coat a spoon—about ten minutes.

Remove from the heat and add one-half teaspoon vanilla. Pour custard sauce over and around the baked apples. Make a meringue from the two egg whites, beating in two tablespoons of sugar. Pile lightly on top of the apples and garnish with a spoonful of jelly. Set casserole in a pan of hot water and return to oven—350 degrees Fahrenheit—to brown. Serve hot or cold.

EDIBLE LANDSCAPES—Marion Harlow of nutrition services comes up with the idea that while the colors of autumn leaves are fading fast these colors can be recaptured at the family dinner table. Amber squash, golden-hued carrots, bright red tomatoes and the deeper red of beets, offset by paler parsnips and turnips, echo the coloring of autumn woods.

Broccoli or kale will give the same note of contrast provided in the bush by the evergreens, says Miss Harlow.

"Color and vitamins in vegetables," she adds, "usually go hand-in-hand. By serving vegetables in their colorful array you can 'landscape' your family to better health."

EASING LAUNDRY STRESS — Many Canadian women are taking to the washtubs again to relieve the stress placed on laundries short of help and endeavoring to cope with the influx of war workers into many centres.

As a short cut to efficient laundering, women who have no sorting tables should spread newspapers on the floor to avoid soiling clothes further. Removing stains and doing small mending jobs before laundering saves wear and tear on fabrics, and soaking is eliminated if soap is rubbed on particularly soiled spots; ironing is also eliminated on such articles as sheets, pillow cases, terry towels, dish towels, underwear, nightgowns and pyjamas.

PRESSING WOOLLENS — Woollens in the finished state are as capricious as the lambs which produced them. To keep woollens properly pressed and looking attractive, the prices board's consumer branch suggests that if they are brushed before being pressed it will prevent dust from being steamed into the fabric. When it comes to pressing, watch the heat of your iron and press with a damp cloth .

Price Control Ration News

The Central Ontario Consumer Branch Committee, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, answers questions put to this paper regarding price control and ration regulations.

Q.—Is there a price ceiling on white sugar? I paid two pounds for 17c. Other stores charge two for 16c. Why should there be this difference?

A.—Yes, there is a ceiling price on white sugar. You should not pay more for sugar now than you did for the same kind and quality in the SAME STORE during the basic period, September 15 to October 11, 1941....You see, each store has its own ceiling price on food items depending on what the particular store charged during the basic period. Before price control came into effect in December, 1941, prices always varied from store to store, because of differences in costs, such as labor, rent for the premises, etc. Now, under price control, prices still vary as normally, but they must not advance beyond the level set in September 15 to October 11, 1941....Therefore, the price of sugar is likely to vary ½ cent a pound from store to store. Of course, if you believe the price of sugar has gone up in your store since October 11, 1941, please send particulars to the nearest Price Board office or to us and a check-up will be made promptly....Price increases in some articles have been authorized by the Board in exceptional cases where costs were out of line with the basic period price. If your grocer tells you a price increase has been authorized he must show you the authorization if you wish to see it.

Q.—I bought a ton of briquettes (anthracite) and paid $14.25 a ton. My son bought a ton of the same quality the next week from the same dealer for $13.25. Can you tell me which is the correct price?

A.—Will you be good enough to send us the name and address of the coal dealer so that the particulars may be investigated?

Q.—I paid 23c at a store in this town for a package of cheese. I hadn't bought any there before, but isn't this a little too much to pay?

A.—There is a special process cheese order which fixes processors' maximum prices f.o.b., plus tax as those established during the basic period.....Wholesalers' and retailers. maximum selling prices are based on cost plus the normal basic period mark-up which cannot be greater than 10 per cent in the case of wholesalers and 25 per cent for retailers.....And so you see, your grocer's profit on this kind of cheese is controlled by the Price Board.. ..For package cheese of the particular brand you mention in your letter, 23c is on the high side. But you may be buying it from a store which has higher costs than a larger one in which case the price may be in order....However, if you will send us the name of the grocer we will be glad to have the price checked in that store.

Q.—How do I get a new ration book for my baby?

A.—By presenting the baby's birth certificate, baptismal certificate, or an affidavit on the form provided at the office of your Local Ration Board, you will receive a ration book for your baby.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet, "Consumers' News" or the Blue Book (the book in which you keep track of your ceiling prices) mentioning the name of this paper to: Wartime Prices and Trade Board,

DOROTHY DIX

MOTHER CANNOT ASK CHILDREN TO GIVE UP THOUGHTS OF LOVE

May Over-Reach, Get Nothing in Holding to Hope of Reward for Sacrifices.

A MOTHER writes: "How true is the old saying that when our children are little they step on our feet, but when they are grown they tread on our hearts. We spend our lives caring for them, working for them, sacrificing ourselves for them, thinking we will be repaid by their love and appreciation of all we have done for them, but when they get old enough to be a comfort to us they go about their own affairs and leave us lonely and desolate.

"Why, any pretty little flapper can take a boy away from the mother who bore him and who has slaved to make him what he is. The girl you have worked your fingers to the bone to keep soft and comfortable will get up and follow the lad who whistles to her, without ever giving a thought to the mother she is leaving behind her.

"I tell you any mother who expects gratitude from her children is due for a bitter disappointment. Look at my case: My husband died, leaving me with two small sons and not a dollar. Fortunately, I had been a competent secretary, so I was able to get a good job by which I could support them and keep our home together. For twenty years I toiled day and night to be both mother and father to them and to give them a happy and carefree childhood.

Sacrificed for Children

"No matter how tired I was after a long and gruelling day in the office I would cook them good meals, and wash and mend and press their clothes so that they might not be ashamed before the other children at school. I wore my old coat that they might have the kind of sweaters other boys had. I denied myself all social recreation so that I might always be with them in the evenings. I refused a fine man who wanted to marry me and who could have given me security and ease because I would not risk putting a step-father over them.

"It was a long, hard grind for me, but I buoyed myself up with the dream of the reward I would get when my boys were grown, and they would cherish me as I had cherished them, and we three would live together and I would have nothing to do but make a home for them. Well, the boys grew up and they were all that any mother's heart could wish. They graduated with honor from college. They stepped into fine positions. They were devoted to me. We had the little home and I kept house for them and for three years the dream came true.

Marriage Ended Dream of Reward

"Then what do you think happened? My older son got married and the younger one is engaged, and the dream went into the scrap heap along with all the other castles in Spain that foolish mothers build.

"Oh, there isn't anything the matter with my son's wife, nor with the girl the other boy is engaged to. They are nice enough girls. But it leaves me alone. That's my payoff for all I've done for them. It is their ingratitude that breaks my heart. Don't you think that children owe something to their mothers?"

Children owe a great deal to their mothers, but they do not owe their whole lives to them, and mothers have no right to be Shylocks who as the pound of flesh nearest to their hearts in payment of their debts, as they do when they demand that their sons and daughters shall give up all their plans and ambitions and thoughts of love and marriage in order to stay with them.

It will probably shock this mother to be told that it is not she who should accuse her sons of ingratitude because they feel they have a right to wives and children and homes of their own, but they who have a right to reproach her with her selfishness in wanting to deny them such happiness. For of what avail was it for her to save them from physical hunger in their childhood if she was dooming them to go starving for affection the balance of their days?

Possessive Mother Blocks Children

The possessive mother who thinks her children should give forty years of slavery to her for the few years in which she wiped their noses and buttered their bread, overreaches herself, even as Shylock did, and in the end gets nothing. For if she succeeds in making them old maids and old bachelors, they never forgive her for the wrong she has done them. And if they defy her and live their own lives, it leaves tears and bitterness on both sides.

And she misses so much. The gratitude of children who never forget that Mother put their happiness before her own and who only had their good in view. The pleasure to be derived from in-laws who feel themselves members of the family, not interlopers who broke in practically over mother-in-law's dead body. And, best of all, the happiness one gets from one's grandchildren who are so much more fun than one's own.

Packing Parcels For Overseas

Be sure to have your parcels well packed. Even now it is said that parcels continue to arrive at the Base Post Office in a damaged condition; some of them are hopelessly spoiled and others cause delay because they have to be repaired. Glass jars, flimsy containers and insufficient outside packing, as well as edibles not being suitable for a long voyage, are the usual sources of trouble. Strong corrugated containers should be used, with several layers of thick wrapping paper, the while tied securely with strong cord. If jams, syrups and any other substance likely to leak and spread are sent at all, they must be enclosed in sealed containers—not glass bottles—and surrounded by absorbent material.

Strictly prohibited by law is the mailing of matches, lighter fluid or any other inflammable substance due to the possibility of spontaneous combustion. Much mail destined for servicemen overseas was destroyed last year through this cause.

Realizing the great volume of mail which must be handled for the servicemen overseas this coming Christmas, and the fact that this job must be performed with a shortage of manpower and inexperienced help, the wise and considerate citizen will mail his gifts early, the Post Office says, and well in advance of the deadline, November 1.

GOOD HUNTING

Cmdr. Ben Bryant, ace of the Mediterranean submarine fleet, was at a British port to greet his old command, Safari, on her return from 18 months of war on Axis shipping. Safari sank more than 50,000 tons of shipping, most of it while under Bryant's command.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, October 16

EXCEPTIONALLY auspicious are the astrological prospects for all sorts of interests on this day. It is a time for working with persistent and well systematized efforts for attaining the goal of important ambitions. To this the exercise of "policy," finesse and a subtle kind of cleverness or astuteness would greatly accelerate desired culminations. Deal with influential personages or corporate bodies for easiest progress. Happiness may also obtain.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are assured a progressive, prosperous and pleasant year, with all the affairs advancing upon the goal of the highest and happiest objectives. There may be certain undercurrents of influence, mystery or subtlety hard to put the finger on in such fulfillment. But hard work, diligence and practical ability may supplement sagacity, tact, finesse and keen insight or understanding in dealing with important persons or institutions. The romantic life may also enjoy exceptional happiness.

A child born on this day may possess unusual talents, creative abilities and guiding intuitions, vouching for a productive and happy life. It may have an unusual career, with great personal influence of subtle quality.

had done his share and on what foundation did he build his opinion and how could he make so definite a statement? How can anyone say We have done our share! Where would we be if the soldier, the sailor or the flyer said I've done my share, and broke lines. They only have one thought—to destroy or be destroyed. Ask the man who has gone through this—he'll never complain. They never quite and say "I've done my share." They keep doing their duty, going on day after day, fully knowing that the black angel of death is ahead yet — they never complain. They are fighting for us here on the home front—their loved ones—and for Canada."

The people of Great Britain show us the way to have courage, said Mr. Mellor. Think of Dunkirk, the possible invasion of England when only one hundred tanks were available! Churchill has admitted that England was practically defenseless, yet the spirit of Britain could not be broken. They never complain! Many homes in England and Canada have vacant chairs, many will remain vacant—yet the loved ones do not complain. They are still doing their share.

We must fight—we must hope—we must win. Everything under God's sun is ours after this war is won. We must play the game. We must not company! How do you measure up? If we lose, we are to blame.

In closing Mr. Mellor read the following poem which in itself should stir all to do the best they can—and do not complain!

And if our lines should form and break,
Because of things you failed to make—
The extra tank or ship or plane,
For which we waited all in vain,
And the supplies that never came,
Will you then come and take the blame?
For we, not you, will pay the cost,
Of battles you, not we, have lost!

Slips in English Offend People You Like to Know

Her Longed-For Chance Ruined

"I'm from the wrong side of the tracks"—her crude English is telling him. And he's the specially nice date she's longed for, the chance for smart good times that comes to almost every girl!

"I been hearing," she chatters, "you are sure good at badminton."

He can't tell her it's correct to say "have been . . . very good." He'll only suffer in silence while she blunders on before his friends, making such pronunciation errors, too, as "misCHIEVous" for "MISchievous," "ADult" for "aDULT."

When the evening's over he'll courteously see her home and then forget her, of course. But who knows what the date might have led to for a clever girl, one wise enough to check her speech once in a while?

Polish your speech with the aid of our 32-page booklet. Gives English and pronunciation errors you're likely to make and their correct forms. Explains words often misused, helps you acquire a vivid, correct vocabulary you can be proud of anywhere.

For your copy of HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR VOCABULARY send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Bracken Will Speak

WINNIPEG, Oct. 15 — (CP).—The Winnipeg Free Press said in a newspage story yesterday that John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative Leader, may seek election to the House of Commons through a Manitoba seat, possibly Neepawa. Mr. Bracken will make his first Manitoba speech since resigning the Provincial Premiership, some time next week, the Free Press reported.

Liberal Senator Dies

MONTREAL, Oct. 15 (CP)—Hon Jules-Edouard Prevost, 71, died Wednesday at the Hotel Dieu Hospital after an illness of one month. He was Liberal Senator for Thousand Islands.

Director Decorated

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 (CP) Richard Rosson, of Hollywood, who directed the film "Corvette K-225," which tells the story of Canada's corvettes, will receive the "Award for Service" medal of the Navy League of Canada when he comes to Ottawa for the premiere of the film next Tuesday, it was announced yesterday.

Attitude Unchanged

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 (CP) —Italy's declaration of war against Germany was expected in unofficial quarters here last night to have little—if any—effect for the time being on Italian nationals held in custody in Canada or Italian property being held by the custodian of enemy property. Canada holds only a handful of Italian nationals, only those suspected of subversive tendencies.

HISTORIAN DIES

PRETORIA (CP). — Dr. G. S. Preller, 68, South African historian and journalist, died here recently.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

ANCHOR TO WINDWARD

WHEN YOU have a fine fit with your partner's suit, it is like an anchor to windward, rendering relatively safe a bid of another suit, even though it be a weak four-carder. If you get into temporary trouble by it, and are doubled, you can always flee into your partner's declaration. That is the negative side of it, the one which protects you from loss. But the positive side, what you stand to gain, is terrific if your partner's suit is a minor and your four-carder is a major. In case he is sound, and not prone to support you with just three cards if one has a pretty picture on it, any fit shown by him for the major is likely to betoken a safe suit in which you may make a game try.

When South failed to double the 4-Spades at Tables 1 and 3, North decided it probably was because of a holding with which South hoped to beat the contract. Anyway, North was none too strong in his idea to try the 5-Hearts which could be made, so at both those tables East and West got away with a spade game, losing only one trick in hearts and two in diamonds. Two high spades marked the finesse against the J.

Notice how, at table 2, North, by jumping to 4-Hearts, scared East out of showing his spades at such a level, also against trying 5-Clubs. But, more important, note the way that West forestalled this tactic at Table 3. Having such fine fitting cards for clubs, he could safely stick in 1-Spade. Then, though North jumped to 4-Hearts, East was able to bid 4-Spades without a qualm, knowing the suit was a sound bid.

Advance Workshop Near Frontline Keeps Canadian Army Rolling

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Oct. 15 (CP)—The repair and maintenance organization whose army name is Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, but which is popularly known as "Reme," is helping to keep the Canadian forces fighting fit and rolling in Italy.

Canadians who staff its workshops and handle its tools are not soldiers likely to become famous in the Italian campaign, but their hard work means that the weapons in the hands of the fighting men will always be in top notch condition. The organization can perorm a thousand one jobs speedily.

When the fighting is heavy its main burden may be the overhauling of guns, patching up damaged vehicles and readjusting precision instruments. When, as in the present campaign, there are few clashes but great movement through difficult country, much of its work is the overhaul of trucks, lorries, jeeps and motorbikes. Reme can fix anything from a pair of binoculars to tank motors. Special sections handle work on track and wheeled vehicles, guns, small arms, telephonic and wireless equipment.

During battles advanced workshops operate near the frontline performing the smaller repair jobs on the spot and passing back down the line to rear workshops the heavier work. The forward operating recovery sections bring damaged equipment in from places of temporary abandonment for repair. The thoroughness with which Reme does its job is evident in an examination of an old battleground. From the wreckage of vehicles and weapons that lie by scorched roadsides anything that can be put to second use has been removed.

Many Spare Parts

Reme's stores section carries thousands of spare parts for all types of equipment and workshops move continually. The term "workshops" is misleading because Reme's tools, lathes and store are packed in military lorries and able to change their location on about an hour's notice.

One of the workshops operating in Italy is commanded by Maj. Archie Stethem of Winnipeg and Fort Frances, Oht. In its present well-camouflaged location in the hills electricians, tinsmiths, blacksmiths, welders, carpenters, fitters, armaments and small arm specialists work from early morn to dusk. Lieut. Jim Hendricks of Trenton, Ont., is in charge of the recovery section and is the transport officer for the unit. Specialists who have the rank of armaments Q.M.S. include George Cameron of Owen Sound, Ont., Staff Sgts. Al Ogden of Oshawa, Ont., and Jack Duckworth of Brantford, Ont., perform repair tasks on all kinds of guns.

Life's Little Tricks

KINGSTON, Oct. 15—(CP)—Leading Cook Al Goulah. home on leave from the R.C.N.V.R., claims he owes his life to an unknown benefactor, a man who slugged him so hard on the head that he was air-ambulanced from Newfoundland to Halifax and confined to bed for nearly a month. His convalescence kept him ashore when the St. Croix left port on its last voyage. He had been attached to the ship for two years prior to its loss.

Canadian Tells His Story To War Correspondents

Shown here telling his experiences to Canadian war correspondents: Ross Munro, of the Canadian Press (RIGHT) and L. S. R. Shapiro (CENTRE), Sergt. Russell McPhee, aged 39, of Macdaline Street, Point St. Charles, Montreal, was the man responsible in large measure for the capture of Leonforte by Canadian infantry in the Sicilian campaign. He was given the Military Medal for his exploit from the hand of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery. Under heavy and continuous shelling by German artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire, Sergt. McPhee directed the building of the bridge, swiftly and efficiently, thus permitting infantry to return to the attack before German fire could put the bridge out of action once more.

Boat Fails To Take Supplies For Two Years Army Plane Sent To Rescue 4 At Ft. Ross

WINNIPEG, Oct. 15 — (CP). — Supplies for three white men and a woman isolated at Fort Ross, a fur trading post in the Far North, may reach the lonely settlement early in November.

Plans for sending air relief, possibly a United States Army Air Force plane, as soon as weather conditions permit were near completion to-day.

"We hope to have relief for the post about the first week in November," R. H. Chesshire, manager of the Hudson's Bay Company Fur Trade Department, told The Canadian Press to-day.

"If the plane is unable to land, supplies will be dropped by parachute," he said.

If a landing is possible, the post manager, his wife, an apprentice-clerk, and a police constable will be brought out by plane.

Mr. Chesshire said if the manager and his staff are brought out the post will be closed until a relief ship reaches Fort Ros, possibly ship reaches Fort Ross, possibly some time next year.

The traders at Fort Ross have only a month's food supply. The regular supply ship, due to severe ice conditions, has not been able to reach the post for two years.

Fort Ross is 1,000 miles from Churchill, Northern Manitoba port, and is some 400 miles north of the Arctic Circle—farther north than any other Canadian settlement.

Withdraw Planes To Aid Berlin

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 15 — (AP). —German fighter planes which once operated from a chain of 13 airfields in the Foggia area of Italy were sent back to Germany to help defend the Reich against Allied heavy bombers, a Polish mechanic who was impressed into the German air force said to-day.

The 22-year-old mechanic escaped from the squadron when it was moving from the main Foggia field to Germany and hid with Italians who gave him civilian clothes. He and another Polish fugitive who had been hiding in Italy since early in the war managed to reach the British lines.

Some planes were sent to the Munich area and others to Vienna, he told Allied air officers.

The mechanic said that more than 60 enemy planes were destroyed by the Allied bombing of Foggia. When the 8th Army drew near the Germans burned all disabled aircraft, then withdrew.

Czecho-Slovaks Gets New Protector

LONDON, Oct. 15 — (CP).—Dr. Wilhlem Frick, who was succeeded by Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler as German Minister of Interior, arrived in Prague to-day to take over his new post as "protector" of the Bohemia-Moravia area in Czechoslovakia, the Berlin radio announced.

Frick is the fourth Nazi official to be sent into the Czechoslovakia protectorate where Reinhard Heydricht' assassination last year ended his rule as "The Hangman." The others were Baron Konstantin Von Neurath and Colonel General of Police Kurt Daluege.

RCAMC Druggist To Be Sentenced

VANCOUVER, Oct. 15 (CP). — Climax of a drug investigation which affected Canada's defence forces as far away as Kiska came in Assize Court Wednesday when Charles Willard Davis, 41, pleaded guilty to having morphine and cocaine in his possession between August 7, 1942, and July 26, 1943.

Davis, former R.C.A.M.C. staff sergeant and New Westminster druggist, will be sentenced at the end of the assizes by Chief Justice Wendell Farris.

Sgt. G. J. Haywood, R.C.M.P., told of his investigations of Davis' theft of army drug supplies following the finding of substitutions in medical stocks in Vancouver.

Sgt. Haywood said he had been informed the last of the supplies to which Davis had access while stealing morphine and cocaine and substituting other drugs, were returned to headquarters this week.

During his examination of Haywood, Prosecutor Gordon S. Wismer said "some of these supplies went to Kiska when Canada and United States troops went there to take that island from the Japs. Fortunately there were no casualties there."

Canadians Eat More Meat In '42

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 (CP). — Increased consumption of meat was recorded in Canada during 1942 when the estimated per capita use was 135.2 pounds against 133.1 in 1941, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said today.

"As compared with pre-war years there has been a fairly substantial increase in meat consumption, largely as a result of a greater purchasing power in the hands of the consumers," the Bureau said.

The figures for 1942 are for a period prior to institution of meat rationing in Canada.

Per capita consumption of beef in 1942 amounted to 63.1 pounds, only a slight increase over 1941 consumption of 62.5 pounds but a substantial increase over the 1940 figure of 58.7 pounds.

There was a decrease in veal consumption, the average being 10.9 pounds compared with 11.9 in 1941 and 11.7 in 1940. Farmers were holding back young stock for breeding purposes and this reduced veal supplies available for sale the Bureau added.

Despite the substantial increase in exports of pork products in 1942, domestic consumption increased to 49.1 pounds per capita from 46.5 pounds.

There was no change in the consumption of mutton and lamb in 1942, the per capita figure standing at 5.2 pounds for both years.

Per capita consumption of lard in Canada increased from 7.4 pounds in 1941 to 8.6 pounds in 1942. Lard production increased along with the expansion in hog slaughterings.

Says Mihailovic Quisling, Traitor

TORONTO, Oct. 15 (CP)—Radovan Dimovic, a former guerilla fighter in the Yugoslav Partisan Army under the legendary Drug Tito, in Toronto today before continuing a tour of Ontario cities and towns speaking before groups of his compatriots, denounced Gen. Draja Mihailovich, Yugoslav war minister, as a "Quisling and traitor."

Telling of fighting with the Partisans during the winter of 1941-42 prior to his capture by pro-German forces, he said that at first the various guerilla bands were not united but when many of them agreed to fight together under the banner of Drug Tito, Mihailovich was one of the guerilla leaders who refused.

He said Mihailovich's men frequently attacked bands of Partisans and at one time captured more than 300 and turned them over to the Germans.

Dimovic said that after his capture and subsequent handing over to German authorities, he was sent to Norway with 3,000 other prisoners to labor there, but escaped to Sweden and was given a British visa reaching England in September 1942. His tour is sponsored by various Serbian, Croatian and Slovene organizations.

Farmers and Farm Workers

If Your Farm Work has Slackened for the Winter, You are Needed Elsewhere in Essential Employment

LACK of fuel wood will be serious to our population. A shortage of saw-logs and other forest products would threaten our war effort. Woods operations and other essential industries varying with the district—base metals and coal mining, railway track work, longshore work, meat and fish packing—face Winter labour shortages. Therefore, any man on the farm not needed at home during the Fall and Winter, should offer his services at once for work in one of these other essential industries until the farm again requires him. Men on the land available for the Winter are the Nation's chief hope for securing the needed workers.

Farmers engaged in essential work during the off season will be allowed to return home when needed. Also, those on postponement under Mobilization Regulations will continue on postponement while in approved essential work during the slack on the farm.

Peterboro Soldier Dubbed Fudge-Maker By Canadians

By LOUIS V. HUNTER—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Oct. 13—(Delayed)—(C.P. Cable).—Around the bend in the road ahead Canadian infantry was edging forward through a heavily mined area under heavy enemy mortar and shell fire. In a field on the side of a hill across the road soldiers inspected a shell-torn farmhouse where a padre and a few men had a close call only a short while before.

Parked at the side of the road was an anti-tank gun. Leaning against the barrel of the six-pounder was Lieut. S. A. Walker of Bancroft, Ont., binoculars dangling from his neck, cane in his hand and in the ditch beside him were half-a-dozen men playing cards on a blanket spread in their laps as they nibbled away on some food.

They were waiting to move into action if the Canadian infantry ahead encountered any difficulty in their advance against an important hill-top objective. They were right in the front line.

Quiet Poker Game.

"You might as well stop and visit us a bit," Walker said, "because Jerry is shelling the road ahead and you would only be sticking your neck out if you went any further.

"Perhaps you would like to try some of our special fudge."

And fudge it was—fudge just about as good as mother ever made, with almonds and walnuts.

Walker had a piece in his hand and so had the card players, Ptes. Fred Goodmurphy, 24, Wellington, Ont.; Arthur Spanner, 21, Toronto; Tin-hatted Vincent Longeway, 26, West Monkton, Ont.; Robert Woodward, 23, Bowmanville, Ont., and dark-haired Austin Fuller, 22, of Shannonville, Ont., who asserted, "These guys are trimming me."

The platoon had been fighting on fudge since the invasion of the mainland six weeks ago. The battalion captured a German food store and Walker's men cornered enough sugar to keep them going a long time.

Chief fudge-maker was Pte. Walter Hutchinson, 35, Peterborough, Ont., and Sgt. E. C. Brown, 23, of Picton, Ont.; Cpl. Harold Thompson, 31, Belleville, Ont.; Ptes Norman Shanick, 27, Musclow, Ont., and John Summerfield, 20, Blenheim, Ont., agreed he was as good as a "tommy cooker"—a small petrol cooker—as on a line.

However, a housewife doesn't run into all the snags Hutchinson did when preparing his fudge which was made from captured sugar and chocolate bars from the compo

Appeal To Lewis To Halt Strike

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 —(AP). — New work stoppage in United States coal fields was feared today as miners in Albama and Indiana quit because their union had no contract with the operators.

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, refused to comment early today on an appeal from the United States War Labor Board urging the miners to return to work to insure capacity production of coal. The W.L.B. scheduled a meeting later to-day to discuss the coal situation.

The government took over the operation of the mines during a strike last May. Interior Secretary Harold Ickes, as Wartime Solid Fuels Administrator, this week completed the return of the coal fields to their owners. Lewis' no-strike pledge, given when the goverment assumed control of these mines, expires October 31.

Nearly 25,000 miners had left their jobs up to late last night. The walkout centred in the Alabama coal fields, but quickly spread to properties in Indiana

"No contract—no work"— the old slogan of the mine workers — was their expressed reason for quitting. This time, however, the walkouts were unauthorized by either the national or local units of the U.M.W.

The War Labor Board appealed to Lewis and other U.M.W. officials to use their influence to halt the work stoppage.

Ickes and high army and navy officials have urged the W. L. B. to settle the coal dispute quickly. Ickes wrote chairman William H. Davis last Saturday that if October 31 arrives without a contract between the operators and miners "there almost inevitably would follow runaway strikes which might well spread to the entire industry."

PHILADELPHIA — The United States Navy announced today that a Blimp "has crashed in Barnegat Bay" off the coast of New Jersey.

Rubber Costs Total 750 Millions

Roosevelt Favors Return To Nature's Products

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 —(AP)— President Roosevelt yesterday virtually wrote off the wartime $750,000,000 synthetic rubber industry as a peace-time competitor with natural rubber for making automobile tires. He said that when the war is over tremendous amounts of rubber will be coming from all over the world and it will be cheaper than synthetic.

Mr. Roosevelt mentioned this prospect at a press conference at which he also announced that the office of war mobilization, headed by James F. Byrnes, is going to have a unit to study problems of reconversion and disposition of war plants and property.

The president brought up the subject of rubber while relating that he gave a stag dinner last night for President Lescot of Haiti who is here on a visit. He said Haiti at the United States' suggestion had made large plantings of cryptostegia, a rubber-producing vine. About 10,000 tons of rubber, he added, are expected from that source this year.

Later, the White House made public remarks by Mr. Roosevelt and President Lescot in toasting each other at last night's dinner. At one point Mr. Roosevelt was quoted as saying:—

"I hope that when I am out of the White House—I might get beaten on it otherwise—that the Congress won't put the kind of tariff on rubber for American automobile tires just to keep some synthetic rubber plants going. That would mean that every man in the United States who owned a car would have to pay 50 per cent more for his rubber. I believe in cheap tires, and more of them; and the only way to get that is to use the tires that are made by nature, whether it be rubber, Guayule, or Cryptostegia."

OTTAWA, Oct. 16 — (CP). — Rubber Controller Alan H. Williamson warned Canadian motorists today that the new synthetic tires, available only to owners eligible under tire rationing regulations, may cause serious blowout accident if driven at more than 35 miles an hour.

Mr. Williamson said practical tests of the new tires show that they will quickly over-heat if driven too fast, if underinflated or if they were required to carry too heavy a load, and suggested truck and bus operators make sure that their vehicles carry no more than the load per tire recommended by the Tire and Rim Association.

Although all sizes of synthetic tires will over-heat at a speed greater than 35 miles an hour, the greatest danger is with large-size truck tires. "Such tires have the thicker carcasses and the heat generated internally cannot escape as easily as from a thinner, passenger tire," he said.

Allies Driving North Take 2 More Towns

By N. NORGAARD—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 16 — (AP). — Allied 5th Army troops, knifing deeper north of the Volturno and Calore Rivers against fierce counter-attacks, have captured Ciazzo and Amorosi, and the Germans appear to be trying to break away from their positions near the mouth of the Volturno, Allied headquarters announced to-day.

Caizzo, in the hills a mile north of the Volturno, and Amorosi, five miles away on the east bank give the Allies control of the area in the junction of the two rivers, where the Volturno bends northward. Bitter fighting raged in this sector.

Crashing speedily through heavy enemy resistance in central Italy, the British 8th Army seized the vital road junctions of Vinchiaturo and Campobasso, striking into position to menace the whole flank of the Nazi defenders on the Volturno line.

Canadians Advance.

(The Canadian 1st Division, operating as the left wing of the 8th Army, has been reported fighting in the Campobasso area after a 25-mile march through the mountains, and it was possible they captured that town.

Official reports from Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's frontline headquarters indicated the Germans apparently were trying to disengage from close-quarter combat, especially near the mouth of the Volturno where British units which landed in amphibious action now are strongly entrenched.

Calazzo is 10 miles northeast of Capua, where fierce battles raged during the river crossing. Amorosi lies east of the Volturno where it curves northward and is two miles from the junction of that river and the Calore.

The Allies thus controlled the high ground in that important "corner" on both sides of the Volturno.

Capture Cerrato

Stabbing deep into the area north of the Calore in a position increasing the threat to the Germans' Volturno flank, Americans also captured Cerrato to the northeast of Amorosi.

Some 25 miles to the northeast, the British 8th Army struck forward about six miles to take Campobasso, in the centre of the Allied line across Italy, and Vinchiaturo, six miles southwest. This also marked a deep penetration threatening the flank of the Volturno line.

Both fell "after determined assaults," today's Allied communique said. Vinchiaturo is a key point on the main road across Italy from Foggia to Rome, and from Termoli on the Adriatic to Naples.

(Loss of Campobasso was acknowledge by Berlin yesterday.)

Allied planes struck at German communication centres and supplies, and medium bombers raided the Salonika airfields in Greece during widespread operations.

At sea, a naval communique announced that British destroyers in the Adriatic Thursday night intercepted two Italian ships carrying German armed guards, sinking one carrying 500 tons of bauxite after the Germans set it afire, and capturing the other, a medium-sized tanker.

Dewey Suggests Alliance With Britain

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(CP)— —Wendell L. Willkie and Thomas E. Dewey, two of the leading Republican possibilities for the 1944 United States Presidential nomination, made it clear to-day they are walking down different streets on America's post-war foreign policy.

Willkie, Republican nominee in 1940, called last night for an "understanding" among all the Allied Nations as "our only chance to realize man's hope for peace."

Dewey, Governor of New York, weeks ago advocated a post-war military alliance between the United States and Great Britain without mentioning other Allies.

Willkie took his stand in a radio speech from St. Louis, declaring that the cause of world peace would not be advanced by "defensive and offensive alliances between any two of the principal Allies."

Willkie's Idea.

Willkie observed:

"I should like to see this country exercise its utmost qualities of leadership and moral force to bring Great Britain, Russia, China, and the United States to a point of understanding where they will make a joint declaration of intention as a preliminary to forming a common council of the United Nations, and other friendly nations and eventually all the nations."

At Mackinac Island, where a 49-member Council of Republican Governors, Congressmen, and other party leaders met to draft a party post-war program, Dewey started a side controversy by urging a military alliance with Great Britain.

The former New York City racket buster told a press conference he believed a permanent military alliance with Great Britain is almost certain after the war, but added that he would like to see Russia and China "in at the beginning" when the time comes to work out the peace.

After gaining a bridgehead across an Italian river British troops of General Clark's Fifth Army prepare to scale a wall as they fan out in pursuit of the enemy which they have now driven from their positions along the Volturno River.

May Trap Nazis in Crimea

LONDON, Oct. 16—(CP).—Russian troops are plunging steadily westward across the low flat plains leading to the Crimea in an audacious attempt to entrap upwards of 100,000 Germans reported garrisoning the great peninsula, dispatches from Moscow said today. Other Red Army forces, having successfully invested Zaporozhe, industrial city on the bend of the Dnieper River 65 miles to the north, were battling their way down the railway that leads through Melitopol to the Crimea.

Today's Russian communique said this column already had driven the hard-fighting Germans back through five railway towns, including Plavni, 17 miles southeast of Zaporozhe.

(BBC, in a broadcast recorded by CBS. quoted front-line dispatches as saying that half of the town of Melitopol is in Russian hands).

Berlin ignored the extreme southern fighting in its communique, but said that strong Soviet forces had launched new attacks southeast of Kremenchug, just above the great bend in the Dnieper river; both north and south of the key city of Kiev; near Chernigov, southwest of Smolensky, and on the northwestern front near Velikie Luki.

All attacks were repulsed either in violent hand-to-hand fighting or by counter-attacks, the German communique claimed.

May Cross Straits.

Germans in the Crimea were faced with another threat from the Taman peninsula in the western Caucasus, where strong Soviet forces were reported massing for an amphibious attack across the Kerch Straits and the Black Sea.

The Germans were also counter-attacking south of Gomel, in the White Russia, where they were attempting to drive the Russians from the west bank of the Sozh River and relieve pressure on that important rail centre. The Red Army troops stood firm, and then moved forward to strengthen their envelopment of the city, the communique said.

The whole German position on the Eastern Front was admittedly precarious the BBC, in a broadcast recorded by CBC, reported a speech in Prague by Reichprotec-

Time Bombs Left By Nazis Intensifies Italian Hatred

By HAL BOYLE—Associated Press War Correspondent

NAPLES, Oct. 7—(Delayed)—(AP).—You can never tell in advance how anything will affect morale. Take that nasty little habit the Germans have of leaving forget-me-nots in the form of time-bombs behind them. The Nazis knew for weeks that they would have to yield Naples to the Allies and their engineers had time to plant many of them in the basements of buildings, in street debris and in manholes beneath the pavements.

The mechanism is very simple. You merely take a quantity of dynamite, TNT, road mines or even air bombs and attach a fuse set for a certain hour and day. When that time arrives, unless the mechanism has been defused, there is a vast explosion.

Army engineers save many lives by discovering and rendering harmless many of the time-bombs. In one building, for example, they defused a 1,500-pound bomb.

But it is manifestly impossible for the army engineers to ferret in a short while all the hidden bombs in a city the size of Naples — 1,000,000 people.

In the last two days I have been on the scene of two blasts. One ripped a great hole in the Via Partenope, a seaside avenue. Seven persons were injured.

Today I was walking along the Via Roma when a timebomb blew out one end of the postoffice a block and a half away. I ran to spot. Half a dozen men and women covered with grey cordite from the explosion staggered past. One girl held a handkerchief to her head to staunch the flow of blood from a ragged cut in her head.

Ambulances began to roll up. A pall of grey-smoke hung around the bodies in ankle-deep debris and big chunks of concrete lay about.

Authorities announced the toll explosion as 23 dead and 100 injured.

The Germans sowed their time-bombs in Naples to disrupt the city and crack its morale. Their effect has been to intensify Italian support to the Allies and hatred of the Germans. They have stirred white-hot hatred, too, among the many American soldiers who hitherto have fought well, but found it hard really to hate anybody.

Morale is a queer thing. Dr. Goebbels still has much to learn about it.

Nazi Aviators Miss Bridges

Airforce Makes Surprise Raid In Strength

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press War Correspondent

AT THE VOLTURNO RIVER FRONT, Oct. 15—(Delayed)—(AP)— The German air force reappeared today in strength for the first time since the early stages of the campaign and lost many planes without achieving results.

Fighters-bombers attempted to knock out two bridges Allied engineers have thrown across the Volturno River.

They swept over the mountains, then dropped to a low level, shooting up the roadway on which big Allied convoys were moving toward the bridges. Half of them sprayed the convoy with bullets, others bombed the bridges. Neither bridge was hit.

It was the first time since the opening week of the battle of Italy that German planes had made a concentrated attack on any objective.

Only an occasional fighter or reconnaissance plane has been seen during the drive up the coast.

In the last three days the enemy has been appearing in greater numbers, but today's attack was the first time in any strength.

Anti-aircraft crews knocked down at least two and Spitfires claimed more.

Indians Regret Turning Down Cripps

Many Leaders Would Welcome Plan For Dominion Status

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

There is a fresh movement in India among liberal leaders to get a quick settlement of the Anglo-Indian political crisis which is dangerous for the war effort, and especially so since famine has descended on parts of the country to aggravate an unhappy situation

The Indian Empire—the size of Europe without Russia and with a population of 400,000,000—is the arsenal of the Orient. It's one of the most important military bases for an all-out offensive against Japan. From India we must stage the invasion of Burma, to open up China to the outside world. India is the base of great air activities which are essential to the assault on Japan.

Does that picture need any touching up to make clear the gravity of the position? Famine and political bitterness would make a bad combination if unprincipled people should be able to capitalize on them for ulterior purposes.

Among the Indian leaders who are pressing anew for settlement is C. Rajagopalachari (better known as "C. R."), moderate nationalist who is one of the most influential men in the country, he is a Brahmin, and so belongs to the highest Hindu caste, and incidentally is father-in-law of Davidas Gandhi, the Mahatma's son.

C.R. in an article in the Nationalist newspaper Amrita Bazar Patrika declares the Indians made a great mistake last year in rejecting Sir Stafford Cripps proposals for Dominion states. He advocates the "wholehearted acceptance of the Cripps plan for a constituent assembly on the basis of complete self-government in India."

An Unusual Plan.

My study of the situation while in India some months ago convinced me that the Indian leaders regretted their rejection of the Cripps proposals and were ready to compromise. However, I understand from important quarters that there is one thing which would work. It's sensational, but probably practical, and it involves the King-Emperor.

If His Majesty, acting on the advice of his Prime Minister, should call upon his people, both Indians and Britons, to bury the hatchet and form a Coalition Government in New Delhi for the purpose of the war effort, it's probable that all hands would turn to with a will. Such a government could be without prejudice to discussion of Indian claims after the war. It would in effect be a provisional government out of which the Dominion status likely would grow. This plan naturally would involve the release of Gandhi and other leaders from prison.

The point is that most Indians regard the King-Emperor as outside politics, and he means more to the average subject than the Government itself.

Willkie Fires Opening Gun

Claims World Regards U.S. As Leader

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16.—(AP).—Declaring that he knew from personal observation that all the world looks to the United States for leadership, Wendell L. Willkie warned the Republican Party not to choose a Presidential candidate "who hedges or qualifies or whose record is ambiguous on the issues of the day."

The 30-minute address, on a radio network broadcast last night, was considered by some to be the keynote address of his campaign. for the 1944 Presidential nomination.

Willkie told his listeners that "you have heard men call me an internationalist and with that word they try to get the implication I am thereby less an American. I do believe in international co-operation, not because I love America less but because I love her more —America of well-being, of jobs, of opportunity, of ideals and of free men."

Willkie picture a world at peace having "expanding foreign markets," security against "wasting the substance of people in building rival impregnable defences," and a monetary standard "around which currencies of the world can be stabilized.

"In my opinion we are not yet at the blue print stage. The ultimate blue print will be what we can work out with these nations in mutual accommodation. But first we must discovered a common ground on which we can begin to build.

ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT SAYS IT WILL NOT TOLERATE TAMPERING

President Pedro Ramirez Head Of Argentine Shows Pro-Nazi Leanings

Manifesto From Many Leading Citizens Irks Government Chief; Ramirez Labels Some Signees Foreigners

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 16—(AP).—A strongly-worded communique from the office of President Pedro Ramirez today applied the label of "foreigners" to some of those who signed a pro-democratic manifesto published yesterday and said the Government would not "tolerate any tampering."

The announcement, distributed at a morning press conference, declared the Government wanted this "foretold so each one will know its duty and abide by subsequent consequences."

The manifesto was published in yesterday morning's papers. It urged the Ramirez Government, which has persisted in a policy of neutrality, to swing to American solidarity.

Today's presidential pronouncement followed a sharp rebuke by President Roosevelt to Argentina yesterday in connection with a ban placed on Jewish-language newspapers. The ban was lifted last night.

Printed In Papers.

The manifesto, bearing the signatures of many persons prominent in political and business life in the Argentine, was presented to Ramirez personally some time ago, but only yesterday reached print.

It called for a fulfillment of Argentina's pledge, given at the Rio de Janeiro conference of American foreign ministers, to co-operate in a United American front against the Axis and restoration of constitutional government in Argentina.

In this morning's statement, it was stated the government "emphatically calls attention that some signers of the manifesto addressed to the Argentines are foreigners, some of them born in far-off lands". The statement added:

"The problems inherent in nationality must be solved by the master of the house instead of the guests whatever be the rights they invoke.

"The government is animated by ample Republican feeling, as demonstrated justly by the publication of the manifesto, but it won't tolerate any tampering, even less will it accept impositions or polemics incompatible to the sovereignity of its representation."

Yesterday, President Ramirez disclosed the appointment of three men, one of them a prominent author of several books anti-semitic in tone, to fill cabinet vacancies created by resignations early in the week.

Grand Master To Visit I.O.O.F.

Byron E. Dundas, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, Indepenent Order of Oddfellows, will pay a fraternal visit to Peterborough on Wednesday, October 20 and is scheduled to address a meeting in the I.O.O.F. Hall.

Mr. Dundas, who is superintendent of Deliveries for a London departmental store, was born in Ingersoll 43 years ago. He was initiated into Chorazin Lodge No. 190 of London in 1922 and he first entered grand lodge as a representative in 1932. He joined Harmony Encampment No. 3 in 1936 and was Chief Patriarch in 1938 and he entered Grand Encampment as a member in June 1939. He was District Deputy Grand Master in 1936-1938 and was appointed Grand Messenger in 1940 and elected to the office of Grand Warden in 1941.

1,200 Germans Die At Zagreb

LONDON, Oct. 16—(CP)—A major battle for the strategic Save river railway bridge midway between Ljubljana and Zagreb in Slovenia, with Yugoslav Patriots capturing several important fortified positions and killing more than 1,200 Germans, was reported today by a communique of the Yugoslav Army of Liberation.

The communique, broadcast by the free Yugoslav radio, also announced the storming and capture of the Montenegrin town of Andreijevic, just north of the Albanian frontier, by units of the second Partisan Corps led by Gen. Petar Dabcevis.

Fierce, hand-to-hand street fighting continued in Zenica, 140 miles west of Belgrade in the heart of the Bosnian Ruhr. The outcome still was in doubt.

The bulletin described the fighting in lower Styria and Slovenia as "successful large-scale" operations in which the Germans were said to be getting severe punishment.

With Marshal Erwin Rommel reported taking over the German command in Yugoslavia, London morning papers published dispatches from Istanbul saying that Hitler had dispatched seven additional divisions into the revolt-torn country and that Axis forces now in action there total 12 German and nine Bulgarian divisions.

Guerilla bands operating east of Ljubljana near Zidanimost have derailed several enemy trains and ripped up several stretches of track, the bulletin said, and further south in Bosnia, crack Patriot columns

Y Supper Club Learns Of Photography

Some 40 members of the Friday Night Club turned out Friday night to its second meeting of the new year. Although membership is still under par, it is a definite increase over last week, and the president, Harry Vass, extended his appreciation to the boys for the faithfulness to the club.

Music for the evening was supplied by a guest pianist, James Shields. He entertained with some "solid jive". The guest speaker, Fred Cripps, was introduced by Norman Allan. According to the introduction, Mr. Cripps, a Peterborough boy, received his advanced education in the United States, then returned to this city where he has become successful as a commercial photographer.

Mr. Cripps traced the history of photography from the mystic age of the alchemist, when all sciences were born of superstitions, and fostered by fraud and imposture, to the time when the French really produced lasting reproductions of the life around them.

Throughout his talk, Mr. Cripps gave many interesting facts. He stated that models in early times had to sit perfectly still with an iron clamp on their head while a six minute exposure was made, whereas now, one five hundredth of a second is sufficient.

He also noted that some 200,000 livings are made directly through photography. The speaker then turned to the technical side of photography and explained in detail the procedure used in turning out a portrait.

Warren Trotter moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Cripps and the meeting then turned to the business of the week.

It was announced by the president, that through the courtesy of Mr. H. L. Garner, the Friday Night Club will hit the air lanes, through radio station CHEX, some time in the near future. Boys interested in the Friday Night Club should watch the Examiner for the exact details.

The present club members are anxious to keep it in good working order for the boys who are now overseas. Members are asked to appear weekly at the Y.M.C.A. Friday at 6:30.

Allied Bombs Rip Jap Bases

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, the Southwest Pacific, Oct. 16 (AP).—New Britain, key Japanese position now exposed to possible invasion from the west by the recent Allied successes on the nearby New Guinea is undergoing an aerial pounding the length of its 370-mile-long crescent.

Life Giving Fluid Used On Front Lines

This picture taken at an advanced medical centre in the Mediterranean war theatre shows use of dried blood plasma, made from blood donations given by Canadians, in saving lives of wounded soldiers. Fluid made up from blood plasma and distilled water is flowing into the veins of a patient in a medical tent as a transfusion takes place. The fluid is contained in the bottle hanging upside down on the pole and passes into the patient's veins through the tube.

Canada Needs 4,000 More Donors To Fill Weekly Plasma Quotas

Eleven thousand donors across Canada are giving their blood for the men on the battle fields every week, but in spite of their efforts, 4,000 more a week are needed if the objective requested by the Canadian Government can be reached.

Technicians have developed and improved methods for processing blood into serum and a new step has been taken for use on the field of battle. Boxes have been invented to carry seven bottles of serum, seven bottles of distilled water and four administration sets, and thousands of these are being shipped from Canada. Now blood transfusions are given on the front line, saving many a life. The people of this city are asked to help make up this quota.

The donors this week are:

City's Workers Are Backers Of Victory Loan

With an objective of $950,000 to be met in the city's industrial payroll section of the 5th Victory Loan, some 400 canvassers attended a dinner meeting at the Genelco Cafeteria Friday night to listen to B. A. Trestrail of the John Inglis Company, Toronto review his experience in evolving the employee mass sales plan, with which work his name has been connected since the start of Victory Loan campaigns.

Giving spirited advice to his large audience, Mr. Trestrail also outlined a sales technique which, founded on the basic elements of productive salesmanship, would, he said, achieve more than satisfactory results for the individual canvasser, give him pleasure and a definite thrill in the work that lay ahead of him.

In the first Victory Loan, the speaker said, methods for appealing to the employees of plants were haphazard, hit-or-miss, and this at a time when Canada's very existence was at stake and much depended upon the raising of adequate sums to get emergency war production into high gear. "There was no dressing up and no follow ups," he said.

Industries Good

But matters had changed greatly in the intervening period, he added. Travelling across the country selling his ideas, he had come to feel a profound respect for the employees of Canada's industries, who had adopted suggestions made with consistent enthusiasm, always eager to do whatever could be done to increase greater appreciation of the need for laying away saving in successive war loans. As a result, the purchases of employees had advanced from $12,000,000 to $65,000,000 in the 2nd Victory Loan, had increased by rapid strides in each loan since, and now today it was his opinion that possibly $200,000,000 would be collected in the present drive from this one source alone.

Turning then to the work of the canvasser, Mr. Trestrail said: "Don't try to sell a thing, not even the bond; you have got to sell a point of view. You must find out what is in the other person's mind, get his reactions and sell him on the basis of his character, background and opinions. That is the first fundamental.

"Then, the second fundamental is that you must have the tools with which to work." Among these, Mr. Trestrail devoted especial consideration to qualities of enthusiasm and confidence. "Be certain that you will get the person to take what you expect of him; always feel that, even if he appears doubtful, you know he will have reason to thank you six months from now. Enthusiasm, contrary to the belief of many, can be turned on like an electric light, and you might well look upon each interview you undertake as a kind of adventure in your own private Victory Loan campaign. Remember this sentence: What will I put you down for?—and start with that."

Smart Salesmanship

There were other tricks of the trade which Mr. Trestrail passed on to his audience with shrewd emphasis, pointed up humorously by an abundance of illustrative anecdotes. He advised canvassers to keep their interviews on a strict question and answer basis suited to the needs and problems of the particular individual, avoiding any suggestion of giving a straight salesmanship talk as if something memorized from a book. He told them to prepare for their campaign by listing prospects in a definite order and sticking to that order through hell and high water. And he said:

"Always excepting war production, there is nothing more important the civilian can do for his country, his community, his company and the people he talks to, than to help build up a reserve of savings for the post-war period. This will do more for us in the years after victory than all the post-war plans that have yet been thought up."

Peterborough First

D. G. H. Melton, presiding as chairman, opened the meeting in a brief address in which he stated he had given the challenge to representatives of other communities of the province at a gathering held in Toronto by saying that Peterborough's industrial payroll section would meet its objective before any city of similar size in Ontario. He had stuck his neck out on behalf of Peterborough, but if every canvasser had done his work by the end of next week he felt sure this challenge would be fulfilled. "Let this be the keynote," Mr. Melton said: "Do it, do it as fast as possible, and if possible, let us beat everybody else."

At the speaker' table were also Ian McRae, works manager of the C.G.E. and Genelco and vice-president in the 5th Victory Loan, and Gordon Matthews, Chairman National War Finance Committee, who introduced the speaker. At tables flanking the speaker's table sat Vincent Eastwood, Honorary Chairman, with members of the committee of the Payroll Savings section.

Hearty applause was given members of the 16-piece pipe band of the 48th Highlanders, who marched through the cafeteria hall and played several selections before the meeting was called to order.

Kelly was taken to the Peterborough Clinic for medical attention and afterward to his home.

Peterboro Lions To Boost Loan

A special program complementing the Fifth Victory Loan has been arranged by the officers of the Peterborough Lions Club for the regular meeting at the Kawartha Club on Monday evening.

Some members of the club serving in the Reserve Army will attend in uniform to take part in a tableaux, and tribute will be paid to members of the club now on active service. The club members will rededicate themselves to the stern job that lies ahead, and will arrange to aid in every way possible to put the Fifth Victory Loan over the top. This is in conformity with a request from the Government that service clubs across Canada take a special interest in this, the greatest Loan which Canada has ever called for.

Robertson Davies, editor of the Peterborough Examiner will be guest speaker and will address the members on the subject, "Newspaper Work."

Expect Christians To Keep Sunday Entirely Holy Day

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Oct. 17 is Exodus 20:8-11; Isaiah 58:13, 14; Mark 2:23-3:6, the Golden Text being Mark 2:27, "And He said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath.")

"REMEMBER THE sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work: But the seventh is the sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor the stranger that is within thy gates.

"For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed the sabbath day and hallowed it."

This is the fourth commandment and it is a wise and just one which is well worth observing even by people who do not subscribe to the Christian religion. Six days shalt thou labor and on the seventh thou shalt rest and think of other things than work. In normal times six days is the limit any person should work, and the seventh day is needed for rest and recuperation.

The commandment tells us to keep the day holy. We would do well to heed this command. Six days we have for the work and play of the world; one day to devote to refreshing our souls—to quiet thought and communication with the things of the spirit.

God's Reward

"If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on My holy day; and call the sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor Him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words:

"Then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth—"

Thus spoke Isaiah, one of the greatest of the Hebrew prophets. You may not feel like going to church, maybe. You may feel tired and think that rest and fun is the answer to your Sunday problem. But if you turn away from such thoughts and resolutely rise, dress and betake yourself to the church of your choice, join in the services with heart as well as voice, you will know what Isaiah meant when he spoke of the Lord causing "thee to ride upon the high places of the earth." Refreshment and renewal both of body and mind will result.

Only in St. Mark do we find the story of Jesus, the man with the withered hand, and the Pharisees. First, however, Mark tells us of Jesus and His disciples walking through the wheat field, and the disciples plucking the grains of wheat and eating them. The Pharisees watching this proceeding with great pleasure. These men were breaking the sabbath according to the Jewish law.

Finally the Pharisees said to Jesus: "Behold, why do they on the sabbath day that which is not lawful?"

Jesus answered them by referring to the scriptures in which was told how David the king, being hungry and those with him likewise, ate the showbread in the temple which was only supposed to be eaten by the priests.

Sabbath for Man

"And He said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath: Therefore the Son of Man is Lord also of the sabbath."

When men are hungry and need food it is time to eat if possible, and one is not desecrating the sabbath by so doing.

Jesus went into the synagogue and a man with a withered hand was there also. The Pharisees were also present, ever hoping to catch this Man who had so much power and so much influence with the common people, and destroy Him. They watched now to see if He would heal this man on the sabbath.

Jesus told the man to "stand forth," and he did so. "And He saith unto them, It it lawful to do good on the sabbath days, or to do evil? to save life, or to kill? But they held their peace."

Jesus looked around on these men, grieved and angry, "for the hardness of their hearts," and told the man to stretch forth his hand, and it was restored whole.

The Pharisees then went to the Herodians and counseled with them how to destroy Him. The Herodians were a small company of Jews who supported the rulership of Herod Antipas under the dominion of the Roman empire. They were considered unpatriotic by most of the Jews. The Pharisees, you see, who were so particular about the very letter of the law, for Jesus, were not above associating with and asking the help of these people who were considered traitors to their country's cause, in order to trap the Lord.

The Golden Text

Jesus and His disciples going through the cornfield.

"And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath."—Mark 2:27.

Mankind Should Be Proud Of Privilege To Serve

By REV. E. R. JAMES

The young man had great possessions.—St. Mark 10:22.

This story is repeated by the three evangelists. It has gripped the imagination of countless people. Watts, the great artist, has pictured the face of the young man as dark and gloomy as he turns away. St. Mark gives the reason: "He has great possessions."

The same evangelist startles us by adding, what the other writers omit: "Jesus, beholding him, loved him." There was something attractive in the face and manner of this young man. He was devout and highly cultured. Yet he felt there was something lacking in his religious life. "What shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" is his dominating question, which has come down through the centuries, moving the conscience of many a devout man.

That young man is looking into the eyes of the Perfect One Who know what is in man. The Teacher has put His finger upon the cancer in the man's character. "Go, sell all that thou hast and give to the poor; and come, follow Me" is the clear, positive command. The Revised Version brings out the truer meaning, which Watts strives to put on canvas: "His countenance fell at that saying and he went away sorrowful for he had great possessions."

Here we have the touch of an eye-witness: "Jesus looked around about and saith unto His disciples: How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the Kingdom of God. And the disciples were amazed at His words."

"In all time of our wealth, Good Lord, deliver us" are familiar words to some. It is placed between tribulation and death. Those ancient Christian teachers would impress upon us the profound truth of the peril of possessions, whether small or great. For wealth is a relative term. A few hundred dollars may mean wealth to you; but would spell poverty to the man across the street.

Our forefathers applied the word "possessed" to those who were insane, mentally unbalanaced. You

Catholic Hierarchy Gather For Missionary Exhibition

Planning for an immediate resumption and extension of its foreign missionary work when war ends the Catholic Church in Canada is staging in Varsity Arena, Toronto, starting today and continuing until the 19th, the largest and most varied Missionary Exhibition ever held in the Dominion.

The Pope himself, Pius XIII, has written a letter of congraluation to the Archbishop of Toronto, Most Rev. J. C. McGuigan, on the occasion. The Papal Delegate to Canada and Newfoundland, Most Rev. Ildebrando Antoniutti, is in Toronto for the Exhibition, as is Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, and the great majority of the members of the Catholic Hierarchy in Canada from Cape Breton to the Mackenzie River.

BISHOP PAUL YU-PIN

The most interesting foreign visitor is doubtless Bishop Paul Yu-Pin, Vicar Apostolic of Nanking, which was the capital city of China at the time of his appointment, before the Japanese invasion. Born in Manchuria forty-two years ago this remarkable man received his first college education from the Jesuits in Shanghai. He went to Rome for his ecclesiastical studies and there obtained the coveted double doctorate in Philosophy and Theology. On his return to China he became closely associated with Chiang Kai Shek, the patriot generalissimo, and Bishop Yu-Pin, by his own heroic stand against the Japanese, has earned the title of the "Cardinal Mercier of China". He is in North American at present as envoy for the Chinese Government and is particularly interested in refugee and relief work.

Another Bishop from China who is at the Exhibition is Canadian-born. Most Rev. Cuthbert M. O'Gara, C.P., was born in Ottawa in 1886 and graduated from the University of Ottawa in 1910. As a member of the Passionist Order he went to China on mission work in 1924 and was consecrated Bishop ten years later. He has ecclesiastical charge of sixteen thousand square miles in the Province of Hunan.

Very large parts of Canada are still entirely missionary territory, for example the vicariate of Mackenzie which extends to the North Pole. This is represented by Bishop Joseph Trocelier, O.M.I., whose flock is chiefly Eskimo.

About a score of the front-line missionary orders of the Catholic Church have booths in Varsity Arena, including historic names like the Jesuits, the Franciscans, the Oblates, the Redemptorists and the Ursulines, as well as the more recently-founded orders which specialize on adaptation to modern conditions. They show their schools, their hospitals, their leper asylums and all the other means by which they endeavour to carry the message of Christian charity and Christian truth to the unevangelized world.

The architectural planning of the booths in Varsity Arena has been the work of Mr. James Haffa, M.R. A.I.C. The booths are variously Chinese, Bengalese, African, Western Canadian and so on in character according to the region whose work they particularly display.

"A SUNDAY WELL SPENT MEANS A WEEK OF CONTENT"

Jesus and the Sabbath — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:8-11; Isaiah 58:13, 14; Mark 2:23—3:6

"Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work. But the seventh is the sabbath of the Lord thy God, in it thou shalt not do any work."

"If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on My holy day, and call the sabbath a delight, then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord."

After walking in the cornfield with His disciples, Jesus entered the synagogue and there was a man with a withered hand; the Pharisees watched to see what he would do.

Jesus healed the man's withered hand in the synagogue on the sabbath, so the Pharisees went to counsel with the Herodians how they might destroy Him. GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 2:27.

Italy Seeks Redemption

Marshal Badoglio has declared that Italy has chosen the hard road to redemption, and now—five weeks after her unconditional surrender—she has been accepted by the Allies as a "co-belligerent", and has declared war on her former Axis partner. It would be easy to write facetiously of this change of front, and to make humorous play with the distinction between "co-belligerent" and "ally". The agony of a nation, however, is a poor subject for journalistic wit; Italy is in the refiner's fire now, and whether she proves to be gold or dross her purgation will be extreme.

It is impossible to say now what the United Nations have gained by the addition of Italy to their fighting forces. The Italian Navy, for so long the sport of the Royal Navy, will now sail on our side. If we can equip them, Italian troops will march with ours. There have been too many jokes about the Italian alacrity in retreat and surrender, and too many gibes about the fondness of the Italian Navy for a snug harbour, for us to feel that we have gained very much. But there is this side of the matter: we have reason to believe that the majority of the Italians fought unwillingly as German allies, for they felt that Germany would take the lion's share of any spoils of war. Now they will be fighting to avenge direct wrongs done to themselves and their country. Will that change their spirit? If the Italian people have any fight left in them the grotesque and unnecessary sack of Naples will bring it out. When they fought as Axis troops they fought for conquest, and their hearts did not seem to be in it: now they fight for vengeance, and if anything of the spirit of the vendetta lingers in the Italian blood, they should fight with a will.

There has been some talk of the moral value of the Italian reverse. It may affect the lesser fry of the Axis to see the former ally of Germany turn against her; it would be hard to judge the worth of such an influence. The Axis satellites have not shown themselves particularly susceptible to moral influences. But the moral effect on the Allies should be tonic. Italy was accepted as a co-belligerent by Great Britain, the United States, and Russia, in full agreement. That proves that those three countries can act in complete accord when a matter of high policy is under consideration. If we doubt the good sense of the two English-speaking countries in such a matter, let us remember that Russia—so widely praised as a "realistic" country — has given its approval. If agreement on such a matter is possible, the Three Power Conference should be able to reach some valid and valuable decisions.

The declaration of war on Germany was made by the government of King Victor Emmanuel and Marshal Badoglio, neither of whom has distinguished himself in the past ten years as a friend of democracy or freedom. But the Royal Italian Government still retains the prestige necessary to keep the Italian people together, and it must be accepted as the best that is offering. It is important to remember that this government has pledged itself to permit the Italian people to choose their own form of government — provided it be democratic—when time permits.

But this decision, and this choice of the hard road to redemption, does not wipe out old scores. Italy surrendered unconditionally to the Allies and must eventually pay the piper. How hard the terms will be depends on "the assistance which the Italian Government may be able to afford the United Nations' cause". The behaviour of Italy in the early days of the war will not soon be forgotten. The cynical and calculated brutality with which Italy entered the war in time, as she thought, to share the booty, shocked the world then and cannot now be forgotten, however humble the Italian repentance may be. It is the wish of everyone who truly cares for civilization that a great and regenerated Italy may take a responsible place among the important nations of the world when the war has been won and the mess cleared up. The birth-pains of that regeneration are now in progress, and they will be long and severe. But if the new Italy genuinely realizes the value of responsible self-government the cost and the pain will not have been too great.

B'nai B'rith Centenary

Last Wednesday the international Jewish organization, the B'nai B'rith, celebrated the hundredth anniversary of its foundation. The work of the B'nai B'rith is not as widely known in Gentile communities, perhaps, as it should be, and therefore it may be necessary to explain that it is a service organization based upon a broad conception of the traditions and duties of the Hebrew race. Its founder, Henry Jones, and a group of his co-religionists started the society in Aaron Sisenheimer's restaurant in New York City on October 13, 1843, and from a humble beginning it has grown to be a large and powerful organization with an impressive record of achievement.

At a time when the Jews have been accused of every sort of beastliness by a race which the Jews have done much to make great, it is wise for us to take a good look at the B'nai B'rith, and at the Jewish citizens of our own country, and to form our own idea of their worth. The Jews form a very small proportion of Canada's population, but they have served the country well. They have fought in two great wars in numbers far greater than might be expected on a basis of population; they have used their commercial talent to advance some of the best interests of Canada; as always, they have been prominent in the development and support of the arts. We may compliment ourselves by repeating the words of a wise Viennese who said, "Every country has the sort of Jew it deserves".

It is the peculiar property of the Hebrew faith to be able to exist in a Christian country without transgressing a single Christian ideal. Christianity is founded upon a solid base of Judaism; indeed, a witty rabbi once said that if the Jews were half as rapacious as they are reputed to be, they would charge Christians a royalty on every copy of the Bible sold. Jewish charities are famous everywhere for their munificence; their ideals of domestic and parental virtue are identical with our own. In the B'nai B'rith Jewish charity and Jewish common sense have combined to form a great and admirable association. May the society flourish in its second century as it has prospered during its first, and may the menorah continue to give light in a world where it is sorely needed.

Relic Of Peterborough Founder

We have been given an opportunity to examine a letter which was written by Peter Robinson, the founder of this city, to Alexander McDonnell from York (now Toronto) on the 12th of March, 1827; the letter is the property of W. F. Huycke, Esq., of Peterborough, who is presenting it to the Public Library here so that it may be carefully preserved.

Anyone with a turn for disparagement might say that this was merely another old letter, much like hundreds of others, and that its preservation or destruction is not a matter of consequence. We disagree entirely with that point of view. The letter is a relic of a man prominent in the life of Upper Canada a century ago, and particularly remembered for the fact that he brought settlers to Scott's Plains and in a short time turned that meagre break in the bush into a thriving town, which was subsequently named in his honour.

It is often said that Canada is a young country, and that her interest lies in the future and not in the dead past; that attitude will change as time passes and we learn the lesson—which every country learns sooner or later — that everything that we have and are has its roots in the past, and that the past is not dead, but continually with us. When that realization comes to Canada there will be a scramble for relics and links with the past of every kind, and those who have carelessly allowed objects of historical interest to be lost will reproach themselves bitterly. In three hundred years or so a letter from Peter Robinson will have an interest, a value and an importance which we cannot estimate now.

Mr. Huycke's example might be followed by other citizens who have papers or objects of significance in the history of this city or the county. The sooner such things are put in the safekeeping of a public institution, or carefully established as family heirloms, the better it will be.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An unconfirmed report says that Mussolini is really dead, and his body has been taken to Germany. That was an interesting picture of Hitler shaking hands with the grinning corpse.

The Art Of Seeing

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

MOST people who are interested in his work know that Aldous Huxley has been almost blind since his boyhood. Now in his fiftieth year, he has regained the power to see in a great measure, and he has written a book called "The Art Of Seeing" (Macmillans) to tell us how it was done. Undoubtedly the book will cause a great deal of discussion and some heat among orthodox opthalmologists, for it is directly contrary to what they bel-eve. I am not qualified to take part in any scientific discussion of the subject, but my advice to people with defective sight is, get the book and read it.

FOR the past fifteen years or so Huxley has being delving into the nooks and crannies of esoteric belief, unorthodox medical science, and mystical religion. To his researches he took a brilliant and profoundly sceptical mind, so that we may assume that he has not been bamboozled by tricksters. He has championed, among others, Mathias Alexander, a healer who believes that many bodily ailments are the result of an improper use of the body, and that these ailments —some of them are neuritis, rheumatism, stammering and nervous tic—can be cured by proper re-education. Alexander has some remarkable cures to his credit, and his patients have included Huxley, Sir Stafford Cripps and Bernard Shaw, none of whom are likely to be the dupes of a charlatan. Alexander's system of healing has a philosophical basis: most of us, he says, are interested only in gaining our ends, and take no account of the means whereby we seek to gain those ends; in the physical world this leads to all sorts of malfunctioning, and varieties of disease for which no specific treatment can be found; not treatment for symptoms, but a re-education of the body, is necessary for cure, he says, and he has proved it in many cases.

IF a misuse of the body may cause rheumatism or partial paralysis, might it not also cause defective vision? It was along that line that the American physician, Dr. W. H. Bates, worked, and he evolved the system of visual re-education which Huxley has followed with such good results. As an innovator in opthalmology Bates was not popular with his colleagues, and even less popular with manufacturers of spectacles, for he condemned spectacles utterly, and would not permit his patients to wear them. The trouble with spectacles, he said, was that they were designed to correct a special fault in the eyes, and that they could only be seen through when the eye was subject to exactly that fault; thus the wearer of spectacles could not expect his eyes to improve, for if they did so he would not be able to see through his glasses. But, said Bates, no patient's eyes reveal an invariable fault; they change from hour to hour and from day to day; spectacles, therefore, held the eyes rigidly to one special error of refraction, and were comparable to an iron brace on the leg, or a crutch which a patient was not allowed to discard.

BATES evolved his own methods of treating defective vision; re-education of the eyes played a great part in it. Most people with defective vision have bad habits of using their eyes; they stare fixedly in their attempts to see; they do not blink or rest their eyes enough; they try to see more than is necessary, or than is visible to a person with healthy eyes. Correction of these faults was necessary before an improvement could be expected. In addition he put his patients through a system of exercises, designed to strengthen and encourage the eyes, and gradually to improve their functioning. He did not promise to restore perfect sight; he did so in many cases, however. He did promise to give better and more comfortable vision than would be possible with glasses.

IN addition to the physical re-education, Bates insisted upon a re-education of the seeing faculty of the mind. Ophthalmologists treat the eye as an organ, and neglect entirely its function as an instrument conveying impressions to the brain. Anyone who has thought about the matter knows that we really see very little of what lies within our range of vision; our eyes are selective organs, taking in some impressions and neglecting others. Training of this selective ability, and particularly rooting out the fear of not seeing properly, was at least half of Bates' method. Huxley presented an extreme case of defective sight: one of his eyes could just distinguish between darkness and light; the other could see the biggest letter on an oculist's chart ten feet away. For years he wore heavy spectacles, read with a magnifying glass, and kept his good eye dilated with atropine. Now he reads without glasses, and though he says that his vision is far from normal, it is at least twice as good as it was when he used glasses, and his fear of blindness has departed. How it was done is told in "The Art Of Seeing," and if you have any personal interest in the subject you should not miss it.

Unconsidered Trifles

Hawker: "Any laces, studs, buckles, ribbons, pins?"

Housewife: "Go away, or I'll call the police."

Hawker: "Here you are. Police whistles, sixpence each."

He was notoriously mean, and would always get his medical advice free if the doctor wasn't on his guard. One day he met him in the street. "Halloa, doctor," he said. "Nice weather, isn't it? Going to the cricket tomorrow or are you too busy? By the way, I wanted to ask you—what would you give a chap for a sore throat?"

"Nothing," said the doctor. "I do not happen to want a sore throat, thanks!"

Charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct, the wretched old man smoothed his grey hairs and said: "Your worship, man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn. I am not as debased as Swift, as profligate as Byron, as dissipated as Poe, as debauched as—"

"That will do," snapped the magistrate. "Seven days! And, officer, take a note of those names, and warn them. They're as bad as he is."

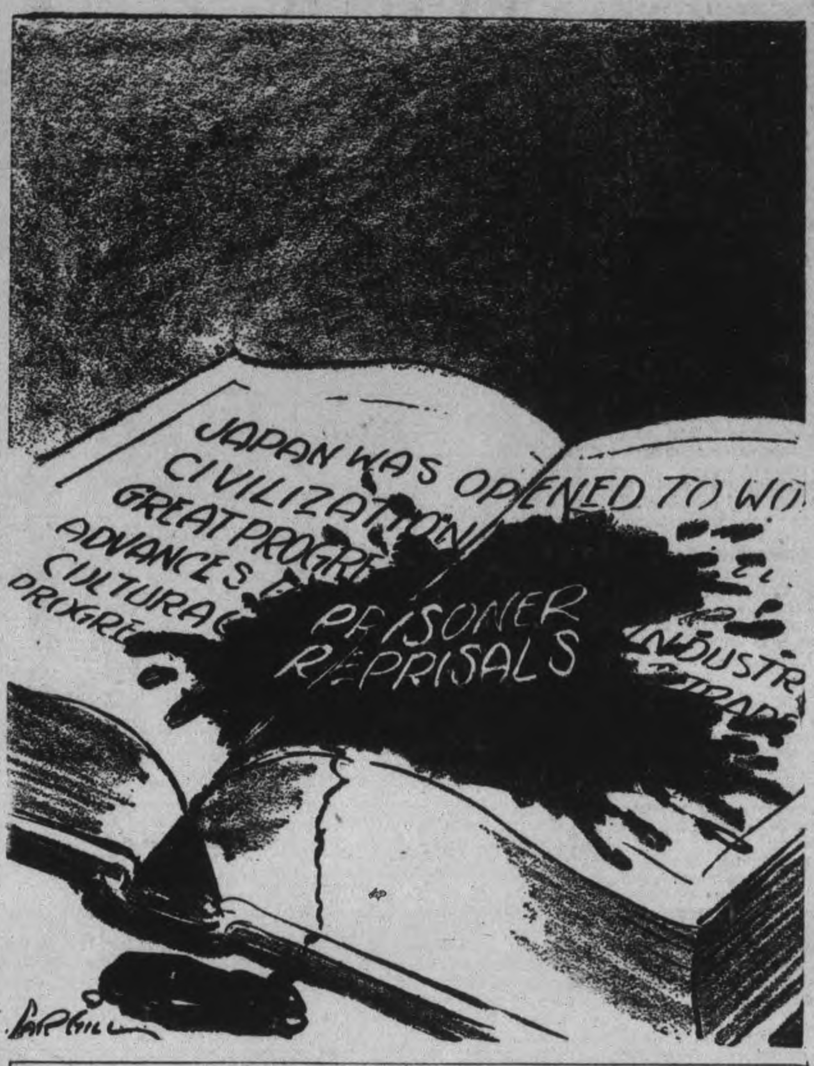
It was a very dissatisfied tenant who approached the landlord of the new house.

"Look here," he said, "that house I've just taken from you is horribly draughty. I've spend pounds on heating arrangements, but wherever I sit my hair is blown all over my head. Can't you do something about it."

"I'm afraid not," he replied. "I think it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut."

TOKIO BLACKOUT



Capital Closeups

(By JOHN DAUPHINEE, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Oct. 16 —(CP)—Recent announcements of attacks by Canada-based aircraft against German U-boats in the North Atlantic are interpreted here as an indication the R.C.A.F. was ready for the new submarine policy of staying up to fight.

The key is in the fact that all the statements have been about attacks by huge Liberator bombers—a land plane—far out to sea while guarding convoys.

Only last week United States navy officials said the tendency of U-boats to stay on the surface and use anti-aircraft fire against attacking planes was making patrol work more and more a job for fast, heavily-armed land craft. That has become increasingly the R.C.A.F. practice during recent months.

Today an R.C.A.F. spokesman said that "by far the larger proportion" of convoy work in the Atlantic now is handled by Liberators which have replaced the Bulks, slower-moving flying boats that handled the job earlier in the war. The land planes, besides being faster and more manoeuvreable, make smaller targets for the U-boats.

But flying boats are still being used in large numbers, the spokesman said. They carry out the constant patrols nearer shore, along with medium land bombers.

PUBLICITY

There's been criticism about the amount of publicity Canada's war effort gets in the United States but there's at least one place where there seems no ground for criticism—the little republic of Haiti in the West Indies.

Haitian visitors to Ottawa say they're always seeing movies about Canada and the part the Dominion plays against the Axis. They say there are more films of the type about Canada than any other country.

The reason—Quebec's French-speaking population—seems odd but it's simple enough. Films prepared for Quebec go also to Haiti which also is French-speaking.

LETTER-PERFECT

There's a difference between Washington and Ottawa in wartime—in the number of abbreviations applied to governmental offices. Washington goes in for them in a big way; Ottawa scarcely at all.

Even in Canada most people recognize the U.S. Office of Price Administration in O.P.A., the War Production Board in W.P.B., the Office of Production Management in O.P.M., the Office of War Information in O.W.I. Below the line nobody refers to such offices by anything but the initials.

In Canada it's different. The initials W.P.T.B. appear on many thousands of rubber stamped invoices but people talk about the "Prices Board." Around Ottawa "M-and-S" is recognized for Munitions and Supply department and the Wartime Information Board is W.I.B., but outside—no.

Maybe Canadians aren't an abbreviation-conscious nation—or maybe it's the names we give things in the first place.

Oriental Kaleidoscope

THE Mediterranean enlarges on acquaintance. On the fourth day we are still without sight of Africa, though the industrious crew brings us nearer every moment. We talk of Carthage, and think we can see the colour of the Libyan sand in the yellow clouds at night. It is two o'clock on the morning of December the third, when we make the Pharos of Alexandria, and wait for a Pilot....

The day breaks beautifully, and the Pharos is set like a star in the bright streak of the East. Before we can distinguish land, we see the so-called Pompey's Pillar and the lighthouse, the palms, the minarets, the outline of the domes painted on the straw-colour of the sky—a dream-like picture....We seem to be looking miles and miles into an enchanted country. Then ships and boats, a vast number of them, become visible in the harbor, and as the light grows stronger, the city and land lose something of their beauty, but the sky grows more softly fiery till the sun breaks through. The city lies low along the flat coast, and seems at first like a brownish white streak, with fine lines of masts, palm trees, and minarets above it.

The excitement of the arrival in Alexandria and the novelty of everything connected with the landing can never be repeated. In one moment the Orient flashes upon the bewildered traveller; and though he may travel far and see stranger sights, and penetrate the hollow shell of Eastern mystery, he never will see again at once such a complete contrast to all his previous experience. One strange, unfamiliar form takes the place of another so rapidly that there is no time to fix an impression, and everything is so bizarre that the new-comer has no points of comparison. He is launched into a new world, and has no time to adjust the focus of his observation. For myself, I wished the Orient would stand off a little and stand still so that I could try to comprehend it. But it would not; a revolving kaleidoscope never presented more bewildering figures and colours to a child, than the port of Alexandria to us.—From "My Winter on the Nile," by Charles Dudley Warner.

Everybody Wants To Pose

THE Sicilian of any class is always picturesque, always individual. He could scarcely be anything else if he tried, and the life of the masses in the city is like a show at the theatre—a show, at that, in which even the supernumeraries are ever imbued with due regard for the proper setting and action of the piece. There is no more typical specimen of this condensed picturesqueness than the water-seller, whose bellow has musical quality and charm, as you discover after your first shock. He calls up Egypt and the streets of Cairo. Really, he is the survival of an ancient Arab custom. You find him everywhere, especially among the lanes of the Fiera di Pasqua, the Easter fair, a piece bitten right out of the heart of Coney Island. The Easter season, by the way, is an exceedingly fortunate time to spend in Sicily, because of the multitudinous festivities going on.

For the Fair, great bare sheds spring up overnight in the square beside the Massimo, mushroomlike—a sunstruck Babel of crazily built and decorated shops and stalls and booths where everything imaginable is to be bought....About the booths eddies a jovial mob, pushing, chattering, playing practical jokes on one another, eating candy and the dubious Sicilian equivalent for frankfurters and kraut. Bands blare out fitful, horrible music from the roofs or windows of small sheds curiously mounted with painted legends or astonishing pictures in which the lack of perspective is the most prominent feature.... "Barkers" in plate armor, manufactured out of ancient kerosene tins from which the odor has by no means departed, vie with ridiculous clowns and short-skirted dancers in proclaiming the attractions of their rival marionette and "minstrel" shows. And everybody wants to pose. Indeed, the Sicilians have a good humored mania for getting in the way of the camera, even when they know they are not wanted there and will never see a single copy of the picture.

I levelled my camera at one queer stall, and instantly the people sprang together solidly, completely obscuring the booth, each man crying to his neighbour: "Aspett'! Aspett'! Il fotografo!" In vain I pleaded. In vain Gaulterio shouted and threatened and argued. The merrymakers laughed, and nodded, and stood like statues. In the confusion an important policeman stepped up, saluted respectfully, and said: "Excellency will be kind enough to move out into the streets again. He is attracting citizens, and blocking the entire square."

Then he began unhurriedly turning over the human kaleidoscope.—From "Vistas in Sicily," by Arthur Stanley Riggs. (New York: McBride.)

A Bible Message

Wherefore comfort yourselves together, and edify one another, even as also ye do.

And we beseech you, brethren, to know them that labor among you, are over you in the Lord, and admonish you;

And to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake. And be at peace among yourselves.

Now we exhort you, brethren, warn them that are unruly, comfort the feeble minded, support the weak, be patient toward all men.

See that none render evil for evil unto any man, but ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves and to all men.—I Thes. 5: 11-15.

Our Neighbours and the Sales Tax

An odd thing—odd to Canadians, at any rate —is the uproar that comes in the United States whenever anybody over there suggests a sales tax. Thus this week the mere suggestion of a sales tax by a members of the House of Representatives appropriations committee brought a deluge of protests to Washington from all over the country. A sales tax, it was argued, would be an unbearable load on the backs of the workers, and could only result in a higher cost of living.

Canada has had a sales tax for years—it is now 8 per cent—but it is doubtful whether the average person remembers or notices it. At the outset dire predictions were made about it; we remember Mr. Bennett saying, at the time the tax was raised to 8 per cent, that it might "split Canada wide open, economically"; but none of the prophecies came true, and the tax, on the whole, is one of the best we have. That it makes a difference in the cost of living, there can be no doubt. Yet the cost of living in Canada, with a sales tax, is lower than in the United States, without a sales tax.—Ottawa Journal.

By-Product

The nearest the Luftwaffe got to causing a small flood in Britain, and a very minor one at that, was two years ago when a lone German airman dropped a bomb in broad daylight on the lockkeeper's house at Shepperton, on the Thames, missing the lock gate by only four or five yards. The house was completely demolished and the lockkeeper's daughter was extricated from the ruins dead.

Residents along the river bank later picked up numbers of fish killed by the concussion of the bomb, some of them of a size dreamt of by fishermen.

One of these tells me he found a barbel weighing eight pounds, which ate very well.—From a column by "Peterborough" in the London Daily Telegraph.

About Blueberry Pie

The editor of the Times-Journal, of Fort William, Ont., likes pie. In particular, he likes blueberry pie. He likes blueberry pie so well that when he writes of it he rises to heights of lyric rapture. Less eloquent mortals, confronted with a blueberry pie, enthuse with such dull platitudes as "Yum-yum!" or "Oh, boy!" But the editor of the Times-Journal bursts into what is almost, if not quite, poetry.

This is commendable. It shows an appreciation of the better things of life. But he is a modest man. He doubts whether his praise, high-flown though it is, does the bluebery justice. "Why," he asks sadly—"why has Ontario no town named Blueberry?"

Of course, if he lived in New Brunswick, and knew the infinitely superior blueberries of this seaside province, he would aim his sights higher. "Why," he would ask—"why has New Brunswick no city named Blueberry?" — Saint John Telegraph Journal.

Big Program Billed For Next Show

Tuesday night's mat card at the Brock Arena has been completed and along with the crucial clash between John Katan and Jack Clayborne, there will be two other interesting and probably sensational matches. In the semi-final Jan Gotch who made his debut here last week, meets Irish Pat Flanagan. This Gotch has plenty on the ball and being big and fast is a pretty hard man to deal with. On the other hand Flanagan is a great athlete, can be counted on to come up with some surprising move that often bewilders the best of his opponents. Hard and probably spectacular fighting can be looked for when Gotch and Flanagan toe the line.

In the third match another newcomer will be seen here for the first time in dashing Mike Demetre of Montreal. Demetre is another Flanagan for pep and style and he has been matched with burly Bunny Dunlop as a tester. If the Montreal Flash can best Dunlop he will be a very popular man in this city.

Coming back to the main bout, Katan is again sounding off on what he will do to Clayborne on Tuesday night. The surly Ukrainian giant is convinced there is a plot on foot here to oust him from his pretensions to the British Empire title. When Clayborne was given the win over him two weeks ago, Katan said he would never rest until he got his black adversary into the ring with him once more. On his part Clayborne is quietly determined to administer the quietus to his rugged rival for the Empire crown.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The general opinion around town in regard to the Clayborne-Katan bout at Brock Street Rink next Tuesday night seems to be that the Colored Comet is too smart and too fast for the Palermo Panther. However the fans may be underestimating the power and strength of the Killer and his determination to square accounts with Clayborne. The manner in which Katan subdued big Earl McCready for the first fall Tuesday with that unconscious chin lock grip of his suggests that if he manages to clamp a similar hold on Black Dynamite, the South African is likely to lose all interest in the proceedings for some time. Katan works on his opponent's head and neck repeatedly and when he gets his holds really working something has to give. However Clayborne outsmarted him cleverly the last time the two met here and the fans seems to be unanimous that the colored grappler will be able to turn the trick again and earn a match with Whipper Billy Watson here. That would be a bout that would really pack in the customers and local fandom will be pulling for a Clayborne victory next Tuesday, not only because they like to see Katan foiled but also because a win for the Colored Comet would mean a bout for the British Empire title with the Whipper. With two other good bouts on the card the bill for Tuesday night looks like a lot of thrills and entertainment.

You can't keep a good game down. Thus rugby after being ousted out of the picture last season so far as Peterborough was concerned is fighting its way back again. Three teams are being organized at the Collegiate and the school returns to interscholastic competition again. Up at St. Peter's High School a flourishing league, made up of six-man teams is carrying on and the youngsters are learning the rudiments of the game. And now Rich. Jackson, who formerly played with the Orfuns has organized a junior team composed of enthusiastic youngsters and they are working out on the city property outside the lacrosse cushion. Bob Crowe, Joe Stewart, Eric McVane and a lot of other young players are lining up with the new outfit and it is the intention to arrange a number of exhibition games. The move brings a bunch of youngsters into the rugby picture and the organization of such a team will do a lot to keep the game alive here, for it provides an opportunity for players who have left school to get some action.

Replacement Trouble

The other day this column referred to the success of the Oshawa minor baseball association this season and to the fact that the league had come to a fitting conclusion with a double-header on Thanksgiving Day. However the shooting isn't all over yet. The loop ran into unexpected trouble and the result is that the championship hasn't been decided yet. It seems that the team which won both ends of the double-header on the holiday and apparently had copped the title had been given a replacement for a player who had left to go to college. However the missing college product was home on the holiday and so they used both him and the replacement in winning the twin bill. Now the games have been thrown out and they have been ordered to play this afternoon. These replacements cause a lot of trouble as the City Softball League here discovered during the past season. We have always maintained that they should be granted very sparingly and only after a thorough investigation of the bona fides of the application has been made. In more than one sport there have been some very doubtful replacements granted in the last couple of years and as a result the idea which was to enable teams to replace genuine players who had enlisted has had more than one black eye.

* * * * * *

How badly baseball has slipped locally is revealed by the fact that 20 years ago the city council here was planning for a proper recogniton of the capture of the intermediate, junior, midget and bantam O.B.A.A. championships by Peterborough teams. The C.G.E. team had won the intermediate title for the second year in succession, Lou LeBarr's Lakeviews had brought Peterborough its first junior O.B.A.A. championship by beating Niagara Falls in the finals, Alex Kay's Curlers had taken the honors in the midget division, with Hamilton as their opposition in the final round and the Peterborough bantams had won their section by default. In addition the Maple Leafs, the juvenile entry, had reached the final round in their bracket. No city outside of Toronto has ever made such a record in one season and it is heart-breaking for old time fans to recall the triumphs of 20 years ago and to contrast the showing made then with the present situation that finds Peterborough completely off the map so far as baseball is concerned. The saddest part is that the game is not even being played in the schools with the result that no players are being developed and any attempt to revive the game here would have to start from scratch. Unless something is done soon to interest the kids in baseball the task of getting the game going again is going to be a tough problem.

Poor Patronage

Apparently girls' softball in Preston does not draw the patronage that local teams are able to command, which is rather surprising in view of the fact that the Rivulettes won the provincial championship last season. Chick Appel, Stratford sports writer has the following comment on Preston support: "When one reads the report of the girls' softball game at Preston, on Saturday afternoon, in the Galt Reporter, it only serves to emphasize what grand support Stratford Kroehlers were given by their home town fans all season. The Preston report says: 'Stratford brought a large contingent of enthusiastic fans with them on Saturday, with the attendance being the largest at any softball game this season.' Apparently the Preston fans have not accorded their Rivulettes any great support, even though they copped the provincial championship last year and were battling Stratford Kroehlers to retain the title on Saturday, because of the 300 fans present (and then you would have to count some of them twice) it's a fair guess to say that over fifty per cent of them came from Stratford. Compare this with the crowds that have been attending the girls game in Stratford, both in Perth County League games and the provincial playdowns. Seven and eight hundred fans were not unusual, while for the Ontario playdowns the attendance was easily double that. Stratford doesn't have to take a back seat for any city when it comes to backing up their ball and hockey teams."

Walter Crary Is Top Bowler With 829 Count

A timely 330 single by Fred Martin coupled with the ability of "Bud" Weese to jam in a few badly needed strikes at the tail end of the second game was all that saved Jay's bacon in their City League bowling match with Jack Wade's Outlaws last night. It was by far the best all-round trundling exhibition of the evening although head pins popped out in all directions. Jay's won 2 points and chalked up a 1256 single team game, but the Outlaw gang met them more than half way with a 3451 total score against Jay's 3401.

Indications that the boys are begining to find the proper groove was also quite evident when Sunocos came through with 3397 pins, K. of C. with 3380 and the Machine Shop with 3314.

Walter Crary of Sunocos hit of an 829 high three and Fred Martin an 812 while Barney Worsencroft wound up with a 353 single for the Freeman's team.

Other good single games included Crary's 332, Martin's 330, Bill Downer's 325 and Buck Guerin's 305.

Mutuel Machines Hit Record High

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—(AP)—The mutuel machines at Chicago's five race tracks, it was disclosed today, will hit an all-time high in 1943 by soaring to an estimated $90,000,000.

Although the turf season does not end until Nov. 7, the figures are based on the total mutuel handle posted with the Illinois Racing Board and an estimate by racing officials of the amount at the forthcoming Fall meeting at Sportsman's Park. Last year's total mutuel handle was $$77,490,005.

LAWN BOWLING

On Monday, Oct. 18th, at 8 p.m., in their club rooms on McDonnel street, the shareholders of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Co. Ltd. will be asked to elect a board of directors for the coming year.

It is not our intention to advocate the election of any one man or any group of men, but we would like to impress upon the shareholders just how important it is for them to be out at this meeting and vote.

The nominating committee of Robt. Hendry and Dr. Fulford have gone all out to secure fourteen men to stand for election.

We have one of the biggest, if not the biggest lawn bowling clubs in the province; we have a wonderful organization; our location is ideal; and our members are represented by peoples from all walks of life. But our club has not reached this advanced stage without a lot of hard work, and without a lot of real thought and with a lot of time It is ours to have and to hold and these are some of the reason that we believe every bowler who has the good and welfare of our club at heart, should be out on Monday night and vote. Don't sit back and say "Let George do it." Come out and shoulder your part of the responsibility.

Looking at it from another angle, with fourteen men running and seven to be elected, it is a fifty-fifty proposition — fifty will and fifty won't—seven up and seven down—seven in and seven out, and so you shareholders take it from here.

15,000 PEOPLE ENJOY TROTTING RACES AT THE ROSENEATH FAIR

Manitoba Horse Captures Free-for-All

ROSENEATH, Oct. 16—Fifteen thousand people visited Roseneath Fair yesterday, one of the largest rural fairs in the province. In spite of the shortage of help, farmers had many fine exhibits of farm produce. Due to conflicting dates with other fairs, there was no black-white class in the live stock exhibits. However, other live stock classes were featured by heavy entry lists. Beautiful autumn weather prevailed all day except in the evening, when it started to rain. However it was too late to do any harm. Some fine entries featured the trials of speed, some horses from Manitoba participating. Following are the results:

Murph Chamberlain Joins Ordnance

MONTREAL, Oct. 16 — (CP) — Murph Chamberlain, National Hockey League Canadiens' centre-ice property, loaned to Boston Bruins last season, was reported today to be going to join the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps depot at suburban Longue Pointe. Murph could not be reached for confirmation, the army sources were not talking.

If Murph is joining the army this would mean a valuable acquisition to the Montreal Army entry in the Quebec Senior Hockey League. A native of Shawville, Que., Murph broke into N.H.L. play in 1937 with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Other players available to the Montreal Army team are big Jack Portland, former Canadiens' rearguard; Pat Egan, former Brooklyn American defenseman; Charlie Phillips and Red Goupille, other former Canadien defensemen; Kilby McDonald, former New York Rangers' property, and Jimmy Peters, also formerly on the American roster.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

The drain of talent from all branches of sport in the United States began three years ago today, and the greats of the sport world along with 16,000,000 other young men flocked to conscription centres to register for military training. The eligibles included Bob Feller, Hank Greenberg, Joe Louis, Ben Hogan, Muzz Patrick to mention a few.

Wings May Lose Two Forwards

DETROIT, Oct. 16—(CP)—The world championship Detroit Red Wings, aproaching the end of their second week of training for the National Hockey League season, learned today that Forwards Joe Carveth and Bill Jennings may soon be drafted by the United States Army.

Carveth, 25-year-old Regina product, is scheduled to report for induction next week. There is a chance that Carveth may be rejected because of a twice-broken left leg, which curtailed his hockey play for two years.

Jennings, who is 26 and comes from Toronto, has received 1-A draft classification, and may be called any time.

Carveth played right wing on Detroit's second line last season. He finished fifth in team scoring during the regular season, with 36 points, and contributed eight points in Detroit's march to the Stanley Cup title.

Jennings played eight games with Red Wings last season, scoring eight points. He finished the season with Indianapolis Capitols of the American League, where he netted 56 points.

Buzz Boll Loses Thumb In Harvesting

By The Canadian Press

The strangest of all National Hockey League training seasons is running true to form. Manager Lester Patrick, whose New York Rangers are training at Winnipeg, had a telephone call from one of his rookies.

"May we sleep three in a room?" said a voice.

"You may, but why don't you get another room?" Patrick asked. "You can't sleep three in a bed comfortably."

"That's all right," replied the voice. "We like it that way." Patrick was too surprised to refuse.

Reports from Fillmore, Sask., says Buzz Boll, veteran campaigner with Boston Bruins, lost a thumb in a combine on the eve of reporting to Boston's training camp at Quebec City. Boll suffered a knee injury last season at the height of a brilliant comeback.

Jack Ingoldsby, right wing who joined Toronto Maple Leafs in mid-season, played two or three games and spun out the campaign with Providence Reds of the American League, has received his army call-up. Don Webster of Toronto, also with Providence most of last season, has a six-month deferment which expires shortly.

Joins Rangers

Harry Westerby, who trained Toronto Maple Leafs in the International Baseball League last summer and saw Leafs lose the Governor's Cup series to Syracuse Chiefs, has again joined New York Rangers for the hockey season. Talking of baseball, Westerby said Leafs should have won the Governor's Cup.

There hasn't been a squawk from any quarter so far about the new rule which permits defending clubs to pass centre ice without drawing an offside penalty. Coach Frank Boucher of Rangers said the rule will eliminate helter-skelter hockey; now manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins gives unqualified approval, saying he believes the change will accelerate play.

Ross has lost frigid Frankie Brimsek, regarded as the league's top netminder. He'll choose the replacement from three rookies: Maurice Courteau of Quebec; Jean Paul Renaud of Montreal; and Harvey Bennett, last year with Oshawa Generals.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 16 — (CP). — The Services' near-monopoly on senior amateur hockey in Canada is having strange results. For example: Player trades between intermediate clubs and the National League. Sweeney Schriner has deserted Toronto Leafs in favor of Calgary's Intermediate Buffaloes, but Billy Hudson of last season's Buffaloes has been called up to Detroit Red Wings. Maybe the Swift Current intermediate buzzer, Steve (Sieve) Buzinski, should have another try at that New York Ranger goal job.....Jackie Hamilton, with a half-season's experience in the N.H.L., calls the Toronto rookies "the kids." Jackie is an old man of 18.

Isaak McWalton:

The fishermen are saving bait at Wiarton, Ont., with the cast, heave and duck system. The long government dock at the Georgian Bay town is lined with fishermen these days—all using no other bait than blind faith and catching herring by the dozen. The herring run is "on" and the fish are so thick they can be snagged with a bare hook.

Saturday soapbox:

Montreal reports now say the Army-R.C.A.F. sports crew has decided to drop plans for the Castilloux-Greco fight. Too bad. It would have been a natural.... Santa Claus couldn't have done better by Vancouver citizens than the Army did when it released the Vancouver Forum for civilian use. The okay still must come from Ottawa but if all goes as expected, hockey will return to Vancouver with a bang this winter. And the curlers can hardly wait to start sweeping — etcetera.....Maybe it wasn't the fine class of football that drew those thousands to Winnipeg High School games after all. We've just discovered the most colorful part of the High School games are the little school girls who have taken to wearing lumberjack shirts which smack the eye and leave it wobbling.

Hockey handouts:

Mike McMahon is expected to be one of the mainstays of the Montreal Canadiens' defence this season, but the real news from that quarter is that Glen Harmon, last season's prize rookie, is expected to be available again....There's just a chance Charlie Rayner will be in goal for Saskatoon Navy. If so he will have some good youngsters as team-mates—Tony Leswick, Freddy Weaver, Ab Welsh, Hub Mann.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 16 (CP)—Throughout the storied years of Britain's national game there never has been a season with so many foreigners competing. Professional football, in fact, has developed into an all-nations affair.

At the moment, there are at least five first-class foreign performers throughout the top-ranking Football League circuit. At the rate teams are signing up new material, there'll be many more before the new season reaches the midway mark.

On the form so far, the best find of the newcomers is Emilio Aldecoa, a Spanish Civil War refugee who has scored a goal in each of the first three games he has played for Wolverhampton Wanderers. For the last couple of seasons the Spaniard played forward for an English works team as an amateur.

In goal for Brighton when he can leave from air force duties is a young fellow who calls himself simply "A. Pole." That's the way he's classified in the program line-up and that's what he is—a Pole who escaped to Britain but who won't reveal his name for fear of reprisals against relatives left behind.

The others are a Belgian Army lieutenant who prefers to remain unidentified, Emile de Buser, also of the Belgian Army, and Josef Franko of the Czechoslovakian Army.

The unnamed Belgian, an outside left with Queen's Park Rangers, was outstanding when the Belgian military team beat British Army at Edinburgh last year. De Busser also is with Queen's Rangers, as a forward.

Franko, Czech peace-time international star, recently signed with Crystal Palace. He had been playing outside right for his army club.

Equipment of Southport's professional soccer club was going from bad to worse. Towels were worn to ribbons and stockings were full of darning and holes.

Since coupons are required for the purchase of these articles—and the club had not received its coupons ration—it appeared the players would be forced to supply their own towels and play without stockings.

Then someone conceived the idea of appealing to the supporters. They were asked to donate 1 coupon each—and that's a big sacrifice in these days of severe rationing in the wardrobe line. Within a few days the 200-coupon mark was reached. Now the boys sport new club-color stockings and fluffy towels.

Fritzie Zivic Loses Ten Round Battle

DETROIT, Oct. 16—(AP)—Rugged Joe Basora, Puerto Rican welterweight from New York, hammered out an upset 10-round victory last night over Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh before 6,000 fans at Olympia Stadium. Basora weighed 151¼, Zivic 150.

Basora's victory was by a wide margin. Referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland gave Zivic one round, the first, and called the ninth even. He gave Basora the other eight. The two judges gave Basora all but two rounds, which they called even.

Zivic lost the third and sixth rounds by low punches. In the fourth Basora opened a cut under Fritzie's left eye and his later attack was directed at the wound.

The gross receipts were $13,380 with $1,015 earmarked for boxing's service athletic fund.

Murray Claims Plan Spiked For Neutrality

TORONTO, Oct. 16 — (CP). — Major Gladstone Murray told a service club (Empire) yesterday that between Britain's declaration of war September 3, 1939 and the meeting of Canada's parliament a week later, while he was general manager of the CBC, "an endeavor was made to use the national radio for the purpose of stampeding public opinion in advance of the meetings of parliament."

Major Murray said he was "the point of impact of pressure" and that the effort was directed toward changing "the decision to approve our government's commitment to war."

He said the move was detected and defeated and that while there was never any real doubt that Canada would do her duty, "it is of value to recall that those who had tried to weaken our ties with the Empire and to sabotage measures of armed defence did their best to keep us out of the war, and, when they failed, tried to limit our contribution."

Amplifying his remarks later in an interview, Major Murray said a "group of responsible men in the left wing of politics" had stated that "under the purest view of neutrality" all BBC broadcasts should be taken from the air in Canada. The proposed alternative was that German news broadcasts should be given equal and corresponding representation on the CBC.

The group also suggested, he added, that he should organize a series of broadcasts before parliament met in which" there should be powerful advocacy of a state of neutrality as the decision which parliament should take."

Without identifying the group further, he said he warned its "lasting resentment" and that "these demands were resisted on my own authority."

He added that the facts were given by him in testimony before the House of Commons Radio Committee in 1942 and that the testimony was not made public.

Big Power Plant Opened By Drew

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DECEW FALLS, Ont., Oct. 16—(CP)—Premier George Drew of Ontario Friday threw the switch that added to Ontario's supply of electric energy 65,000 horsepower, "dedicated to the cause of victory."

Decew Falls is near St. Catharines.

There were echoes of Canada's past battle history as the premier unleased the 2,000 cubic feet of water per minute that started the generator of the new Decew Falls plant of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission. Col. Drew recalled that it was on the old Decew farm that Laura Secord warned the Canadian forces under Lieut. Fitzgibbon of the approach of the opposing American forces during the war of 1812.

The plant's power, which was made possible by the diversion of the water of the Ogaki River and Long Lake into Lake Superior, will give energy to all types of war industry.

"We are putting in movement 65,000 horsepower devoted to the defeat of Germany and Japan," said Col. Drew.

C. H. Hogg, chairman of the commission said the development, which cost $6,000,000, was started only two years ago, and is the third great generating plant to be brought into operation by the commission since the war began.

The single unit 65,000 horsepower generator built into the Decew Falls plant was brought from the Abitibi Canyon power development in Northern Ontario.

"This saved valuable time in bringing this plant into operation," said Dr. Hogg. He observed that near the new establishment was the old plant which houses nine generating units producing 50,000 horsepower. This plan, built more than 40 years ago, was the first constructed in Canada for the purpose of supply a large block of power to a city some miles distant—in this case Hamilton.

Number Wizard

MACON, Ga., Oct. 16 — (AP)—A. L. Causey, Georgia railroad conductor, may have difficulty remembering names, but when it comes to numbers on freight cars, well, that's a different story. Causey, who admits he "can never remember names, won a gray mule on a bet recently by rattling off the numbers on 89 cars of a freight train. He didn't collect, though, because, he says, the other man "was so astounded that he forgot to give me the mule."

Soldiers Suffer Needlessly Osteopath Says

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 16—Speaking at the Canadian Osteopathic Association semi-annual meeting at Niagara Fall, Ont., the president, Dr. G. A. De Jardine, today told delegates that it seems incredible, yet it is true, that men in the Armed Forces are allowed to suffer needlessly from innumerable structural disorders caused by the strenuous training required for modern warfare, when almost immediate relief might be had through osteopathic measures.

"Many cases from the armed services are continually coming to osteopathic physicians for relief they are unable to obtain from the medical departments," he said. "These men inform us that the military hospitals are full of such cases—cases that go on suffering for weeks when they might get instant relief."

"These are mechanical problems requiring correction," he continued, "and the medical officers who have complete authority are totally untrained and unqualified to treat or often to diagnose these conditions, which can only be successfully handled by highly trained osteopathic physicians.

Dr. De Jardine told the gathering that a year ago the Royal Canadian Air Force had opened its doors to osteopathy by issuing a bulletin requesting fully trained osteopathic physicians to enlist in its medical department, in order that the benefits of osteopathy might be made available to the men. Osteopathic physicians were requested to prepare lectures to be delivered before medical officers at the Aviation School of Medicine to be held in Toronto, because medical officers had protested that they did not know how to make use of osteopathy as they knew nothing about it. He said the lectures were prepared but were never delivered because of interference on the part of 'medical higher-ups.'

In the meantime, several osteopathic physicians enlisted and accepted the inferior rank of sergeant which was offered with the promise of promotions when their ability as osteopathic physicians was demonstrated.

"The promise was never fulfilled," he said, "medical intolerance and influence being used to prevent any possibility of the promised promotions by forbidding and preventing osteopathic physicians in the R.C.A.F. from practising osteopathy as desired by the R.C.A.F. authorities, and preventing the men of the Air Force from receiving the benefits of this treatment."

"How long will our Government tolerate such injustice to the men of the Armed Forces," Dr. De Jardine asked, "men who are surely entitled to every proven means of relief from suffering, especially when the injustices are solely the result of intolerance from a rival school of medicine"

Turkeys Taboo

DES MOINES, Oct. 16 — (AP).—The turkey dinner at the Wesley Methodist Church anniversary dinner will be—chicken. The Rev. Deane Chapman said that after a church announcement of the turkey dinner a United States War Food Administration official advised him turkey was 'strictly out' due to a freeze order, until needs of the armed forces are met. The Rev. Mr. Chapman said the unhappiest part of all was that the turkeys were to have been a gift from a church member.

True Co-operation Between British And Americans

United States War Labor Board Hits Newsmen

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP).—Newspaper publishers asserted today that the United States War Labor Board was without power to order union security clauses in American Newspaper Guild contracts because it would have a "direct tendency" to restrict gathering of information and expression of editorial opinion.

Elisha Hanson, Attorney for the Harrisburg, Pa., Patriot, told a W.L.B. hearing that "freedom of the press as guaranteed by the first amendment is far superior to any executive order or any statute under which this Board operates."

Hanson was the first witness at a hearing asked by the publishers to oppose Guild requests that a maintenance of membership or union security clause be inserted in several newspaper contracts with editorial employees. Under this clause an employee is given 15 days in which to resign from a union—in this case the Guild—or keep up his union membership dues as a condition to employment for the duration of the contract.

Hanson defined freedom of the press as the right of publishers to print their information free from control or restraint by agencies of Government.

Japanese Lose 210 Planes Since Sunday

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Oct. 16—(AP).— American and Australian planes have run up a score of 210 to 8 against the Japanese since Sunday over two enemy strongholds where Japan's airpower is reputed to be great—New Britain and Bougainville.

The bulk of this score, 177 to 5, was registered Tuesday at Rabaul, New Britain, by the largest force of bombers and fighters ever amassed for a single day's operations in the Southwest Pacific.

But to-day's communique disclosed that for the second time in as many days, more than 100 bombers and fighters swarmed over Bougainville in the Northern Solomons the day prior to Rabaul's blitz. These raiders downed 21 out of 25 Japanese interceptors without the loss of a plane and also sank two large enemy cargo ships.

On Sunday, it was reported previously, 21 Japanese planes were shot down in the same sector, with Allied losses totalling three.

Three four-engined bombers, a medium bomber and a Beaufighter were lost out of the hundreds of planes involved in the 350-ton bombing assault against Rabaul against the 177 enemy planes destroyed.

Bad weather hampered other air operations reported in to-day's communique. United States navy Catalinas bombed a Japanese convoy of five ships south of New Ireland Tuesday night but the weather prevented observations of results.

Peaceful Hills And Woods Of Wales Prove Haven

(Editor's Note: Following is the 16th in a series of articles written for The Examiner by Prof. James A. Roy, of Queen's University, Kingston, on wartime conditions in Britain.)

I have been studying the Welsh agriculturalist's contribution to the war effort. After the horribly "blitzed" areas of Birmingham and Liverpool this part of the world seems a wholly different world; a world of peace and plenty where war and rumors of war are unknown. The mists rising slowly from the hills the gentle sound of distant church bells, which have only recently begun to ring again, the familiar noises of the countryside, the green beauty of the fertile fields, the quiet richness of the wooded landscape bring a wonderful feeling of peace. A flight of planes recalled me to a sense of reality. They reminded me that there was a war on even in this peaceful corner of Wales. They reminded me too, that the distant ridge of hills I was looking at, now so intensively cultivated, would never have been as they are now are if it had not been for the war.

Anyone who knew this part of Wales before the war would of course recognize the contour of the hills, but he would find the pattern of the landscape completely altered. This is the resilt of wartime agricultural developments. I have been helping to get in the rich but late harvest and have tramped with my host along acres and acres of cultivated fields which, a few years ago were boggy, rough hill-land covered with heather and gorse and bracken. That land has been ploughed and cleared and potatoes and crops have been got from it. This land, I might mention, however, is not cultivated by the farmer but is directly under the County War Agricultural Executive Committee. This committee has thus not only directed the farmer but by itself engaging in a certain amount of developments of moorland and inferior land (an experiment which has not justified itself economically), it has greatly added to the food supplies of the country

Scotland has, incidentally, its own Board of Agriculture. England and Wales are tied up together and while all three countries come under the same ultimate authority at Whitehill, the wartime agricultural policy of Scotland is independent of that of England and Wales which, for purely administrative purposes are regarded as one.

As in Scotland, landowners and farmers serve on the County War Agricultural Executive Committee. Assessors go round to see how much new land should come under the plough and indicate what should be grown there. Wheat, barley and oats have been mainly grown. Before the present war English wheat was not regarded as good for bread, except the wheat which came from East Anglia, which was definitely regarded as a wheat-growing district. The great aim of the minister of agriculture, as I think I have mentioned already, is to save shipping space. Hence the great development of wheat growing.

Welsh Farmers Under Regulation

The Welsh farmer, like the farmers in the rest of Britain, is under regulation. He must obey the behests of the Agricultural Committee. In cases where a landowner or farmer has failed to come up to scratch he has been ruthlessly dispossessed. It makes not the slightest difference who the culprit is. If he has failed to do the job out he goes. This happened recently to one of the most prominent landowners in the country, who found himself dispossessed of his own land because he had failed to cultivate as directed. But on the whole, and this applies all over Britain, the farmer has produced more than the committee has required of him. The minister of agriculture has seen to it that the farmer is properly rewarded for his work and enterprise and outlay of capital. Consumers' prices are, of course, fixed, but in order to give the farmer a proper reward for his outlay, he enjoys a system of subsidies on the price of his products, which he receives direct from the Government.

Not only is the farmer doing well, the agricultural laborer is also on easy street. The normal wage of an adult agricultural worker is about £3 a week. I may also mention that since the armistice with Italy the Italian prisoners are really doing a job of work and are giving the farmer substantial help. They feel that they are no longer working for an enemy. This willingness to co-operate has meant that the Italians are being allowed far greater freedom of movement. I spoke with a number of them in the harvest fields, in the stackyards. I passed the time of day with another prisoner who was driving a cart, quite unescorted. This increased liberty of movement has given rise to other problems which concern the Welfare Department. The problem of the amorous Pole is already quite serious without adding another.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

PICKED ON SCOUTS

The weather turned churlish after all, picking on the Scouts and Cubs with rain and chill after weeks of warmth and sunshine.

TRUCK, CAR DAMAGED

A motor car driven by Harold Dunford, 167 Brock street, and a truck driven by D. Logan, were damaged in a traffic accident at Charlotte and George streets Friday evening. Dunford, who had been driving south on George street, was making a turn at the intersection when his car and the truck, which was travelling west on Charlotte street, met. The left front wheel, fender, and hub cap on the car and the left front fender and headlight on the truck suffered.

BONES ARE WANTED

Bones are wanted for salvage, but despite this fact someone has made a practice of depositing baskets of fresh bones out along the River Road almost every night. These bones, besides acquiring a high odor in a day's time, have proved an irresistible temptation to neighborhood dogs, at least one of which has been made quite ill by gorging on them. People who have bones they want to get rid of should remember they are needed as salvage, and contact the Salvage Committee rather than put them out to rot in out-of-the-way places.

TO ADDRESS ROTARY

Dr. W. H. Cook, director of the department of applied biology of the National Research Council, Ottawa, will be the speaker at the regular luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club on Monday. His subject will be "A Birdseye View of South America."

CHECKING ON LIGHTS

Truck owners are notified that a checkup is being made on lights and reflectors on trucks on district highways. Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure, in announcing the checkup says that many of such vehicles are not carrying the proper lights and that offenders are to be prosecuted unless the situation improves rapidly.

A ROTARY FORUM

There will be a general inter-city Rotary Forum at Cobourg on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, October 27, when there will be discussions centring around the whole field of Rotary endeavor. The Bowmanville, Belleville, Picton, Peterborough, Trenton, Lindsay, Oshawa, Port Hope, Whitby, Campbellford, Pickering and Cobourg clubs are expected to be represented largely.

SECOND CROP

Rea McPhee, son of Mrs. Lloyd Lang of Bethany had a surprise this week, when he found a second crop of garden peas growing in the kitchen garden at his home. The vines were as green as in springtime, and the pea pods were well formed and well-filled with the choice table peas.

NO POLICE COURT

It was a case of white gloves for Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. at police court this morning. Friday night passed without an arrest and no cases had been adjourned until today so that the docket was a blank.

COLLIDES WITH TRUCK

As Raymond Routley, 190 Charlotte street, was driving a taxi-cab owned by Wes. Howell south on Water street Friday night it struck the rear of a parked truck, owned by the Albion Wood Yard, opposite Victoria Park. The taxi was damaged around the front by the impact. Passengers told police that the driver had been blinded by the bright lights of two north-bound cars. It was raining at the time.

BUS HITS BARRICADE

A barricade placed across Water street at Simcoe street to stop traffic in order to give the fire-fighters a chance to stage their demonstration on the market square Friday night figured in an accident. Harold Bell, 47 McDonnel street, was driving a city bus south on Water street just before 7 o'clock and the vehicle collided with the barricade, with the result that the right headlight of the bus was shattered. Bell said there was no light on the barricade and he did not see the obstruction in time.

The Coffee Club Gives Boost For War Victims

A good sport loves to win for the sake of coming out on top, but the survivor of the daily contest indulged in by the morning Coffee Club, doesn't always view his success in that light, particularly when someone is rabid enough to whisper "feesh" in his ear.

Nothing however perhaps gives as good an insight into the real sportsmanship of this group of otherwise staid, and sound thinking business men, than that connected with today's story of the doings on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, which has-benefitted on a number of occasions through their patriotic endeavours.

Recently there was a world series baseball championship at stake (in case you don't know it) and every time a game was played, this group (or as many of those who were in attendance prior to when the next immediate game was played) held a small pool, which perhaps under normal circumstances would find the winner pocketing his winnings, and feeling that a few feathers might make an extra adornment.

That however was hardly the case in this instance, for apart from the grand and glorious feeling that usually accompanies a win, none of the winners profited one cent, since after each succeeding game, they all of them in turn handed the whole of the money over to the fund, from whence they knew it would go on its mission of mercy to cheer other les fortunate people in Britain, to whom it would come as a breath frm heaven itself.

Much fun provoking reading could be given if the writer dared to attempt a personal characterization (that's a big word) of each and all of the winners, but rather joking slightly sinister hints of suits for blackmail rather sobers one up, and reflect that valor (in this case reticence) is the better part of you know what.

Suffice it to say that from the five games, each enumerated in the receipts, the fund is richer by $20.50 when one counts a side bet of $3 won by a wool pulling critter, who pulled the wool over the eyes of a successful estates booster, by drawing him into betting against the side he really most favored to win.

Then a dark haired chap who looks younger than he really is, and rumour has it is fond of dogs, and basks in the glory of his wife's prowess as a hunter and fisherman, brought down two pairs of partridge which were promptly raffled among the member of the group in attendance that morning to produce another $4.50.

To wind up the whole story, another member of the club, who supposedly is an expert in growing apples but was lured by the bright city lights to forsake the farm, handed over fifty cents because he was unable to be on hand to take part in the pools, and thus the total of $25 comes to the fund in today's receipts from this one source.

Canada's Fifth Victory Loan Offers A Challenge To Every Canadian

By GORDON MATTHEWS
Chairman of National War Finance Committee

Peterborough is proud of its war effort. We are proud of those of our citizens who have enlisted in the Navy, the Army and the Air Force.

We are proud of the production effort made by those employed in our important war industries.

We are proud of the food production effort made by the farmers of this country.

We are proud of our schools and churches and those institutions that, not only give physical and mental comfort, but promote fellowship in our community.

We are proud of the fact that anything we have been asked to do to aid the war effort has been well done.

In the three weeks commencing October 18th, we are again challenged to make a further effort.

We are asked to subscribe at least $4,600,000 to the Fifth Victory Loan.

As Chairman of the Fifth Victory Loan for this county I am asking you to accept this challenge and oversubscribe this minimum objective.

The objective has been broken down and a portion of it has been allotted to a Special Names Committee, to each township and each village in the rural section, and also to each factory, each smaller business establishment and each street in the city.

If all of these smaller units reach their objective we need not worry about the total.

At the start of this letter I mentioned the fact that we are proud of those who have enlisted from this county. They are the ones who are making the real sacrifice.

By buying Bonds to the limit of your ability you will "Speed the Victory", and if you do "Speed the Victory" (and that is the slogan for this loan) you will save many valuable lives.

The more and better equipment our forces have the sooner we will win the war.

The security of your Bonds is Canada.

Oversubscribe this Loan and have the right to be proud of Canada and proud of your community—Peterborough.

Lt.-Col. W. Bapty Succeeds Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler

Command of C.A. (B) T.C. No. 32 changed hands today in a simple ceremony during which Lieut. Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., officially handed over the command to his successor. Lieut. Col. Walter Bapty, formerly Officer Commanding A-22 Camp Borden. There was no parade, no band-playing, just the signing of the various documents.

This is the first time that the command has changed hands since the centre opened early in October, 1940. Lieut. Col. Keeler was the first commanding officer and has remained continuously in command since that time, with the exception of four months when he travelled to England to witness the Canadian Army Overseas.

No camp in the entire farspread organization of the Canadian Army-in-Training can boast of a better record than that established by No. 32 Training Centre. From the day the camp first was opened up to the present time the training at this centre has been rated with the best. Credit for this outstanding record is due to the efficient staff organized by Lieut.- Col. Keeler.

Medical Centre

When the Centre first opened it was a "Non-Permanent Active Militia Training Centre," where trainees who were called up for 30 days training under the National Resources Mobilization Act received their first insight into Canadian Army Life. It later became a basic training centre for all the branches of the Canadian Army. Now it is a basic training centre for R.C.A.M.C.

Lieut. Col. Keeler who is being transferred to Kingston, is a veteran of the last Great War. He enlisted with the 38th Battalion, early in 1915 and went overseas as a lieutenant. He was promoted to the rank of captain and was officer commanding a company. For bravery in the field he was warded the Military Cross.

Following the war, Lieut. Col. Keeler served with the Argyll Light Infantry (tanks) for many years and was officer commanding the unit from 1928 to 1933.

With the outbreak of war, he volunteered his services in any capacity to the military authorities and was appointed to the Veteran's Home Guard of Canada in Military District No. 3.

Good Record

When this centre was first organized, Lieut. Col. Keeler was appointed as the officer commanding. He immediately organized a training staff of officers and non - commissioned officers from the various reserve units in Military District No. 3. This staff has been greatly changed since that time but it has established an outstanding record for turning out well-trained soldiers.

Lieut. Col. Keeler received the respect and whole-hearted cooperation of the staff during his command of this centre. A soldier's soldier, he was always strict on discipline and training. Under the supervision of the Commanding Officer, the dusty Exhibition Grounds were transformed into a well-kept camp. Grass was grown and flower-beds were set out, giving the atmosphere of a rest centre rather than a training camp.

One of the most-outstanding honors accorded Lieut. Col. Keeler during his three years in Peterborough, was when he was made an Indian Chief. The ceremony was held on the Indian Reserve at Curve Lake, with Chief Dan Whetung officiating. Col. Keeler was named "Chief Windy-go" (meaning Big Man).

Lieut. Col. Keeler has always been interested in sports both in the centre and outside. It was through his efforts that the camp has had one of the outstanding hockey teams in the senior "B" O.H.A.

Ypres Veteran From Borden Takes Over Camp

A tall energetic medical officer succeeds Lieut. Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., as Commanding Officer of C.A. (B) T.C. No. 32. He is Lieut. Col. Walter Bapty, who hails from Victoria, B.C.

The new commanding officer is a genial, terse-talking soldier who believes in and insists upon rigid discipline and smart soldiering on and off parade. There is nothing about the appearance of Lieut. Col. Bapty to indicate that he has been a doctor for years. He is first and foremost a soldier.

A veteran of the last war, Lieut. Col. Bapty served as a company commander with the 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles. Wounded near Ypres, he spent some months in a hospital. Following his release from the hospital, he was appointed medical officer with the 102nd Battalion early in 1917. He remained with this unit until Paschendale, when he again became a casualty.

Returning to Canada, he was placed in charge of the Esquimalt Military Hospital, remaining in charge until the end of the war.

Stayed With Army

He did not sever his relations with the army but became medical officer with the 1st Battalion, Canadian Scottish, at Victoria, B.C. Upon the formation of the 2nd Battalion Canadian Scottish, Lieut. Col. Bapty was appointed a Company Commander. He later became Officer Commanding this unit remaining in command during the five years prior to the outbreak of war.

Lieut. Col. Bapty was called up in June, 1940, to assume command of the Second Battalion, Canadian Scottish on coastal defence duties. In January, 1942, he was given command of R.C.A.M.C. Training Centre, A-22, Camp Borden. He remained in command of that camp, until a few days ago, when he was appointed as Commanding Officer of this centre, which has become the R.C.A.M.C. Basic Training Centre, linked up with A-22, Camp Bordon. His official duties start today.

Council Members Back From Touring Cities

Municipal problems in Kitchener and St. Catharines sounded generally familiar to Peterborough's deputation in quest of ideas related to the local prospect of the building in due time of a new city hall.

Mayor Hamilton, Alderman Sullivan and Bradburn and City Treasurer M. E. Shaver returned home last night from their visit to the two Ontario sister cities which have erected city halls in recent years.

"Housing and health and larger sewers, all that sort of evidence of community enlargement, were much the same in both cities as in Peterborough," Mayor Hamilton said. "St. Catharines employ both a sanitary inspector and food inspector, and in their city hall accommodation they have solved their police headquarters arrangement by alloting it to part of their basement, and apparently it is turning out quite satisfactorily. We were cordially received in both cities, and I think the trip will be a help to us."

The deputation left on Thursday evening.

Useful Knowledge

Alderman Bradburn said this morning he felt that useful information had ben obtained. The members enquired not only about city halls and their allotment of space, but also about fire halls and other municipal matters.

"Incidentally we visited the St. Catharines ice arena," Alderman Bradburn said, "knowing that this will be another question for Peterborough when the war is over I suppose. We could not build it now. The St. Catharines arena cost them $105,000. The city guaranteed $40,000 by issuing debentures for 20 years. The rink has been a financial success, and the city has funds on hand to meet their debt obligations for the next five years."

B. E. Morgan of Peterborough was one of the pilots presented with his wings on Friday at No. 6 Service Flying Training School at Dunnville.

Eight Accidents Reported For Safety Week

Eight accidents were the total of Safety Week as announced by T. A. Lister of the industrial-municipal committee this morning.

"And that's not good," Mr Lister commented. "However, the fact that there have been eight accidents while the community was being urged to greater care in all they did is a fact which serves to remind the public of these mishaps that are going on from day to day.

All through the year accidents are occurring but we are not looking closely at them. Safety Week points the finger at this continuing and unbroken chain of mishaps, and at the end of Safety Week we know these acidents within the community are a serious matter, and that the appeal to Safety is extremely necessary."

Then there are the "close shaves," the scant misses which the committee of course did not hear of. The Examiner saw a string of them, all in one row, a big shiny car driving at about 40 miles an hour past C.G.E. at 1.35, just as hundreds of employees were coming out the main gate. Most of them were heading for the porcelain plant.

How the driver of that car avoided knocking off a victim or two was an astonishing bit of fortune for the pedestrians who were along his path.

Salamander Hurtubise.

Gene Hurtubise, chief of the C.G.E. shop fire brigade, put on a demonstration of his safety fire suit on the market last night. Rain clipped the attendance and became a confederate of Chief Hurtubise in his salamander performance. A wooden building was erected on the market and set on fire. The C.G.E. Chief in his asbestos apparel walked into the flames and squelched them, without singeing an eyebrow.

J. L. Ilsley Speaks At St. John, N.B.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Oct. 16 — (CP)—The people of Canada have the money to make the Fifth Victory Loan the biggest loan in the Dominion's history, Finance Minister Ilsley stated at a public luncheon meeting today.

Again stressing the importance of Victory Loans in relieving inflationary pressure, Mr. Ilsley said it would be tragic to lose the battle against inflation after four years of war.

Mr. Ilsley emphasized the direct connection between wartime savings and the task of keeping Canada's economy on an even keel during and after the war, enabling Canadians to become more self-reliant.

He warned against the danger of over-confidence, as a result of recent war developments, dulling enthusiasm for the loan.

Has No Country

Stanley McCarsky, New Haven, Conn., became a man without a country when he was ordered to leave his native United States because he failed to report for induction into its armed services. The unusual sentence was handed out to the 23-year-old McCarsky by Federal Judge Carroll C. Hincks in which he gave him 30 days to leave the country, never to return. McCarsky told the court he would not fight for his country which had never "done anything for him."

Mr. Mutton led in prayer. Mrs. Chatten sang and Rev. Mr. Mutton spoke on Thanksgiving.

The thankoffering for the meeting amounted to $9.45, with some envelopes still to be turned in. The treasurer's report showed that there was still to be over $30 raised in order to meet their allocations. It was decided to have a pot-luck supper on October 25 to try and raise some money. The sick and visiting committee reported six-calls had been made in September.

Arrangements were made for the section rally which is being held in Regent Street United Church in Lakefield as the Bridgenorth W. M.S. has charge of the morning session. At the close of the meeting the hostess served a dainty lunch.

Barn Is Burned During Threshing

BEWDLEY, Oct. 16 (ENS)—The large frame barn of Robert Spicer situated two and one-half miles west of Bewdley was completely destroyed by fire on Thursday afternoon during threshing operations. The threshing machine owned by Basil Bell was in the barn at the time and the fire spread so rapidly the men were unable to get it out. Mr. Spicer's entire season's crop of hay and grain along with one calf and seven pigs were lost.

The loss is estimated at $5,000.

HAVELOCK

Red Cross Ready To Begin Canvass

HAVELOCK, Oct. 16 — (ENS)—The main item under discussion at the Red Cross Society meeting was the organizing of a committee for house-to-house canvass for blood-donor volunteers and to make arrangements for their transportation to the Clinic in Peterborough. There is an urgent appeal for more donors and Havelock and Belmont have not yet done their share in this respect. Any person in good health between the ages of 18 and 60, male or female, is eligible to be a donor. Fats must not be eaten for breakfast on the morning of appointment at the Clinic.

The following committee was appointed to canvass: Mesdames C. Anderson, W. Drew, G. Halland, C. Price, H. Roche, B. Post, F. Bennett, W. Copp, and Miss Chambers. A suitable card will be left at each home by one of the canvassers, and citizens are asked to give this matter their deepest consideration. Transportation can be made by bus if a load of donors can be arranged to leave at 9 a.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays, but those able to travel on C.P.R. passes are asked to do so.

The shower of gifts suitable for Christmas parcels for the armed forces was carried out and included writing paper, envelopes, khaki handkerchiefs, shoe laces, tooth paste, and powder, soap, wash cloths, cigarettes, chocolate drink, gum, and chocolate bars. These articles are to be donated to the Eastern Star Patriotic Association for their Christmas parcels.

Twenty-seven ladies attended and worked at quilting, sewing, labelling, cutting out garments, and knitting. At the close afternoon tea was served by the Social Committee.

"Every Buck Helps A Canuck"

The Public Relations Committee for the Fifth Victory Loan in Peterborough held a slogan contest among the schools of the city. Frank Mitchell of the Peterborough Bus Lines offered the prizes and will have the slogans carried on the outside of the busses during the campaign which opens on Monday. Don Spargo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Spargo of 215 Stewart Street, won the first prize with the slogan "Every Buck Helps a Canuck." Don is a pupil of Grade VI, Prince of Wales School. Gordon Matthews (RIGHT)), chairman of the National War Finance Committee, is seen ABOVE presenting the slogan to Mr. Mitchell to be placed on his busses.

1,000 Slogans Were Entered In Victory Loan Contest

Announcement is made today by the Victory Loan Headquarters of the winner in connection with the Slogan Contest which was held for all pupils in schools in the City of Peterborough.

Well over a thousand entries were received and it was a difficult job to pick the winner. The slogan had to be short and catchy and also suitable for stencilling on the city busses. All entries had to be signed by a parent of the pupil and the judges decision is to be final.

The winner is Don. Spargo, 215 Stewart street. He attends the Prince of Wales School and is in Grade 6. The winning slogan which appealed to the judges, who were members of the Public Relations Committee of the National War Finance ommittee for the County of Peterborough, was "Every Buck Helps a Canuck."

Second prize goes to Doris Jackman, a pupil at the Collegiate Institute whose slogan was "Be Buyers to Save Flyers."

Third prize goes to Doreen Ferguson, who attends the Confederation school and is in Grade 7. Her slogan was "Don't be a Spender, be a Lender."

Honourable Mention goes to Kenneth Courneya, 63 Olive avenue, Norman Howard, 144 London street, and Emily Dupuis, 719 Walkerfield avenue.

Winners will receive their prizes, which were donated by the Peterborough Bus Lines, during the school quiz program on Monday evening, over station CHEX, 8.30 p.m.-9 p.m.

Wagon Loaded With Dynamite Blew Up September 4, In 1885

The most tragic and spectacular dynamite explosion in the history of Peterborough County occurred on September 4, 1885, half a mile south of Lakefield, when a wagon load of the powerful explosive was discharged.

A subscriber to the Examiner has asked by letter for some information about this much-talked-of incident, and the following was gleaned from F. H. Dobbin's "History of Peterborough," which will soon be available in book form to the public. At the present time it is being printed by a well-known book firm in Toronto.

Two men, George Morton and James Simmons, were taking the dynamite on a wagon, pulled by a team of horses to Lakefield for use in building either a dam or the locks, when the explosion took place. What caused it will never be known. The crash was heard for miles, and the dust and debris in the air was visible in Peterborough city, nine miles away.

A hole sixty feet wide and about eight feet deep was torn in the ground, and the horses, wagon and men disappeared. Trees were shorn of their tops and branches, and houses shook for many miles around.

Recurring references to this unusual event has elicited many interesting theories, but as is obvious they just remained theories, and road workers soon erased all evidence of the tragedy.

From talk by the old-timers it would appear the blast took place on the Sixth Line near Buckley's Lake, and from this one would assume that the men, coming from Trenton, had travelled due north from Keene on the Sixth Line, having come by way of Hastings. This, however, is pure speculation, as the item in the record does not give any other details.

The great attack is on. On every front our fighters smash into the Axis with every weapon we can give them.

This is your chance to give them support by lending them your fighting dollars to speed the day when our boys come marching home from the Total Victory.

There's no holding back over there, so don't hold back here at home. Lend as they fight – All out for Victory!

Canada's 5th Victory Loan Objective

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 17

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds augury of very lively conditions, with much change going about and travel, with probably a sudden upheaval or adventure not entirely welcome or constructive. Ill advised moves or anything undertaken under emotional stress or rash impulse might prove devastating. Be prudent.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of much change, commotion, excitement and sudden events, which may prove to be disruptive and regretable if affairs are not given proper consideration and sound planning before definite change is made. Emotional or impulsive moves are detrimental especially to intimate or romantic affiliations. Business should prosper.

A child born on this day may possess much versatilty and talent, but tendencies to erratic, impulsive or emotional indulgences may prove disintegrating.

For Monday, October 18

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a period of opportunity and some outstanding recognition from those in high positions. Employers and superiors may be disposed to be helpful but there may be a tendency to force the issue or otherwise bungle prospects, by impetuous or arrogant acts or conduct.

Those whose birthday it is have the prospect of advancement, favors and openings for assuring future security and stability of position and fortune. But this should come as reward of merit and not by forced activities, rash moves or other form of reckless and impetuous behavior or arrogance. With consideration, conservatism and tact there should be great activity and progress.

A child born on this day should have versatility, ability, and high ambitions, attracting the favors of influential persons. But its own rash or impetuous conduct may prove its undoing.

Glamor Without Glitter

By ALICE ALDEN

THE SHORT-SKIRTED dinner dress continues on its merry way despite the insistence of reports from many parts of the country that there is a demand for the floor-length model. Maybe so, for very special occasions, but a glance at smart resorts reveals dresses of the type shown here, being favored by pretty women. Julie Bishop wears this delightful and sensible dinner dress of black crepe with top and long full sleeves of chiffon. It has a rhinestone choker and ear clips, but there is no glitter on the frock, which makes it different from most dresses of this type.

DOROTHY DIX

NO SYNTHETIC MOTHER TAKES PLACE OF REAL LOVE TO CHILD

Natural for Girl to Forget Manners, Husband Becomes Irritable When Woman Works.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am one of the many women who are affiliated in the business world and have a child who is left with a servant. However, the picture is not exactly the usual one because my husband works during the night and is home during the child's play hours. But I find that he is spoiling her. She has become rude to the maid and very disobedient with us.

Each week-end we three are together and a feeling of companionship should exist, but I find that we are quarreling about the way the baby behaves. If I reprimand her in her father's presence, she runs to him and he cuddles her and shows such resentment to me and displays such a temper that it is only natural that an argument follows between us, as I don't think any normal woman can tolerate her husband showing contempt for anything she says in the presence of the child.

My husband contends that a child of three is too young to distinguish between right and wrong. I am a firm believer in early training. What is your opinion? Can you make any suggestions that will relieve this tension in our home?

MRS. J.

No Servant Tends Child As Mother Does

ANSWER—It is an intriguing theory, that is very popular at the present moment, that a married woman can go into business and turn over the management of her house and the rearing of her child to a servant, and that everything will go on just as smoothly as if she were giving her home her personal attention, and that at the end of the week she would have a nice fat envelope, to boot.

It is a fine theory. The only trouble is that it doesn't work out according to schedule, as you are discovering. Modern science has devised a lot of substitutes for old-fashioned household gadgets, but nobody has invented a synthetic wife and mother that takes the place of the real one. No hireling is going to watch the grocery bill with as keen an eye as you do. And no servant is going to give the time and thought and interest and intelligence to rearing your child that you do.

So you needn't be shocked to find that your little girl has forgotten the nice manners that you taught her or that she is beginning to talk like the cook instead of the way you do, or that she is getting disobedient because she doesn't recognize a servant's authority over her, and she has found out that she can get away with murder with her father.

And don't you know, if you are honest with yourself, that the reason your husband has begun to be irritable with you, and particularly why he has begun to spoil the baby and cuddle and make much of her, is because he feels that he is losing you; that you are putting your desire to make money ahead of him and his comfort, and that the child is the only thing he has left to him? A husband can be just as jealous of his wife as he can be of another man. And it can separate them and break up their home just as easily.

Then, too, you are living an unnatural life. You work in the day time. He works at night. You have no life togethel. You never see each other except when you are both worn out and nerve-wracked and cross and when neither is in a mood to try to appease or be charming to the other.

Your husband is, of course, dead wrong in letting the child appeal from you to him. Parents must do teamwork if they have any authority at all over their children. Even babes in arms are shrewd enough to know that if they can get Mother and Father into an argument over them that they can do as they please. Heaven knows in these days it is hard enough to teach children to be obedient and respectful to their parents when Father and Mother back each other up.

You are quite right in thinking that the training of children in right living and thinking must begin in the cradle. Psychologists tell us that the whole pattern of a child's life is established before it is five years old. It is when they are young and plastic that children's characters, their manners and their morals are formed, and the hand of the potter must be the mother's, not a servant's, if you want to keep them beautiful.

Unless you are in dire need of the money, my advice to you is to give up your new job and go back to your old one of wife and mother. It will save you, your home, your husband and your child.

DEAR MISS DIX—More than a year ago I began an affair with a married woman and now I want a way out and don't know how to find it. This "other woman" left her husband because of me. My wife is one of the finest women in the world. She knows about this affair and has done everything in her power to make things easy for me, but her very kindness makes my conscience hurt me more and more.

You may doubt it but I love my wife and I want to get back into my home and security again, but have made so many promises and plans with the "other woman" that she has me tied hand and foot. My wife has told me she is willing to see this thing through and try to salvage our home and happiness, and I believe she could do it. But I lack the nerve to break with this "other woman," though I don't trust her as I did. And I also have found out that the greener pastures are not as green as I thought, and am suspecting that the "other woman" thinks I am a good port in a storm and that she intends to keep me to my words.

What should I do?

BEWILDERED.

ANSWER—Well, if you forsake your fine wife for this other woman, who went into the affair with her eyes wide open and knowing that you were married and that she was going to break up another woman's home, I think you would get just about what you deserve. It would be a classic example of the punishment fitting the crime.

You say that you do not want to hurt either your wife or your mistress, and you cannot decide whic[h] one has the greater claim up[on] you. Evidently you do not thin[k] that marriage vows are bindin[g] or else you would realize that whe[n] a man swears at the altar to [be] faithful to his wife until deat[h] he takes upon himself definite ob[li]gations to her that even the la[w] recognizes. So, if you are going [to] forsake either one of the ladie[s] it should be your mistress, not you[r] wife. The wife has the first mor[t]gage on your alleged affections.

But you are finding out, as ma[ny] another man finds out, that b[eing] a philanderer is not such a gay li[fe] after all, and that there are mo[re] thorns than roses along the prim[]rose path.

THE SHOE that looks as well with afternoon things as [it] does with after-dark glamor is a good buy, that is, if the shoe itself is of good quality with wearing qualities despite its apparently delicate appearance. Delman, famous shoe designer, has included such shoes in his new collection. Here is one, a sling-back sandal of jet black suede with a decorative lattice work buckle studded with jet.

WORK HOURS spell "Victory"

TO supply our men on the fighting fronts, to assist the United Nations and to maintain essential services on the home front, requires every ounce of energy of the Canadian public.

This is total war, with liberty the prize. Canadians realize we can not win that prize without hard, steady work.

Under a recent order, issued in pursuance of National Selective Service Civilian Regulations, thousands of Canadians—employers and employees—are expected to forego some part of their peacetime liberty in regard to employment matters, in order that the Nation's war machine may increase its pace—rather than operate at less than capacity.

In order to conserve the working forces in war industries and essential services, this order requires that no male employee be released, nor may he separate, from a job in either of the two top labour priorities—"A" and "B"—without first securing special permission from a National Selective Service Officer.

The order bears equally on employer and employee: both are restrained from any wastage of man hours through needless labour turnover.

An employer is obligated to post a notice in the form prescribed, where his plant or undertaking is covered by the order, so that his employees will be informed of the regulations as applying to them.

All are urged to comply in the national interest. Penalties are provided for failure to comply.

Anyone wishing information is requested to enquire at the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office.

Employers and employees alike are urged to strike a blow for freedom! Keep production at full capacity!

The illustration shows two trained nurses cutting blood in preparation for shipment to Toronto laboratories. From there the dried blood is sent to all parts of the world to do its work in relieving pain from loss of blood. Make it your duty to register as a blood donor.

Above picture shows a nurse watching carefully as donor gives his three-quarters of a pint of blood. Surely you can donate along with thousands of others, blood which will be of use to our boys in the Canadian Army and our Allies.

MORE BLOOD DONORS

URGENTLY NEEDED

At blood donors' service headquarters, name, address and phone are taken.

Prospective donors wait their turn to give 450 CC (approx. 3-4 pint) of blood.

Nurse's aide checks pulse and temperature. Donor must be healthy.

To-day's news indicates that the great offensive is close at hand—that soon, your son or perhaps your husband, will be at death grips with the Hun. It's our duty at home to become a blood donor to help our wounded boys.

Men and women between the ages of 18 and 60 are urgently asked to give a small amount of blood so that others may live on.

Probably you've intended to become a blood donor, but just haven't yet registered. Don't delay another day—the need is so very URGENT.

Nurse checks blood pressure and tests hemoglobin content — then a thorough doctors' examination.

Nurse watches donor while blood is taken from vein.

Refreshments are served by canteen worker. Next visit, 8 weeks—women, 12 weeks.

All the publicity that has been given as to the arrival of Bryan Hextall at the New York Rangers' camp is a tip off to the hockey situation generally. The Rangers are so devoid of talent that the reporting of their star right winger is a major development of the week. At that of course, even in normal times, there wouldn't be a club in the league that wouldn't be tickled to have such a high-scoring, good-going-both-ways star as Hextall arrive to bolster up the roster. Lester Patrick only has about five seasoned players around which to build a team. Meanwhile Art Ross of the Bruins has his own troubles. The veteran Boston mentor has a fair assortment of seasoned talent but his big problem is to find a replacement for Frankie Brimsek and that would be a gigantic task at any time. Mister Goalie is now with the United States Army and finding anyone who can come close to the job of filling his snoes would seem to be a difiicult assignment. This is going to be a queer season. It will take half the campaign for the fans to catch up with the new names on the lineups and by that time the army may have caught up with some more of the players.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The two supporting bouts for the Katan-Clayborne battle next Tuesday night should be interesting....There will be a moustache battle in the semi-final with the fast-moving Jan Gotch and mule-kicking Irish Pat Flanagan clashing....Both of them wear an adornment on the upper lip....Mike Demetre of Montreal, a new-comer, is billed to meet Bunny Dunlop in the opener....Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes and Hamilton Wildcats should still be tied at the end of today's football program, with five straight wins each....The Fliers meet the Toronto Indians in Toronto and the Hamilton gang battle with the Combines in Ottawa....And it may really be a battle at that....The story of Turk Broda being taken off the Montreal train by Mounted Police and turned over to the military authorities in Toronto, apparently to make sure that his services as goalie will be available for the Toronto army team this winter will make a lot of folk wonder if some elements in the Canadian Army have found out yet that they are supposed to be fighting a war....This is the fifth year of the conflict and Canadian boys are being killed in Italy, in the air over Europe and on the high seas....It is about time somebody in authority established the principle that when a hockey player is called to the army he is called as a soldier, not as a star goalie or a high-scoring forward....Sport for the services by all means but not sport as a foxhole to keep athletes out of danger while other young Canadians have to go out and face death.

Your Dreams May Reveal Key to Solving Problem

A Dream Caused By Frustration

The maddening dream of racing to catch a train and just missing it!

There's a very good reason why so many of us dream that.

Deep down in all of us are conflicts and problems we've unconsciously tried to forget. These appear symbolically in our dreams.

Feelings of frustration—in your job, at home, in love—may cause dreams of missing trains or of being paralyzed. Aware of this, you can ask, "What causes my frustration? How can I eliminate those causes?"

Many dreams warn of dangerous feelings you've tried to hide even from yourself. Attracted, more than you'd admit, you may dream of falling off a cliff — a warning of disaster.

Or you may dream that suddenly, with other people around, you are naked.

Our 32-page booklet tells what these and many other familiar dreams mean, according to psychoanalysis. Discusses nightmares and sex dreams, dreams that "show future mates."

For your copy of THE MEANING OF DREAMS send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and name of booklet.

FAIRMOUNT

WMS Has Discussion On Churchill Speech

FAIRMOUNT, Oct. 16.—(ENS.)—The Fairmount W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Sanderson on Wednesday with a good attendance.

The meeting opened with music played by Mrs. T. W. McIndoo and Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge read an article, 'Sing Unto the Lord.' Mrs. J. H. Sanderson was in charge of the devotional period. Scripture reading and prayer were taken by Mrs. Sanderson.

It was left with a committee, Mrs. R. F. McIndoo and Mrs. H. McBain, to try and secure Miss Connie Wager as guest speaker for a Thankoffering service to be held on October 31. All members were urged to attend the sectional rally on October 21 at Fraserville. It was decided that the society send for the new study book, entitled, 'For All of Life.' Mrs. H. McBain took the next chapter of the study book, 'The church, the city and the non-Anglo Saxon.'

Mrs. Joseph Seymour then took charge of the program which was taken from Winston Churchill's latest radio broadcast and was very much enjoyed by all.

Mrs. R. F. McIndoo sang 'Ninety and Nine.'

"The Authority on Authorities"

WASTE USELESS THINGS

IN THESE days of conserving everything of value, we are careful about all sorts of items which we used to treat as worthless. But even in wartime, we should not mind expending something which is practically worthless if it destroys something which would be of considerable value to the enemy. Thousands, yes millions, of times our fighting forces are more than glad to use a shell or bomb, which has a certain amount of value, to annihilate things worth far more to the enemy. Some bridge players are slow to recognize certain situations in which they should do likewise.

South whispered to a kibitzer after his last bid that it was because he had slight confidence in his partner's ability to play a hand and plenty of it in the probability of West making some mistake in play. And did West come through for him?

The heart K drew the 10 from East, and the A brought the 4. There was an elegant high-low, asking for an additional lead of the suit. But West, in his own unsound reckoning, could see, since he had a six-card suit, that South would be able to ruff after East if he offered a third heart. Not wishing to "put any trump strength under the hammer" for his partner, West switched to the club J.

South won that with dummy's K and finessed the spade 9, which West won with the Q. It was still not too late for him to kill that heart Q, but the logic—or what stood in lieu thereof—which kept him from leading a third heart before was still on the job. He did not want any trumps of his partner to be caught, and so he led the club 8 to the A. Two high spades settled the defenders' last trumps, and the diamond A was an entry to use the heart Q for a discard of the last club from South's hand. A finesse of the diamond J then completed the contract safely, whereas a third round of hearts on two occasions would have beaten it. Perhaps safer play by South, after the club K won, would have been two top spades and then the J, but it was not needed.

Chief Justice Releases Millbrook Boy

TORONTO, Oct. 16—In a judgment that condemned reformatory sentences for youngsters, Chief Justice Robertson yesterday ordered release from the reformatory of a 14-yeor-old youth.

The boy has been sentenced by Magistrate R. B. Baxter, Cobourg, to 21 months in the Guelph Reformatory on two charges, including breaking and entering with intent and of arson at Millbrook. He had been an inmate of the boys' school at Bowmanville.

"In our opinon is is unwise to send a boy to the reformatory at Guelph," the Chief Justice said in a judgment concurred in by Mr. Justice Fisher and Mr. Justice Laidlaw.

While the Chief Justice pointed out that the boy has had a record of criminal offenses that "in an older person might be taken as an indication of a strange criminal tendency," he added that the youth was "too young to condemn to a career of crime. This, in our opinion, is to be expected from the sentence from which appeal is taken.

"Whether there lies at the root of his (the boy's) apparent incorrigibility some mental defect, or the want of proper training and environment in his early boyhood, I do not think anyone can say from the report we have had," Chief Justice Robertson stated.

Though Guelph has been given status as a training school as well as a reformatory the judgment pointed out that the youth was committed to the institution in its status as a reformatory.

"We cannot control what training school the boy will be assigned to," Chief Justice Robertson said. "We can however, terminate his sentence to the reformatory as a prisoner there and that is what we propose to do.

"This will permit the persons having responsibility for boys in training schools to deal with this boy in a manner suited to his youth, and it is to be hoped, more conducive to his development into a useful citizen."

Granny Is Pinched

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP). —Patrolman Charles Suckow testified he tapped a 55-year-old Brooklyn woman's telephone line and heard this conversation: "Is grandma there?" "Yes, this is grandma." "Well, I want to bet $2 on the daily double at Jamaica." Magistrate John F. X. Masterson held the woman in $500 bail pending trial on a bookmaking charge. Yes, the daily double won, and paid $18.20.

2 Hun Prisoners Recaptured In Windsor Cafe

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 16—(CP). —Alertness of an unidentified civilian who noticed two men in a downtown restaurant talking in guttural accent has resulted in recapture of the last two of five German prisoners of war who escaped last week-end from the Erie Peat Company workings about four miles north-west of Port Colborne, Ont.

The two men were taken into custody by Windsor police last night at the restaurant after the civilian notified officers that the men looked suspicious. Taken to police headquarters, the men admitted they were escaped prisoners and gave their names as H. Kuehler 22, and Werner Schlueter.

The capture climaxed a hunt which began last Monday after the prisoners escaped while working on the Peat Company grounds. Two of them, G. Krause and H. Hoffman, were recaptured by Constable Austin Hamilton at Dunnville, 20 miles from Port Colborne, last Tuesday night. The following day Heinz Gerard was taken into custody by Chief Constable Walter Montrose at Port Dover, while trying to pass westward toward Windsor and Detroit from Port Dover, which is 50 miles from Port Colborne.

The break drew criticisms from the Port Colborne City Council and the Port Colborne branch of the Canadian Legion, which protested against sending the prisoners into an area both organizations termed vital to the war effort. The Legion protest, addressed to Defence Minister Ralston, urged that a unit of the Veterans' Guard of Canada be sent to guard the prisoners at the work camp.

Mankind Should

may be clear minded, keen in your judgment and capable in business. Does your business or money possess you? Are you possessed by your wealth?

This man was a devout Churchman, giving generously to every cause. "The Lord sits over against the treasury and watches how the people give." He knows our motives in giving.

Our Lord never teaches that money is an evil in itself. He warns against the danger of putting your whole trust and confidence in money.

Nicodemus, the rich member of the Sanhedrim, is not commanded to sell all that he had. That was not his spiritual sin. Money did not possess him. He was an aristocrat accustomed to money from his youth and used it generously. But he was proud of his blameless life and his strict obedience to the Law of Moses. This was his spiritual sin—pride in his goodness. To him Our Lord says: "Except a man be born again he cannot enter into the Kingdom of Heaven."

In these terrible days of warfare many are making money. Do you enjoy the thought of making money at the cost of the life, blood and tears of multitudes. Our finest men and women are passing into the other world through battles on sea, air and land. Are you satisfied to make money at their expense? In the ancient city of Athens the wealthy citizens gave freely of their possessions to build beautiful buildings for their city. It was called "service" and such men were very proud of their privilege thus to serve. You will have many opportunities of doing such "service" for your country.

We have to offer our best to God. All who loved the Lord Jesus did so. Mary with her costly box of ointment; Zacchaeus giving the half of his goods to make amends; Nicodemus and Joseph of Aramathea giving the Lord's dead Body a royal burial.

Are you "possessed" by your wealth? Are you saying to yourself: "My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth"? Or do you look upon your wealth as a trust thankful for the good you can do with it?

LAY UP FOR YOURSELVES TREASURES IN HEAVEN.

WALTER D. DONNELLY

MARMORA, Oct. 16 (ENS). — News was received here Friday of the sudden death in Toronto the previous evening of Walter D. Donnelly who for many years conducted a barber shop in Marmora before moving to Toronto some years ago.

The late Mr. Donnelly was a native of Millbrook and came to Marmora as a young man to work in the late Vern Pringle's barber shop, later taking over the business. Although having a severe illness while residing in Marmora he later showed much improvement in health.

Two weeks ago as he attended the funeral of the late William L. Regg in Toronto he renewed acquaintances with many old Marmora friends there and received their congratulations on what seemed evidence of restored health. News of his death came to them as a shock. The late Mr. Donnelly was an Anglican in religion and attended St. Paul's Bloor Street, Toronto. He was a member of Marmora A.F. and A. M., No. 222.

He is survived by his widow, who before marriage was Rose Penrose and four children Margaret, Reginald, Grace and Jean.

Packing Plant Employees Get Deferments

OTTAWA, Oct. 16 — (CP). — The Labor Department has asked regional mobilization boards to give "special consideration" to requests for postponement of military call-up for men in the meat-packing industry, which already has lost 21 per cent of its manpower to the armed forces.

Announcing the action late yesterday, the Labor Department said the industry has been declared essential to the prosecution of the war and to the national interest following representations made at conferences here recently between officials of National Selective Service, the Prices Board and the Meat Production Board.

The classes of work and men for which postponement has been requested include:

Supervisors; butchers; processors in all department; employees of by-product cellar and freezer departments; handlers and loaders; skilled packing house maintenance men; and employees holding first, second, third and fourth class engineers papers in the steam power and refrigeration plants of the industry.

Consider All Factors

In dealing with applications for postponement for these men, mobilization boards have been asked to give consideration to the available supply of labor. the importance of the applicant's position and the importance of the industry generally to the national economy and the prosecution of the war.

Arthur McNamara, Selective Service Director, was quoted in the statement as saying it was pointed out during the conferences here that the marketing and processing of meat products in Canada will reach an all-time high during the period from this month to next January.

He added that only by retaining the remaining key men in the industry during this peak period would it be possible to carry on the work and train men to replace those subject to military call-up.

The Department statement said it has been estimated that Canadian meat-packing plants will produce 1,577,000,000 pounds of meat products this year, with nearly 50 per cent of the total entering directly into distribution for war purposes.

Flier Predicts Hun Plants Gone By Spring

By RICE YAHNER

A U.S. BOMBARDMENT HEADQUARTERS IN ENGLAND, Oct. 1[illegible] (AP)—German war industry wi[ll] be so smashed by Spring as the result of the Allied aerial poundin[g] that the Nazis won't be able to figh[t] effectively any longer on land o[r] sea or in the air, Brig.-Gen. Curti[s] E. LeMay, commander of the U.S. heavy bombardment division, sai[d] today.

"The winter holds no hope [for] Germany," the 36-year-old veteran of a year of European air battle[s] said in an interview. "By spring th[e] Allies will have destroyed enoug[h] German war industry that the[y] cannot fight effectively any more.

"The enemy will be pounded a[s] frequently as strength is available. The more Flying Fortresses we hav[e] here the shorter the war is goin[g] to be. And the more fighters w[e] have to protect the Fortresses th[e] smaller the losses will be."

The Germans are shooting th[e] works on their last hope of defenc[e] —fighter planes—but it is not muc[h] of a hope, the General said, "an[d] once they run out of airplanes an[d] supplies they are done."

He contended that Thursday's bombing of the Schweinfurt ball bearing plant virtually smashed 5[illegible] per cent of the enemy product[ion] of that vital article.

United States bombing losse[s] have been increasing in number recently, he continued, but the percentage, considering the forces employed has remained almost constant at less than five per cent.

Nazis Moving More Men Into Balkans

Yugoslav Army Reports New Victories

LONDON, Oct. 18 —(CP)—Bitter fighting continued today along a wide front in Yugoslavia, with the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation reporting new successes against German communication lines while acknowledging the loss of Zenica in central Bosnia.

Troops retreating from Zenica in the "Balkan Rhur," a communique said, destroyed the Bilo Railway station, derailed a train near Lasva, blew up a railway bridge and ripped up nearly two miles of track to slow the German advance.

The communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslavia radio, reported hard fighting near the Adriatic port of Split, where reported attacks by Marshal Erwin Rommel's Nazi forces were said to have been thrown back.

The Partisans announced the defeat of an enemy column near Emotski in Bosnia and the occupation of the village of Studeni, while local fighting was reported around Sinj, Sibensk, Kakar, Karlovac and Gospic, all centres of recent activity.

Hold Croat Coast

Yesterday's Yugoslav broadcast, summing up the situation, said that Gen. Josip (Tito) Broz's forces commanded all of the Croatian coastal region and the northern coast of Dalmatia except Zara and Sibensk. Fierce struggles with the Germans during the past week were reported to have occurred in various other parts of Bosnia and Montenegro, and near Trieste and Fiume in northern Italy.

In the northeastern coal and timber region of Bosnia, Nazi forces were said to have been repelled after they had advanced almost to Tuzla.

More than 400 Germans were killed and 200 wounded when a Partisan group derailed a German train in northern Italy and turned hidden artillery on the wreckage, the communique said.

Ontario To Buy Five Millions

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP). — Five million dollars of the Fifth Victory Loan will be subscribed by the Ontario Government, Premier Drew announced to-day addressing a rally of provincial civil servants inaugurating the loan campaign.

Premier Drew said bonds of this issue would in future be accepted at par by the Government in payment of any obligation including succession duties.

The loan is the most critical so far in the war, he said, and although complete victory may not be too far distant it is not close.

A survey of the civil service now being conducted may remove existing inequalities and make for a more permanent and efficient service, Premier Drew stated.

"Efficiency of our civil service should be on the basis of merit, permanency and security of employment" he said. "It is my hope that this will be achieved. Those who have performed their tasks well and competently and with a measure of impartiality can rest assured that they will have permanency of employment under regulations satisfactory to the service."

British Paper Takes Rap At U.S. Senators

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(CP).— The London Daily Mail, taking another pot shot at "the five talking American Senators," declared today their report "has created so much anti-British feeling in America and by repercussion, so much anti-American feeling in Britain that it is essential the truth of lend-lease be known."

Denying Britain was taking credit for lend-lease material received from the United States and transferred to other governments, the Daily Mail said the Senators were "ignorant of the facts" and added that "it is worthwhile pointing out that America herself has gained a good deal of credit for material supplied by Britain."

"In November, 1942," the paper continued, "it was essential to supply milk to mothers and children in North Africa. That milk was distributed by the American Red Cross. So far as the Moroccans and Algerians know it came from America, as it certainly came at the demand of American authorities.

"But, it came from our own stocks at a time when it could ill be spared."

Not One-Sided.

The daily devoted three columns to explaining that lend-lease was "never intended to be a one-way affair" and itemized many things which it said Britain "has given America without payment."

"Between June, 1942, and April, 1943, the United Kingdom provided to American forces 1,362,681 ship tons of articles and equipment and 1,177,384 ship tons of constructive materials, the article declared on the basis of figures it said had been compiled by British and American sources.

"The contribution has ranged from barbed wire to cooking stoves; from bombs to locomotives; from Nissen huts to parachutes; from Spitfires to lemon squash; from artillery to socks."

The Daily Mail concluded this phase of its review with the remark that it was realized all the time that "it was not love of Britain but the stark realization of the possibility of total war engulfing the United States that promoted passage of the Lend-Lease Act."

The article then went on to say that Britain not only is repaying and will continue to repay America, but is doing her bit of lend-leasing.

London Takes Bonds Worth $1,000,000

Early Bond Sales Indicate Heavy Purchasing

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 —(CP)— The City of London, Ont., is the first Canadian city actually to file an application for bonds of the $1,200,000,000 Fifth Victory Loan, investing $1,000,000 of municipal funds, National Loan headquarters announced today as the three-week campaign opened.

In addition, headquarters said, the City of Saint John, N.B., has announced its intention to invest $400,000 compared with $350,000 in the Fourth Victory Loan.

Earlier it was announced regionally that the Province of New Brunswick is investing $1,500,000 in the issue, $500,000 more than in the last loan. British Columbia's government announced it will subscribe $6,000,000—$4,000,000 of government funds and $2,000,000 of the trust funds of the British Columbia Workmen's Compensation Board.

A Good Start

The Loan is off to an "auspicious start," today's press statement said.

"In British Columbia and Ontario there was early evidence of trades unions and labor leaders working strongly with employers to obtain maximum results. This was particularly evident in plants of Algoma Steel Corp. at Sault Ste. Marie, (Ont.) which has 5,000 employees, and also in the appeals of prominent labor leaders on the Pacific coast.

In London, Ont., Huron and Erie Mortgage Corp. and Canada Trust Co. bought $1,500,000 worth of bonds. General Motors of Canada invested $4,250,000. Other large subscriptions of this morning were: Robin Hood Flour Mills Ltd., Montreal and Moose Jaw, Sask., $1,000,000; North American Cyanamid Ltd., Niagara Falls, Ont., $1,750,000; Horton Steel Works, Fort Erie, Ont., $500,000; British American Oil Co. Ltd., Toronto, $1,750,000; International Harvester Co. of Canada, Hamilton, $2,750,000.

The armed services jumped into the Bond-buying campaign at the opening gun, said Loan headquarters. Bill Fisher, sole survivor of the torpedoed Canadian destroyer St. Croix, was Calgary's first purchaser. On leave and visiting his wife at Blackdiamond, Alta., he will speak during the campaign through Alberta.

Sailors Get Going

The seven naval reserve divisions in Ontario got off to a good start. H.M.C.S. Hunter at Windsor had already beaten its objective by $2,000 before the Loan books opened. Some 300 soldiers at a Chatham, Ont., camp reported themselves over the top Saturday, before the campaign opened.

In Kingston, the campaign opened a 10-minute night bombing raid." Paratroopers, in "German" uniforms, took over all important points in the

Where Next Allied Blow On Axis May Fall

Reports of Allied occupation of some of the Cyclades Islands north of Crete, following closely on the news of land, sea and air action in the Dodecanese group, may indicate that a major operation is imminent in this area. When it begins, the military experts believe that it will take the form of a three-pronged drive: (1) from the west with an Allied army striking at Albania; a drive on southern Greece and Crete with land-based planes from the Cyclades; (2) providing an air umbrella and a drive by the British armies stationed in the Near East through the Dodecanese Islands; (3) toward Salonika and the Vardar River Valley (4), ancient gateway to southern Europe.

Russians Rip 15 Mile Hole

LONDON, Oct. 18—(CP).—Soviet men and guns are pouring through a widening hole deep inside the Dnieper River loop behind Dnepropetrovsk, threatening to flank hundreds of thousands of Germans to the east as well as at Melitopol and in the Crimea, a Reuters News Agency dispatch from Moscow said today.

The dispatch said the Nazis were rushing up reinforcements, including units from all parts of Europe, in an effort to stem the Soviet forces which broke through along a 28-mile front and captured five German strongpoints after two days of heavy fighting between Kremenchug and Dnepropetrovsk. A wedge 15 miles deep had been driven into German defences, a Russian communique said.

The communique also announced that the Red Army had made a fourth major crossing of the Dnieper, this time below Gomel, charging ahead six miles through the heavily defended German lines.

As fighting raged in the streets of Melitopol for the sixth day the Nazis themselves suggested another major retreat from the lower Dnieper, a German High Command communique speaking of a "big detaching movement" on the eastern front.

The Soviet bulletin said a Rus-

Modern Tyrants Must Atone Minister Tells Loan Group

WINDSOR, Oct. 18—(AP).—Modern tyrants of Germany and Japan must be made to atone, "even with their lives," for the misery and suffering they have brought to the world, Navy Minister Macdonald said today.

In an address prepared for delivery at a Victory Loan luncheon Mr. Macdonald placed emphasis on the cost of modern warfare. As an example he referred to bombing raids on Germany.

"Do you realize that 10 of these four-engined bombers brought down over Germany represent a cost of nearly $5,000,000, to say nothing of the cost involved in training the men who man these bombers and the incalculable cost in human life itself," he said.

"It takes money to fight a modern war, but we must give our fighting men the best equipment that can be provided. We must give them, at least, an even chance against the Germans and Japanese.

Breach in Dnieper Line Worries Hitler

Nazis In Crimea Told To Fight To the Last Man

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

A general view of the crucial struggle on the Russo-German front gives the impression the Hitlerites are on the verge of another great withdrawal of their line in face of the continuing Red onslaught.

As a matter of fact, an unexplained German official reference to a "big detaching movement" of Nazi forces invites speculation whether a fresh retreat isn't already in its initial stages. In any event we know that such a retirement is quite possible.

This whole vast front of more than 1,000 miles—which right now overshadows all other European land fighting in importance—is in a state of volcanic eruption at half a dozen strategic points. At the moment, however, the crisis is pivoting in the south, and the battle is fierce.

A Major Break

The Russian have made a major breach in the German Dnieper line north of Dnepropetrovsk on the bend of the great river, and are threatening to surround big Hitlerite forces to the south. Also in danger of being cut off is the Nazi-occupied Crimea which once more is splashing the pages of history with the flaming colors which have characterized its adventurous life.

The Crimea has a special significance beyond the fact that it's an important part of the general engagement. Its isthmus provides the only land avenue of escape for something like 100,000 Nazi troops, now cooped up on the Crimea. It's reported in Stockholm the fuehrer has ordered these forces to "defend, if necessary to the last man," this peninsula which, as things now stand, is the key to domination of the Black Sea and is thus a mighty atom in the war.

Will the Nazis in the Crimea make a suicide stand as Hitler is said to have ordered? It looks like a futile sort of gesture, which might act merely as a delaying action against the Red forces.

If Hitler's right wing colapses it will mean the second big retreat along the whole line is under way.

Lumberjacks Capture Hill

Huns Amazed When Canuck Answers Phone

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Oct. 16 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable). — Fishermen, farmers and lumbermen comprising a Maritime battalion contributed to the Canadian capture of an important Italian town by driving the Germans from a hill position protecting it.

These Maritimers climbed and fought in cold, drenching weather and faced machine-gun, mortar and shell-fire.

They started their attack by crossing a wide riverbed under a hail of machine-gun bullets which seemed impenetrable but caused only one casualty.

The battalion gained a sideroad circling the hilltop and captured a mobile German multi-barrelled which was firing light explosive sheels. Standing near the gun, Capt. Lawrence Putnam of Amherst, N.S., heard a telephone buzz picked up the receiver and listened to a stream of German coming over the wire.

Putnam asked the party at the other end if there was anyone able to speak English but this brought only a fresh torrent of German.

"The English are here chum," Putnam said, and cut the telephone lines.

Additional Italian Towns Fall To Allied Armies As New Landings Reported

British 8th Army Patrols Stabbing Westward Into Apennine Backbone Toward Rome Former German Air Base Captured By Allies

By N. NORGAARD—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 18—(AP). — The Anglo-American 5th Army in slashing give-and-take battle has driven beyond the Volturno and "firmly occupied" the towns of Cancello, Ruviano and Nerrone. British 8th Army patrols are stabbing westward into the Apennine backbone toward Rome, Allied headquarters announced today.

Important new Allied landings of men and material in recent days have been made on the Italian mainland as a part of the steady reinforcement of the forces, it was disclosed.

From both the 5th and 8th Army fronts came reports of numerous fires in the enemy rear areas. This pointed to the possibility that the Germans were destroying supply dumps preparatory to a general withdrawal, although there was nothing else to indicate that further Allied advances toward the Italian capital from any direction would be made except in the face of the most stubborn opposition.

Nazi Counter Fails.

British troops of the 5th Army occupied Cancello, a former important Axis airbase eight miles inland and on the north bank of the Volturno River, after beating back a massive German counter-attack in the course of an advance from the sea.

Americans captured the towns of Nerrone and Ruviano in the high ground dominating the surrounding lowlands after fierce "merry-go-round" fighting in which strong formations from each side repeatedly stabbed deep into the opposing lines, creating a fluid situation over an area five or six miles deep in which units frequently became isolated.

It was in the Cancello sector that British amphibious forces had landed along the Gulf of Gaeta to flank the German anchor at the mouth of the Volturno.

Nazi Submarines Armed With Heavier Guns

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A NORTH ATLANTIC PORT, Oct. 18 (CP)—Nazi submarines surfaced and slugged it out with Canadian and British warships in the Atlantic convoy battle which marked the resurgence of U-boat activities.

Men on Canadian ships in the fight told here how the Germans, instead of seeking safety by submerging, boldly remained on top and pitted gunfire against that of the escort ships at close range. Apparently more strongly armed than previously, they showed disinclination toward turning tail, the Canadians said.

And they did perhaps get one escort vessel by surface gunfire—the British frigate Itchen—which went down with many of the survivors of the Canadian destroyer St. Croix, which the Itchen had picked up after the St. Croix was torpedoed a day earlier.

A Record Battle

In wolf-pack formation, the submarines attacked strongly for days, staging one of the heaviest scraps ever engaged in on the Atlantic. The battle began Sunday, Sept. 19.

"The same day, some ships were attacked," said Lieut. E. Maurice Chadwick, Victoria.

"Our ship dropped depth charges over the spot where we figured the submarine was," he said. "On the way the vessel passed survivors in the water.

The submarines were heavily attacked that night. Most of the next day was quiet, perhaps because—as the Navy men here believe—the U-boat crews had withdrawn for the time being to lick their wounds.

Late Monday they started up new attacks on the convoy. It was then that the St. Croix was sunk.

Fight All Night

"Afterwards, they kept attacking, but we had no trouble shaking them off for the rest of the night, Lieut. Chadwick said. "The skirmishing went on all night, though.

"The Polyanthus and the Itchen were in on that (loss of both these ships already has been announced) "but we were off to one side of the convoy and didn't get in on much of this."

All told, the men on this ship put in 79 hours at action stations on the voyage. For much of this time, the night sky was brilliantly lit by salvo after salvo of star shiels tossed into the sky as the escort ships sought the subs.

Signalman William T. Larmour of Toronto told of hearing a voice from the water as his ship raced after a sub that had torpedoed a vessel. It was the voice of a man whose ship had been sunk.

"Never mind us," he said. "But get those so-and-sos."

British Troops Shell Maungdaw

NEW DELHI, Oct. 18 — (AP) — While patrols distracted the enemy with diversionary raids Saturday night, British troops successfully attacked with mortar fire the Japanese-held town of Maungdaw on the western coast of Burma, a communique announced today.

R.A.F. dive-bombers followed with a raid on Japanese troop positions near Maungdaw and Hurricanes made a series of attacks on enemy-occupied villages and army huts in the same area.

Beaufighters attacking the enemy's Burmese supply lines set on fire or damaged a number of vessels, including three large steamships and two oil barges, and scored hits on two oil tanks. Wellingtons bombed Akyab, about 55 miles south of Maungdaw.

A United States communique said American two-engined bombers attacked Japanese shipping at Katha, on the Irrawaddy river about 160 miles north of Mandalay, Saturday, sinking three 200-foot boats with direct hits and destroying six or eight smaller craft.

Other American bombers squadrons dumped 10 tons of explosives on an enemy airfield at Bhamo, 60 miles east of Katha.

Huns Fear Foreign Workers

12 Million Slaves Becoming Problem

MADRID, Oct. 18—(AP).—As a result of recent development on both the military and political fronts, the 12,000,000 foreign workers who the Germans boasted in July were "working contentedly" in the Reich now bid fair to become one of the Nazis' biggest problems.

Apparently disturbed by the possible effect which the trend of events in the Mediterranean might have on these imported workers, the Germans are said to have deprived them of the last vestiges of "reasonable freedom" they were promised originally.

Unrest in all these people may conceivably be inspired by recent events, and reliable reports from Germany indicate the Nazis—taking no chances—have tripled guards around the camps where both voluntary and involuntary workers from the Mediterranean countries are quartered.

Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chieftain, is even reported to have appealed to Hitler to move some of the most suspicious foreign laborers out of Germany "before it is too late" and the workers "poison the minds of good Germans."

Within the last month there is said to have been a striking increase of sabotage within Germany which the Gestapo traced back directly or indirectly to foreign workers.

MOSQUITO BOMBERS HIT BERLIN WITHOUT LOSS OVER WEEK-END

15 German Raiders Bomb London Area

By ROBERT STURDEVANT—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 18—(AP).—R.A.F. Mosquitoes bombed targets in Berlin and western Germany without loss last night, while fighters attacked airfields and communications in occupied territory, the Air Ministry announced today.

R.C.A.F. Mosquitoes and Mustangs were active over northern France, damaging seven locomotives and Flying Intruder patrols. R.C.A.F. Wellington bombers laid mines in enemy waters. There were no Canadian losses.

Indicating the Allied air offensive again was going into high gear after a lull since last Thursday's attack on Schweinfurt, a large force of bombers also crossed the Channel toward the Continent this morning. Fighters escorted them.

Berlin last was raided on October 9—also by Mosquitoes.

Other bombers last night laid mines in enemy waters, a communique said, and fighters attacked shipping off the Dutch coast as well as enemy airfields and railway targets.

About 15 German planes stabbed at Britain during the night, hitting at points in East Anglia and South-east England and penetrating to the London area to cause a one-hour air alert in the Capital.

Some Fatalities.

A communique said bombs caused some fatalities and that one of the intruders was destroyed.

It was announced subsequently that bombs dropped in the London Metropolitan area killed at least four persons and wrecked many houses. Anti-aircraft batteries blazed away at the enemy planes in one of their biggest barrages for months.

The alert was the capital's second in two nights.

In the attacks on targets in the occupied territory, Mosquitoes manned by Canadian crews damaged seven locomotives in moonlight attacks in Northern France. An R.A.F. squadron leader flying a Hurricane sank a tug and at least one barge off the Dutch coast.

High-scorer among the Canadians was Flying Officer J. L. D. Armstrong of Westmount, Que., who shot up three locomotives. Sqdn. Ldr. M. W. Beveridge of Westmount, and FO. T. Thomson of Vancouver, each shot up one.

Members of this squadron, commanded by Wing Cmdr. Paul Davoud of Kingston, Ont., turned their attention to transport targets because they found little activity over enemy fighter bases.

Morley Lyle Passes Away

Morley Wilfred Lyle, manager of the Canadian Canoe Company for half a century, passed away on Saturday evening after a lengthy illness. He was 74 years old.

Coming to Peterborough from Bowmanville as a young man, Mr. Lytle worked for a short time with E. B. Clegg and Sons as a cabinet maker. However, not long after taking up residence here he joined the Canadian Canoe Company, of which he became the manager within a year. This was in 1893, when the premises of the company were located on the present site of the Blood Donors' Clinic. Later and for a number of years the company's quarters were on George street, opposite B. F. Ackerman's, and it was the third move in Mr. Lyle's time which brought the Canadian Canoe Company to the offices it occupies to-day on Rink street.

Mr. Lyle was absorbed in the life of his business to which he gave a great deal of his time and thought, being in a large measure responsible for its success down the years. In connection with the work he did a great deal of travelling, and before the present war he customarily took a trip to the coast each fall, often being away from home for two months. When the Canadian Canoe Company amalgamated with the Peterborough Canoe Company five years ago, Mr. Lyle's invaluable services saw him remaining in control of his division of the new company. Though unable in the past two years to participate as actively as he had formerly in the affaairs of the business, Mr. Lyle gave what time he could and went to the office whenever he was able.

Born in Brantford, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lyle, he lived in Bowmanville before coming to Peterborough 57 years ago. With his wife, president of the Women's Association of Trinity United church, we was actitve in church affaairs and had been connected with Trinity since its foundation during the last war. An Oddfellow for 55 years, he was a member of Peterborough Lodge No. 111, I.O.O.F., and belonged as well to the Peterborough Lodge, A.F. & A.M. and to the Scottish Rite.

Mr. Lyle is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Dunk Lyle, 317 Park street north; by a daughter, Mrs. H. Jasper Humphrey, of Toronto wife of the vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway; and by a son, Lieut. V. B. Lyle, R.C.E., stationed in Canada. Lieut. Lyle. who has been in service since the beginning of the present war, also enlisted in the Canadian Army in the First World War, seeing action in France. A second daughter, Gladys, died in 1906. Two sisters of Mr. Lyle, Mrs. W. L. Sharp and Mrs. F. Rappe, live in the city.

The body is resting at the Nesbitt Funeral Home, 347 Charlotte street, until Tuesday noon. The funeral service will be held on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m. from Trinity United church, followed by interment at Little Lake cemetery.

The United States troops beat off three strong German counter-thrusts before battling their way into Nerrone, a mountain stronghold three miles north of the river and 22 miles inland.

Ruviano, another valuable position in high ground in the strategic elbow of the Volturno where it turns northward, cemented Allied control of an area where the Allies earlier seized Calazzo and Amorosi on opposite sides of the river. It also was captured after a sharp engagement.

On the 8th Army front where the Canadian 1st Division is operating with British troops, fighting raged in the streets of Montecilfone when British patrols entered and found it heavily garrisoned by Germans. The British patrols broke through toward the main British lines only after a violent encounter. Montecilfone is 10 miles southwest of Termoli on the Adriatic coast and four miles west of Guglionesi, the last reported limit of the British advance in that sector.

Resistance Grows

The headquarters communique said the 8th Army patrols were maintaining contact with the enemy in the drive west of the Termoli-Vinchiaturo road, and the field reports said enemy resistance was increasing in intensity all along that front.

Particularly heavy fighting appeared to be ahead for British divisions of the 5th Army in their offensive northward of the lower Volturno.

The Germans were firmly entrenched on the Massico Ridge towering 2,500 feet above the river valley and extending from the northeast toward Carinola.

From it heavy guns commanded a wide area and a series of heavy counter - attacks launched from that higher stronghold were evidence enough the enemy would yield it only after a bitter struggle.

Seven miles beyond the ridge lies the Garigliano River, more than half way from the Volturno to the port of Gaeta, the anchor of a rugged trans - peninsular mountain line extending to Pescara on the Adriatic along which the Germans may plan another stand.

(The German communique asserted that "Anglo-Saxon troops in the Volturno bend were repulsed" and that several hundred Allied prisoners had been taken. Bombers scored a hit on an Allied cruiser in the eastern Mediterranean, the communique said).

While the combat units drove relentlessly forward, Allied engineers labored to strengthen and improve the bridge links across the Volturno and a steady stream of troops, guns and tanks went forward to expand the battle.

Italians Aiding.

Reports from Naples saaid Italian salvage units recruited to assist in clearing the streets were proving of great value in re-opening the port to establish supply lines.

With the capture of Ruviano the Americans had forced their way onto the highway extending north across the Volturno to Alife and through Alvignano and Dragoni, Piedmonte D'Alife, and cutting across German communications.

While Middle East heavy bombers again attacked Maritza airdrome on Rhodes and Kos harbor in the Dodecanese and Syros harbor in the Aegean, northwest African bombers and fighters attacked communications behind the lines, bombing bridges south of Rome and the east coast railway near Pescara.

Suicide Feared; Clothes Found At Quaker Dam

Discovery of a man's suit coat and a hat at the eastern end of the London street footbridge early Sunday morning has furnished the local police department with a mystery.

So far no one has been reported missing, despite the indications of the abandoned articles that tragedy have occurred at that lonely spot.

Robert Armstrong, a young boy living at 214 Carlisle Avenue, noticed the coat and hat as he was crossing the bridge shortly after midnight and when he got home telephoned the police.

Sergt. John Thompson and Officer John Naples investigated. They found that the coat, a dark blue garment, contained nothing in the pockets and a label had been apparently torn out. The only mark on the coat was the name "House of Hobberlin" on the inside pocket. The hat was a light-colored soft felt.

The coat had been hanging on the railing of the bridge and the hat was on the walk. They had evidently not been there long because they were not wet despite the fact that it was raining at the time.

All Saints' Church Honors Fallen

People thronged All Saints' church Sunday morning to pay tribute to Sgt. O. Albert Leether and three other church boys who have died in the service of their country, and to renew their pledge to service in the coming Victory Loan.

Mr. Filer explained the purpose of service is to remember the dead, and he told how a visit to Westminster Abbey had impressed him by the names inscribed on the monuments. He said they were divided into two classes; the heroes buried by the hands of men, and those buried by the hands of God. Some sleep beneath the Abbey floor, while others rest in distant lands, symbolized by the Unknown Soldier memorial, he declared.

He pointed out that the Holy Scriptures reveals there is no death of the spirt and that as life persists after death, so love persists and also service. He issued a challenge to his audience saying:

"Here is the call of the hour. There is no retreat, we must advance to Victory."

In a brief memorial service, chancel lights donated by Sgt. Leether's parents, were dedicated. White mums on the Holy Table were placed by relatives in memory of Christie Mason, Arthur Houghton, J. Wesley Mannell and Albert Leether. There was a special memorial service at the chancel steps and a minute of silence, as those present considered the full measure of sacrifice made by the fallen. Kipling's "Recessional" was sung by the choir.

Members of the Canadian Legion, under George Gimblett, Cubs and Scouts and the Scouts' Women's Auxiliary were guests at this special service.

Allies Take Canello And Ruviano

8th Army Trying To Cut In Behind Nazi Lines

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Oct. 18 (AP)—Allied 5th Army troops have "firmly occupied" Cancello, once the site of an important Axis airbase three miles north of the Volturno river and eight miles in from the west coast, it was announced today.

It was near that area that British sea-borne forces swept ashore last week north of the Volturno's mouth.

Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark's troops also have occupied Ruviano in a further plunge up the valley formed by the northward sweep of the Volturno above its junction with the Calore. Ruviano, west of the Vulturno, is about three miles northeast of captured Ciaizzo.

The 5th Army advances were registered against desperate resistance, it was announced, while to the northeast the British 8th Army under Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery pushed an offensive west of the Termoli-Vinchiaturo road.

A communique said more tanks and heavy equipment were streaming across the bridged Volturno and into the 5th Army battle zone.

In striking out westward from the Termoli-Vinchiaturo highway, complete control of which was announced yesterday, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's forces, including the Canadian 1st Division, apparently were aiming at cutting in behind the enemy above the Volturno.

Nazis Weakening

Allied air forces kept up their steady hammering of the enemy, both bombers and fighters attacking communications yesterday. Last night bridges south of Rome and the east coast railway near Pescara were bombed.

The communique said reconnaissance photos confirmed the sinking of a merchant vessel off the coast of Greece Saturday.

In a two-way flanking movement against the Nazi centre along the Volturno, 5th Army forces have hammered deep penetrations into enemy territory at both ends of the line.

While every co-operation was experienced in the attempt to produce good fruit to supply the war-time needs it was apparent that at the ceiling set, however, efficiency must be checked that the higher costs of labour, packages, etc., may leave a fair margin for the producer.

The Fifth Loan Opens

As Robert Ripley, the Believe-It-Or-Not man, said in a recent Victory Loan Show, the Loan which opens today is not Canada's Fifth; it is actually our seventh, but because we did not feel that we had really hit our stride in the first two it is agreed that this shall be the Fifth Victory Loan. In order to make clear what we have done in the past, let us consider this table:

Victory Loan	Objective	Total Sales	No of Subscribers
1st	$600,000,000	$836,820,250	968,259
2nd	600,000,000	996,706,900	1,681,267
3rd	750,000,000	991,389,050	2,032,154
4th	1,100,000,000	1,308,985,500	2,669,111

Now our Fifth Loan objective is $1,200,000,000, and if we are to carry it through to success on the same scale as the others we must raise about $1,400,000,000 and gain 2,800,000 subscribers. Can we do it? Of course we can! But it will mean a little more effort from everybody than was put forth in the last Loan.

Let there be no worry about the money. It is available, many times over, in Canada and if the urgency of the Loan is realised by every citizen that money will be forthcoming. We are not convinced, however, that the urgency of the Loan is fully realised. For the past few months the fortunes of war have been on the side of the United Nations, and everywhere there is a feeling of optimism about the outcome. We would do nothing to quench a spirit of optimism; we feel that it is of great value to the war effort if it is kept within reasonable bounds. But optimism does carry with it a danger of complacency. Too many people think that the victorious conclusion of the war is now only a matter of waiting for a German collapse. Mr. Churchill has pointed out the folly of such thinking. Because the Germans collapsed in 1918 we must not assume that they will inevitably collapse in 1943; history does repeat itself, but not with such monotonous regularity as that.

Victory can only be assured if we put forward our utmost effort in every respect. All of us have some notion of the fabulous cost of modern warfare. The blows which will destroy Nazi Germany are going to cost millions of dollars and millions of pounds, and it is up to us to pay the bill. We can do it. Let us do it with the best will and the greatest speed in our power.

A Remarkable Scoundrel

One of the most remarkable scoundrels of our time, Ignatius Trebitsch-Lincoln, is dead. Born in Hungary of Jewish parents in 1879 he was baptised a Christian in a Protestant mission in Berlin when he was 18. Soon afterward he came to Canada and studied in a Presbyterian college in Montreal for three years, after which he became a missionary to the Indians. However, he became attracted to the Church of England, so he deserted the Presbyterian fold and entered an Anglican seminary, also in Montreal, and emerged as a curate. Soon afterward he went to England and obtained a parish in Kent.

The religious life soon palled, and this amazing man renounced his orders and became secretary to Seebohm Rountree, a wealthy English Liberal, and soon afterward ran for Parliament and was elected. He married in England and had four children. When the war broke out in 1914 he was for a time a Hungarian censor in Britain. But for some reason which has not yet been revealed, he forged a couple of cheques in England on Rountree's account, and came to the United States, where he wrote a number of articles describing his experiences as a foreign spy in Britain; in actual fact he had never done any spying at all. The articles attracted attention in Britain, and Lincoln was extradited, and went to prison for three years.

But his fictitious articles had won him such a reputation as a spy that when he was free once more he had no difficulty in getting spy work in Europe, and in the next few years he was a secret agent for almost every government on that continent. His method was simple: he gained what information he could and sold it to both sides for the highest possible price. In time, however, he wore out his market, and most European boundaries were closed to him. So he went to the East, and soon became financial advisor to the Chinese Marshal Wu Pei Fu; but in time he deserted the Chinese and became a councillor of Pu Yi, the puppet-ruler of Japanese Manchukuo.

By 1926 he had returned to China and had become a Buddhist priest, taking the name of Chao Kung. In 1932 he attempted to return to Europe as a Buddhist missionary to the West, but it was so generally suspected that he was up to his old spying games that he was not allowed to remain anywhere, and he was forced to return to China. He last was heard of some years ago when he wanted to cross Canada to go to the hanging of one of his sons in England; he was not permitted to do so. He is reported to have died during an abdominal operation.

Lincoln was undoubtedly a man of many remarkable talents, but he had no capacity for keeping faith with anyone. His religious aspirations appear to have been quite genuine; he was an odd combination of mystic and crook. Whether he is really dead or not it is impossible to say. The Japanese reported his demise, so it is not impossible that he may yet turn up as a Japanese agent.

Children And The War

Serious concern has been felt in many quarters about the effect of the war on the children of Europe. It is one of the commonplaces of our modern civilization that children should be protected as much as possible against distressing experiences which may warp their outlook on life. What, we have wondered, is the effect on children of bombing raids, dislocation of family life, and news of destruction?

An answer to some of our questions comes in a report which has recently been published by Anna Freud—daughter of the great Sigmund Freud—and Dorothy Tiffany Burlingham, who have been running three nurseries in London for children who have been seriously unsettled by the war, and particularly by bombing. In describing their work, and in telling about the serious cases they have dealt with, these psychologists say some very interesting things about the nature of children in general. It is a mistake, they say, to imagine that violence and destruction are horrifying to small children; on the contrary, many of them enjoy loud noises, fires, and buildings tumbling down. They are themselves aggressive in their play, and the spectacle of the great aggression of war—which of course they understand only in part—is positively stimulating to them.

An interesting part of the report by Misses Freud and Burlington is that which tells about the attitude of the children to Hitler. They may have little idea of who or what he really is; in their scheme of things he is simply another form of the Devil. They seldom talk about the British fighting the Germans; they prefer to talk about God fighting Hitler. Some of their speculations are original; one little girl is reported as saying, "Could God get wicked one day? Wouldn't it be funny if God would get wicked and Hitler good?" But there is nothing original about the six-year-old who asked: "Why did God make them nasty Germans?" Many of his elders have wondered that.

The conclusions of these two experts on the welfare of children in wartime are both unexpected and comforting. Children, they believe, suffer less than adults from disturbances in daily life and misfortune, for their minds are more adaptable and they enjoy any sort of novelty. But those who have been seriously injured, or have suffered from mental shock must be counted among the most pitiable victims of the war.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A Los Angeles man wants a divorce because his wife telephones him at his work as many as 36 times in a day. Well, he gave her the first ring, didn't he?

"Urges C.C.F. to Adopt Battle Banner", says a headline. What about a piece of pie attractively displayed on a sky-blue background?

"It's time to be thinking of snow-filled streets", says the Ottawa Journal. Just a minute till we rake up the leaves, will you?

"The farmer", says a contemporary, "is at the mercy of the government, the weather man and the middle man". And the hired man, remarks the Ottawa Citizen.

Britain wants to give Canada two cruisers and between two and six destroyers, but Canada insists on paying for them. Could relations within the Empire be more cosy? We think not.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

AS I write this the land seems to be shouting 'How dry I am!" I drove on October 8 to London, and on the day following almost to Sarnia and only saw one team and one tractor ploughing. It simply couldn't be done. Where power enough was used to draw the plough, broken shears was the result, and it was impossible to keep a plough in the ground, and where it was run under the ordinary depth the result was to heave out blocks like cement. It will take some soaking rains to make any kind of good ploughing possible, and conditions as I write are growing worse.

Milk supplies are falling off in Western Ontario and farmers are loath to feed out my ensilage as the supply is short. Near Parkhill Canadian blue grass, which is indigenous to that district, is showing some green fodder, and where there is a good catch of clover the cattle can eat, but milk production is suffering greatly. Eggs also seem to be scarce. A good clover field makes fine food for pullets this time of year, but every day makes the fields drier, and grain for poultry is dear and difficult to get. This is a trying year for farmers and only the most forehanded are keeping their end up. All animals that need grain will be hard to winter.

I WALKED over a field with a farmer south of London about twenty-five miles. It was ploughed out of sod in July, and is now getting green with quack grass. He said he was going to plough it quite shallow this fall, let it lie over winter with as many of the roots up as possible, plough it deep in the spring and plant it to corn. He said he had cleaned quack out rather effectively by this method on a farm or two that he had bought and that he hoped to make a clean sweep of this, and the field was pretty thoroughly infested. While it is difficult to find good crops in Ontario this year, where weeds were plentiful there is just no crop at all.

ON a farm of 132 acres which he bought last spring, Wilson Mills, M.P., of Sparta, has put down 35,000 tile, one mile of which is in one 20 acre field. These tile are mostly 5 inch, 7 inch and 9 inch with a 12 inch outlet. At the lowest place he has provided an open ditch to take off the surplus water which would take too long to soak down to the tile. The cost of these drains will amount to a little over $1,000 but one has only to look over the fields to see what this drainage will add to the value of the farm, and if the money had to be borrowed, its expenditure in this way would yield good dividends. Permanent improvement of farm lands in this fashion adds to the value of farming to the nation's business and enables farmers to reap better results from their labours. This has been a year in which farmers cannot help but be impressed with the value of drainage.

IT looks as though the pig population of Ontario is going to be sorely depleted. One hears reports everywhere of brood sows being sent to market which can only mean one thing, when bacon is most needed Ontario is going to fall short of her quota. This is a provincial condition, and by the end of June it was quite evident to every member of the legislature and of the Provincial Government what was going to happen but not a single thing has been done. We had a Provincial Government which was doing some boasting about providing buildings for Canada's war effort but never thought of doing something really effective about bacon for the fighting forces. A little bonus was paid on pigs, but not enough to be worth mentioning. Buildings can be temporarily provided, but food is another and vital thing. The legislature met and not a single member suggested or demanded that anything should be done. Heavy shipments of oats and barley from the west, early in the summer, would have made it possible for Ontario farmers to do their full share in this matter of food. There was a provincial election held but nobody had a food policy for the war, that just didn't seem to matter.

There was a change of government and instead of taking hold of urgent problems like this, the government called a special meeting in the busiest time for farmers and established a commission to "find the facts" and tell them what to do. This commission or committee is to report "later." What about the present needs? Farmers are marketing their sows, pig production, one of our important farming efforts during this war is being greatly reduced and nothing is done.

What is needed? Feed at a convenient place for distribution at a fair price. If the Department of Agriculture had been on its job the situation could have been saved. We have a Live Stock Director and two assistants in Ontario. These are capable men; all they needed was to be informed that they had three to five million dollars to buy feed with at once and get it to Ontario. I remember how in one winter one million dollars worth of hay was bought in Ontario and Quebec, shipped to Alberta, and the cattle of that province were saved and the farmers there paid for the hay, almost all in cash.

When a farmer goes out to buy pig feed he doesn't think in terms of car loads. He mostly thinks of a load his trailer will carry home. He wants to know where he can get the feed and the price. He could have been supplied in every Ontario county under the direction of the District Agricultural Representative. The machinery was in the Department of Agriculture of the province to do the work and do it well; all that was needed was a head who knew that the war was not going to halt because pig feed was short in this province until he made up his mind to act. No part of this war could be successfully carried on without prompt action. Two governments in Ontario have failed miserably in this pig business. The blame cannot be shifted to a committee appointed to tell the government what to do. Several months have now been lost. We hear a good deal about new copies that are coming but we needed was action and nothing was done, nor is anything yet being done. We are just marking time in a very important feature of our war effort.

Our Complaints

Our forefathers did without sugar until the 13th century, without coal fires until the 14th century, without buttered bread until the 15th century, without potatoes until the 16th, without coffee, tea and soap until the 17th, without pudding until the 18th, without gas, matches and electricity until the 19th, without canned goods until the 20th century, and we have had automobiles for only a few years.... Now, what was it you were complaining about? — OPA Bulletin (Washington).

HOW TO TORTURE YOUR HUSBAND

Winston's Wedding Day

(LONDON SUNDAY CHRONICLE)

Mr. and Mrs. Winston Churchill were married in St. Margaret's Westminster on September 12, 1908. On the 35th anniversary of the marriage Mr. A. T. Davies recalled the event in this article written for the London Sunday Chronicle.

"THE bride, a slim, dignified figure in white ivory satin, with flowing veil of soft white tulle, passed slowly up the centre aisle, preceded by the choir.

"She carried a bouquet of white tuber roses and a prayer-book bound in white kid."

Thus the Times reporter described the scene in St. Margaret's.

The occasion was the wedding of Winston Churchill, President of the Board of Trade, and Miss Clementine Hozier, daughter of Sir H. M. Hozier, K.C.B., and Lady Blanche Hozier.

I read out more details of the colourful ceremony and my mother sighed, all sentiment and nostalgia: even my Land Army sister, all horse-sense and utility, looked down at her corduroy breeches with distaste when I came to the description of the bridesmaid's dress, the pointe de Venise lace trimming on Miss Hozier's dress, and her coronet of orange blossoms.

But I'm an unromantic fellow, unromantic and mercenary, I fear. It was the column-and-a-bit long catalogue of wedding presents that engrossed me, and, in my irreverence, I could almost hear the bride whisper to the groom at the chancel steps, "Ink-pots, more and more ink-pots!"

The King's gift to Mr. Churchill headed the list—a magnificent gold-mounted Malacca cane, bearing the Marlborough arms and the inscription:

"To Mr. Winston Churchill on the occasion of his marriage. With best wishes. — EDWARD R. AND I."

Then from
The Earl of Rosebery
—a silver inkstand.
Earl Spencer
—a silver inkstand.
Sir Algernon West
—a silver inkstand.
Lord Armistead
—a silver inkstand.

INKSTANDS—

Cigarette and cigar boxes featured prominently in the list and two of them in particular must have given Mr. Churchill great joy.

The first was the gift of the Liberal Whips, a large silver cigar box, the lid engraved with the facsimile autographs of the donors. The other was a cigarette box, the joint gift of the Duke of Wellington, Lord Nelson, and the Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour.

But to continue
Countess Cowper
—a silver inkstand.
Sir William Garstin
—a silver inkstand.
The Hon. Mrs. Keppel
—a silver inkstand.
Lord James of Hereford
—a silver inkstand.

—AND MORE INKSTANDS

Miss Hozier, of course, had her personal list, and a scintillating one it was. Star sapphire and diamond links from her mother, Lady Blanche Hozier, diamond and ruby brooches from Mr. Alfred Rothschild and Mr. and Mrs. Leopold de Rothschild, a large diamond star for the hair from the Duke of Marlborough.

And from Viscount Helmsley
—a silver inkstand.
The Marquess of Salisbury
—a silver inkstand.
Miss Norah Satow
—a silver inkstand.
Earl Clanwilliam
—a silver inkstand.

MALTA'S GIFT

There were numerous gifts from public bodies, among them being the Liberal Association in Dundee—then Mr. Churchill's constituency—and the British Cotton Growing Association.

Malta, too, was in the list. Through its Chamber of Commerce the G.C. island sent a silver model of a Maltese cutter in full sail.

And so to the final chorus:
Mr. Austen Chamberlain
—an inkstand.
Lord Lucas
—A Buhl inkstand
Miss Mary Moncrieff
—a china inkstand.
Sir Joseph Leese
—a glass and silver inkstand.
Mr. Robert Harcourt
—an inkstand with watch and calendar.

Oh, Mary, Mary!

Press photographs in which the prime minister's daughter appeared tunicless at Niagara seem likely to cause trouble for somebody. It appears that officers of the A.T.S. are not permitted to discard their tunics in warm weather, and that this has been something of a grievance. So a correspondent infers from an overheard conversation, in the course of which an A.T.S. officer not wearing tunic was being chaffed by a fellow-officer correctly attired. "I say," said she of the tunic, "you know you oughtn't to be going about like that; someone will drop on you if you get noticed." The reply came tartly enough: "I'm jolly well hoping that someone will drop on me; I've got that photograph of Mary Churchill in Canada to show them. I wonder what they'll say to that?"—Manchester Guardian.

Will Franco Be Next To Go?

Radio Falange at Vallabolid, official voice of Spain's tinpot Fascism, speaks glumly of "hostile manoeuvres" against the "Caudillo" whom Hitler and Mussolini set up in the dictator business seven years ago. Franco, the original Nazi puppet, sees the writing on the wall.

Events have rather passed Franco by, of recent years. Spain was at "peace"—the peace of death—when the rest of Europe fell into the flames the Spanish War had fed. Names like Quisling of Norway, Horthy of Hungary, Laval of France, Mannerheim of Finland have overshadowed those of their predecessors. Franco had become almost, if not quite, as obscure as Czechoslovakia's Henlein or Austria's Seyss-Inquart Obscure, that is, to the outside world. But to the tortured people of Spain, first European victims of Fascism's march, he has remained a grim and ever-present reality. Tyranny is no less onerous because it no longer makes the front page. Now, apparently, Spaniards are beginning to hope again, to fight again. Mussolini, biggest of all the jackal pack, has been toppled from his cardboard throne and has had to scurry to his protector in Berlin. Will Francisco Franco be next?—Montreal Gazette.

Where Ottawa Has Failed

The people of Canada are not turning from the government because they think it is doing too much about the war, or because they resent necessary war restrictions. They are turning from it because they believe that in the most vital of all war needs, the efficient and courageous handling of manpower, the government has failed. All over this country today men of all parties and of none praise the government's general war record, and especially its record with respect to finance. What they can't praise or condone, and what they condemn, is a manpower policy that from first to last, has been bedevilled by politics. That, and that alone, continued bungling and fumbling with manpower, and with never the necessary courage to take the problem by the throat, is what has brought the Liberal party to its present dire straits.—Ottawa Journal.

The absent-minded professor walked into the village barber's shop, sat down in the operating chair, and asked for a haircut.

"Certainly, sir?" said the barber. "Would you mind taking off your hat?"

The professor hurriedly complied.

"I'm sorry," he apologized, "but I didn't know that ladies were present."

A Bible Message

Thou therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also. Thou therefore endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier....

Consider what I say; and the Lord give thee understanding in all things. (II Tim. 2: 1-4, 7.)

I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing (II Tim. 4: 7, 8.)

And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever. (Dan. 12: 3.)

With a note of deep regret in his voice, the earnest social reformer was tackling the village reprobate.

"The last time I met you," he said, "you made me happy because you were sober. Today I am unhappy because you are drunk.

"Yes," replied the bad lad cheerfully, "today's my turn to be happy."

The sergeant was trying to train an awkward squad of recruits.

"Shun!" About turn!" he repeated. Then, as he eyed the mixup hopelessly, he went on: "As you were!"

Most of them shuffled into the last position, but Private Jones stood still, looking vacantly ahead.

"You!" snapped the sergeant. "I said, 'As you were'!"

"I 'eard, sarge," replied Jones unhappily, "but 'ow were I?"

Compulsory Voting Fallacy

The advocates of compulsory voting utterly ignore the fact that voting is both a physical act and an intellectual act. Compulsion can be exercised with respect to the physical act—the making of a choice. And if the intellectual act is muddled, where is the advantage in seeing that the physical act is performed? The voter who can not make a choice and so refrains from voting at least does no harm. The voter who can not make a choice but votes nevertheless, because he has to, adds nothing of value to the election in which he participates, and may do untold damage.—Vancouver Province.

Prisoner Workshop Destroyed By Fire

SHERBROOKE, Que., Oct. 18 — (CP).—Damage to the main workshop at a nearby internment camp today was estimated unofficially at approximately $50,000 following a fire which late yesterday levelled the building and destroyed its contents of machinery, property of the Dominion Government, and a large quantity of dry lumber. No disorders were reported among the German war prisoners interned at the camp.

The shop had been used for the manufacture of boxes and other wood products by the internees. The war prisoners, including Nazi merchant sailors, were removed from the plant to barracks, several hundred feet away, by membbers of the Veterans' Guard.

Pending an official investigation by the Department of National Defence, military officials in charge of the camp refused to make a statement.

When the Victory Loan salesman comes to your door—be ready to help

SPEED THE VICTORY

On four previous occasions Canadians have all worked together to put Canada's four Victory Loans over the top. Last Spring, two and a half million folks from factories, farms and mines, from the Armed Services, offices and homes, came forward and loaned their savings and their earnings to help win the war.

Today, as Winston Churchill has said, the war "is perhaps entering for us British and Americans upon its most severe and costly stage". Today Canada has more forces in the field. Today production from our factories, shipyards, mines and farms is on a scale many times greater than ever before. So Canada asks her people to support the greatest Victory Loan of all.

5,200,000 Canadians are now earning money throughout the Dominion. Each and every loyal Canadian is asked to do his or her part. Teamwork is needed for quick and complete victory. Let us all work together to make this loan a success—to Speed the Victory.

See how easy it is to buy a VICTORY BOND

The Victory Loan salesman will explain all the details about buying Victory Bonds. First, you can buy a Victory Bond out of your savings. Then, you can also buy a second bond out of your future earnings, on the instalment plan. These bonds pay you interest each half year.

It is a sound plan to lay aside money regularly for the future. Victory Bonds help to bring security and happiness for the days to come.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Canada had its first hockey games of the 1943-44 season over the week-end in the form of two work-out encounters in one of which, at Quebec, the Boston Bruins of the N.H.L. limbered up their squad against the Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, the result being an amiable 3-all tie after the Rossmen turned on the pressure in the third period to overtake the Shamateurs. In the other tilt, at Montreal, the Royals turned on the pre-season steam to outscore St. Hyacinthe Navy 7-2.

Ottawa Commandos, Allan Cup holders, produced a small turnout for their first rehearsal of the season Saturday in preparation for the opening of the Quebec loop November 6 when they take on the Quebec Aces at the capital. The practice was featured by the appearance of Wilf Field, with the New York Americans two seasons ago.

In the one game of the Prairies gridiron loop Saturday at Regina, the rough Riders managed to hold off Winnipeg United Services 6-5 despite "near misses" on the part of the visitors to tie up the game all through the second half. Regina qualified, through the win, for the playoffs with Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers.

Chicago Black Hawks announced yesterday at their Minneapolis training camp the signing of Vic Heyliger, hockey mentor at Illinois University, as a part-time coach to assist Head Coach Thompson. Heyliger will be on the bench for games at Chicago and possibly Detroit and Toronto but will travel no farther because of teaching duties.

Favors Schmidt, Colville.

Following the capture of the Canadian lacrosse honors at New Westminster by a stinging 22-6 defeat of Mimico-Brampton Combines, Bill Wilkes, top scorer of the Salmon Bellies, was presented with the Mike Kelley trophy as the most outstanding player of the series.

Charged with using a drug on Moscow 2nd, winner of a race at Belmont Park, October 6, John A. Coburn, veteran trainer, was suspended Saturday by the stewards at Jamaica track, New York, and his case was referred to the Jockey Club for disciplinary measures.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Promoter Frank Tunney has certainly set himself out this week to give Peterborough fans plenty of action on Tuesday night's card at Brock Street Arena for on top of the main bout classic between Gentleman Jack Clayborne and the robust and bad-tempered Katan he has added a clash between the popular Irish Pat Flanagan and Jan Gotch and for good measure has matched Bunny Dunlop with a new grappler in the fast-moving Mike DeMetre of Montreal. The Flanagan-Gotch bout should be a wow in itself. Gotch in his initial appearance here showed that he has all the ingredients with which the badmen of the mat game are made and in addition he can get around that ring in fast time when speed is called for. As Flanagan is a flash himself there should be plenty of lively action in that battle. DeMetre, the Montreal battler, is another speedster in the ring and he hopes to be able to be in so many places at once that the tough Dunlop will not be able to practice any of his usual skulduggery at his expense. Dunlop, however, has been uniformly successful in slowing such opponents down to his own speed and he will do his utmost to treat the Montrealer in similar fashion. As for the main bout it will be a contest between Katan' favorite head and chin locks and general abuse and the speed and deception of the Colored Comet who has won several of his bouts here by producing some new tactics that have bewildered his opponent.

Peterborough wrestling fans have pleasant recollections of Frankie Hart, the Dutch Adonis of the wrestling mat who used to be a head-liner in bouts here a few years ago. Hart, a fast-moving, good-looking ring acrobat, was always the hero when he battled here and his bouts, especially those with Kogut and with Alex Kasaboski, the Renfrew rowdy, are still remembered. Old-time admirers of Frankie will be interested to learn that he is still going strong and is a weekly feature on cards in the Windsor-Detroit sector where they prefer the light heavies to the big fellows in the wrestling game. In that district they claim that the lighter grapplers make the bouts faster and more thrilling than the heavyweights and so smooth workers like Hart receive top billing. As a matter of fact the Dutch grappler is featured on the weekly bill at Windsor tonight meeting a bewhiskered individual named Ivan Kalmilkoff who is better known as the Mad Russian and who has quite a reputation as a bad man. And another wrestler well known here is on the same card in the person of Renee LaBelle who is battling a tough bird who rejoices in the ring title of Gorilla Grubmier. LaBelle has wrestled in Peterborough about as often as Hart, although he has not been seen in action here for some time.

It Can Be An Error

Trying to explain baseball rules for the benefit of the many fans who pay all too little interest to the finer details of the rules is sometimes a dangerous thing. A contemporary sports commentator said in his column the other day that the two runs that resulted out of the wild pitch made by Max Lanier in the first game of the world series were earned because a wild pitch "was not scored as an error." In so far as that particular play was concerned this statement was correct. Lanier's wild pitch on that occasion was not a fielding error. But a wild pitch can be an error and is scored as such if it happens on the third strike and as a result the batter reaches first in safety. Incidentally while on this subject it is true that not many fans are sure of just what a wild pitch is. In the first place of course there is no such thing as a wild pitch unless it sends the batter to first or advances a base-runner. Here is the rule: "A wild pitch is a legally delivered ball, so high, low or wide of the plate that the catcher can not or does not stop it with ordinary effort and as a result the batsman reaches first base or a base-runner advances." Often a ball that gets away from the catcher is a border-line ball, and the scorer has a tough time trying to decide whether he should register a wild pitch or a passed ball. In one particular, however, the rules simplify things. Any pitched ball that strikes the ground before reaching the home plate and passes the catcher, allowing runners to advance, says one section of the rules, shall be scored as a wild pitch.

Three of the smaller secondary schools in the district are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in keeping rugby alive in the Trent Valley section of the Bay of Quinte Cossa group. The three are the Madoc, Tweed and Stirling High Schools who are carrying on this year, despite the fact that Marmora High School, usually an entrant has decided not to operate this season. The others will play home-and-home games, winding up on November 12. There is a possibility that Belleville Collegiate, at present playing six-man rugby, may challenge the Trent Valley winner for the right to continue in the Cossa competition. The Tweed, Stirling and Madoc schools are small and have only a comparatively handful of boys old enough for organized football but they have plenty of enthusiasm and spirit in their school personnel and that explains why they are able to field teams in these troublesome times when bigger schools in larger centres have found it impossible to carry on and have folded up. The Trent Valley youngsters deserve credit for their determination to overcome difficulties and operate as usual.

What This, Bill?

Red Hamill is coaching the Kingston senior hockey team this season yet out comes Bill Walshe, Kingston sports scribe with a paragraph on hockey that starts out with the assertion "There'll be no prima donnas tolerated in Kingston hockey this season." 18th Victory For West

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Oct. 18—(CP)—New Westminster Salmonbellies brought the Canadian championship back to British Columbia Saturday night, taking the Mann Cup away from Mimico-Brampton Combines with a 22-7 victory that gave them the best-of-five playoff series three games to one.

Playing in front of a second-string goalie sent in to replace regular Ed Johnstone after the first period, Salmonbellies forged ahead in the second period and never looked back. Johnstone, apparently off his game, walked off the floor after Mimico had scored four goals, and Walt Lee, who took his place, displayed a masterful defense.

While a home-town crowd of 4,500 cheered itself hoarse, Salmonbellies launched a passing offensive which crumbled the Eastern defence. The fishmen were ahead 9-5 at the half, 14-6 at the end of the third period and held their opponents scoreless while adding eight more in the final frame.

Bill Wilkes was New Westminster's top scorer with five goals, while Salmonbelly Jim Douglas and Combine Bill Brunskill each notched three.

For Mimico it was a sad defeat in a series which began auspiciously for them. A week ago Saturday night they opened their invasion with a 10-9 win which, narrow as it was, seemed to indicate a mastery over the British Columbia challengers.

But they lost the next three games in a row, 10-5 Monday and 17-8 Wednesday, each defeat more decisive as Salmonbellies developed their strategy.

Mimico was handicaped by the loss of their regular goalie, Bert Large, who injured his knee in the first game and spent the rest of the series in hospital.

Added to the injury list last night were Jack Bryan of Mimico, who hurt his legs in the fourth period, and Ed Downey of Salmonbellies, who fell and sprained his ankle in the same period after being struck on the head by Rocky Rock of the Eastern team.

Mimico appeared away to a good start Saturday toward their goal of tying the series at two games apiece as they found the key to Johnstone's defense and scored on four of their five attempts in the first period. But with Lee in the net it was a different story and the former Vancouver Burrard goalie stood off a barrage of shots in the second period like a stone wall.

As the Mimico assault foundered on his sure ball-handling the Salmonbelly attack went into high gear in a series of dazzling passing forays.

Salmonbellies' top scorer, Bill Wilkes, was honored after the game with presentation of the Mike Kelley trophy for the most outstanding player in the Mann Cup series. Bert Large of Mimico won it last year.

This is the 18th time in 33 years of competition the Mann Cup has come to British Columbia, and its generally been a New Westminster team which held it. The trophy has spent more consecutive years in the Fraser River city than anywhere else—from 1915 to 1917 and from 1920 to 1925. New Westminster Adanacs in 1939 were the last British Columbia winners, St. Catharines Athletics taking it the next two years and Mimico last year.

Thumbs Up Wins

BALTIMORE—(AP).— In muddy going Thumbs Up raced to an easy victory Saturday in the 32nd running of the Havre De Grace handicap at Pimlico. Shut Out, the pre-race favorite, was withdrawn and his stablemate, Famous Victory, could do no better than third.

Gracie Fields, famous English comedienne-songstress, joins an aggregation of celebrities of screen, stage and radio in Sol Lesser's magnificent production, "Stage Door Canteen," which opens at the Capitol Theatre on Monday, through United Artists release.

WILDCATS, HURRICANES SCORE 5th WINS IN SENIOR RUGBY GAMES

Fliers Defeat Indians 19-1; Stukus Departs

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sgt. Fred Kijek of Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes is improving so steadily he should be a fair footballer by the time he is 50 or so. Come to think of it, he's no slouch now.

Before a crowd of 3,000 at Varsity Stadium, Kijek demonstrated Saturday that the age of kickers like Bob Isbister, Bummer Stirling, Frank Turville and Hawley(Huck) Welch is not entirely dead by booming a wet pigskin for an average of 50 yards a kick. One of his hoists, driven against the wind from five yards behind his own line, spiralled 55 yards in the air and bounced 15 more. Another, windblown this time, travelled 76 yards.

Kijek played the full 60 minutes, tackled fiercely and scored the final touchdown as Hurricanes slammed Toronto Indians 19-1 for their fifth straight victory. At Ottawa, Hamilton Flying Wildcats kept pace with Hurricanes atop the Ontario Rugby Football Union standings by thumping Combines 24-0.

Red Heron Plays

Kijek kicked three Air Force points in the first quarter, clustered around a seven-yard touchdown drive by FO. Jack Alexander and a convert from placement by Sgt. Charlie Prince. LAC. Robert (Red) Heron, alternating with Prince at quarter in the absence of PO. Bill Stukus, made it 14-0 in the second quarter by whipping a crossfield pass which LAC. Doug Henry caught cleverly and carried 30 yards for a major score. Stukus left yesterday for Halifax and will not be available to Hurricanes again this season.

Indians mustered their best variety of football in the third quarter and gained a lone point when Doug Paul grassed Prince on Norm Dyce's kick, but two minutes from the end Dyce bobbled on third down, enabling Huricanes to send Kijek across for a touchdown Heron failed to convert.

At Ottawa Wildcats made only two first downs compared with eight for Ottawa but they clicked on eight of 18 passes and played alert football. Touchdowns went to Jimmy Smith, Walter Gibb, Boots Brown and Joseph (Red) Hickey, a placement to Gibb and a rouge to Doug Smith.

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—(CP).—Innovations in 1943-44 rules of the N.H.L. (Nursery Hockey League):

Diapers shall not be changed during play;

Intervals for feeding shall be allowed every hour on the hour;

Parents shall not be allowed in the players' box but, after the game, may wait for players at the dressing room door.

Before a player is permitted on the ice, he must prove to the referee's satisfaction that he has attended school regularly during the week and that his homework is up to date. (In this respect selection of referees with ability to read is recommended.)

Games shall end with the 10 p.m. curfew;

No contests shall be scheduled on Saturday night (bath night).

Irvin On a Limb.

Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens went right out on a limb when he told Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson: "I predict this will be the season in which old faithful Charlie Sands will get his 100th goal in the National League." Sands started in the N.H.L. 11 years ago. He had 96 goals when he started last season. He'll start this one at right wing for Canadiens with 99. He should make it.

Incidentally:

Commenting on the Toronto newspaper piece stating the Quebec Football Union is throwing its $250 affiliation fee away is challenging for a place in the Canadian Rugby Union play-offs, Harold (Montreal Star) Atkins writes: "The boys around this way have their dander up."....Long-time star athlete of Regina and Lethbridge, Alta., Andy Young is moving to New Westminster, B.C., and is likely to be in goal with the Airlines hockey team there this winter.... Buster Mills, former Holy Cross catcher who played with Port Colborne Vics in the Niagara Baseball League this year, reports he has been signed by Philadelphia Athletics for delivery next spring. Johnny Lake is the 250-pound star of R. Threfall's Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers this year but when Johnny broke in three years ago Threfall couldn't see him as a football player. Joe (Russell the Voice) Ryan kept plugging for Lake and now Joe's foresight is paying off.

The high-scoring Chelsea moved into a tie for second place by trouncing Luton 6-0.

5 Top Rookies Seek Berths With Red Wings

By The Canadian Press

One of the five rookie prospects who look like money in the bank to Detroit Red Wings is Frank (Red) Kane, who will be 20 in January. Kane, a centre, played hockey and rugby in Woodstock, Brampton and Falconbridge, Ont. He lives in Stratford, during the off-season and his family lives in Toronto.

The other four outstanding Red Wing prospects are Frank Bennett, 21-year-old defenceman from Oshawa's Junior Generals, who has been moved to centre on a line with Adam Brown and Joe Carveth; and three graduates of the Michigan-Ontario League—centre Tony Butkovich, left wing Bernie Ruelle and defenceman Rudy Zunich.

Wants Forsey

Coach Happy Day of Toronto Maple Leafs is awaiting further word from Calgary about the military status of Jack Forsey, the forward Leafs shuttled back and forth between Toronto and Providence last season. Forsey says he's still "in the dark" about his military rating.

Tommy Dewar, 32-year-old defenceman formerly with Calgary Stampeders, will join New York Rangers at practices at Winnipeg today. He has been rejected by the army.

Comes training time, comes a cold for Boss Lester Patrick of Rangers. "Doctors told me two years ago that if I had my tonsils out I would be a new man...that didn't help...I can't rid myself of the cold I got three weeks ago." The cold now has turned to Laryngitis.

Montreal Canadiens won't start drills at their St. Hyacinthe, Que., camp until Tuesday or Wednesday. Chicago Black Hawks have experienced difficulty forming a team this early because of the draft question but expect to hit the ice sometime this week.

Leafs' Rookie.

George Boothman of Calgary is the Leafs' Joe Rookie. When Day told him to be careful because no contract had been signed, Boothman replied: "Don't you forget, either, when we start talking terms." Veterans of the Leaf camp call Barry Sullivan of Preston, Ont., "Tyrone" because of his dark good looks.

Red Wings will play a three-game series against Cleveland Barons of the American League, playing at Detroit Tuesday and Thursday and at Cleveland next Saturday. The following day Wings will play Indianapolis Capitols at Detroit, with a return engagement scheduled for Toledo Oct. 27.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—Anyone know what became of that baseball Bill Dickey slammed out of Sportsman's Park to make it game, set and match for the Yankees in the world series? If it can be found Alfred McVay of Walla, Walla, Wash., noting the interest shown there in a couple of balls autographed by the Yanks and Cards, suggests that it would be a swell idea to get Dickey's signature on the trophy and then send it on a tour of Army and Navy posts throughout the world.

Penn State actually has a football player who doubles in brass. Howard Fugate, freshman end, plays the clarinet in the band at all events except football games.

Headline and Headaches

Mike Jacobs makes his debut as New Jersey dairy farmer. No doubt he's planning to produce a new crop of championship cheese for New York.

No Words Wasted

Bill Johnson, the Yankees' rookie third sacker, claims that the day training began last spring Manager Joe McCarthy said: "You're Johnson, I suppose. Let me see you strut your stuff at third base." The next time Skipper Joe spoke to Bill was after Johnson hit that triple with the bases full in the third game of the world series. As he entered the dugout, McCarthy grunted: "Nice going, kid."

Bob Davidson Leaf Captain

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 18.—(CP).—Everlasting plugging has been the main factor in the hockey success of Bob Davidson, who has been named captain of the Toronto Maple Leafs for the 1943-44 season.

The 185-pound left winger with the engaging smile has never broken any scoring records or won any hockey awards but to the Toronto board of strategy he is one of the most valuable player in the Maple Leaf family.

Davidson, 31, signed with the Leafs in 1933-34 and after spending parts of two seasons with the Syracuse Chiefs in the International League moved up to National Hockey League company to stay.

Born in Toronto, Bob launched his hockey career as a goaltender with Frankland Public school team in East Toronto.

He believes that last season was the best he's had as a hockey player. He scored 13 goals and had 23 assists for 26 points and spent 20 minutes in the penalty box. His play-off record was one goal and two assists for three points. His total for the season compared with six goals and 20 assists for 26 points in the 1941-42 season.

McNaughton Asks For Aid In Fifth Loan

TORONTO, Oct. 18. — Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Commander of the Canadian Army Overseas, called on Canadians, in a broadcast message on the eve of Canada's Fifth Victory Loan, to help 'end the war in triumph for justice and right" that Canadians in the armed forces may return home soon.

"Four years ago the Army, Navy and Air Force totalled in all only some few thousand—nothing but a nucleus for our defence," he said. "You have taken that bare nucleus and out of it and around it have built our military strength until to-day it stands 500,000 strong. You have organized, trained, equipped, and sent overseas an army of nearly a quarter of a million men and women. You have provided an almost like number in the Air Force and have given air training to many more from the United Kingdom and other Dominions. You have developed our Navy from its pre-war tiny size until to-day we have half a thousand war craft sailing under our own flag on all the oceans of the world.

"But, great as are these fighting forces, they are in themselves only a fraction of your total war effort. You have done these things, but you have done more.

Gen. McNaughton spoke of contributions to victory from Canadian farms, from forests and mines, factories and laboratories. He said all these things had been accomplished by Canadians unaided from without, with no lease-lend help.

"And on top of all this," he said, "you have found it possible out of your determination and abundance to provide one billion dollars as an outright gift to Britain, and find still another billion to provide mutual aid to other Allies."

The Canadian Commander-in-Chief said it was to protect this 'tremendous" investment to speed the victory, that the Fifth Victory Loan campaign is opening to-day—a campaign "as important as any we will fight with battles."

Thief Robs Box For Overseas

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 18 — (ENS).— I.O.D.E. has a nominee for the title of "meanest thief." It is the person who filched a package of cigarets and gum from an overseas Christmas parcel that they had placed on exhibit at the fall fair here.

According to a report made by Mrs. J. D. McEachearn at the meeting Thursday evening, before being placed on exhibit the parcel had been carefully wrapped in cellophane and the thief had to break this open in order to get at the contents inside.

During the business of the evening for which the Regent Miss Eleanor Ferris presided, further arrangements for the sending of Christmas parcels, were made and a number of suggestions came from the War Convener, Mrs. H. T. Scott. The branch also made final plans for their tag day to provide money for their war services fund, on Saturday. It was decided the I.O.D.E. would follow their practice of former years in offering their services to the Legion for their Poppy Day next month.

Approximately fifty ditty bags will be packed for overseas shipment and a committee comprising, Mrs. W. A. Kingston, Mrs. J. M. Ferris, Mrs. W. Nelson, Mrs. J. O. Benor and Mrs. W. Ward was appointed to take charge of this work which is to be completed by November 1. The Empire study feature of the evening was given by Miss Hazel Atkinson and took the form of a talk on "Burma".

FRED ELEAZER YOUMANS

HAVELOCK, Oct. 18—(ENS)—Relatives and friends here were shocked to hear of the sudden passing of Fred Eleazear Youmans at Riverside Hospital, California, in his 54th year.

The late Mr. Youmans was born in Belmont township July 7, 1889, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eleazear Youmans, and received his education at Rockdale and Havelock. When quite a young man he went to the United States and joined the navy, in which he served for over 10 years, later taking up construction work.

It was at construction work that he earned his fame, and was superintendent of the Dravo Construction Co. at Valverde. In 1935, he successfully engineered the construction of the Valverde aqueduct, along the Colorado River, where it was necessary to shoot a 7,850-foot tunnel.

In 1918, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Stevens of New York state, who is left to mourn him, together with his aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eleazar Youmans, Havelock; four sister and two brothers, Mrs. T. Henderson of Havelock, Mrs. F. Sopha of Belmont, Mrs. W. Akins, Havelock, Mrs. Jack Ronald of Ajax; Daniel of Niagara Falls and Judson of Havelock.

Mr. Youmans was a life member of St. Andrew's No. 435 A.F.A.M., Havelock and a life member of the Black Preceptory Order, Norwood. Funeral services were conducted Saturday from the Riverside funeral parlors with interment at Riverside cemetery, California, U.S.A.

Col. S. F. Smith Architect Dies In Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 18—Prominent in military circles and well known as an architect, Col. Sandford Fleming Smith, D.S.O., died yesterday at his home, "Tree Tops," Riverview Dr., in his 70th year. He had been ill for more than a year.

Col. Smith was mentioned in despatches several times and was awarded the D.S.O.

On his return to Canada he resumed command of the Governor-General's Body Guard and shortly after was given command of the 1st Mounted Brigade, retiring in 1934.

Col. Smith continued his practice as an architect in Toronto until his illness. He was a well known huntsman and an active member of the Toronto Hunt Club. He was a Rotarian and a member of Ashlar Lodge, A.F. & A.M.

The gravity of the German position inside the Dnieper loop also was indicated in Berlin broadcasts which spoke of a "fluctuating battle" and of the foe's "numerical superiority."

A. Wander Co. Goes Over Top

Agricultural Committee Is Active In Great Britain

By PROF. JAMES A. ROY

(Editor's Note: Following is the 17th in a series of articles written for The Examiner by Prof. James A. Roy, of Queen's University, Kingston, on wartime conditions in Britain.)

I went to Montgomeryshire in Wales, partly because this country has made an especially noteworthy contribution, so far as production is concerned, to the war effort. In fact its effort is little, if any, short of 100 per cent. This may be attributed in the first instance to the goodwill of the farmer, his family, and his workers, and secondly to the organization and assistance provided by the War Agricultural Executive Committee whose staff, now considerable in numbers, with technical and other advisers, have at all times been ready to help in any possible way.

One of the most experienced agriculturalists in Wales told me that he never could have believed at the commencement of the war that is was possible to bring production to such a peak of success on what was only looked upon as moderate pastures of grazing value round the 10s to 15s per acre annual rental and also bracken and heather covered hills and sheep walks which were rented at the half-crown an acre figure and less

The secret of success lay in:—(a) mechanization of farm equipment; (b) financial assistance by the Government by way of subsidy, which reduced the cost of fertilizers (lime in particular) in which most of the land was deficient and guaranteed and subsidized prices for products, including livestock and cereals, potatoes, milk and other important commodities.

I saw hundreds of acres of this type of land which is now producing wheat, oats and barley with yields around the 20 cwt. to the acre, more in some cases and a little less in others. The sheep walks are growing from six to eight tons of potatoes to the acre. One of the most remarkable things about this land is that most of it is 1,000 feet above sea level and in many cases considerably more.

Corn and forage crops are worked in rotation on these mountains. The job of making this land fit for production seemed at first almost impossible, but big ploughs, "Prairie Busters" as they are called in Wales, with a caterpillar tractor in front, soon showed the possibility of getting good results. It has been found best to let this reclaimed land after the first operation for one year, during which with a liberal liming, a sheep forage crop was tried the first year.

Then the potato crop came and wonderful results were achieved. One feature of the crop is that grown under these conditions, the seed is easily as satisfactory as any from Scotland. It can also be bought for less money for local grocers to use.

Much of the credit for the amazing triumph of food production must go not only to the key men but to the numerous women workers as well.

Committee Active

It was only after it had put its own house in order by proving that low production was not the fault of the land but the way it was handled that the War Agricultural Committee began to advise agriculturalists for the best. There was always the large majority of farmers who farmed their land well when there was no profit to result from their efforts, owing to the neglectful policy of governments towards this important industry; but again there was the man who had got into the old groove of a few cattle and sheep and was loth to change his methods and even grow sufficient cereals to maintain his herd. These people had to be dealt with. Those who were ready to obey orders as to production of crops carried on and improved their methods to their own and their country's benefit. Others who would not or could not do so had to quit their holdings, as I have already mentioned, and the farms were re-let to the suitable tenants or farmed by the War Agricultural Committee.

I am assured that production has increased so much and the standard of farming has improved so much that little more can be done. Maintenance to the present standard is what is required It will be a real tragedy, but there seems to be a danger of its happening, if the newly cultivated land should fall out of cultivation and the country relapse into the state of neglectit was in before the war.

New pastures have been one of the revelations of this war. Sheep walks have been ploughed over with almost unbelievable results. Dairy farms have been able to maintain their milking herds and increase production by sending young stock out on these new pastures of what was once derelict land as, owing to the plough-up policy, the grazing area is much reduced on the farm. Five thousand acres of this type of land have been taken over by the County War Agricultural Executive.

With regard to milk production, this line of farming was already well established in the country before war commenced, but has been increased very considerably since. A good commercial non-pedigree dairy cow with fair milk yield will easily fetch over £100.

While the farmer has assured prices he has two difficult problems to solve. The first is labor shortage. Many farm workers belonged to territorial regiments at the commencement of hostilities. These went and large numbers went later. Girls and women have replaced the men in many cases, but with production doubled and more, the team is really too weak to deal with the output. This year there is a record harvest and, as I have al-

Young Children Hold Bazaar For War Victims

On more than one occasion in recent times, the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund has reported the work of children raising money, the remarkable feature of which has been the number of very young folk who participated, for the most part all of whom were of quite tender years, very few indeed having gotten as far as the first teen age group.

Recently a group who all come into this class held a bazaar on McGill street, from which the sum of $6.27 is included in today's list of receipts.

This group comprised Marjorie, Velma and John Adamson, Margaret, Walter and Marie Woodhouse and Ann Arnott, who all live in the immediate vicinity of where the event was held at the Adamson home on McGill street. This gives another boost to the work of children in the south-end of the city, which has fully held up its own end in helping along the work of this fund in its sympathetic task of giving aid to those who have lost their homes through air raids over Britain.

Horticultural Society Helps

For the second time in quite a short while, the Peterborough Horticultural Society has sent in money through W. C. Wilks, their secretary, this time the amount being $5.95, which was raised through a collection taken at the annual distribution of prizes won in the lawn and garden competitions which was held recently.

A letter accompanying this further gift spoke of the hope of a further donation in the near future, and wished the fund every success.

One contribution listed under the name "Found" might imply that it was picked up on the street or elsewhere, but that is not the case this time, for there was a story of a traveller who was late in making his rounds, and the payment of an account which had been lost considered lost that came into the picture.

A nice personal gift of $19 is also inluded in today's list as coming from Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Boorman, who have given similar help to the fund on former occasions.

A Prize Portsmouth Doll

Mrs. Elcome, living on Hunter street, has relatives living in the much devastated city of Portsmouth in England, and from a niece, aged 12, in that place, has received a doll which took first prize in a competition held in Langstone Girls' School there.

This contest was for the whole district, and the doll, which represents a British airman, does high credit to the knitting of Frances Franklin, for it is really a work of art in its own line. In England, raffles are held on these dolls, the funds for which have been going towards parcels for prisoners of war, but this one in particular will be used as a prize for a draw, from which the returns will come to this fund, and no one can gainsay what more appropriate use could be made of it, for this one place has received its full share of enemy bombing raids over Britain.

Tickets for this prize are only 10 cents or three for 25c, which can be procured from Mrs. Elcome and other friends who are giving a helping hand. The draw will be made so that the money be included in the special Christmas donation.

A little black furred animal with white stripes on its back ambled around the Alparka precincts Sunday night in the full spirit of freedom as pledged in the Atlantic charter. Whence it came no one knew, but it was first seen wandering along the south siding of the C.G.E. plant close to the Alparka corner. It walked the ties all the way up to the Genelco plant when it was noticed by several guards at the far gate. One of them, probably on his rounds any way, ducked into the factory, but another heading easterly turned the intruder back and tossed stones after it. It humped along retracing its steps to the Alparka neighborhood, emerged into the street, casually mooched around the corner for a few minutes and then vanished down Jackson avenue. Apparently he was a long way from home.—T.

Apple Day Brings Highest Amount In Scout Annals

Gross receipts of the Scouts and Cubs apple day appeal to the public were $988.39, the largest community contribution in the records of the local Scouts Association. At the same time the weather was never more unfavorable. The departure of the sunshine and the arrival of the rain probably cost the Scouts a couple of hundred dollars. However, the directors are exceedingly grateful to the people for their splendid support.

"The local association recently erected a Scout hut on their grounds at Nassau," W. G. Shiner, secretary of the Association informed the Examiner today. "This building is 40 feet by 16 feet. Cost of material has been met out of Apple Day receipts of previous years. The labor required in the erection which may be roughly estimated at $700 in value was given free by the members of the executive, Scout leaders and Scouts. Not one cent has been paid out for labor.

Make Additions

The generosity of the citizens last Saturday will enable us next year to make additions to the building, put in bunks, etc., and provide a real camp for the Cubs and Scouts who will camp there overnight or on week-ends. The camp is ideally situated on the Otonabee River, north of Nassau."

Mr. Shiner also wished to express appreciation to the merchants for permitting display of cards in their windows, also for friends who opened their homes to the boys during the day as local headquarters for the distribution of apples among the young salesmen, and finally and also on behalf of the Association Mr. Shiner requested the Examiner to mention specially the co-operation of Chief Gimblett and the members of the Fire Department for the use of the fire hall throughout the day as central headquarters.

Steering Gear Causes Accident

Damage estimated at more than $200 was done in a collision between two cars near the corner of Simcoe and Reid streets on Saturday.

Vernon Kennedy, 207 Dublin street was driving south on Reid street and near the intersection of Simcoe street his car and another north-bound automobile driven by Joseph Quigley met in collision, after the Quigley car, according to Kennedy, had swerved to the west side of the street.

Quigley told police afterward that the steering-gear of his car had apparently failed to work and his machine had skidded on the wet road, made more slippery by fallen leaves.

The damage to Quigley's car was estimated at around $85 and the Kennedy's automobile was damaged to the extent of $100 or $125.

Workers Speed Up Drive In Victory Loan

Employees of A. Wander Limited, manufacturers of Ovaltine, passed their Fifth Victory Loan objective this morning, first industrial group in the city to roll over their quota even with an incomplete canvass.

That was the stimulating news reaching George street headquarters shortly after the new Loan was officially under way.

A telephone message from G. W. Langhorne of the Ovaltine staff said briefly: "We're well over the top; all the employees have not yet been interviewed."

Ovaltine quota was $6,000 and it has already been substantially exceeded, and the canvass is proceeding with the purpose of winding up the job as soon as possible.

"Speed" Is Feature.

Peterborough industries were obviously accepting and endorsing literally the Fifth Victory Loan slogan, "Speed the Victory," and if the Monday morning prospects are an indication of what the city's factory employees are going to do in this financing campaign many of them are likely to complete their subscriptions within the first week.

Meetings were in progress throughtout the morning and afternoon in the spirit shown by the employees of C.G.E.-Genelco with their group assembly last Friday.

D. G. H. Melton, general manager of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Limited addressed the employees of that plant in a recess from work at 10 o'clock this morning. Dr. George Easton was the speaker at the Peterborough Canoe Company Friday afternoon and also at the De Laval plant this morning. Mr. Melton also had the speaking engagement with the employees of B. F. Ackerman, Son and Company at 11.30 o'clock this morning.

The Victory Loan meeting at J. J. Turner & Sons was arranged for 1 p.m. to-day, and the employees of Quaker Oats Company were addressed this afternoon by J. G. Wharry. At the big cereal mill the employees met in three sections.

The staff of the Examiner assembled this morning at 9.30 in the news room with H. L. Garner as chairman and Mr. Wharry and G. W. Craw summarizing the need of the Fifth Victory Loan, stressing especially the encouraging fact that the Allied forces had turned from defensive to offensive action with resulting costs which the home front had to face in production and financial support.

No Delay.

Presumably the payroll savings appeal was following the tactic in this Loan of winding up their canvass as soon as possible. Apparently there is going to be no waiting until the Loan campaign period is well under way, and then putting on their burst of effort in the home stretch. All the plants are evidently getting away from the barrier as fast as possible, and this morning's returns were regarded as an earnest of the accomplishment that will be forthcoming earlier than ever along the industrial front.

There may be another consideration of allaying any public notion that headquarters usually "held back" returns until the last phase of the drive to attain Peterborough's objective. The signs today pointed to all-out speed in the "payrolls savings" division right from the start.

Bankers On The Air.

Bankers of the city are joining in the Fifth Victory Loan drive with more direct activity than ever. They have planned a series of radio broadcasts over CHEX from 6.10 to 6.15 o'clock, beginning Tuesday evening with J. E. Keyes, manager of the Bank of Commerce, as the inaugural speaker.

It may be remembered that last spring a special call was sent out to the local banks for extra effort on their part when attainment of Peterborough's objective seemed in doubt. The effect of their co-operation in the last days of that drive brought in an additional volume of subscriptions, especially of idle money in the banks, that clinched the success of Peterborough's quota in the Fourth Loan.

"Speed the Attack" is evidently being adopted locally with a realism that was marshalling group energies for the very first stage of the campaign, in contrast with the gradual mustering of forces and effort in the four preceding campaigns.

36 Canvassers.

The general canvass of the city and county began this morning under the chairmanship of G. S. Matthews, with G. K. Fraser, M.P., directing the county campaign. Eighteen canvassers in the city and a similar number in the townships and villages were chosen to conduct the appeal from street to street and concession to concession.

Peterborough's total objective in this Fifth Victory Loan is $4,600,000 with three weeks to build up this pile of money which the people lend to their country for the financing of war action from week to week through the coming winter.

Training Centre Subscribes $7,000 For Loan

Soldiers now training at C.A. (B) T.C. No. 32 are no sluggards when it comes to doing their best for Victory, as shown by the results of the first few hours of the Victory Loan Campaign, today. By noon, well over $7,000 had been subscribed toward the quota of $21,450.

Lieut. Col. Walter Bapty, who assumed command of this Centre only last Saturday is very enthusiastic about the campaign. "We are not only going to reach our quota but we will go over the top," he stated. "In every Centre that I have been connected with before the quota has been over-subscribed and I don't think this Centre will be any different."

The campaign is being conducted by a committee headed by Major James Turnbull, chairman; Capt. R. L. Ferguson and Capt. A. R. Gould. Every platoon officer in the camp is a canvasser.

Major Turnbull stated this morning that the Camp would not only reach its quota in a few days but would go over the top. This is no idle boast, as indicated by the lineup of soldiers in the Victory Loan Office noon hour and after parade hours.

So far only a few soldiers have been contacted but every soldier in the camp will be personally contacted by Major Turnbull and his competent staff. The soldiers are allowed to purchase their bonds from their pay over a six month period.

The campaign is being handled as a team competition with the companies competing to subscribe the highest amount. Platoons are also competing amongst themselves, each trying to subscribe more than the other.

HaroldChurnside On Hospital Ship

Among the enthusiastic crowd of Canadians who have returned home on the Lady Nelson hospital ship, after being injured in service overseas, is Gnr. Harold Churnside of Bridgenorth, who is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt Mann.

Harold's term of service overseas was rather short, since he arrived there in March of this year. He received his injury during an air raid on England while he was serving as a member of a gun crew. One German plane penetrated the anti aircraft barrage and a bomb caused a tire on his gun to explode with the result that the bones in his nose were broken. His biggest satisfaction about the affair, is that the plane was later brought down by one of the other guns.

His mother is living in England and Gnr. Churnside came to Canada as a boy in his teens. Before enlisting he worked on farms in the vicinity of Bridgenorth.

Her machine left the highway, rolled completely over and came to rest with its wheels in the air, but the driver escaped without injury and the only damage to the car was some broken glass.

Taxi Operator Fights Wartime Charge

John Drummond, taxi operator, pleaded not guilty in police court this morning to a charge of having operated a taxicab at a distance more than fifteen miles from Peterborough.

The charge was laid under the oil control regulations and W. F. Huycke, K.C., prosecuted while T. J. Carley, K.C., was defence counsel.

E. A. Outram, city clerk, was called, to prove that Drummond had a taxi license.

Hugh Davis testified that some time in May he had made a trip to Toronto in Drummond's car at the invitation of the accused. Drummond had gone up on business in connection with some wheels and Davis had also been on business, he said. He had paid Drummond nothing for the trip and no other passengers had been carried. There was no taxi sign on the vehicle, witness said.

James J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, testified to the licenses that had been issued to Drummond.

B. W. McClennan, investigator for the War Time Prices and Trade Board and the statements made by the accused on that occasion were admitted by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., subject to objection by Mr. Carley.

Using Pleasure Gas

McClennan said that when he had asked Drummond why he had used his Buick car to drive to Toronto, accused had stated that he had gone up on business and that he felt that he was entitled to use 120 gallons of gas for his own use if he so desired.

The witness was cross-examined extensively by Mr. Carley particularly as to a list of cars in Drummond's garage that he had made and testified to this morning. The witness in spite of a warning from defence counsel that a mistake might have been made persisted that his list was correct.

The court adjourned for luncheon at this stage.

Dorothy E. Frost Is Bride Of LAC. Ken Rose

St. James' United church, Peterborough, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon, when Dorothy Eleanor, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer R. Frost, Monaghan road, became the bride of LAC. Kenneth Alexander Rose, R.C.A.F., son of Mrs. Rose and the late Mr. W. D. Rose, of Peterborough. Rev. F. W. Craik officiated. Mrs. R. C. Searles, A.T.C.M., presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Ernest Kitney, A.T.C.M., who sang "O Promise Me," and "At Dawning."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her gown of white brocaded chiffon, with tight fitting bodice and sweetheart neckline, fashioned with full skirt and long train. Her long veil held with pointed cap effect and she carried a shower bouquet of Bettertime roses. Her only ornament was a three-strand pearl necklace, gift of the groom.

Miss Joan Pitchford, as maid of honor, was frocked in yellow taffeta, with sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves, while the bridesmaids, Misses Audrey Rose and Muriel Fallen, were similarly gowned in blue and pink taffeta respectively, and carried ring bouquets of chrysanthemums in contrasting tones. THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, October 19

THE LUNAR transits for this day are generally adverse. There is a strong influence for deception, fraud, treachery and other malignant signs. It would be wise to sidestep all conniving entanglements or intrigues. It might be advisable to postpone travel, signing agreements of legal papers, unless under more than usual precaution or deliberation. Social, domestic and affectional matters should go well.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may encounter many deceitful, sinister and tricky experiences during the year unless they use much caution, and avoid all sorts of entangling alliances. Consider travel, contracts, legal or literary writings, before rushing headlong into disaster and regret. A happier state of affairs may be found in domestic, social and romantic fields. Engagement or marriages may be indicated. But move slowly in all affairs.

Elva M. Darling Is Wed To Art Winslow

The marriage was solemnized at Knox United church on Saturday by Rev. H. J. Mahoney of Elva Madeline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Darling, to Arthur Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Winslow. Baskets of white and bronze decorated the church for the occasion and Mr. W. R. Potter presided at the organ. Mr. Victor Coleman sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gracefully attired in blush slipper satin cut on torso lines with sweetheart neckline, long closely fitting sleeves and a very full skirt ending in a train. Her full-length veil of tulle fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Ralph Jopling, who wore pink taffeta, with a matching pink net hat and long pink net gloves and carried white baby 'mums. Miss Phyllis Simpson, as bridesmaid, wore white-brocaded blue organza over taffeta with matching hat and long blue gloves, and carried yellow baby 'mums. Mr. Eric Johnston was best man and the ushers were Ernest Darling, brother of the bride, and Mr. Kenneth Marshall.

A reception was held at the Mayfair Cafe, where the bride's mother received wearing air force blue crepe with brown felt hat and brown accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who received in moss-green wool dress with brown felt hat and brown accessories. Both had corsages of Bettertime roses.

The couple left on a short honeymoon, the bride travelling in light green wool jersey with black accessories and beige coat. They will live at 309 Roger street.

"BETTY'S DRESS LOOKS HALF-WASHED!"

CUFFS, HEMS, EDGES COME BRIGHTER when you wash clothes the Sunlight way. Just touch stubborn spots with Sunlight Soap. This puts an active film of soap in contact with the dirt, and as the clothes are washed Sunlight's "extra-soapiness" quickly loosens even deepest grit and grime.
NO RUBBING NEEDED with Sunlight, either! My, how that saves the clothes! Try Sunlight next washday! See how much brighter and sweeter-smelling clothes come. How even the most soiled spots come out dazzling. Not streaky . . . not "half-washed" looking . . . but BRIGHTER ALL OVER! And see how lovely colors stay, too!

Three Lively Bouts Are Carded

An evening of snappy excitement is scheduled for Peterborough wrestling fans when the grapplers take over on Tuesday night at the Brock Arena. The main bout of course holds the spotlight with Gentleman Jack Clayborne and his bitter rival John Katan geared to a red-hot fighting pitch. Too much irritation and tension have developed over this postponed meeting for anything but the roughest of rough wrestling to result. Katan in particular has let it be known that he intends to go after Clayborne from the opening bell. But Honest John is due for one of the hardest evenings he has ever had to put in. The dusky Clayborne has really got himself into condition for this bout and will enter the ring tomorrow night ready to make the best effort of his great career. Between Katan's bruising "mountin' style" grappling and the Black Tornado's spectacular leaping, the audience are in for one of the best treats of the current season.

Not all the excitement will be in the main bout either. In the match between Jan Gotch and Pat Flanagan smart stylish wrestling by the Irishman will be opposed by the rugged body battering of Gotch.

The fans will also see the debut of Mike Demetre, the flashy Montreal boy, who has recently outgrown the lightheavy ranks and looks to be going place among the big fellows. Mike however has caught himself a tartar in Bunny Dunlop for his first bout here. The bulky Toronto Strongman thinks he is the toughest man in the mat sport and there are times when he just about proves it.

Cat Mothers Turtles

LINDSAY, Oct. 18 (CP).—Mrs. N. Knox of Lindsay thinks cats are pretty shrewd critters. A stray feline camped on her doorstep until it managed to sneak in; then, once in, the cat made straightway to a box containing a pair of pet turtles. Upon these, the perceiving puss proceeded to lavish such motherly affection that she simply couldn't be turned out into the cold again. The cat was adopted in a single strategic move.

Broda Tangle Involves Toronto Army

MONTREAL, Oct. 18 (CP)—The Montreal Gazette in a sports page story on Turk Broda, former National Hockey League goalie, detained in Toronto Stanley Barracks, after being taken from a Montreal-bound train, said today "opinion here, unofficially expressed by army officers, is that the army hockey team in Toronto was behind Broda's apprehension."

The paper said that Broda had earlier been undecided whether to join the army or navy in Toronto or the army in Montreal. He had until Thursday midnight to make up his mind. Finally "he decided to join the army in Montreal. He was on his way to carry out his decision —in company with a Montreal non-commissioned officer — when the mounties picked him up."

The Gazette story continued: "It is said that Broda was taken off the train at the Don station, outside Toronto, and that it was 11.17 p.m. when he was picked up. At that rate he still had 43 minutes before he would be a defaulter.

"Some doubt was expressed in army circles here if a man can be apprehended, taken to army barracks and detained there, without first having been tried in court and found guilty as a defaulter under the National Selective Service Act.

"Army circles here also declare that it is not the habit of the R.C.M.P. to camp on a man's doorstep and wait for him to make up his mind, when and where he is going to enlist . . . and then grab him minutes before his draft expires . . . It is reported that Ottawa may soon probe the movement of hockey players from one district to another after they have received draft notices."

Just a Soldier

TORONTO, Oct. 18 (CP)—RSM. Dick Mansell, manager of the Toronto army team in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association, said last night Walter (Turk) Broda is "just Pte. Walter Broda as far as the army is concerned and will be treated as such."

Mansell was commenting on a sports page story the Montreal Gazette is publishing in its Monday issue saying that "opinion here, unofficially expressed by army officers is that the army hockey team in Toronto was behind Broda's apprehension."

Mansell declined to comment further, beyond saying that the former Toronto Maple Leaf goaltender is stationed at district barracks of Military District Headquarters here pending allocation "to the branch in which he will serve."

In the four U.S. pro football games Sunday, Washington walked over the once-famous Green Bay Packers 35-7, while Chicago Bears trounced the Philadelphia-Pittsburgh Combines 48-21. New York gave Brooklyn a 20-0 kalsomining job and Detroit scored a touchdown to beat Chicago Cardinals 7-0.

Verdun Grads, the only civilian team in the Q.R.F.U. and hence expected to be the outfit to represent Quebec in the C.R.U. playdowns, received a 21-6 touching at the hands of Lachine R.C.A.F. Saturday and slipped from the previous three-way tie for top position. Navy continued in the first-place deadlock with Air Force by licking Army 24-1—the eighth straight loss for the soldiers.

Sign Musial.

National League batting champion of the past season, Outfielder Stan Musial, 23, has been signed to a three-year contract by the St. Louis Cardinals, it was announced last night by President Sam Breadon. Musial headed both major loops with a .357 average and registered 220 hits in scheduled games.

The highest football score of the U.S. season was registered Saturday when Pennsylvania walked over Lakehurst Naval Academy 74-6, while Army was not far behind in administering a 52-0 whitewash to Columbia. Notre Dame scored a 50-0 triumph over Wisconsin to remain unbeaten. Out at the coast Alzonzo Stagg's College of the Pacific continued its winning streak with a 16-7 score against Del Monte.

Lionel Conacher, former member of the Ontario Legislature for Toronto Bracondale, is still chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission, it was revealed yesterday by an official source in connection with announced plans for the new license year for pro boxing and wrestling events. Conacher, who succeeded P. J. Mulqueen of Toronto, president of the Canadian Olympic committee and former president of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, as head of the Provincial Athletic Board, was not a candidate in the Ontario elections last August.

The Ontario Athletic Commission remains intact, for the time being at least, it was ascertained, although there has been a change in government. A. W. Steel, former secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada (Ontario branch), continues as acting secretary of the Commission to which position he was elevated from assistant secretary following the resignation of James P. Fitzgerald of Toronto some months ago. Incidentally, the commission charges a fee of $500 for the year commencing Nov. 1 for the privilege of conducting either professional boxing or wrestling programs in the city of Toronto alone.

Revise Schedule

The O.R.F.U. held an executive meeting in Toronto last night with all clubs represented except Ottawa Combines to deal with a revision of the schedule and the transfer of one R.C.A.F. vs. Hamilton Flying Wildcats game from Hamilton to Toronto in order to secure a larger "gate." No official information was forthcoming after the meeting however.

The Toronto pro hockey squad at St. Catharines was raised yesterday by the appearance of three University of Toronto students who will be available for the Leafs' home games if they make the grade. They are Jack McLean,, Frank Dunlap and Windy O'Neill. Coach Hap Day said, however, the team was losing the services of Don Webster, formerly with the Providence Reds, whose military deferment is expiring.

Introduce Softball

Canadian airmen have introduced the game of softball in Ceylon, according to a cable from Colombo last night, but to do so had to wind string into balls and cut bats from cocoanut wood. One game, however, attracted a crowd of 800 natives while a charity fixture raised 1,030 rupees ($340) for an auxiliary service.

Manager Lester Patrick of the New York Rangers became enthused last night at the club's training camp in Winnipeg when he proclaimed the arrival of the fifth veteran player for the squad, Bryan Hextall who was the N.H.L. top-scorer of 1941-42. Hextall is a native of Manitoba.

Operation Success

After undergoing an operation in a Vancouver hospital for his injured knee, Goalie Bert Large of the Mimico-Brampton Combines yesterday heard the news that he would probably be able to play lacrosse next year. The eastern team clashed with Salmonbellies in the last game of the Mann Cup series at New Westminster Saturday.

Secretary R. W. Hewitson of the Canadian Rugby Union last night officially announced that the challenge of Halifax Navy for the Grey Cup gridiron playdowns could not be considered because the application had not been received before Oct. 1.

a lot of things will probably happen. Anyway here is the Walshe article for local perusal: "There'll be no prima donnas or broken training tolerated in Kingston senior hockey this season, judging by the start. Reputations or imagined importance are not considered excuses for players to escape the grind of getting in condition. At the workouts this week there has been strict discipline with Coach Red Hamill and Trainer Jack MacDonald giving the orders and Manager Major Ed. Watts making sure they are obeyed. No favors are shown and it is certain that Kingston seniors will be in good shape when schedule play starts in about a month's time. The first order of the training season is to get in good shape with plenty of skating and an inflated ball is used to keep up a fast pace. The old physical training jerks, formerly used to get athletes in shape, are forgotten. In P.T. exercises a man only gains as much a he pust into the effort and it is easy to avoid exertion but rushing and reaching for a ball makes a person go the limit. With players in top condition to set and keep up a blazing pace, teams with more name talent may be lagging at the finish and that is one idea in the plan of the Kingston hockey officials. Players with records as stars in the N.H.L. may have the mistaken opinion that they do not need to train for senior hockey and before they realize the mistake it may be too late in the season to recover. Games won early in the schedule count just the same as at the end and Kingston has hopes of getting away to a good start."

* * * * * *

The schedule-makers knew what they were doing when they left a clash between the Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes and Hamilton Wildcats until near the end of the schedule. The two clubs have ridden rough-shod over all opposition up to this stage, each having piled up a record of five wins and no defeats and the coming battle between the two will be the highlight of a somewhat feature-less football season. Saturday the Hurricanes, paced by the terrific kicking of Fred Kijek had no trouble in beating the Toronto Indians 19 to 1 and the Wildcats steam-rollered over the luckless Ottawa Combines 24 to 0. The chief feature of the latter contest was the fact that their star half Joe Krol who has been giving Annis Stukus a great battle for the scoring honors didn't pick up a single point of the two dozen scored by his club. He even failed in a couple of convert attempts that would have tied him with Stukus if he had come through. Now the two unfeated clubs are pointing at each other for the big game of the year. From here it looks as if the Wildcats are the better-balanced club but on the other hand the fighting spirit of the Hurricanes plus the great kicking of Kijek who looks like the ace booter of the year may turn the trick.

Township Clerk Nabs Fox In Clover Field

Some of the local fox hunters have to wander far afield in season on their pelting expeditions, but all Bruce Johnston had to do this morning was walk back to the barn at his Crawford's Grove home and knock one off in a clover field where it was breakfasting on a Johnston chicken.

At first Monaghan's municipal clerk thought the animal was nothing more than a yellow dog. It had already killed several of the flock, and that depredation called for proprietory reprisal. Briefly, Mr. Johnston got his gun and stalked through the yard to the fringe of the clover field.

Mr. Johnston's aim was right on the target, and it was then that he realized that the invader of his chicken yard was a fox which had evidently strayed close to the city in its foraging.

Stuffed Lamb Shoulder

Just as fine in flavour as the traditional Leg, is the Roast Shoulder

Even with 1¼ pounds to the coupon, many of us these days think twice before ordering a roast of lamb. Actually, a Roast Shoulder of Lamb extended with a savoury dressing is one of the really good ways of making your coupons stretch. A 5 pound roast, before the bone is removed, gives you at least three generous meals for a family of six. Serve it hot once, cold once with a delicious green salad and mint sauce or Indian Chutney, then use the balance for a savoury stew, Indian curry or hearty meat pie.

There are sixteen different recipes just for lamb left-overs in Martha Logan's famous handbook of meat cookery "Meat Complete." Send 10¢ for your copy to Swift Canadian Co. Limited, Dept. OK40, Toronto.

MARTHA LOGAN'S DRESSING FOR A SHOULDER OF LAMB

1 cup bread crumbs
2 small onions chopped
2 tsps. chopped fresh mint
1 tbsp. fat
1 cooking apple chopped
2 to 4 tbsps. milk
salt and pepper

Mix all ingredients thoroughly and pack into cavity made by removing shoulder bone. Roast uncovered in a 325° oven allowing 40 minutes per lb.

SMALL BUYER CAN PROFIT FROM LEARNING WHAT THE EXPERTS DO

Make Coupons Work Several Ways

By W. BRUCE MacKINNON

Nobody buys Victory Bonds just because they are a good investment. We buy them because it is the only way to make sure of victory and to defeat the forces of inflation.

But the fact remains that Victory Bonds are an investment, one of the best we have, and one that is too often neglected after the bonds have been purchased. Most of us could make a good deal better use of them.

The article is not written for the benefit of banks and insurance companies whose investment staffs see that every nickel of investment money is kept at work. It is written for the smaller saver, the man who, after seven war loans, may have perhaps $1,000 invested in Canada's various wartime loans.

Making the Most of a Little

It is the small saver that is the most important bond buyer from many points of view, but it is true that after meeting his country's appeal, after faithfully paying his installments, many of these investors fail to get the most out of an investment that has usually cost them a great deal in money and sacrifice. Too often the coupons on the bonds are not put to work.

How can a small investor make his $1.50 coupons pay further dividends?

There are three simple ways to keep these interest payments at work. Let's take the case of a man of 27 who has bought his share of all the war loans to date and now has accumulated approximately $1,000 invested in the various issues.

Income from these bonds will be around $30 per year and may be handled as follows:

Reinvested: If each coupon on the Fifth Victory Loan Bond could be invested in some other security, also carrying 3 per cent interest, the net proceeds of a $1,000 Victory Bond would amount to approximately $1,560 when the bond matured after 15 years. If the process is continued until our hypothetical bond-holders reaches the age of 65, his $1,000 bond will be worth $3,070.

Reinvesting the coupons from victory Bonds is simple in wartime with War Savings Certificates available everywhere. Immediate purchase of certificates as the bond coupons fall due will keep the fund working at 3 per cent.

Some Disadvantages

The sole disadvantage of this method is that the certificates will mature in 7½ years, so that they will begin to mature half way through the 15-year life of the bond and finish up 7½ years after the bond has been redeemed. Hence, after you have been investing the coupons in war savings certificates for 7½ years, you might find it advisable to put the balance of the coupons in some other form of investment. (It may of course, be impossible to buy war savings certificates long before the 7½-year period is up.)

An alternative method, which would involve a slight loss in interest, would be to accumulate the coupons in a savings deposit account in a bank or trust company until there is enough to buy a $50 Victory Bond. With a $1,000 bond as a starter, it would take a year and a half to accumuate $45 — and it would clearly be better to ante in the amount needed for the $50 bond than to wait another six months for another coupon. The difference will be less than $5 by the amount of bank interest allowed, and later on, the interest on these $50 bonds, added to that from the $1,000 bond, will make up the $5 difference.

These two plans by no means exhaust the possibilities for investing your coupons. Trust companies, for example, have a number of different methods of investing small amounts each year and will prove most co-operative in furnishing information on the plan most suitable for the individual.

Placed in Insurance: If you prefer, your $30 per annum can be placed in insurance, and if you are, say about 27 years of age, it will pay the premiums on about $2,000 non-participating straight life insurance.

This plan has the great virtue that it does not involve any reinvestment problem for the individual, since this is carried on for the policyholder by his life insurance company. Under current conditions, with the great bulk of life company funds going into war loans, it also means that your coupons are helping the war effort in much the same way as if you invested them personally in war saving certificates or Victory Bonds.

Its second virtue is that it achieves substantially the same objective as complete reinvestment of your coupons. Using the coupons for life insurance immediately boosts the value of your $1,000 bond to $3,000, making the $3,000 available on your death at any time. Complete reinvestment would give you $3,070 at age 65. It is true that reinvestment of coupons past that age would continue to add to the value of your funds, whereas investing the coupons in insurance limits their growth to a $3,000 ceiling. But that $3,000 is available long before age 65 in the event of your death, hence gives you at least as great a value when averaged out.

There are, of course, many other plans of insurance besides that of straight life, and your coupons could be applied in any of these. Whatever plan you chose, the same principle applies—you are making your coupons work full time for you.

Coupons and Annuities: Somewhat similar to the insurance plan are the various methods of using Victory Bond coupons to pay for annuities.

For example, the $30 in coupons on a $1,000 bond will buy an annuity for life of $15 per month beginning at age of 65, if the holder is now 27 years old. If, when the purchaser reaches 65, he decided that his circumstances make cash more desirable, he will find that he can make an alternative settlement for about $2,100 cash.

Two-Way Security

This type of annuity is available from most insurance companies and from the Dominion Government under various plans, all of which give substantially the same value for the premiums, but most of which have special features. For example, some companies will combine the annuity with insurance for a slight extra premium. This combines the best features of the plan of reinvesting them in insurance.

In all these proposals, the net cash value to the man who makes full use of his coupons is obvious.

By putting his coupons to work, a small annual payment—which he never misses—results in changing his $1,000 bond into a property whose value is around $3,000.

Whether you have $1,000 or $100 in bonds, the same principles apply to your coupons. Put to work, they can multiply the value of your savings—spent, they will only buy a few temporary luxuries whose loss will scarcely be noticed, particularly since few of us require the interest on our bonds for living expenses.

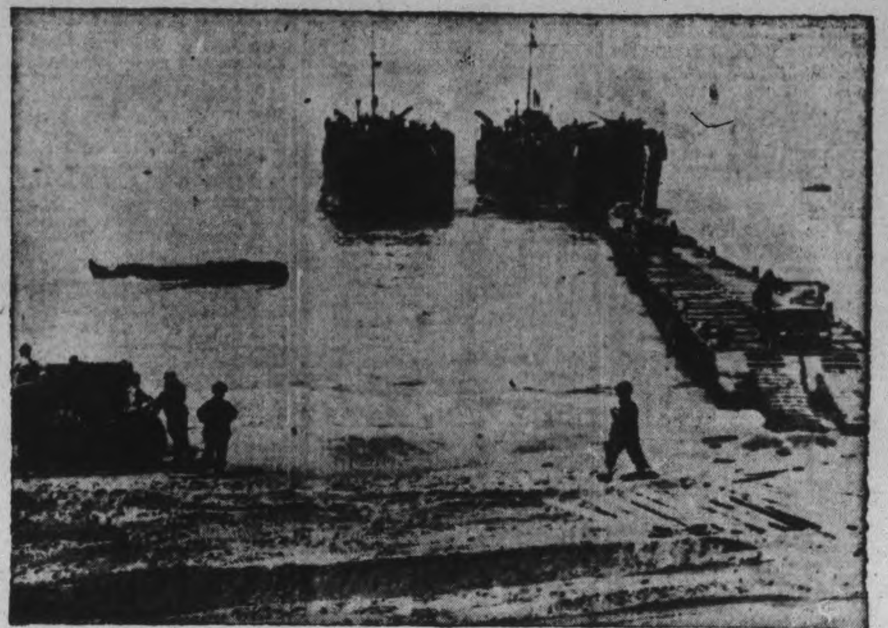
Letting You In On An Allied Military Secret



This photo, held up until now by the censors, gives you the first peek at a military secret—the landing boat that carries its own roadway for use when it cannot get close enough to shore to unload its cargo of men and material right on to the beach.

This photo was made at Licata, Sicily, as a L.S.T. (landing ship, tank) poured out its load on to a ramp it had brought along. This roadway, or pier, is carried on the side of the L.S.T. and is put into place in a few minutes; one ramp can serve many landing craft.

MARRIAGE NOT REFORM SCHOOL FOR TRANSFORMING OUR HABITS

All Young Folks Polyannas Expecting to Mold Mates to Meet Romantic Dreams.

One of the reasons there are so many unhappy marriages is because we are all Pollyannas, male and female, when we pick out our wives and husbands. Life offers no other such example of deathless optimism as that which makes otherwise sane and sensible men and women choose mates of whose manners and morals and general personality they disapprove in the fatuous belief that as soon as they are married to them they can make them over to their hearts' desire.

In no other of their affairs do they show such lopsided reasoning. No man would buy a fancy roadster and expect it to turn into a serviceable truck when he got it home. No woman would purchase a green dress with the set purpose of dyeing it red, because a red dress was what she wanted and needed. But every day we see young hopefuls, and men and women who are old enough to know better, for that matter, blithely stepping to the altar with those who do not belong to their class and with whom they have not a taste, habit or a thought in common, yet with whom they expect to be perfectly congenial after marriage.

Women Expect Marriage To Change Men

Millions of girls marry drunkards in perfect confidence that there is some magic in the marriage ceremony that will keep them from ever thirsting for the highball again. Other millions of girls marry shiftless ne'er-do-wells, who have been too lazy to even support themselves, in perfect faith that they can turn them into go-getters. And still other millions of girls marry grouchy, sullen men with mean dispositions, whom they have had to handle with gloves before marriage, in the belief that after marriage they will be little rays of sunshine in the home.

And men show just as little gumption in picking out their mates as women do. They, also, are sold on the idea that they are miracle-workers who can change a girl from what she is into the kind of a wife they want her to be. So you see poor young men anxious to get along in the world marrying wasteful, extravagant, clothes-mad girls in the belief that after marriage they will be penny-pinchers.

Characters Developed in Adults

Of course, none of these transformations ever take place. By the time a man and woman are old enough to marry their characters have set. They are what Nature and their mothers have made them. While occasionally a husband or wife may be able to polish up their rough diamond or lop off a few excrescences from their mates, for the most part men and women stay the same before and after marriage.

The drunkard continues to drink. The I.W.W. sits fast on the do-nothing stool. The girl who was a spender makes a wife who keeps her husband's nose to the grindstone. The bossy girl henpecks her husband's life out of him. And the couple who were always quarreling when they were "keeping company" make the husband and wife who fight like the Kilkenny cats.

Union Sets Fault Deeper

For marriage is no reform school. It possesses no magic that changes the dispositions of people. It cures no faults. Rather it sets them deeper. Nor is there any myth falser than the old one about a fine husband being able to raise an inferior wife up to his level, or the influence of a good wife weening a husband from his vices.

Almost always it is a noble experiment that ends in failure, for there is nothing that a husband and wife resent so much as finding out that their mates are not satisfied with them and think them poor, weak creatures who will need a lot of alteration before they come up to expectations. Being made over is a painful process that leaves one's vanity sore and bleeding and which few marriages survive.

The moral of all of which is: Be doubting Thomas instead of Pollyanna when you pick out your mate. Select the kind of a husband or wife you want to begin with, instead of taking a chance on altering one to suit you.

The farmer grabbed it by the tail, swung it against the wall and finished it off with a stick.

Do Not Let Accumulated Wartime Irritation Persuade You To Ease Your Temper On Salesman

By J. S. BRISBY
A Victory Loan Salesman

We have all bought Victory Bonds and know what it is like to have the salesman press us to invest more than we feel we can afford.

The housewife has been annoyed by him calling when she was housecleaning; the businessman has been irritated by his entrance as some situation required all his attention.

We are worried by requests to buy downtown where we earn our living and by suggestions that we should buy at home where we live and pay our taxes.

The truth is that we are all living in a state of irritation. We are irritated because we have to invest money although we know it is our duty to do so. We are irritated because there is a war on although we know we had to enter it. We are irritated because our husbands, sons and brothers are in the services although we would be the last to try to hold them back. We are irritated in a vague sort of way with regulation.

In the midst of all this irritation there on the doorstep is a sacrificial lamb — a Victory Bond salesman. On him it is easy to vent our accumulated irritations all the way from income taxes to the trouble we had last week getting a dozen pints of beer.

The Fifth Victory Loan campaign last for three weeks, but the salesman reports for duty at least one week before the opening date. Then he will have to attend meetings beginning at 9 a.m. practically every day. He will be given cards with about 500 to 600 names to arrange so that he will be prepared to go out full blast when the loan opens.

Perhaps that does not seem a very great task to us, but wait a moment. He takes his cards home to arrange at his leisure and finds all sorts of mystic symbols. There are Headquarters' stops, such as S. N., which means "Special Names," and he is not allowed to call on them; others are marked S.C., which means "Special Name Company," and he must not go in there.

Fruthermore, he finds there are other stops called Divisional Stops. For example there are "A" list names which are organized by the Industrial Committee. Suppose last Loan he sold his good friend Dr. Jones $15,000 or $20,000 worth of bonds. In the next loan he will find that Dr. Jones' name has been transferred to the "Special Names" list and his own friend's subscription this time is handled by someone else.

Doing Their Best

The great day arrives and he starts out. The first shock he gets is when he finds that his brother has his office on the south side of the street and someone else is to get his subscription. Never mind. He starts over again.

Before he makes his first call he has had a lot of lessons. He is told to carry himself with dignity; to remembered that he represents the Canadian Government. He is told that he is to be polite under all circumstances, that he is not to argue, that he must not offend anyone.

As a rule it is the person who has determined not to buy who is rude to the bond salesman.

For example, in a downtown office during the last loan, a salesman was greatly helped by the firm which gave him a private office and arranged for the employees to come in one by one — real co-operation which most of the firms are willing to give. In this particular case one girl came in and said: "I won't even sit down. The salesman smiled and said that was unfortunate as he could not sit while she stood. The girl sat down and bought a bond.

In another case, a girl came to the door and snapped: "You can keep your sales talk, because I'm not going to buy a bond." The salesman replied that that was all right but added that he would like her to sit down while he asked her a question. She flopped in the chair and said: "Well, go on." He smiled and asked her quietly: "Why is it that the people who are determined not to buy a bond think they must be r..de?" Again a bond was sold.

Then there is the other side of the picture, the little incidents that send a salesman out of an office or a house with tears in his eyes and a lump in his throat.

In a big city office there is a woman who runs a little typing and copying business of her own. The salesman called on her during the fourth loan. She explained that she had bought bonds in every loan during the last Great War and that she had bought bonds in every loan during the first three loans in this war; but now her business was down and she had no money left.

Give Up Own Work

Be gentle with the bond salesman. He is making a sacrifice to help his country. Most of them have sons or young brothers at the front. Most earn much less on the loan than at their own profession, and their company suffers during their absence. A large number are insurance men. Insurance is a continuous business and if a man stops his work for a month it takes him another month to get back in line. Anything the Government pays him is subject to income tax.

One man working in the downtown area of Toronto in the Fourth Victory Loan won a prize of $10. Being a friendly sort of fellow he turned in the money to give his team a little party. The net result so far as our friend was concerned was that the team had a good evening, but he had to pay $4 income tax on the $10 prize, and as it happened he was ill and did not even attend the party. Winning that prize cost him money.

The salesman is caught between the Government representatives and the public. If anyone complains about his behavior, he is told at the next loan that his services are not required.

The average salesman has to call on about 500 people in three weeks. About half of them tell him that they are too busy to discuss it now, or that he will have to call when their husband is at home, or some other reason which calls for a return visit. This brings the number of his calls up to about 800 for the three weeks, which is roughly 44 per day.

If he makes a sale, it requires at least ten to fifteen minutes to make out the application form, get the cheque and, if required, make out a receipt. If he does not make a sale he loses even more time as he must conscientiously do his best to sell.

However, that is not all. When he has completed his calls for the day he has to fill out in duplicate a complete list of all the people he saw and state how much they bought. If they did not buy he must state why, or, if they bought through a bank, he is expected to give the name of the bank.

Next he has to fill in a form every night in duplicate showing the exact name and address of all the people to whom he sold bonds. He must also show if they paid the amount in full or by installment or if they are going to arrange the payment through their bank.

That goes on every day till the three weeks of the loan are finished and we are over the top again.

But what happens to the poor salesman? For the next two or three weeks he receives calls from his Team Captain telling him that so-and-so's cheque has been returned marked "No Account" or "Insufficient Funds" and has once more to run around until the mess is cleaned up. Mostly we admit the people wrote the cheques in good faith but forgot that they had moved and changed their bank, but there is the odd case where no bank account existed. These sales are deducted from the salesman's credit at Ottawa and all errors mean extra work.

A word of advice to all those who are inclined to criticize the Victory Bond Salesman—we admit they are few. In the Third Victory Loan one Toronto down-town salesman dropped dead from overwork. In the Fourth Victory Loan one salesman in the same division was run down by a truck and had his leg broken, while another, still in the same division, had a coronary thrombosis and lay in bed for three months. He is hoping his doctor will allow him to help in the Fifth Victory Loan.

So be considerate to that Victory Loan salesman when he calls on you. Don't tell him to call back in the evening when your husband will be home. Talk it over with your husband before the campaign opens and be able to tell the salesman what you are able to invest. You are buying bonds because you want to help win the war, but if you make that man call twice for your decision, you are wasting the time of a valuable man and thereby keeping him from going on and getting someone else's subscription. Have your cheque ready, and if he does persuade you to invest more than you had thought of, just be thankful Canada has such good men to go around collecting the "sinews of war."

You may be sure in this Fifth Victory Loan that the man who calls on you is a proved salesman, that he is making a financial sacrifice in undertaking this work, that he is doing his best for his country.

Householders Told To Accept Coal

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 — (CP). — Coal Controller E. J. Brunning advised Canadian householders today to accept immediate delivery of any type of coal suited to their heating equipment rather than chance finding themselves with no coal at all when the cold weather begins.

"Those who hold off accepting delivery in the expectation that they will obtain a better grade of coal, or a type or size to which they are accustomed, may find themselves in the middle of a near zero cold snap with no coal in the bin," said Mr. Brunning in a statement.

"Those who have not agreed to accept one-quarter of their requirements in high volatile bituminous still have an opportunity to do so. Their only alternative is to receive only 50 per cent of the Class A fuel they burned last year."

The Controller said a shortage of delivery facilities exists in many communities.

"The dealers are doing all they can to spread deliveries," he added. "If a sudden cold snap created an unusual demand, some consumers would go short, and they would have no one but themselves to blame.

These days most people are working harder, worrying more, sleeping less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living lowers resistance—increases body and mental fatigue. Overwork; hasty meals; irregular hours; worry—any of these may upset proper kidney action.
When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and poisons remain in the system. Then backache, headache, rheumatic pain, disturbed rest or that "tired-all-the-time" feeling may soon follow. To help keep your kidneys in good order—to help guard against physical let-down—use Dodd's Kidney Pills, for over half a century a favourite remedy for faulty kidneys. Agricultural ready stated, Italian prisoners are giving a helping hand.

Taxation Very Severe

The farmer's other big problem is completing returns and meeting taxation demands. There is a check-up on everything. All grain threshed has to be weighed up and declared within seven days on account of rationing; milk sales returns have to be made before rations are allowed for even dairy cows. Twelve days notice must be given on the prescribed form before fat stock is taken over by the Ministry of Food. Quarterly returns of stock and feeding stuffs on the farm have to be handed in, etc., etc.

Then again accounts have to be presented to the inspector of taxes to show what the profit is from farm trading. This is a job no farmer likes, as in pre-war days not one out of every 20 kept accounts at all.

However, they all keep smiling and producing to their utmost ability and it can safely be said that no one is making a fortune in agriculture—or in any other industry, for that matter—such as it was possible to make in the last war. E.P.T. (Excess Profits Tax) sees to that.

I did not go to the "blitzed" south of Wales. The industrial problems there are the same as in the rest of the country. There is no South Wales problem, no Lancashire point of view, no attitude of the Midlands to be studied. Despite trouble in the coal-fields and work stoppages, work goes on and the British war effort is a total war effort. The cotton industry in Lancashire is in many ways analagous to the jute industry in Dundee. For over a century Dundee has been a textile centre engaged in the spinning and weaving of jute. Prior to the outbreak of the war unemployment in the city reached large proportions due mainly to the low wage competition of Indian jute mills.

The Jute Industry

The jute industry benefited to some extent from war orders for sand bags, but when these orders were completed, difficulties arose in securing shipping space for export. As a result of these difficulties unemployment in Dundee remained at a high level. Numbers of mobile young women from Dundee were transferred to the munitions industries in other areas, but despite this large numbers of women still remained in the city available for work only in their home area. With a view to utilizing this labor, representations were made to the Supply Departments by the corporation and by the Ministry of Labor and National Service, with the result that new industries connected with the war were introduced into Dundee during 1942. As a result unemployment has practically disappeared and there is work available for every fit man and woman in the city.

Both the Ministry of Labor Employment Committee and the corporation have considered the post-war employment position which will inevitably arise in the light of the competition which the jute industry has had to face during the past 25 years, and every possible step is being taken to attract to the city some of the newly developing industries, such as rayon manufacture, and plastics manufacture, with a view to providing employment for the large number of highly skilled workers who will be available for employment in post-war years.

That policy is being worked out and will be applied in every industrial area and centre throughout the country.

150,000 Canvassers Start Loan Moving

OTTAWA, Oct. 18.—(CP).— Volunteer canvassers 150,000 strong, cheered by news that some industrial establishments and several communities had achieved their quotas even before the formal start of the campaign, embarked to-day upon a drive to raise $1,200,000,000 as Canada's Fifty Victory Loan — largest public financing effort yet undertaken by the Dominion—officially opened.

Though Headquarters of the National War Finance Committee expressed pleasure over evidences that small subscribers were ready to invest in the loan, a Headquarters statement cautioned against overconfidence.

The little Alberta town of Standard, with a population of 200, has more than achieved its quota. The town has 76 young men and women in uniform. In the last Victory Loan Standard won three pennants for exceeding its quotas. To-day the town was flying Alberta's first "over the top" pennant in the Fifth Victory Loan.

To launch the campaign, Graham F. Towers, new general chairman of the National War Finance Committee, wired provincial loan chairmen stressing the three-fold importance of pushing Canada's great public financing efforts to the highest success.

Their success, he said, had a particular effect upon the rest of the world, Canada's Allies and, "most importantly," upon all Canadians.

"The Authority on Authorities"

CHANGE OF PACE USEFUL

ALWAYS having the same kind of hand, when you make a particular bid, is not an essential of soundness. Among the greatest experts in winning tactics, you will find quite a change of pace. But one thing you will find them always trying to do—that which is calculated to obtain a successful result, according to their lights. Consequently, though their opening No Trump bids may be supposed to show a balanced hand, they will sometimes make them when holding a long minor suit with pretty safe stoppers in the other three suits.

	♠ 9 8 7 5 ♥ 9 8 ♦ A J 3 ♣ J 9 6 4
♠ K J 2 ♥ K Q J 7 6 ♦ 8 ♣ Q 10 3 2	N W E S	♠ Q 10 6 3 ♥ 10 5 4 3 ♦ 7 4 ♣ A 7 5

At every table, in the duplicate where this hand was dealt, an opening bid of 1-Diamond by South resulted in his side playing the hand at either 4-Diamonds or 5-Diamonds, by a bidding sequence approximately like that shown in No. 1 above. The game contract of 5-Diamonds got set, with the loss of a trick in each side suit, and the 4-Diamonds got made.

Only one table produced a game, the one where short, incisive bidding was done as in No. 2. South in that case was Ted Le Gros, able Brooklyn tournament and rubber exponent, who likes to furnish a change of pace in his tactics. Seeing a good chance that the hand should wind up in No Trump, and wishing to be sure that, if it did, the lead would not come through the club K, he assured that element with his very first bid. When he found his partner with the correct cards, he got away with the only possible game in the hand.

If North had not held those particular cards, he might have had trouble, but as it was, nine tricks were sure against a major lead, 10 against a club opening.

R.C.A.F. Liberator Gets Sub

This is the end of a running battle between a surfaced U-boat and an R.C.A.F. Liberator bomber in mid-Atlantic. Flt. Lt. Robert Fisher of Vancouver brought the plane home safely although it had a hole in its wing tip from the only hit by the sub's flak guns. The bow of the sub is tossed clear of the sea by a perfect depth charge "straddle" and sank soon after.

HAVELOCK

W.M.S. Studies Asia Missions

HAVELOCK, Oct. 18 —(ENS) — The October meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Peters. The president, Mrs. George Chiles, presided at the meeting opening, with the theme "The Bible for All of Life." During the responsive readings of passage of Scripture, verses of the hymn "O Word of God Incarnate" were alternated. A period of dedication to the study of God's Word was followed by a prayer offered by Mrs G. Chiles.

The financial standing of the society in regard to the allocation was discussed, and several members turned in their money for the names on the autograph quilt.

Some new literature and study leaflets were ordered for the Mission band. Plans were made to attend the sectional rally at Westwood on Friday, October 22, for an all-day session, when the Havelock W.M.S. is asked to put on the morning devotions.

Foreign Missions.

The first chapter of the new study book, "For All of Life" was dealt with by Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson relating to the task of the church in the villages of Asia or Africa, in this outreaching era of missions, made possible by a trained personnel. The church, like its Master, is concerned with man's whole life, body, mind, and spirit, and with all his relationships and needs. The first attempt of the missionaries is to teach the men and women to read and write, provide them with good literature, and to teach health education as a means of preventing sickness and suffering.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. John Kinnaird.

Japanese Forcing Chinese To Retreat

CHUNGKING, Oct. 18 (AP). — Japanese troops are driving forward west of the Salween River in Yunnan province and have captured the town of Pienma, the Chinese high command said last night.

It was believed that not less than 10,000 Japanese were taking part in the drive, presumably it aimed at forcing the Chinese back across the Salween River to offset an Allied thrust at the town of Myitkyina in Northern Burma, a vital point in any attempt to reopen a land route from India into China.

The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast from Japanese Imperial headquarters recorded by The Associated Press, announced today that the Japanese have launched an offensive in Burma in anticipation of Allied moves.

Game Officials Provide Food

Adequate arrangements for feeding the chukar partridge and mountain goats in the Peterborough game preserve have been made by the Peterborough Fish and Game Association, President C. G. Kingan announces.

Two bales of hay, two bags of oats and several bags of chicken feed have been sent to the Canadian Nepheline Mine for the benefit of the partridge and goats.

The elk at Jack's Lake have not been forgotten and a ton of hay and four blocks of salt has been sent there along with four blocks of salt for the elk at Buckhorn. Nazis Hurl Reserves At Melitopol

Bitter Fight Raging As Germans Try To Save Crimea

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (CP). — The Germans were reported rushing reinforcements from their Crimean manpower reservoir today in a desperate attempt to hold the South Ukraine stronghold of Melitopol in the face of Russian offensives from the east and north aimed at cracking that gateway to the Crimea and engulfing the hundreds of thousands of Nazi troops in the great peninsula.

Some of the bitterest fighting of the war was raging inside of Melitopol itself, the Russians said. Red Army shock spearheads battling with bayonets and grenades in a blinding dust storm, inched their way through a formidable maze of blockhouses and street defences, a Soviet communique said, cleared several districts of the last ditch defenders, hurled back a strong German counter attack southwest of the city and "captured large quantities of war materials."

Advance Four Miles

Crack Russian divisions under Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky, having battered their way more than four miles deeper into the Dnieper River bend from captured Zaporozhe to flank the Nazi armies in that salient, were pounding southward toward a probable juncture with Gen. Feodor Tolbukhin, leading the main drive against Melitopol from the east.

Berlin said more than 300,000 Red Army troops were plunging south from Zaporozhe and acknowledged Nazi forces were giving ground.

Fresh Russian gains were announced below Gomel, the Nazi White Russian base north of Kiev, where Soviet troops who had crossed the Dnieper in a new advance were striking toward Rechitsa, 27 miles west of Gomel.

The advance, if continued, would threaten the German railroad link with Poland and drive a wedge between the enemy armies to the north and south.

North and south of Kiev itself, the Moscow war bulletin reported the Russians had "considerably improved their positions" beyond the west bank of the Dnieper in their pincer drive on the Ukrainian capital.

Yesterday's Russian gains against the crumbling German Dnieper defence system heralded what may prove to be a major disaster for the enemy, Moscow dispatches intimated. German radio commentators frankly admitted the gravity of the German position in lower Russia and the Crimea.

319 Jap Ships Bagged By Subs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 —(AP)— United States submarines, carrying the war even into home waters of Japan, have sunk or damaged 460 Japanese vessels since the war began the navy announced in a communique today.

The figures, contained in a communique released by Navy Secretary Frank Knox at a press conference, included 146 enemy ships not previously listed as struck by torpedoes in the war against Japanese shipping.

The navy's totals showed 319 Japanese ships have been sent to the bottom, 36 probably have been sunk and 105 others damaged since Dec. 7, 1941.

Major Invasion Next Year Smuts Says U.S. Will Lead

LONDON, Oct. 19—(CP).—Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, predicted today a grand assault on Adolf Hitler's central fortress of Europe next year and said that American troops may have to play the decisive part.

"In view of the intense and prolonged strain and excessive demands upon the British Commonwealth, American manpower has been rightly looked upon as our grand strategic reserve in the West for the final moves of the war," the soldier-statesman said in a speech at the Guildhall.

"While therefore every ally will go all out to bring about the final climax," he added, "the U.S.A. — latest, freshest and most potent newcomer in the field—may have to play the decisive part in the conclusive act of the Great War drama."

Smuts said that such a role in the war would also be the best justification for the all-important part America is destined to play in the peace negotiations and the rebuilding of the world.

Looking back through the months of 1943, Smuts disclosed that the United Nations already have gone farther and achieved more than they had planned to do by next winter.

Tighten Noose

"We may confidentally reckon on still further advances," he said "especially in southern and southeastern Europe, and by the coming winter we shall have closed in upon Hitler's central fortress of Europe and be making our dispositions for a grand assault by all arms next year.

The real turning points of the war, he said, were Stalingrad and El Alamein, and while great American forces would play their decisive part, nothing could rob the Russians and the British Commonwealth of the glory and the honor of having turned the tide when the enemy was in sight of a colossal achievement.

Field Marshal Smuts admitted that the Russian contribution to the war has been immense, but said there had been no greater event in the war than the success of Allied strategy in the Mediterranean:

"I say with all emphasis that nothing comparable or of greater importance has been achieved in this war."

Smuts' address contained a generous compliment to Prime Minister Churchill, of whom the South African said:

"You have found a leader greater than Clemenceau (Georges Clemenceau, Premier of France during the First Great War); and he will lead you to a more conclusive and fruitful victory than that of the last war."

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 19—(AP).—Seven ranking officials of the Finance Ministry, including Dr. Raul J. Presbisch, general manager of the Banco Central, semi-official government banking institution, submitted their resignations to President Pedro Ramirez last night.

Their action was a sequel to the resignation last week of Finance Minister Jorge Santamarina. The resignations were accepted at once.

Mighty Raid Wrecks Hanover City

Mosquito Bombers Lash Again At German Capital

LONDON, Oct. 19— (CP)— The R.A.F. attacked Germany in great strength last night, directing the main blow against Hanover, while Mosquito bombers blasted targets in Berlin and western Germany, it was announced today.

Seventeen bombers were lost during the operations, the full results of which were obscured by clouds which partially covered the targets, the Air Minstry said.

The raid broke a 10-day lull in large scale R.A.F. bombardment operations and represented the fourth heavy assault on Hanover within 30 days. The city was the target of the last major R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. night raid October 8.

Hanover, a city with a normal peacetime population of about 500,000, is the site of the great Continental Gummiwerke, where much of Germany's finished rubber products are manufactured. To reach the city the raiders had to fly a round trip of about 760 miles—provided they travelled in a direct line to and from the target.

4th This Month.

Last night's raid on Berlin was the second successive night assault on the German capital by the speedy Mosquito bombers, and their fourth this month. Mosquitoes also hit targets in western Germany as well.

A procession of heavy bombers moved eastward toward the continent early in the evening, and could scarcely have reached the target before a small force of German raiders crossed into East Anglia and southeast England around midnight with attacks pressed as far as London.

It was London's third alert in as many nights. The raiders dropped flares and some explosives, causing at least two deaths and wreckage in some areas.

A hot anti-aircraft barrage was thrown up against the Nazi planes, which instead of flying singly as in the recent past, managed a small formation in attacking one district.

In at least one London area, rescue workers still were digging in the ruins of a crowded apartment house hit Sunday night when the new raid was started.

Canadian Lancaster squadrons participated in the Hanover raid and all returned.

The city, packed with vital war industries and the site of an important railway junction, now has been attacked 52 times. Three days after the last raid, which was delivered in force, fires still were burning in the city.

Canadians Buy $67,729,450 Bonds 1st Day

OTTAWA, Oct. 19 — (CP). — Canadians subscribed for $67,729,450 worth of Fifth Victory Loan Bonds yesterday, first day of the three-week campaign for $1,200,000,000, National Headquarters announced today.

The daily average required to reach the Loan's objective is $66,666,000. First-day sales in the Fourth Victory Loan drive last spring were $63,295,750.

"The breakdown showing what proportion of Monday's $67,729,450 came from individuals was not obtainable from the first day's telegraphic advices, but from all reports indicate swift response in considerable numerical strength from the employees of war plants and other business institutions," headquarters said in the daily press release.

It announced the city of Halifax yesterday purchased $350,000 worth of bonds, one of the first cities to subscribe.

Firms Go Over Top.

Reports poured into Ontario headquarters of plants going over their quotas on the payroll savings plan. Sixteen companies in Hamilton alone went over the top. In Cooksville employees of T. W. Hand Fireworks Co. were over half an hour after the books opened. In Brantford, Stericloth Products workers subscribed 125 per cent.; in Owen Sound workers of National Table Co. reached 120 per cent., and in Woodstock all 225 employees of Massey-Harris Co. subscribed during opening day. At Michipicoten Iron Mines at Josephine, Ont., $12,300 was invested by 77 employees, an average of $160 a worker.

Sherridon, Man., a mining town of 1,800 population, was the first Manitoba section over the top, exceeding its $80,000 objective by nearly $2,000 the first day. Sherritt-Gordon Mines, the town's industry, hoisted the "V" flag of honor.

The National Harbor Board invested $500,000, it was announced by Transport Minister Michaud.

R.C.A.F. personnel at Mountain View, Ont., passed their $80,000 objective in the first three hours and Group Capt. Robert Ripley announced a new goal of $100,000.

50 Canadians Are Exchanged Report Nazi Guards Lenient

Germans Returning To Homes Now Mass Of Ruins

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

A SCOTTISH PORT, Oct. 19 — (CP Cable). — Hans was going back to Hamburg.

As he stood on a quay which no German bombers ever damaged he looked at the white hospital ship Atlantic tied alongside, then shrugged his shoulders, picked up a battered suitcase and trudged up the gangway.

Hans was one of 842 German servicemen and civilian men, women and children, repatriation of whom began last week in the first exchange of 5,000 prisoners between Britain and Germany in this war.

At Goteborg, Sweden, they were to be exchanged for Britons, some Canadians and few Americans, the Foreign Office at London has announced.

Shabbily Dressed.

Hans was merchant seaman, like many others with him. Included also were officers and men of the German air force and navy. Like so many fellow seamen, Hans was old and poorly dressed. His name and "Hamburg" were printed on his suitcase.

British soldiers of the Pioneer and Medical Corps armed with rifles and other small arms travelled with the prisoners. Women wardens and policewomen travelled in a carriage with 24 civilian women and four children. Most of the women were dressed plainly in the Continental manner with high black boots and shawls. Civilian police helped carry suitcases and bundles of clothing.

Civilian men and merchant navy sailors followed the women and children with few exceptions they were shabbily attired. "Protected" troops — members of the German medical corps and similar noncombatant formations—and wounded servicemen were next aboard the ship. Stretcher cases were brought to the gangway in ambulances.

Most men in the ranks were in their 20's and all wore ill-fitting uniforms, greatly in contrast with their well-dressed officers who came on the second train. They showed little interest in their surroundings, talking quietly among themselves and obeying orders snappily. One infantryman carried a colored blanket, on one corner of which was knitted the word, "Canada."

The senior naval officer was a lieutenant commander who appeared to be in charge of one section of the party. Carrying a cane and wearing pearl grey gloves, he stroke up and down the platform, giving directions to his men or talking politely in English to British army officers.

Air force officers, headed by a colonel who supported himself on two canes, kept to themselves. There was no arrogance in their mien, only indifference and a politeness which to the onlooker appeared overdone.

Like Hans, many of these men and women were returning to towns which exist now only in ruins. Nuremberg, Bremen, Hamburg were but a few of the "target" cities names of which appeared on their luggage.

Rat Loses Battle

DENVER, Oct. 19—(AP).— Patrolman Alfred Nielsen stepped into the loaded patrol wagon—then leaped out and frantically tore away part of his trouser leg. Shortly thereafter bursts of gunfire echoed through the jail yard. Officers charged out, ready for any emergency. They found Nielsen and two other patrolmen chasing a rat, which Nielsen's .45 finally disintegrated. It had run up his leg in the patrol wagon, he explained.

Senators Resent Unfair Reports Front-Line Tour

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP).— Three of the five United States Senators who recently toured Allied battlefronts voiced disappointment today that their reports to the Senate had been interpreted by some British newspapers as a reflection upon the British people.

Senator Richard Russell (Dem. Ga.) chairman of the group, expressed a conviction that British and American interests now and in the post-war period are "inseparably linked."

Russell, long an advocate of the Anglo-American collaboration, asserted he and his colleagues on the tour shared a warm affection for Britons and added that whatever criticism was voiced at the executive session was directed at correcting "situations we felt needed correction."

"We're not mad at anybody, except Hitler and Hirohito," remarked Senator Ralph Brewster (Rep. Maine), another of the group.

Senator James Mead (Dem., N. Y.) called attention to an address he made to the Senate last Tuesday in which he asserted "no one levelled one iota of criticism at the British war effort," and "we have a huge appreciation of the courage and heroism of the people of England."

Churchill Reports.

LONDON, Oct. 19—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill declined to reply in the House of Commons today to criticisms of Britain by touring United States Senators, but said that a full statement of the facts, prepared at his request, would be kept in Commons for the the purpose of the record "or, if it should be expedient, for publication."

ABOARD EXCHANGE SHIP DROTTNINGHOLM AT GOTEBORG, SWEDEN, Oct. 18 — (Delayed) — (AP). — Two Canadian soldiers and a group of Britons "for the first and only time" ran after German guards instead of away from them when they feared they would be lost and left behind in the exchange of war invalids and protected medical personnel now under way.

The Canadians, two of the more than 1,400 eager, happy British, Canadian and American veterans who trooped aboard this ship, were David Thistle of Toronto, 21-year old private in the Royal Regiment of Canada, and Charles Lamert of Montreal, 22-year old member of Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal.

It happened this way, Thistle said:

"We arrived at Sassnitz (German point of departure) on the night of October 16. We were transferred from a train to a transit camp. But in the blackout 27 of us somehow became separated from the rest. We wandered about the town absolutely lost, looking for someone to take us prisoner again. Finally a German officer steered us straight.

"It is the only time we suppose that Britons ever ran after Germans to be captured . . ."

Remember Chains.

Thistle was hit by shrapnel in the eye and Almert in the leg, both in the Canadian-spearheaded Dieppe raid in August, 1942.

They said they estimated 1,500 Canadians were in their prison camp at Lamsdorf, near Breslau.

Other Canadian veterans of Dieppe now on this ship include Cpl. Tom Carnie, 28, of Vancouver; Pte. William White of Reserve Mines, N.S., and Sgt. Andre Mischaud of Montreal.

Mischaud, who lost his right arm at Dieppe almost at the moment he jumped on the beach, toyed with a souvenir—a small scale model of the chains the Germans used in the Dieppe prisoners. It was made of melted tinfoil from cigaret packs.

He said that in one Canadian compound 900 prisoners had been chained until a month ago.

MORMUGAO, Portuguese India, Oct. 19 — (AP). — Like holiday picnickers but with much deeper joy, 1,500 Americans, Canadians, and Nationals from other countries in the Western World to-day marched off the Japanese ship Teia Maru and boarded the exchange liner Gripsholm which will carry them home after months of internment in Japanese hands.

Again free men, they stepped into the hot sunlight shouting jokes and wisecracks.

A file of stony-faced Japanese, being exchanged, 10 yards away contrasted with them as they marched off the Gripsholm.

For 21 months, the men and women have been either under the watchful eye of the Japanese or penned up in a Japanese internment camp. An American was picked up by the consuls to keep the line moving, and his jibes kept them laughing as they struggled along the narrow gangplank with their bundles, suitcasse, babies, banjos and baskets.

Bomb Damage Justifies Aerial Losses

Saturation Raids Also Aimed At Eliminating Nazi Airforce

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

For several days now the importance of the Allied war of the air over Europe has been persistently hammered on from Washington, London and North Africa in an unusual volume of studied information.

Fascinating facts about the striking Allied achievements have been disclosed, but the equally-fascinating question of why the numerous statements have been issued remains unanswered officially.

However, it would seem for one thing that the material is calculated to explain satisfactorily the American loss of 60 fortresses and 593 men in last week's raid over Schweinfurt, Germany. It might also be intended to emphasize—on the eve of the Moscow conference —the necessity of great air preparation before the establishment of that second front which the Russians are demanding.

Attacks Costly.

Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the U. S. Army and Air Forces, returned to the subject yesterday in a protracted press conference in Washington. He gave a broad survey of the air situation, although his talk was pegged on the Schweinfurt raid. He hailed the achievements of American airmen as overwhelmingly justifying the cost in men and money.

The General said the main objective of the Allied air war over Europe is to make it easier for ground troops to go in for the final dash, and save thousands of lives. There we have a point which obviously is of great importance to the Moscow discussions.

He added that second only to the bombing of specific objectives is the aim to destroy the German air force. This point also has been stressed from London, disclosing that the Anglo-American air forces now are making a special drive to render Hitler's Luftwaffe helpless.

The theory is, of course, that since the Nazi air force is Hitler's chief weapon against bombing, he will be fairly impotent if it is smashed. This will expedite the destruction of that portion of Germany's war production which still remains effective.

The main attack on the Luftwaffe is by indirection. It's against airplane plants, and factories manufacturing parts essential to planes. In other words, we are destroying at the source.

Bomb Bursts Riddle Skoplje Rail Centre

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 19.—(AP).—United States medium bombers and fighters, reaching out in support of Yugoslav guerillas, swooped deep into Yugoslavia yesterday to smash the vital railroad centre of Skoplje controlling the Vardar Valley leading south into Salnoka and Greece, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Tracks were ripped up, the Skoplje rail bridge southeast of the yards bombed, and at least three locomotives and 15 rail yards destroyed by two waves of planes which caught the German defences completely off guard.

Neither enemy fighters nor anti-aircraft fire were encountered.

The blow followed raids Sunday night by R.A.F. heavy bombers upon Nazi airfieldes in Rhodes and Crete.

Bombers with fighter escorts began the attack on Skoplje, hitting the north and south ends of the yards where switching facilities were concentrated. Other bombs struck in the centre of the yards, destroying tracks.

Two hours later a wave of bomb-carrying fighters sped over the area again to attack the bridge four miles away and to hit the nearby signal building and passenger station.

Canada Signs Lend-Lease

Canadian Supplies Sent To Russia Before

OTTAWA, Oct. 19 (CP) — The External Affairs Department announced today that Canada has joined the United States and Britain in signing the third lend-lease protocol with Russia to supply the Soviets with war materials and foodstuffs.

The announcement said the agreement was signed in London today, with the Dominion taking part for the first time although Canadian supplies previously have formed part of the commitment of the United Kingdom, in some cases, of that of the United States.

It was the third such agreement for Britain and the United States. The first was signed in Moscow in October, 1941, and the second in Washington last October.

The period covered by the second agreement ended last June 30, but provisions of the third agreement, though it has just been signed, have been effective for the past three months, with the flow of armaments, equipment, materials and foodstuffs going to Russia without interruption.

Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London, signed the protocol on behalf of the Dominion.

Tri-Power Talk Starts In Moscow City

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer.

MOSCOW, Oct. 19 — (AP). — Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain and the United States Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, highest American official ever to visit Moscow, plunged quickly today into the war's first full dress tripartite conference, meeting with their Russian counterpart, Vyacheslav Molotov, a few hours after concluding their flight to the Russian capital.

As the foreign secretaries settled down on the long-awaited get-together, at which the Russians consider a "second front" in Western Europe an important topic.

Eager To Start

Despite their long, hard trip, Eden and Hull were eager to begin the discussions with Molotov. Both the British and the American foreign officials expect the conference to lay the groundwork for future conversations among the United Nations leaders.

Muscovites stood in long lines to purchase newspapers, all of which splashed pictures of Eden, Hull and Molotov at the airport across front pages.

The press front-paged the statements made by Hull and Eden upon their arrival, but the newspapers did not comment editorially on the conference.

Preliminary discussions were held at the Kremlin last evening shortly after the arrival of the British and American visitors at the Moscow airdrome. It was announced the first real business session would

50 Canadians Freed By Nazis

OTTAWA, Oct. 19 (CP)—Approximately 50 sick and wounded Canadian soldiers and airmen will be returning home with more than 5,000 British Empire and United States prisoners-of-war being exchanged for Nazis held prisoner by the Allied powers.

The exchange agreement was announced last night in Ottawa, London and Washington, and an external affairs department spokesman here estimated that Canadians in the transfer would total around the half-hundred mark. There will be 17 Americans.

Thus, the vast majority of the more than 5,000 men will be from the United Kingdom and other empire countries.

Next-of-kin of the returning Canadians will be advised by the defence department immediately their names are available. The men will be sent on to Canada after any necessary hospital treatment in Britain and when they are considered well enough to travel.

From 2 Points

The exchange, which already is under way, was arranged through the Swiss government after overtures made by Germany following the end of the Tunisian campaign. It will be carried out in three separate movements, one across the North Sea between Sweden and Britain and two across the Mediterranean between Europe and Africa.

The announcement here said the Canadians and Americans will be in the North Sea movement along with more than 4,000 empire prisoners who will return home by that route. The additional 1,000 men, being transferred across the Mediterranean to Africa from Spain, will be of the armed forces of Australia, New Zealand, India, South Africa and other commonwealth nations.

200 Women Put In Reserve Pool

Applications totalling 463 names were made by married women in the work recruiting campaign which came to a close on Saturday. Selective Service expressed extreme satisfaction with the results of the drive, and it was stated that already 262 of those women who turned out in answer to the call had been placed in war plants and essential industries.

W. H. L. Mellis, Selective Service manager, said the outcome of the recruiting activities centering on last week was very satisfactory, and that a number of those women who went to jobs on a part time basis only last week have since volunteered to take full time employment, finding they liked the work and could arrange to be away several extra hours from their homes.

A reserve has been established with the 200 applicants who have not yet been referred to jobs, Mr. Mellis said, and from this reserve would be drawn additional labor recruits from time to time as the situation at the various plants warranted. Only a certain number of inexperienced newcomers could be trained in each plant at one time, he pointed out, and it was when the first group had been through their instruction and learned to handle their job that more workers would be called up.

Mr. Mellis stated that Selective Service headquarters would remain open to other married women who might still wish to register at any time. "We will be tickled to have them," he said.

He added there no longer is any information of value to the enemy in the new announcements, which means that the submarines that inflicted the heavy toll have completed their patrols.

Of those patrols the submarines have operated throughout the Pacific area and, the navy said, in "the enemy's closest home waters."

12-Year-Old Boy Faces 6 Charges

A twelve-year-old Collingwood boy whose father is overseas with the Canadian army, faced half a dozen charges of breaking and entering at a session of the juvenile court Monday afternoon but as the crown was unable to prove that the mother of the lad had been notified to attend the hearing Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., remanded him for a week.

The youngster was charged among other things with breaking into the C.P.R. freight sheds, into a refrigerator car, into Weston's Bakery premises and into the Outboard Marine quarters in the Duffus building.

A fourteen-year-old Peterborough boy was charged with breaking and entering the Weston Bread Company's premises and committing theft but the case was dismissed by Magistrate Langley after the evidence of the Collingwood boy and of Officer Archie Menzies had been heard.

The Collingwood lad swore that while the local boy waited outside he had forced an entrance into the Weston Bread Company's property and had stolen four cakes. Then he said he had called the other boy inside and the two had got out through a back window and eaten the cakes. He swore that the Peterborough boy had not known that he was going to break into the place.

T. J. Carley, K.C., who defended the local accused did not call any evidence and the magistrate dismissed the breaking and entering charge, declaring that the boy might have been guilty of receiving stolen property but that a charge along that line would have to be laid.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., stated that no other charge would be laid and the boy was released. A married sister said she would take him to Toronto with her and look after him there.

Peterboro Lags In Health Work

Kitchener has seven Public Health Nurses and is seeking another, has four Victorian Order Nurses, two Sanitary Inspectors and a Medical Officer of Health, Alderman Sullivan reported to the Council last night, relaying information he had garnered on his recent visit with Mayor Hamilton, Alderman Bradburn and City Treasurer M. E. Shaver.

"So you can see what a big staff they have in their Health Department," he pointedly added with the special interest of his position as a member of the local Board of Health.

"It occurred to me that it was too bad all the members of the Council could not have gone with us to see what other cities are doing," Alderman Sullivan said. "We obtained blue prints of the modern city halls that have been erected in Kitchener and St. Catharines. We also have other information regarding the arrangement of offices and halls that should be of value when the committee is preparing a report. I was also much interested in the Health Departments of those two cities, particularly Kitchener. I know they have 5.000 more people than we have."

"And they have more breweries and abattoirs," Alderman Gordon interjected, with laughter around the aldermanic circle.

Continuing on his serious note, Alderman Sullivan said that the health of the city should be foremost in the minds of any council. "In years gone by. candidates have promised to keep down the tax rate, but I feel that the first concern should be about what he could do in the interest of the health of the people. I am intensely interested in my obligation as a member of the Board of Health, and I was greatly impressed by the number of the staff of Kitchener's department of health."

Taxi Driver Faces Charge

That when his client drove his car to Toronto on a business trip the vehicle was not being operated as a taxi and therefore he was not guilty of the offence charged was the argument advanced by T. J. Carley, K.C., in police court Monday afternoon when the charge against John Drummond, taxi operator, of operating a taxi at a distance greater than 15 miles from Peterborough was tried.

Mr. Carley did not call any evidence in behalf of his client but argued that the prosecution had failed to make out any case against him.

The evidence of the prosecution was that in May last Drummond had used his car to go to Torohto to buy some wheels and had taken Hugh Davis with his as his guest. It was sworn that Davis had not paid or been charged any fare and that the taxi sign was not displayed on the vehicle during the trip.

Mr. Carley said during his argument that if Drummond had collected any fare clear violation of the regulations would have been shown but as it was the car had not been used on that occasion as a taxi.

W. F. Huycke, K.C., for the prosecution pointed out that the regulations had been passed to prevent unnecessary use of rubber tires and gasoline and that Drummond had been guilty of a contravention of the regulation in regard to taxi cabs.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., reserved judgment in the case.

50 Canadians

ton ocean liner looked forward to their homes and families after years of isolation in prison camps. They included Fusiliers from Northumberland, Scottish privates, gunners from Lancashire, cockney ambulance drivers, Australians and Canadians.

They wore proud smiles and were filled with confident hope for the future, even though many hobbled on home-made peg legs, dangled empty sleeves or squinted at the autumn sunshine through one good eye.

"Nothing did or could get us down in spirit," said one soldier while others nodded in agreement.

Eager Questioning.

Out of touch with the world for so long, the men asked more questions of their interviewers than they answered themselves. Behind them was bitter, bloody fighting—some at the beaches of Dunkirk and Dieppe, others at Boulogne, or Crete or Greece. Before them was only one objective: Home, parents, wifes, sweethearts.

Their main question: "How soon can we get there."

They stretched between the first white sheets they had seen in many months or years, rested on brown sack mattresses or moved restlessly along the top decks of the liner, still hardly able to believe the exchange was a reality.

A Canadian-American soldier aboard was Sgt. Everett (Arky) Oglesby of Manila, Ark., volunteer in the Essex Scottish from Windsor, Ont., and a prisoner of Dieppe where he was wounded by shrapnel through the right lung He treasures a wallet and paybook which stopped another piece of shrapel from piercing his heart.

He summed up the sentiment of the wounded men. "I can't visualize it," he said. "I still think I am in Stalag VIII (Lamsdorf). That durn barbed wire was like to drive me damn near crazy."

Fliers Given Break

Sgt. Robert Bryan of the Royal Tank Corps said that in addition to Canadians an unknown number of R.A.F. men wore handcuffs in German prison camps.

"The R.A.F. men were taken first," he said. "The Germans did not have chains so they tied their wrists behind their backs with string. Then handcuffs arrived.

"First they were handcuffed behind the back, then in front with wrists crossed, and finally given enough leeway so they could put their hands in their pockets.

"The chains were fastened at 8 a.m. and taken off at 9 p.m."

Kept Up Pretence

As the time passed, he said, the German guards grew more lenient until one day they did not issue the chains after breakfast as usual.

It got to be a joke, a Canadian said. The guards would enter the barracks at night and shout "chains off" to the unshackled men.

Chaining of prisoners was instituted by the Germans more than a year ago in reprisal for what they said was the chaining of German prisoners taken at Dieppe and in a commando raid on Sark, Channel Islands. Similar chaining of German prisoners in Britain and Canada followed, but was quickly dropped, and international negotiations were instituted to have the Germans give up the practice.

COBOURG

Wagon Driver Denies Seeing Taxi In Lane

COBOURG, Oct. 19 (ENS)— Sittings of Supreme Court opened on Monday afternoon at Cobourg with Mr. Justice Urquhart presiding. The grand jury brought in no bill in connection with a rape charge against John Bednar of Oshawa. The accused was charged with raping a deaf and dumb girl.

Two cases were adjourned at the opening of court. Estate of Joseph Jones of Cobourg vs. Provincial Constable David Adair of Cobourg, an action for damages of $11,000 was settled out of court, but the details of the settlement were not revealed. Toronto-Peterborough Transport vs. Smith Transport, a claim for $1,500 damages in connection with an accident, was also settled.

Luxton vs. Luxton, a dispute over a promissory note was struck off the jury list and transferred to the non-jury. Seeney vs. Seeney, an action for alimony, was adjourned upon the request of W. J. A. Fair for plaintiff. G. N. Gordon, K.C., is counsel for defendant.

Vital Cog

Addressing the grand jury at the opening of the court, Mr Justice Urquhart declared that the grand jury system was a vital cog in the wheel of justice and that the members had important duties to perform. He advised the grand jury that they should not be backward in finding fault where fault was evident, in their tour of the various institutions in the county. He suggested that they take along with them copies of presentments of other grand juries of this court to see if their recommendations had been carried out.

The only case to go on yesterday was the damage action brought by Keith Ormiston, milk wagon driver of Bowmanville, and Ross Stevens, dairy proprietor against Lorne Stevens of Bowmanville, taxi driver. Ormiston asked for $1,105 damages of which $1,000 was for permanent injuries and the co-plaintiff asked for $1,167 of which $900 was for wages paid to Ormiston while he was laid up after the accident.

Ormiston testified that he was proceeding along King street at 8 a.m. on Dec. 19 last year, driving his horse-drawn milk wagon. He related that he was driving, as was his custom, with his left foot out on the step and his right foot up on the platform of the wagon.

"I saw no car on Mr. Stevens' driveway as I came along the street. The first I knew was when it struck me. My left leg was broken below the knee on a level with the floor of the milk wagon. I jumped after the car struck and landed on the boulevard," related Ormiston.

Bone Rebroken

Witness went in to relate that after his leg had set he was laid up for five weeks and then when he ventured on foot again his leg gave out and he was taken to Toronto where the bone was broken and a bone graft made.

Cross-examined, Ormiston said that he saw the Stevens driveway as he came along but was mainly concerned with watching the intersection. He was looking ahead with his head inside the cab of the wagon. With his head outside, he would have been able to see about 15 more feet of the Stevens' driveway, he said.

Wasn't Watching

The defendant that he was unaware of the milk wagon being so close until he backed into it. The driver told him that he had had his back turned towards the driveway, as he was packing bottles in his basket and had not seen his car, witness related.

Andrew Lennaman of Bowmanville told the court that he had seen the milk wagon about 25 to 30 feet up the highway from the intersection with Stevens' driveway. It was stopped at the time. He said "O.K." to Lorne Stevens and stepped in the car with him. A slight bump was the only indication that they had hit anything.

Recalled to the stand in reply Ormiston admitted having his back to Stevens' driveway and that he had not seen the car, but denied that he was packing bottles in the basket at the time.

The case proceeds today.

Members of the petit jury on the Ormiston-Stevens case were as follows:

Arthur Burgess, Cobourg; Charles Burch, Hamilton township; Charles Butters, Hamilton township; Sidney Blackburn, Hastings; Frank Hare, Haldimand; Thomas Johnston, Haldimand; Joseph Kelleher, Millbrook; W. J. Lawson, Murray township; Lawrence Stanton, Percy township; Donald Robb, Clarke; William Stapleton, Clark and Barton Thackeray, Alnwick.

Members of the grand jury were: H. Barrie, Darlington; W. Barrie, Hope township; A. Brown, Port Hope; W. Burley, Port Hope; H. Cowle, Bowmanville; L. Henderson, Millbrook; L. Harnden, Grafton; C. Jarvis, Wooler; T. Kellett, Pontypool; W. Rutherford, Clarke; W. Wilson, Bowmanville; W. Werry, Bowmanville and W. S. Stewart, foreman, Cobourg.

SGT. P. CLIFFORD McKINSTRY

A recent graduate from an air training school at Moncton, N. B., is Sgt. Pilot Clifford McKinstry, son of Mrs. Elizabeth McKinstry and the late William McKinstry, of Peterborough. His father was killed in the last war serving with the 93rd Battalion. Until his enlistment, Clifford worked at the C.G.E. and he trained at Lachine, Victoriaville, Three Rivers and Moncton. His wife and baby live in Montreal. Sgt. McKinstry attended May's School and the Collegiate.

When a man enlists as an air bomber he no longer expects to do just one job, according to a letter received by Mrs. Howard Lunn, of Millbrook, from her son, Sgt. Ross Lunn, who is in England.

"I am now working on the last station before operations. We are flying bigger and faster planes, and will go on some real big ones when we get on operation. They have four engines, so you may guess how large they are. I'm crewed up now, for this is the place where you are put with a certain crew and you stay with them until the end of the war.

"I'm with a sergeant pilot from Toronto named Gardiner, and he is a fine chap; I liked him right from the start. One nice thing about this place is you don't have to fly with a man unless you want to. We have a pilot officer for a navigator, and an Englishman for a wireless operator, and we will have 6 or 7 in the crew before we finish. So we should have a good time when we all get together."

Sgt. Lunn writes that this is where he learns to fly, as the air bombers have to take over and fly the machines if anything happens to the pilot. Since this is what he wanted to do right from the start, he is looking forward to an interesting course. The air bombers also have to learn part of the job of every member of the crew so they can take over if anything should happen to any one of them. Besides that, they have to drop the bombs. So they will not have any spare time. As for the meals, he finds them good. They get lots of fresh fruit and an egg once in a while and the occasional orange. Half a pint of milk for dinner each day is also part of the menu.

Despite the fact that they are miles away from home, more than 1,000 Welsh members of the forces attended the first Eisteddfod held in the Middle East. Presided over by Rev. Llewelyn Gwynne, Bishop of Egypt and Sudan, the Eisteddfod included the chairing of the Bard, a chief choral competition and a "Cymanfa Ganu."

S.O. Marjorie Wright, formerly of the recruiting office in Toronto, who has visited Peterborough many times with the mobile recruiting unit, has now been transferred and is stationed at Centralia, with the women's division of the R.C.A.F.

LT. IRENE FITZGERALD

An airgraph has been received by Mrs. Anne Fitzgerald, Indian River, from her daughter, 2nd Lt. Irene G. Fitzgerald, who is serving as a nurse with the United States Army overseas. She has been stationed for some time in North Africa and at the time of writing was on furlough in Algiers.

She particularly enjoys travelling from place to place and the contacts she makes with her nursing delight her. The climate of the country appeals to her a good deal since it is quite moderate now in spite of the latitude. Lt. Fitzgerald writes that the homes and buildings of Algiers are very picturesque, and largely of white marble.

This nurse was born at Indian River, and attended Public school at S.S. No. 3, Otonabee, and received her High school education at night school in Parry Sound, while a nurse-in-training at St. Joseph's Hospital. Upon graduation, she practised her profession at the Receiving Hospital in Detroit where she remained for 10 years until she enlisted in the United States Army Nursing Corps. Before going overseas, Lt. Fitzgerald received her training at Denver, Col.

A former resident of Gore's Landing, Gnr. William Babb, recently wrote to Mrs. Melville Harris there telling of a thrilling chat with Queen Elizabeth. He was a member of the Guard of Honor at Sandringham on this red letter day.

It was on the last day of his guard that the King, Queen and two princesses reviewed them. The Queen asked Gnr. Blabb where he came from and how long he had been overseas. He commented on how beautiful the Queen is and paid tribute to Princess Elizabeth. He also sent sprigs of lavender from Queen Elizabeth's garden. He enlisted at Cobourg and went overseas two years ago.

Mrs. Harris has also received a recent V-mail letter from her sister, 2nd Lt. Norah Hennessey who arrived in North Africa during the summer. Her letter indicates that she may now be in Italy and she described their bathing beach as being much like that at Cobourg.

Officers and men of Canadian Army Basic Training Centre No. 31 at Cornwall believe they are the first service unit in Canada to exceed their objective in the fifth Victory Loan drive. A few minutes after the campaign opened on Monday, officials at the camp announced they had attained 155 per cent of their quota.

LAC. GEORGE RICE

Interesting impressions of Africa are contained in a letter recently received by Mr. and Mrs. James A. Rice of Marmora from their son, LAC. George Rice, who is attached to the R.A.F. there. A former student at Marmora High School, George went overseas this spring and celebrated his 20th birthday a month ago.

"The climate is something that takes a little getting used to," George writes. "Once the sun drops below the horizon it becomes dark very quickly. There is no lingering twilight, instead in a half hour complete darkness. At midnight the sky is covered with white jewels. A few nights ago at 4 a.m. a full moon nestled in a small bank of clouds. It reminded me of a Crowe Lake sunset. The dawn comes fast and with a sunrise which surpasses any sunset that I have ever seen.

"It gets very cold at night and for quite a while I wore a shirt, turtle neck sweater, and battle dress to keep warm on night bind. Then breakfast is over, the everlasting fight with flies begins. It is always a race to see who will get the food, you or the flies. They usually win. As the day rolls on a breeze springs us, which if you stay under canvas (there are no trees) keeps you comfortable until the sun reaches the zenith. Then nothing can keep you cool. When there is an occasional breeze, the dust flies.

Cities Unclean

"Cities like Algiers and Tunis are alike in at least one respect. They have a terrific odour. They are all right in the main business and French sections, but . . The shops specialize in souvenirs for the forces and a queer Francais-Anglais language is used in trading there. They have no big displays windows, but rather open stalls with roller shutters which are closed at night.

"Tunis is the best of those I have seen, with wide streets lined with trees which are like huge ferns, modern buildings and lots of English language film at the theatres. As for the Arabs, there are two kinds—the town Arab and the nomadic tribes. Except for their sheiks, the town Arabs have degenerated into filthy petty thieves. Those who have stuck to the farms and nomadic tribes are prosperous and fairly well dressed—usually in long flowing garments. The town Arab has clothes which are more European, except that they are no longer the original garments as patches have replaced the other material, and are like a coat of many colors.

"The nomadic Arabs are living the same as they did when our Lord was on earth, little influenced by civilization. It is only the Arabs who have tried civilization who have degenerated from the noble free people they once were."

Two City Plants Total $5,221 For War Victims

From the very nature of the position it holds in the city's industrial life, the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. has come to be regarded more or less as a barometer of the way in which the city will go in its support of any endeavour that is of a public nature, and this has proved to be true in the matter of public support to the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, for the employees of this large industrial plant, allied with the Genelco Co. Ltd. have to date rolled up a grand total of $5,221.78 in their voluntary givings to date for this one fund alone.

This latest total was reached through a contribution of $19.26 from the Industrial Control Dept., headed by P. Killingbeck as foreman, which is credited in today's receipts.

Give $102.85 This Year

This one department has been quite active this year on behalf of the fund, a statement which is fully verified when one considers that since February of this year, they have made six donations which give them a total of credit of $102.85 in that short period of time, an achievement which ranks them as one of the leaders from the standpoint of per capita contributions for the period mentioned.

To all employees in the two large city plants, the fund management would say a word of appreciation for their support, and venture to express the hope that this will be continued, particularly for the special Christmas donations which are now in the course of being raised.

Caban Draw Totals $57

This activity sponsored by Victor Caban, Sr., of 543 Park street has now reached a total of $57 in the short period of time it has been in operation, with the $13 credited to it today. In this Mr. Caban is having the assistance of a number of friends who have tickets for sale on the draw for seven prizes, which are selling at 25 cents each or five for one dollar.

The prize list is a good one consisting of a load of wood or war savings certificate of $25 par value as first prize, three ducks for second prize, one pig or $10 war savings certificate for 3rd prize, one bag of potatoes for 4th prize, at $5 war savings certificates for each of the 5th and 6th prizes, and the choice of a Jersey calf or $20 war savings certificate for 7th prize, all of which are being donated by Mr. Caban himself.

The war savings certificates alone total a value of $65 which had really been saved as a nest egg for Victor Caban, Jr., when he should return from active service abroad, but since this young patriot has given life itself on the fields of battle in Sicily, the parents decided they wished to do further good in his name with the money, hence their sponsoring this effort on behalf of the fund.

CAMPBELLFORD

Speaker Tells Wonders Of Mirrophone

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 19 (ENS) —One of the most interesting demonstrations of modern scientific development was provided for local Rotarians at their luncheon here on Monday as representatives of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada exhibited and described the mirrophone. The device was described by the speaker, R. H. Spencer, special information representative of the company, as one of its latest developments in sound recording.

Speaking on "Your Voice As Others Hear It," Mr. Spencer told of the part mirrophone was playing in war and peace. One of its principal war functions was in training those responsible for communications to speak clearly, thus obviating any possibility of error. He traced the study of speech and sound to Alexander Bell, a Scottish cobbler of Edinburgh, who studied speech to improve his station in life. The study of speech fascinated him and he left his trade to go first to the stage and later to become a professor of public speaking at Edinburgh University. It was his grandson, Alexander Graham Bell, who came to Brantford, Ontario, in 1870, and four years later formulated the principals of the telephone.

Mr. Spencer demonstrated a model of Bell's first telephone and described various scientific discoveries which had made the device less cumbersome. For example, the magnetism produced by cobalt steel enabled the size of the receiver to be reduced from the once large piece of equipment to its present size as incorporated in the hand telephone.

Frequencys Trouble.

Describing the complexity of speech, Mr. Spencer pointed out that low frequencys and high frequencys travelled at different rates along a wire thus making the transmission of sound somewhat more difficult. "Sound is an effect on the brain produced by air vibrations," said the speaker who described the mirrophone as an instrument which permitted a recording to be made and reproduced immediately, "the mirrophone enables anyone to listen to his voice just as he would look at his face in a mirror."

"There is a scientific reason why we do not hear what our voices sound like to others. Just above the larnynx, where the vocal sounds originate, there is a tiny tube leading from the throat passage to the middle ear. This tube, and the bones of the head, carry the voice sounds to the middle ear. The sound originating in the throat is much louder in volume and lower in pitch than the moulded voice that proceeds out of the mouth. Thus a person's voice—as he hears it—lacks many of the qualities of the voice that has been moulded by the lips, tongue, teeth and jaws and the resonators in the nose, mouth and throat.

Following his remarks many members of the club tried out the mirrophone and all expressed surprise at the sound of their voices. A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Rotarian Harold N. Carr. Mr. Spencer was accompanied by Roy Willis, plant superintendent of the Bell Telephone Co., Peterborough; J. Morrow, and W. E. Lloyd of Peterborough.

Hockey Rinks Are Discussed

Hockey and skating and rinks were glimpsed in three perspectives, two short and one long, at Monday night's meeting of the Council.

The C.G.E.-Genelco rink on Park Street began taking form again as the Council gave permission to the company's Social and Athletic Fund to lay out an open air sheet for the winter.

Then there was Herb Payne's reported undertaking to organize a 'teen-age hockey league and use the old lacrosse bowl on Townsend Street as a means of keeping hockey's pulse beating in Peterborough.

Then, the third was Alderman Bradburn's suggestion that Peterborough should begin planning now for a post-war hockey arena and that Mayor Hamilton should call a public meeting to approach this question especially with the benefit of the experience of St. Catharines.

Alderman Bradburn was a member of the Council's deputation which recently visited St. Catharines and Kitchener, and while city hall features received primary attention, health and hockey and some other details of municipal housekeeping were also scrutinized.

A resolution by Alderman Bradburn, seconded by Alderman Sullivan, requested Mayor Hamilton to call a public meeting to which would be invited representatives of various public-spirited organizations and all other citizens interested in hockey, "for the purpose of considering the erection of an ice arena after the war."

Because of so many war restrictions on building and the scarcity of materials it was felt that nothing could be done at the present except to begin laying the plans and groundwork.

The St. Catharines arena was built in 1938 at a cost of $105,000, Alderman Bradburn told the Council.

It has seating accommodation for 3,300 people, and seemed a decidedly suitable structure for Peterborough's needs.

"The city helped them finance the arena, and they have five years' surplus on their debenture payments. In other words they are making a financial success of their rink," Alderman Bradburn said. "Everybody feels that Peterborough should have an artificial ice rink, and the present seems opportune to get ready for it."

Alderman Glover said he had been in the St. Catharines rink and regarded it as close to ideal accommodation for Peterborough's needs. "There will be no more hockey in Peterborough until an arena is built here. This is a good sports town, and an arena ought to be able to carry itself.

"For an industrial city like Peterborough we have to carry on summer and winter sports as attractions for the public. They help to bring people to live and work here."

C.G.E. Spent $1,860.

Norm Crowe told the Council the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club spent $1,860 on the Park Street rink last winter. The club was given the two buildings which were used as dressing rooms. Children of the south end were admitted free from 4 to 6 p.m. every day after school and also on Saturday afternoons.

O. W. Hurrle accompanied Mr. Crowe. A motion by Aldermen Glover and Dutton granted the deputation's request on the same terms as last winter.

Herb Payne's Idea.

Alderman Swanston told the Council Herb Payne was proposing a league for boys of fourteen to sixteen years, games to be played at the lacrosse bowl, with the Council's permission.

Mayor Hamilton said he felt sure the ground would be made available without any charge, and other members said that Mr. Payne deserved

Stoker Petty Officer W. H. Cowie, ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY

STOKER Petty Officer W. H. Cowie is a short, wiry, bespectacled sailor, 41 years of age. For 31 months he toiled in the stokeholds of corvettes and armed merchantmen on Atlantic convoy routes.

In that time, his convoys lost only three ships. To even the score, the escort ships on which he served scored one submarine sunk, and two probables.

A year ago he was mentioned in dispatches. "I can't figure out," he says, "just what for. I haven't done anything special. It was just my job."

A few weeks ago, Bill Cowie was transferred to shore duty. But he is not happy. "I want to go back to sea again," he says, "because that's where I can really do my part to beat the U-boats."

Petty Officer Cowie receives $2.65 a day in the Navy. His wife gets $36.40 a month dependent's allowance. He and his wife are putting every cent they can save into Victory Bonds.

There is nothing "extraordinary" about Bill Cowie. He sees no reason why he should be singled out for distinction.

But it is the thousands of Bill Cowies in our fighting forces who are winning this war for us. Let's back them up. Let's help them speed the victory!

Thus speaks Petty Officer W. H. Cowie, who has seen 31 months of convoy duty on the north and west Atlantic

IN FEBRUARY, 1942, Bill Cowie was sweating in the stokehold of the Canadian corvette "Barrie". Off Iceland, the convoy they were escorting ran into a U-boat pack. The escorts fought it off, only to encounter another, and then another.

"It was a running battle for a week and a half," says Cowie. "Two merchant ships and a Free French corvette were torpedoed. Thirty-five of the corvette's crew were lost. The "Barrie" and another ship brought the rest — almost three dozen ships — safely to port. As revenge, on the way back we tackled a sub — and we think we 'got' her."

Bill Cowie had a close shave when a depth charge exploded alongside his corvette, smashing surface pumps and cracking boiler seams. While he was aboard the corvette "Buctouche", they sank a U-boat not far off Nova Scotia. Earlier, his ship, a British armed merchant cruiser, helped a convoy of 30 tankers elude a Nazi surface raider.

This man knows the thrill of action against Hitler's water wolves. He knows what it is like to see fighting comrades go to their deaths. He has seen the look in the eyes of torpedoed merchant seamen snatched from expected death.

"There's a big job to be done yet," says Bill Cowie, "and it can't be done unless folks at home back us up. We'll do the dirty work — gladly. All you have to do is lend your money. If you could spend just one minute in action out on the Atlantic, you wouldn't hesitate about buying bonds."

A Great Canadian Editor

In past years a few observers have affected to see a falling-off in the influence which the newspapers of Canada have over the opinions of their readers. Whatever newspapers they may have been thinking of, certainly they could not have meant the Winnipeg Free Press, which has exercised the most profound influence on the thinking of western Canada, and on the Dominion as a whole, since John W. Dafoe became its editor in 1901. On Saturday night last the Winnipeg Press Club met to celebrate Dr. Dafoe's sixtieth year as a Canadian journalist. During the last forty of those years he has undoubtedly been one of the half-dozen or so outstanding newspapermen in this country.

Dr. Dafoe's brilliant career has been in a considerable degree the result of a most happy understanding between himself and his publisher. The most striking single instance of this came in 1911 when Dafoe supported the reciprocity policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Free Press, while its proprietor, Sir Clifford Sifton, opposed the same policy vigorously on the public platform; if John Dafoe had not always been able to count on the understanding and support of his principal his influence would have been greatly curtailed.

As a scholarly and untiring student of public affairs John Dafoe has not only been able to do much to enlighten his readers, but also to direct the destiny of his country. For a variety of reasons much journalism in Canada and elsewhere is the work of men who are not well-informed, who have little sense of responsibility, and who lack the integrity of character which a man should have who presents his opinions to the public day in and day out for years on end. John Dafoe is known everywhere in Canada as a man of wide learning and political sagacity, but primarily as an honest editor. He is anything but a bigoted party man, and has gone directly contrary to Liberal policy on several important occasions, notably on the Laurier conscription policy and the 1917 campaign for union government. And it was certainly not for his Liberal sympathies that Sir Robert Borden chose him to be one of the Canadian party at the Peace Conference in 1919.

At 77 Dr. Dafoe is still captain of the ship in Winnipeg, and he has an able successor there, so that he will be able to retire when he wants to do so, without fears that his work will be undone. On this occasion of his diamond jubilee as a newspaperman the whole press of Canada is proud to do him honour.

Italy—Rash Gambler

Italy's cup of humiliation must have run over when the Emperor of Abyssinia declared that his country would not accept its former conqueror as a "co-belligerent". In that incident—unimportant enough in itself and so far as the progress of the war is concerned—is crystallized the unhappy struggle of Italy to become a great imperial power, which has occupied so much of her time since her unification. In her struggle for imperial glory Italy has shown herself a rash gambler; she has unfailingly backed the wrong horse.

Italy has never shown ability to choose as her friends nations whose political and economic interests were compatible with her own. By the turn of century, Italy was a wealthy and powerful nation and her imperial ambitions rose to a high pitch. The Mediterranean seemed to be her logical field for expansion, but all the possible colonies in that area were already taken by France and Britain. Italian requests for colonizing rights in Tunisia and Egypt were coldly received by the French and British, and the Italo-Turkish war of 1912 brought a very poor return in the Dodecanese islands. When the Great War was brewing Italy would not take a stand with the British-French-Russian powers, for there seemed nothing to gain by it; instead she implicated herself with Germany and Austria, and when war broke out she found herself in an embarrassing dilemma.

After the Great War the Italians found themselves faced with their old problem of colonial expansion, but with little hope, and with a bitter resentment of the Versailles Treaty to complicate their feelings. They were ready for a Mussolini, and they got one. He promised them colonies, and in time he delivered the goods, the rape of Abyssinia being the means he used. He also devised the clever scheme of helping Germany to become a great power, in the hope that he might play off Germany against the Anglo-French alliance to the advantage of Italy. But in assisting Germany he created the monster which destroyed him. By the time Hitler entered Vienna, the world knew that Mussolini's pupil had eclipsed his master.

A thoroughly discredited Italy has signed terms of unconditional surrender to the United Nations; she has made a volte-face unequalled in modern history, and is now fighting her former ally; and she has been rejected with contemptuous dignity by the nation which she sought to enslave. Italy has touched bottom; she must rise from now on, for she can go no lower.

A Worker In Wax

The great-grandson of Madame Tussaud is dead. John Theodore Tussaud was 86 years old, and he had been director of the most famous waxwork exhibition in the world since 1886. He was a sculptor and modeller of some eminence, and his work was often exhibited at the Royal Academy, but his chief task and his joy was in supplying new wax models to Madame Tussaud's of Marylebone Road, London.

Madame Tussaud's Waxworks have delighted the public for 110 years. The founder was a French emigre who escaped to England at the time of the Revolution, and established her waxwork show on Baker Street (later to be famous as the place of residence of Sherlock Holmes) in 1833. The attraction of the waxworks never failed. Changes in public taste were many: the gaiety of the early Victorian era gave way to the stolidity of the later years of the great Queen's reign; the theatre of melodrama gave way to the theatre of tea-cup-and-saucer comedy; taste in art moved from Frith and Landseer to Watts and Whistler, and so to the wild days of Cubists and Vorticists: but Madame Tussaud's show never lost its attraction. A great place, Madame Tussaud's.

Madame Tussaud's contains models of almost everyone who has ever cut a figure in history or literature. Neville Chamberlain and Hitler, Queen Elizabeth and Mary of Scotland, the Royal Family and Karl Marx are all there, as large as life and twice as natural. At the entry stands an impressive policeman, but if you ask him the time you will find that he is the only bobby in London who does not know it — a wax policeman, in fact. Wax, also, is the lady who leans forward from a booth to take your ticket. Wax and immoveable are Henry VIII and his five ladies, but the Sleeping Beauty, reclining on a couch, has a bosom which heaves realistically as she slumbers. A great place for a Saturday afternoon, Madame Tussaud's!

But your visit was not complete unless you went into the Chamber of Horrors, which cost sixpence extra. There, in an eerie light, you could see Charlie Peace in his condemned cell, and Burke and Hare plotting a murder; there was Marat lying stabbed in his bathtub, blood oozing hideously from his throat; there also was a tableau of the "Brides In the Bath" murder, which shocked Victorian England; a corner was devoted to Dr. Crippen who — let us remember — once plied his art in London, Ontario. And if you peeped behind a curtain, you saw a body, hooked through the entrails, swinging from the ceiling.

A great place, Madame Tussaud's! Let us hope the post-war planners do not plan it out of existence.

Careers For Women

By MARY STOCKS
Principal of Westfield College, University of London
in The London Sunday Times

To a veteran of the Edwardian Women's Suffrage movement, that old battle presents, in retrospect, the charm of a soul-satisfying simplicity. Our immediate requirement for our sex was summed up in three words: "Votes for Women." Never has so large a principle been so neatly embodied in a self-explanatory formula. Further precision was added by the statement that we wanted the vote "on the same terms as it was or might be granted to men." What was sauce for the gander was, we thought, suitable and adequate sauce for the goose.

Well, we got it. And as history records, after the strategic victory of Women's Suffrage in 1918, other doors began to open in the mansion of equality—helped, oddly enough, by a war in which men suffered nearly all the killing, and in which the minor contribution of women was hailed with surprise and disproportionate admiration as an uncovenanted benefit conferred by persons of whom little was to be expected.

In public life and in various professional spheres, women appeared in competition with men on nominally equal terms though in actual fact certain conventions and jealousies hampered their chances of promotion and narrowed their scope. Only the Foreign Office and the Church maintained their old anti-feminist barriers intact, thus preserving in their corridors a strange atmosphere of remoteness from the currents of contemporary life.

MEANWHILE a generation of young women grew up who knew neither the bitterness nor the exhilaration of those early struggles — who knew only that they lived in a world of opportunity which offered them specialized careers on the approved masculine pattern. Less vigilant than those who had lived through the preliminary struggle, they were scarcely alive to the limits of those opportunities especially where, as in the Civil Service, they were offered a fair field at the starting point.

It is a matter of common experience in religious communities that the convert tends to be the devotee. Certainly one of the fruits of women's emancipation has been the emergence of a generation of intensely career-conscious young women. That is partly due, of course, to the peculiar structure of our educational ladder, beginning with a rather fortuitious scramble for a foot on the first rung at eleven plus, followed by a continuous preoccupation with the next rung but one in the precarious ascent towards professional status and economic security. But it is difficult not to believe, especially when one contemplates the career-fixation which so many young women display under war conditions, that women are in fact still at the devotee stage.

If one may for a moment stop saying: the young women are simply splendid—an ungracious act, since many of them are—one is tempted to recall the reckless spirit in which the young men of 1914 jumped off the upper rungs of that educational ladder with little thought of how they were going to regain their footing on it—and yet perhaps, with a half-conscious reliance on their acknowledged right to any careers that might be going, in the event of their survival.

So far so good. But in a sense it is either too good, or not good enough. The feminist case is not as simple as it was. Indeed, it became less simple in the years following the last war when a certain heresy arose in the feminine ranks. It was called by some "the new feminism," and the arch-heretic was Miss Eleanor Rathbone. Women, said Miss Rathbone, have speical needs connected with an occupation in which they do not compete with men and have thus no male standards to achieve: the occupation of motherhood. A sound economic basis for this occupation—in other words, a national system of family allowances—is of ever greater moment to them than rigid equality of status, pay, and opportunity in those professions where they do compete with men.

HERE, then was a wider conception of equality than that covered by the old phrase "as it is or may be granted to men"—one which requires not merely an assimilation by women of male standards where these exist, but an assimilation by the national consciousness of female standards where male standards are irrelevant: an equality, in fact, which transcends mere identity. So much for the first disturbing advance towards the doubts and scruples of our later age.

And now the time seems to be ripe for a further elaboration of the heresy. For two generations we have concentrated on the production of trained women capable, if they remain unmarried or marry late in life, of competing on the same terms as men (but without the same domestic advantages) in uninterrupted specialized careers. A few of them have reached real eminence. In the Civil Service women Principal Assistant Secretaries are not unknown. But in so doing, they have tacitly accepted a standard which exalts unbroken concentration on a specialized job as a test of fitness—and have sorrowed over the perpetual leakage of good specialized talent into the domestic sphere. They have devoted far too much attention to the adaptation of the worker to the job and far too little to the adaption of the job to the worker. It is indeed high time that the leaders among women opened a new and positive phase of "the woman's movement" by demanding not merely careers on the same terms as men, but careers on their own terms. And war conditions have provided that "tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

By upbringing and tradition women are the less specialized sex; and from a very early age greater demands are made upon their powers of imagination and self-adaptation. Against the narrower range of industrial or professional jobs which open out before the girl school-leaver may be set the infinitely wider range of social environments and daily occupations furnished by home responsibilities and the probability of marriage. It may be that behind upbringing and tradition there are profound biological causes at work, and that the greater capacity of women to seek and find emotional satisfaction in a wide variety of personal and social relationships other than the physical sex relationship is one condition of this superior adaptability. Be that as it may—the time has come for them to move beyond the proposition that what is sauce for the gander is sauce for the goose, and to suggest that the goose's sauce is as good as the gander's and might well be used to season the diet of both.

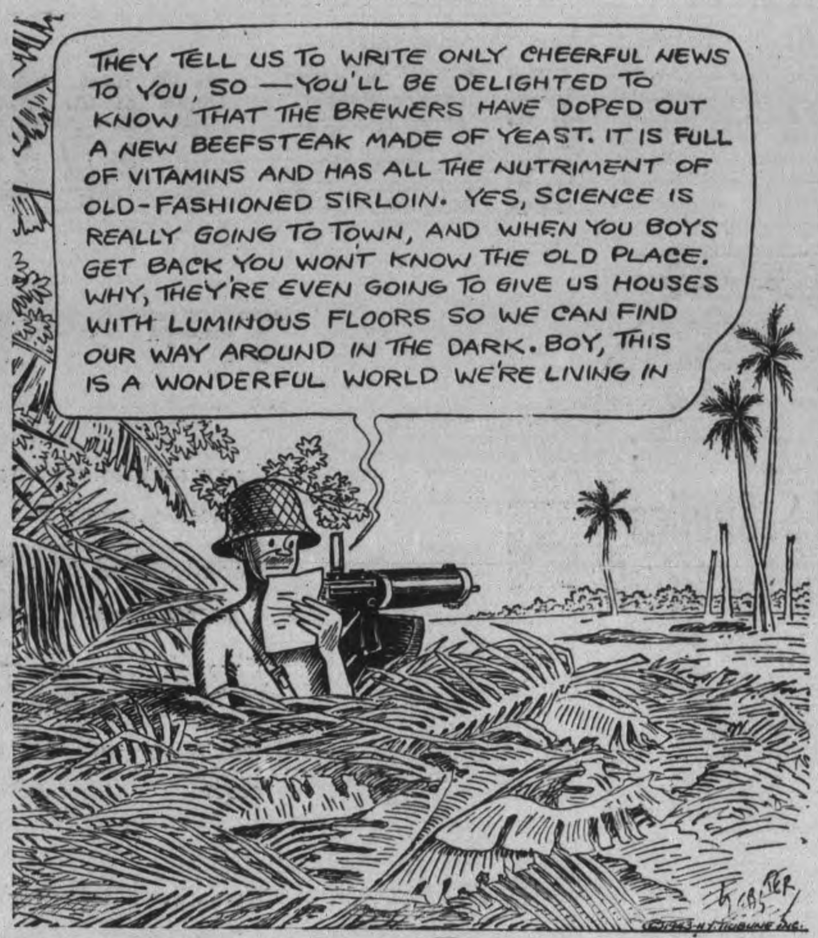
TO put the matter in concrete form: If the time has come for women to demand careers on their own terms, it is going to mean an overhaul of our professional standards and a far greater degree of consideration for the possibility of part-time work and interrupted work. Indeed, the teaching profession, faced with the post-war problem of producing some 70,000 to 100,000 additional recruits, is already plunged in such consideration. Clearly, married women, women returning from years of domesticity, women unable for domestic reasons to put in the conventional hours per day or per week, will have to play their part in our new educational program, whether or no social theorists and professional sticklers approve their inclusion.

It is true perhaps that the teaching profession is, of all others, not excluding the Civil Service, the profession in which interruption and diversity of human experience is likely to give back in the form of personal vitality what it takes in the form of technical efficiency. But there are in fact few professional careers which would not be the better for a little interruption, and many middle-aged men have become the miserably over-specialized unadaptable creatures they are for lack of it. It would indeed be interesting to get from the Ministry of Labour a frank statement of the relatives usefulness to our kaleidoscopic war needs of the men and women of the forty-five—fifty age group.

Interesting—and instructive; because the case for a reconsideration of our traditional professional standards rests not only on the desire to make a more satisfying environment for women and provide them with an easy option at the expense of national efficiency. It rests upon a belief that our civilized world has become stiff in its social joints, and that we are moving into an era of swift change and unpredictable pattern in which, for all its technical standardization, personal adaptability and imagination will be vitally needed qualities.

LIFE'S DARKEST MOMENT



The Film In Canada

(MANCHESTER GUARDIAN)

HOW many filmgoers in Britain are aware that in 1941 a film called "Churchill's Island" won an Academy Award at Hollywood? How many who are aware realise that the film was produced by a Government unit, the National Film Board of Canada? Is it surprising that more important and enduring achievements are quite unknown? Even Canada is little conscious of its possession.

John Grierson's is an outstanding name in the world of "documentary" films (with one, "Drifters," he made history), and it was he who proposed the creation of a National Film Board of Canada and also became (and is) its first manager. He has inspired and guided its work.

The Board is only now at the first stage of making original films. In the main it has cut, reworded, re-edited other people's films to produce results which are wholly original. Lately there was shown in Toronto to a meeting of manufacturers "The War for Men's Minds," a mosaic of German, Italian, American, British, Russian, and Chinese material, the whole a striking presentation of the United Nations' democratic cause and faith. The commercial series "The World in Action," which regularly presents the aims and achievements of the United Nations and which is shown in the theatres throughout Canada (and in many in the United States), is similarly a mosaic which makes itself original. "Canada Fights" presents the Canadian effort.

Now original films are beginning to be provided in greater quantity to show Canada not only to the outside world but also to Canadians. It is a difficult moment; war has produced a shortage of film material; but the need to show Canada to Canadians is acute. The immense distances, the relative smallness of the population, the differences in race and history—these are obstacles to real unity which the film can do much to overcome.

Probably some two million go to see films in the theatres — where they see the commercial films and also the "World in Action." But something like one and a quarter million see non-theatrical films—in factories, in institutes, in villages, even in private homes. There are some seventy film libraries spread across the Dominion, some set up by the Board, some by the (unofficial) Film Society, all now, in effect, joint libraries; in many cases the extension departments of universities constitute the libraries. The difficulty of distance is further attacked by the use of travelling theatres. The mobile unit is much more than a mobile projector. It is preceded to a rural centre by an organiser who instructs discussion leaders; its equipment includes posters and pamphlets; the aim is to make the film only a part of the lesson, to ensure that the audience discusses what the eye has seen, discerns and absorbs its lesson.

The war-time value of this organization is obvious. The Canadian worker is so far from the scene of war that it is hard for him to appreciate the value of his work. Films can have a great effect upon moral, and British films, be it noted, have been considerably used, with or without adaptation. The unofficial product of Denham "Our Film" is reported to have scored an outstanding success.

The organization thus briefly sketched is still in its infancy but may acquire fresh strength from its war-time experience. Its general manager is also (though temporarily) the manager of the War-time Information Board. This is much to ask of one man, but whether or not he continues to undertake the double burden, it will almost certainly happen that the educational end of the Film Board will grow. It, rather than the transient War-time Information Board, is equipped to produce and distribute literature and posters; it has the means to collect audiences; it knows the technique of approach to particular audiences. More weight, therefore, may well be thrown upon the permanent than the war-time machine, with important post-war consequences.

Much depends upon the politicians. The War-time Information Board is not only held by the searchlights; it is always under fire. Canadian politics are often parochial. There is a fear (to say this is not to say that the fear is justified) that the nation's information machine may be used by the party in power on behalf of the party. A Ministry of Information (and one now without a Minister of its own to defend it in Parliament) is obliged to incur the kind of expenditure which arouses legislators' most parochial sentiments. These storms have to be weathered while the War-time Information Board is actually in the course of its second reorganization, and at the same time the Film Board has to be kept on an even keel and encouraged to make fresh experiments. It may well be, however, that Mr. Grierson's natural talent together with his special gifts for choosing and inspiring subordinates, for leaving them to do their jobs without leading-strings, may enable them both to pull through.

If so, there must be hope not only that Canada will be helped towards a greater sense of unity but also that her ideas and influence will begin to spread. She is increasingly conscious of the importance of her geographical position in connection with air transport as a link, not only geographically, between the British Commonwealth and the United States she may have a vital role in history.

News From London

A Canadian officer spending a recent week-end leave in London dined at one of the famous luxury hotels, frequently in happier days by cosmopolitan millionaires. He reports that, all things considered, the institution is keeping up a brave front, but the little refinements of peacetime are represented by symbols instead of substance.

The menus, for example, are still beautifully printed, but the typography does not conceal a shortage of food and a lack of variety of which the hotel would once have been ashamed. Nor does the French into which the menus are still translated conceal the fact that the patrons are now offered more plebeian dishes than pheasant and caviar.

On the day of our correspondent's dinner, the strain of translation had broken down the maitre d'hotel. He had faithfully found French equivalents for all the dishes until he came to the sweet. That was frankly listed as "Le bread-and-butter pudding."—The Printed Word.

Not Helpful

It might be well to point out to the United States publishers with all the good-will in the world, that their disposition to refuse to accept newsprint rationing with good grace compares very unfavourably with the attitude of the British publisher who is reduced to four pages a day. Further, that their huge Sunday papers, some of them weighing over a pound each, which they continue to put out, war or no war, do not help to smooth the path of the pulp and paper industry in Canada when it has to take its problems to the Dominion Government. —Kingston Whig-Standard.

Why More Boys!

Statisticians have made much of the fact that more boys than girls are born in war. Prof. Constantine Panunzio (University of California) went over all the facts and explanations for the Milbank Fund and concluded that "there seems to be some evidence that was does increase the ratio of males at birth." But he is not satisfied and wants more material. If further studies support the statisticians, Panunzio thinks that painstaking investigation and experimentation are called for. If this fails, biologists will find themselves confronting a granite wall. — New York Times.

A Bible Message

Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I have preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; by which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain.

For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures: and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures: and that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve: after that, he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep.... And last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time....

Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain.... If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable.

But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. (I Cor. 15: 1-6, 8, 12-14, 19, 20.)

Harangues of Yesterday

So Hitler has spoken again. The speech fits into a memorable series delivered in each September or early October of the war. They are landmarks in its history. In 1939 Hitler was extremely loquacious, and it was then that he said (Nov. 8):

When it is said that this war will last three years I reply that however long it may last Germany will never capitulate. At the outbreak of the war I gave orders to Field Marshal Goering that he should plan everything for a five-year war.

The fifth year has come. On Sept. 4, 1940, he was in magnificent spirits. His audience rocked with laughter as he taunted Britain with the destruction to come:

If the British Air Force drops two or three or four thousand kilograms of bombs, we will drop a hundred and fifty, a hundred and eight, two hundred thousand, three hundred thousand, four hundred thousand kilograms and more in a single night.

And they cheered still more when he sneered:

And if today, in England, people are very inquisitive and are asking, "But why doesn't he come?" they may rest assured: he'll come all right.

Another year, and on Oct. 3, 1941, he could report of the Russian offensive: "We have not made a wrong calculation in any of our plans"; "this enemy has already been broken and will never rise again." Another year, and on Sept. 30, 1942, the exultant note was weaker (although Stalingrad "will be taken, you may be sure of that"), and it was necessary to repeat that he would never capitulate. But he was in fine form about the "second front":
